Lord Randolph, continuing, said he trusted that after the recent speeches of the ministers the Government would bring up the arrears question early in the future. In the meantime he could not admit that coercion militated against land purchase. How could it impede free action on the part of either landlord or tenant? As a financial operation the bill certainly was not good enough. The security for advances was totally insufficient, but the risk might be worthy incurring when limited to an advance of ten mithioes which would not be tolerable under a larger scheme. It would never do to make the state the immediate landlord of the Irish tenantry. The present measure would not apply to more than 25,000 holdings. It was not likely to be a danger to the state though probably it could not be safely extended.

The bill passed the second reading by a vote of 299 to 224.

Look out for fun. The prices in Groceries have fallen away to the bottom at the Pantry. d113

THE CASE OF MANITOBA.

PRESENTED BY MR. MOWAT BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT.

He is Frequently Interrupted by the Judges Who Make a Number of Suggestions and Ask Several Questions.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—Argument in the Manitoba railway crossing case was resumed in the Supreme Court this morning and Mr. Christopher Robinson, Q.C., in continuing his argument on behalf of the Canadian Pacific Railway commenced last evening, quoted a number of authorities to show the interpretation given to railway legislation by the Federal authorities. Dealing with the action of the Manitoba Legislature in authorizing the construction of the Portage extension, he said no legislature could of its own accord give itself jurisdiction. He showed the ill effects of concurrent jurisdiction. The Federal Parliament in declaring certain roads to be for the general advantage of Canada took a step which should be in itself sufficient to deter the provinces from constructing further railways intended to cross any of the railways declared by the Federal Parliament to be for the general advantage of Canada. It is unreasonable, he said, for the Provinces to object to the Dominion assuming the entire control of railways. Vast railways traversing the Dominion should not be handicapped by Provincial roads, which, while competing with the former, were governed by other regulations.

There can be no judicial interference. There cannot, he argued, be judicial interference in matters of policy, such as the assumption of all legislative control in railway matters. The tendency of the age is towards placing the various roads under the power of the central authority. The various provinces enacted legislation which conflicted with that of the Dominion. This formed the strongest argument, when the Dominion was obliged to assert its prerogative clearly bestowed under the British North America Act.

Hon. Mr. Mowat opened the case for Manitoba. He commenced by a general declaration that in endeavoring to assume control of provincial roads the Dominion Government was exceeding the power granted it by the British North America Act, and contended that the act did not give the Dominion Government the power with regard to railways which it was assuming. The question before the court was a two-fold one:

First: Is the Manitoba act for the construction of the Portage extension valid?

Secondly: If so, is it valid to cross the Canadian Pacific Railway?

The enactment of the Federal Parliament in effect is to deprive the provinces of their rights to build roads. Since May, 1883, these provinces have no longer enjoyed a right granted them by the British North America Act. He disputed the wisdom of the Dominion in assuming legislative jurisdiction when it destroyed this vested right. If the terms of the Federal Railway Act are regarded, the construction of provincial railways crossing Dominion roads becomes an impossibility in British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, and possibly the Maritime Provinces.

The Minister of Justice, despite the expense of federal legislation preventing the granting of provincial charters authorizing roads to cross Federal roads, actually considered provincial acts relating to provincial railways in a favorable manner on various occasions during the past five years. Sir John Thompson made reports on these acts which granted provincial railway charters. Some of the acts were allowed, but not in a single instance does the Minister of Justice suggest any difficulty regarding the method and manner of crossing Dominion roads.

Mr. Mowat then went on to argue touching what really should be the construction of the Act. It was impossible to imagine that Parliament really thought of forbidding railways built by the provinces, and this view was quite consistent with the legislation enacted by Parliament. All the language of the 308th section meant, or grammatically could bear, was that when the railway became a work it would be for the general advantage of Canada. There was no indication of any other meaning, and a larger construction would be utterly unwarrantable. The construction put upon them by the other side was much larger than the words require. The language of the 307th section also meant that not until the railway was built should it be subject to the legislation of Parliament.

Mr. Justice Taschereau referred Mr. Mowat to the definition of what a railway was. He mentioned it for what it was worth, Mr. Mowat having read the clause.

Hon. Edward Blake said it was worth more than was being given it.

Mr. Mowat: "It only stipulates what a railway shall do."

Proceeding, Mr. Mowat said that before 1883 the corresponding clauses in the old legislation would apply to all railways passed under provincial legislation which should cross a Dominion railway. That was the meaning before 1883 and we found it repeated in 1880, 1886, 1888. The construction would be that the legislature intended it to remain undisturbed. He held that the construction he was intending to prove was one recognized by the Minister of Railways and the province as acquiesced in by the Dominion Parliament.

Chief Justice Ritchie: "Have you not in Ontario an act which says it shall not have that effect?"

Mr. Mowat: "The Ontario Revised Act; yes, My Lord."

Mr. Justice Strong: "In a new clause which is introduced in an old enactment I think we must suppose that the new clause controls it."

Mr. Mowat: "If my learned friend's construction of the 306th section is right I think we must say that the 177th clause of the revised statutes excluded it."

Mr. Justice Strong: "Then you must come to what the construction of the 306th clause is."

Mr. Mowat, proceeding, argued that an Act of Parliament must be read by the light of the preamble. He argued that if the Canadian Pacific Railway's construction of the statute was correct all the money paid for the abandonment of monopoly had gone for nothing. The Dominion was not going to build that road and so $15,000,000 was guaranteed in order to get rid of the supposed monopoly. In his construction of legislation that was quite sufficient. Nothing more was needed and the province could build their own railways.

Mr. Justice Strong: "The abolition of that monopoly might have been done on the ground of policy. In the interest of its own public policy they might cause it to be regarded as a Dominion work."

Mr. Mowat: "It is one of a number of things which I thought I would mention in that direction."

Mr. Justice Strong: "It is not an argument that would commend itself to the judicial mind. Of course as a question of policy it may be very good."

Hon. Mr. Mowat went on to say that the Dominion Government had subsidised certain provincial railway lines which had been authorized to connect with the Canadian Pacific and other railways mentioned as for the general advantage of Canada and more of them were disallowed. Amongst these were the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway, the Richmond Hill Junction Railway, the Brockville, Westport and Sault Ste. Marie Railway, the Jacques Cartier Railway and others. All these had been built since 1883 and not disallowed.

Mr. Justice Strong observed that this would have the effect of recognizing these persons to whom a grant was made as a corporation duly and legally incorporated. Would it have any effect beyond these particular bodies to whom the grant was made?

Hon. Mr. Mowat thought it a pretty strong argument that the operations of the companies were valid.

Mr. Justice Taschereau pointed out that it was the Canadian Pacific Railway who were taking action and not the Dominion Government.

Mr. Mowat closed by contending that any language held to take away certain powers from Provincial Legislatures must be clear and explicit and not contained in doubtful clauses of an act of Parliament.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., followed on behalf of Manitoba. He dwelt upon the argument advanced by Mr. Mowat, that a work could not be declared to be for the general advantage until it is actually in existence and that Parliament must have an opportunity of exercising judgment before making such a declaration. He pointed out that the railway at present under discussion might actually be constructed without crossing the Canadian Pacific, although it was a matter of convenience that it should so cross, and held therefore that the charter granted by the Provincial Legislature must be valid without dispute.

Justice Taschereau: "Whether the act is valid or not is a question quite different to that we have to answer."

Mr. McCarthy said it was hard to understand how a charter which had been good when passed could become void merely by the carrying out of the authority given.

Justice Strong: "We may answer the question in the negative without impugning the validity of the charter."

Mr. Blake: "Yes, since they can build the line without crossing the Canadian Pacific Railway."

Mr. McCarthy, continuing, held that in accordance with the ordinary rule if there was the slightest doubt in the matter, if the position of the province was not altogether unreasonable, it should be given the benefit of the doubt.

At the conclusion of Mr. McCarthy's argument Justice Ritchie intimated to Hon. F. Langelier, who was watching the case in the interest of the Province of Quebec, that if he wished to address the court he could do so, but he declined, saying he was quite content with the argument of Mr. Mowat.

Hon. Mr. Blake spoke for an hour in reply to the arguments of Hon. Mr. Mowat and Mr. McCarthy and had not concluded when the court rose.

HAMILTON'S ART EXPOSITION.

Preparations Progressing Favorably—Juvenile Burglars—Wedding Bells.

HAMILTON, Nov. 22.—Eight small boys answering to the names of Joseph Forster, Wm. Dennis, Frank Larney, Ernest Schultz, Thomas Spence, David Martin, Burleigh Noyes and Henry Hyde, were tried at the police court this morning for being implicated in the theft of a quantity of tobacco, candies and biscuits from a store at the corner of Kelly and Cathcart-streets. Forster, Dennis and Schultz pleaded guilty to entering the store and stealing the articles. They lifted up a grating, and, in that way, gained an entrance to the shop. The value of the goods taken was not more than $3. The other defendants did not take any part in the theft; but they helped to get away with the spoils. The boys were severely lectured by the police magistrate and then allowed to go.

An enthusiastic and largely attended meeting of the ladies' committee of the art exposition was held this morning, and the report showed that everything is progressing most favorably. The work of erecting the booths and decorating the armory will commence on Monday morning.

There was a pleasant little gathering at the residence of William Webster, 53 Park street north, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Lizzie Cusack of this city was married to Reuben S. Hamlin, vice-president of the Western Bank, Oshawa. The bride and groom were unattended, and the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Dr. Mockridge, was witnessed only by the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

Last evening Charles W. Graham, manager of Buntin, Gillies & Co.'s establishment here, was married to Miss Annie Nicholson, second daughter of the late Donald Nicholson, contractor. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's mother, corner of Markland and Ontario streets, in the presence of a very large number of the friends of the young people. J. Gowinlock of Toronto acted as groomsman, and Miss Nellie Nicholson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Yesterday afternoon at the residence of M. W. Johnson, 249 Cannon street east, occurred the marriage of his cousin, Miss Millie Stancombe of this city, to Robert Irvine Russell of Bolton. Rev. Mr. Maxwell performed the ceremony.

Inspection of the G. R.

GUELPH, Nov. 22.—Mr. Ridout, the Government Engineer, arrived at Guelph to-day, and went over the road for the purpose of examining the structure reported upon in his former report, in company with President Bell, Messrs. Bond, Gowdy and Husband, and other directors of the road. He made a careful examination of all structures, and seemed to be impressed with the views of the directors as expressed to him, that, though at present and when he examined the road before, there was very little water in the streams, the necessity of some of the trestle work was not apparent, but that at other seasons of the year it would be impossible to provide for the greater quantity of water without the openings as they at present exist. He will make his report to the Minister of Railways at once, when his views will be fully explained.

K. of L. Salaries.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 22.—In the Knights of Labor Convention, by a vote of 88 to 52, it was decided to continue the salary of $3000 to the General Master Workman, and the Secretary Treasurer will be paid $2000. Members of the Executive Board will receive $4 a day and expenses. The report of the committee was adopted and these matters as to salary came up immediately afterwards.

Strewn Along the Road.

GUELPH, Nov. 22.—At Rockwood last night several young men were strewn along the road by a runaway. One, John Lafferty, got his arm broken, and another, Samuel Bradshaw, was thrown from a bridge into the river below. Fortunately the water was not deep, but the ice bothered the young man considerably before he got out.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

Mysterious Death of an Old Man in Charlotte County, N.B.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 22.—Another ghastly discovery has been made in Pennfield, Charlotte County. Wm. McCarthy, about 70 years old, who resided in an old tumbledown log hut in Pocologan, was found stretched on the floor of his dwelling with one foot caught in the flooring. The sleeves of his shirt were rolled up, one hand was covered with blood and his head touched the wall in the corner of the room.

How he came to his death is a mystery. He had probably been dead several days when found.

THE RIPPER WRITES AGAIN

ANOTHER LETTER SENT TO THE LONDON POLICE.

Jack Likes the Work too Well to Leave it Long and Promises to Do the Next Lot With a Vengeance.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The latest Whitechapel sensation has been sifted down to nothing but the mere ravings of a drunken woman after a row with her lover. The woman is even of a lower type than those who fell prey to the Whitechapel murderer. Her associates say that she is very quarrelsome and that the man whom she accused of trying to cut her throat has been visiting her for a year. The people in the house heard them quarreling, and when the man ran down stairs and the woman came to the top of the landing and screamed, "He tried to cut my throat; follow him," three men gave chase, but the fellow got away easily enough. But the police know who the man is and where he lives. They have been watching his house all day, and when he gets over his fright and returns home they expect to get him. There is, however, not the slightest reason to suppose that he is the Whitechapel fiend. The police say that the woman inflicted the wound in her throat herself. The injury is very slight.

The really interesting incident of the day is another letter from Jack the Ripper, dated Portsmouth. Here it is:

"DEAR BOSS: It is no good for you to look for me in London, because I am not there. Don't trouble yourself about me till I return, which will not be very long. I like the work too well to leave it long. O, that was such a jolly job, the last one. I had plenty of time to do it properly. Ha! ha! The next lot I mean to do with a vengeance; to cut off their heads and arms. You think it is a man with a black moustache. Ha! ha! When I have done another you can catch me. So good-bye, dear boss, till I return. Yours,

"JACK THE RIPPER."

The letter is in the same hand as the one received just before Mary Kelly was murdered.

PANIC-STRICKEN CHILDREN.

Fire in a Long Island City School Building —A Brave Woman.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—At 1.15 this afternoon fire broke out in the First Ward Public School at Long Island City. One of the pupils of the school had gone into the basement and lighted a gas jet. The woodwork close to the jet took fire and flames instantly shot up through a crevice in the floor. Over 900 children were studying at their desks in the various rooms of the school building. When the children on the first floor saw the flame shooting up through the boards they raised the cry of "Fire! Fire!" Instantly there was a panic in every room of the building. The children rushed pell-mell for the narrow doors, crowding, jostling and striking each other in their efforts to get out. They did not wait to get their clothing or books. All efforts on the part of the teachers to bring order out of the chaos proved unavailing.

"Fire! fire!" rang out from one end of the building to the other and the children became crazed with terror. Those who succeeded in gaining the stairway in the upper stories were crowded and pushed so they could not stand, and many were thrown head first down stairs, where they landed in heaps of four and five.

In a room on the second floor were sixty children. Their teacher rushed to the door when the terrible alarm was echoed and re-echoed through the building, and placing her back to it cried out that not one scholar should leave the room until they had formed the regulation "fire line" and marched out in an orderly manner. Her authoritative tone had the effect of temporarily restoring the children's presence of mind and in a few seconds they had formed in line and began to march out. No sooner had they reached the hall way, however, than they saw the smoke coming up from the lower floor and the terrified children on the chairs. This was too much for them and again they broke into the wildest disorder. They threw themselves down the stairs in their mad rush for safety and fell on top of the other unfortunate little ones below.

Outside the schoolhouse there was also great confusion. The rumor that the schoolhouse was on fire spread through the streets and a great crowd was gathered. They were yelling, crying, hooting and swearing. Frenzied mothers stood on the sidewalk wringing their hands and crying pitifully to the men about them to assist the little ones inside. The firemen who were on the scene brought out a few of the injured children and added fuel to the growing excitement.

In the meantime the teachers had succeeded in quieting the little ones, and assured them there was no danger from fire. The police assisted them in the work and aided the firemen in bringing out the children who had been bruised and cut in their awful falls down the stairways.

The fire was soon extinguished, and an examination of the little ones was made. It was found that many of them had suffered contusions on their heads and bodies, and that many of them would have to go about for three or four days with bandages over their eyes. Large numbers were sent home suffering from the shock.

ANOTHER BIG BLAZE.

Fire at Montreal Causes a Loss of $40,000—Saved from the Flames.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—A fire broke out to-night in the large five-story brick building at the corner of White-lane and Court-avenue and completely gutted the building. The losses are: On building $6000, insured for $3000; Montreal Watch Case Co., loss $20,000, insured; Shephard & Co., machine shop, $3000; Lewis Davis & Co., silk manufacturers, $1000, insured; A. Bolt & Co., manufacturing jewellers, $10,000, insured.

A young girl employed in the Watch Case Company's factory, who was in the building along with other employes, was miraculously saved from death by a young man who was also employed there.

Hotel Fire at Mattawa.

MATTAWA, Nov. 22.—About 8.15 to-night a fire broke out in the top flat of the Mackay House and in a few minutes the flames were bursting through the roof. By 9.15 the fire had been thoroughly subdued. The damage to the building, which is considerable, will be fully covered by insurance.

Death of a Wellington Pioneer.

GUELPH, Nov. 22.—Archibald McCorkindale, one of the pioneer farmers of South Wellington, died last night. Deceased was for many years clerk of Guelph Township.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 22.—A verdict for $5000 was given against the Canadian Pacific Railway to-day in the case of the widow and children of Rajotte, the switchman who was killed last year by his foot catching in a frog. The judge directed the jury to return a verdict for the defendants, but the direction was disregarded. The case will be appealed.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1888.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND.

Mr. COCHRANE, the Conservative candidate, received an increased majority in East Northumberland. The constituency is known as a close one and at the last general election Dr. Mallory, Liberal, received a majority of eight. The Liberal party had not then adopted into its platform Mr. Wiman's trade policy. Dr. Mallory was unseated and ran as a commercial unionist against Mr. Cochrane, but the latter gentleman was given a majority of 24. Mr. Cochrane having been unseated this contest followed, and this time the doctor faced his opponent as an advocate of unrestricted reciprocity, but Mr. Cochrane's majority was increased to 53.

Every possible means were used by the Liberals to defeat Mr. Cochrane. Personal slanders were persistently circulated and other questionable methods were adopted. But they did not avail. Unrestricted reciprocity, commercial union and Wimanism in general has received another deserved check.

THE old organ of the Liberal party seems to receive little respect from any quarter now. Even the Cobourg World, a rabid Liberal paper, says that "the Globe is rapidly descending from that high position which it formerly occupied." The World further says that "it is no wonder that fair-minded men are beginning to turn from the Globe to the Mail and to hail it as the leader of a wider, nobler freedom in journalism." By fair-minded men the World means Liberals; but in turning to the Yankee organ they are going out of the frying into the fire, as it were.

THERE is no election pending in East Northumberland just now, and perhaps Mr. Mowat will fill the registrarship and the bailiffship at Campbellford. If he waits long a general election for the Legislature may be on and the numerous candidates who are cock sure of the appointment would again have to wait.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT spoke at Hastings and Mr. Cochrane's majority in the village was increased from 4 to 25. He spoke there again and the Conservative majority went up to 53. Sir Richard's blue ruin orations are not convincing.

MR. COCHRANE took the cream of the vote in East Northumberland.

MARKET REVIEWS.

Live Stock.

The Montreal Gazette of Tuesday says: There has been a change for the worse in the condition of the British cattle trade and although receipts from Canada and the United States have been light, the general supplies have run heavy and which markets could not take, resulting in a depreciation of half a cent. It was reported that owing to stress of weather the mortality on several steamers exceeded the average. Demand at Liverpool to-day was weak at the decline and trade dragged. Prime Canadian steers were at 11¾c, good to choice at 11c, poor to medium at 10c and inferior and bulls at 7½c@9c. Sheep have been in fair supply, and somewhat better prices have been made, in fact our cables quote a nominal advance of one cent. Ranche sheep in Liverpool to-day were at 14c for best, with lower grades in proportion, while best sheep were at 15c, secondary at 13c@14c, merinos at 12½c@13½c and inferior and bulls at 10c@11½c. The foregoing quotations are calculated on the basis of 4 80 in the £. Refrigerated beef is cabled as follows: Liverpool 5¾d hindquarters and 3¾d for forequarters per lb.; London—hindquarters 3s and forequarters 1s 10d per 8 lbs, by the carcass.

Butter.

The butter market has continued quiet and unchanged, says the Montreal Gazette, with no important trade outside of regular local requirements. Fancy goods continue to command full prices. W. Heapy & Sons, of Liverpool, write as follows on November 8:—"With more liberal arrivals of Irish and Continental goods the market has ruled quiet and values show a decline of about 5s per cwt. on the week, but with colder weather and an improved enquiry the decline has to some extent been recovered, market closing firm. Quotations are:—Extra fine Danish kiels 116s to 126s, useful stale descriptions 112s to to 116s; Irish, extra fine, 106s to 110s, some useful sorts, a shade off in flavor, 96s to 98s, useful, slightly stale, 80s to 85s; fresh landed factory makes 78s to 84s, stale descriptions 65s to 70s. Margarine, in sympathy with butter values, are slightly easier on the week."

Cheese.

At Little Falls, N.Y., on Nov. 19th, sales were made at from 9¾c to 10½c. At Fulton 1,230 boxes were sold at 9¾c to 10½c. At Utica, N.Y., sales were made at from 9¾c. to 10½c., and at Buffalo 3,000 boxes were sold at 11c., while 10½c. was refused for the remainder.

The Horse Market.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—There has been no improvement in the horse market, business having continued quiet on account of the slow demand both from local and American buyers. The supply of horses here is large and is offering freely at low prices. At J. H. Kimball's Horse exchange, at the Canadian Pacific stock yards, the following sales were made:—Nine horses at $970. At Messrs. Joseph Lefebvre & Co's stables, 183 Panet-st., the following sales were reported:—Ten horses at prices averaging $130 each.

Milch Cows.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—The receipts of milch cows at Viger market this morning were light, there being only eight offered which were mostly of good quality. There was a fair attendance of buyers and the enquiry was good but on account of the light offerings business was quiet and the market dull. The few offered were quickly brought at good prices. Choice milkers sold at $55@$60, good at $45, fair at $35, common at $25, and inferior at $20 each. There were only a few calves on the market which met with a fair demand at from $2@$6 each as to quality.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL.

Sale of Mr. Reed's Phosphate Property in Ottawa County.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—The Montreal deputation consisting of Acting-Mayor Clendenning, Ald. Laurent, Kennedy and Malone and City Surveyor St. George, accompanied by Messrs. J. J. Curran, M.P., and J. S. Hall, M.P.P., waited upon Hon. J. H. Pope, Minister of Railways and Canals, to-day and preferred a request for Government aid towards the construction of the proposed subway under the Lachine Canal. The deputation was affably received by the Minister, who promised that Chief Engineer Page should examine and report upon the matter as speedily as possible and it should then be brought before Council. The feeling in the deputation was that assistance will be granted.

Louis Weithiem of Frankfort, Germany, has purchased for $40,000 Mr. James Reed's phosphate property in Ottawa County. Mr. Weithiem is a dealer in asbestees and phosphates, and intends next spring to erect large works at the mines for the purpose of getting out phosphate, which will be shipped to Frankfort, where it will be prepared for the German market.

The Chaudiere lumbermen are complaining that the high rates of ocean freights this summer have greatly reduced the exports of deals to England and board lumber to South America and Australia, and the result is that the yards are filled to overflowing, it being estimated that there are over 100,000,000 feet of lumber lying in the yards which is sold to the export firms but could not be exported for want of tonnage at reasonable rates. Last year the rate for lumber from New York to Liverpool was 38s. to 40s. per standard. Two railway men who have just returned from New York and Boston say that rates demanded this year are from 65s. to 80s. per standard. If the Chaudiere piling grounds are not relieved during the winter there will be no place to pile the first of next spring's cut and great inconvenience and loss will result.

Mr. J. M. Hall of Madden, Miss., had an interview with the Minister of Customs yesterday relative to a recent seizure of sprinklers at Woodstock for undervaluation. The matter was settled by the payment of a small addition to the duty charge and a fine under section 8 of the Customs Act.

The hearing of the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway v. the Western Union Telegraph Company has been postponed until the February term of the Supreme Court.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Fatal Accident—The Barber-Bredin Mystery —A Shooting Case.

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—A market gardener named Thomas Hickey, who resided in Dixie, took a load of onions to Cooksville market yesterday morning, where he disposed of them. In the afternoon on his way home he endeavored to head off a ballast train on the C. P. R. but failed. The engine struck the wagon, and the unfortunate man was crushed under the wheels. Hickey was 72 years old, and leaves a widow and a married son.

The remanded case of Henry J. Thurle, charged with shooting his father-in-law, Adam C. Cooper, on Saturday night last, was resumed yesterday morning. The charge was proven and he was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Leaving the dock Thurle turned towards his mother and Mr. Cooper and said, "Good-bye, mother. I'll sing a song for you and pray for a blessing on you, father-in-law."

Nothing new has transpired in the Barber-Bredin case of much interest. The unfortunate man's effects at the Queen's Hotel have been carefully searched, but nothing bearing on the occurrence has been found. Rev. Mr. Wallace, pastor of the West Presbyterian Church, Denison-avenue, recollects distinctly marrying W. Bredin to the wayward Polly, who then gave her name as Mary Pattison Watson. The marriage took place on July 18, 1874. Why poor Barber shot himself is as much a mystery as ever.

A VALUABLE FIND.

Some MSS. of Lord Nelson in the Possession of a Waterdown Man.

HAMILTON, Nov. 22.—Through the efforts of George Dickson, M.A., of Upper Canada College, Toronto, some exceedingly valuable manuscripts belonging to Lord Nelson have been brought to light at Waterdown. They are in the possession of Luke Mulloch of Waterdown, grandson of Lieutenant Ramage, who was one of the officers on board the Polyphemus at the battle of Copenhagen. Besides several autographs of Lord Nelson, there is a water-color picture of the battle painted by Lieut. Ramage from a sketch made at the time the battle was in progress. The officer submitted the picture to Lord Nelson for his criticism, and the great admiral replied in an autograph letter, the original of which is in Mr. Mulloch's possession. He has also a copy of Nelson's plan of the battle and instructions to his officers. This is not in Nelson's handwritting, but it is signed by him and bears several interlineations in red ink in his writing.

On Saturday last E. J. Noyes, Hugh C. Baker and Mr. Dickson went out to Waterdown to see the manuscripts, and large photographs were taken of each paper. It is understood that Mr. Dickson proposes having them published in The Century Magazine as a sequel to the series of letters on the same battle which appeared in the last number.

The Case of the Bridgewater.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Mr. Allen, the owner of the ship Bridgewater of New York which was seized at Shelburne, N. S., in July, 1887, for alleged violation of Canadian revenue laws but unconditionally released after a detention of 81 days, is in this city on the matter. Mr. Allen has had an interview with Mr. Bayard and other high officials and expresses himself as being fully satisfied with the Government's action in the premises. From what could be gathered from the conversation it is inferred that the State Department has very recently made a further communication through the British minister resident and the hope is entertained that the matter will soon be amicably and satisfactorily settled.

Montreal's Fugitive Shorthander Arrested.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—J. Whitfield, the shorthand writer who skipped from the city leaving his board bill unpaid and who is charged with obtaining goods from merchants here under false pretences, was arrested to-day in Quebec on a telegram from Chief Hughes. He will probably be brought to Montreal to-morrow.

Making Boats from Tents.

A Russian sergeant of the Semonovsky regiment has invented a method for the rapid construction of boats from tents. Upon experiment, in thirty minutes, under the designer's direction, a detachment of men chosen by haphazard, improvised several handy boats with the aid of green wood from a neighboring grove. Each boat readily supported four to six fully equipped soldiers.—New York Sun.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 65 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Mesmeric Mysteries.

Prof. Reynolds had a select audience last night to witness the many remarkable performances which he, by his mesmeric power, caused some of his subjects to go through, and those who were present laughed hard and enjoyed it. The tests were entirely different from the night previous, and were even more wonderful. He drew a subject from his seat in the audience on to the stage. The professor is worthy of much better support than he receives, for in his own special business he is, perhaps, unexcelled, and gives an amusing exhibition.

An Arrest for the Alleged Forgery.

A man has been arrested at Norwood on suspicion of being the one who practised the sharp game of misrepresentation on a Peterborough lawyer by getting him to draw up a mortgage from Mr. Robert Gardiner, of Dummer, for $2,030 and then tried to sell the same document to the Midland Loan and Savings Company. Mr. E. B. Stone was the Peterborough lawyer who drew up the mortgage, and it was he who received a telegram from Norwood this morning stating that a man had been arrested there who was supposed to be Irving Roorback. This was the name that the man for whom Mr Stone drew up the mortgage registered under while in town, and Mr. Stone went down this morning to see if the man held at Norwood was the gentleman who worked the little scheme so cleverly.

COMPLIMENTARY DINNER.

Mr. W. F. Johnston Entertained by Friends at the Croft House.

On Thursday evening a large party gathered at the Croft House to partake of the dinner given complimentary to Mr. W. F. Johnston by his friends, to mark in a tangible way their appreciation of his success in passing so creditably the recent law exams. and carrying off the gold medal. Mr. Johnston's career as a student at law has been exceptionally brilliant and he is deservedly the recipient of hearty congratulations. Dinner was laid in the large billiard room, about fifty guests sitting down to table. The spread did justice to the fame of Mr. Croft, and to the ample resources of the larder. The room was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting tastefully arranged by Mr. J. J. Turner.

Mr. A. P. POUSSETTE, in whose office Mr. Johnston had prosecuted his studies, occupied the chair with the guest of the evening on his right. Mr. Chas. Shaw filled the vice-chair ably and well. Dinner was discussed and ample justice done the viands. The usual loyal toasts were disposed of.

To the toast of "The Army Navy and Volunteers," Lieut. Chas. Shaw, Lieut. L. Hayes and Lieut. Forbes made brief responses.

The toast "The Guest of the Evening" was feelingly introduced by the chairman with a brief reference to the energy and ability shown by Mr. Johnston in passing very successful examinations and carrying off the gold medal. It spoke volumes for his industry and perseverance. It was the first time a Peterborough student had carried off such high honors.

In reply Mr. Johnston briefly thanked the company for their expressions of good-will and compliment implied by their meeting together. He appreciated the honor very highly and would always remember the occasion with pleasure.

"The Learned Professions" was honored and was spoken to by Messrs. J. O'Meara, W. G. Macaulay, Hall and Dr. Clarke, all of whom said some nice things about the professions and referred in complimentary terms to the guest of the evening.

"The Banking Interests" was heartily received and being an important subject was well treated in brief speeches by Messrs. P. Macdonald, W. D. Parker, T. G. Haultain, E. R. Hewson, C. Shaw. Mr. Shaw then sang an entirely original song, appropriate to the occasion, and containing local references that were amusing. The company gave a rousing chorus.

"The Commercial Interests" was not feebly received and Messrs. Kingan, F. Dumble, C. N. Brown, R. Stevenson, G. A. Schofield, J. Fairweather, C. McClelland and W. A. Dixon responded. Mr. Dixon complied to an uproarious call and gave a few specialties in contributions. And Mr. Shaw sang the song, and Mr. W. Croft the speech of the evening, carried the meeting by storm and sat down covered with glory.

"The Press" was proposed and honored and responded to by the representative of the REVIEW.

Mr. L. Hayes was pressed to sing and sang. Mr. J O'Meara was thereby lifted up to emulate Mr. Hayes' achievement and trolled out "The Low Backed Car," at which the company applauded mightily. Mr. W. Croft gave a characteristic recitation and Mr. Chas. Shaw a capital song.

The toast of "The Ladies" was spoken to by Messrs. A. B. Carter, M. J. Carlon, K. Hall, R. Hall and others. Volunteer toasts followed, and the health of the host and hostess was drank and Mr. and Mrs. Croft complimented on the excellent dinner provided.

The gathering broke up with the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne.

A Postponement Necessary.

The ladies did not attend in very large numbers yesterday afternoon the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. rooms for the purpose of purpose of arranging for the making of a new stand of colors for the 57th Battalion. In consequence of this the meeting was postponed for two weeks, when it is hoped a goodly number of the fair sex will interest themselves sufficiently to attend.

Division Court Sittings.

The sittings of the division court will be held by Judge Weller during 1889 on the following dates:—At Peterborough on Feb. 8th, March 15th, April 26th, Nov. 22nd and Dec. 20. At Norwood on Feb. 20th, April 17th, June 26th, Sept. 25th, Nov. 6th and Dec. 18th. At Keene on March 19th, June 25th, Sept. 24th and Dec. 17th. At Lakefield on Feb. 21st, April 25th, June 27th, Sept. 26th, Nov. 14th, and Dec. 19th. At Apsley on Jan. 10th and July 11th.

Chinese Exclusion.

The Literary and Musical Society held a regular meeting last night and it was very successful. There was a large attendance of members and they were well rewarded by an elaborate discussion of the Chinese Exclusion Bill. Research and rhetorical power gave the subject a most attractive treatment. It was decided, chiefly upon the loftier principle of Christian civilization, that the Chinese should not be excluded.

An Expert Hunter.

The Blairton correspondent of the Campbellford Herald says:—"It is worthy of remark that parties who come from various parts for a duck hunt, remain several days and generally fail of success, less a duck or two; but Mr. H. T. Strickland, of Peterborough, may at any time casually drop in, push out into the lake, and within an hour or so return with a fair load of ducks. Others are all hurry and excitement. He is all leisure and composure, and is the best shot that comes this way."

Zera Semon Novelty Co.

The above company commence its engagement of a week at the Opera House next Monday night, and of it an exchange says: A larger or better pleased audience never assembled in the Grand opera house than that which witnessed the performance last evening of Zera Semon's novelty combination. The entertainment is not histrionic, but novel; not profound, but entertaining and of that character which the old and the young, and the wise and the simple can all enjoy alike. The performance begins with a clever legerdemain act, entitled "A Night in Wonderland," and is followed by Signor Giovanni in musical eccentricities. The Royal Marionettes were the most amusing feature of the evening. Mme. Strong's Fata Morgana was the finest work of art ever seen on any stage. One hundred elegant and valuable presents were distributed in the fairest and most impartial manner. 1d121

A Good Move.

Action has been taken to make the market more comfortable for he sellers and buyers. Market Clerk Doherty has had stoves put in the upper rooms or old music hall and the benches from the verandah will be removed upstairs. This will give comfort and warmth to the sellers and there will be no more necessity sitting shivering in the cold.

Bungling Burglars.

The servant at Mr. Harry Phelan's, 332 Rubidge-st., was awakened about two o'clock this morning by the noise of some person or persons attempting to force an entrance into the house at the rear entrance. She called Mr. Phelan, who unfortunately, however, had no revolver at the house, and he frightened them off by calling for the police. The burglars were trying to force the back door, when they were scared away. Another call now might probably result in something more than being frightened.

A House Burned.

The frame house occupied and owned by Mr. Geo. Mann, on Ware-st. was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon. Mrs. Mann was visiting at a neighbors when she noticed the fire, and the alarm was instantly given. None of the household furniture was saved except one rocking-chair. The alarm sounded about half past three and the brigade responded, but before their arrival the house was totally destroyed. Mr. Mann's loss is about $300 on the house and $150 on the furniture. There is a doubt as to it being insured.

Personal.

Mr. F. Conroy, the genial clerk at the Grand Central, has thrown up his position, and has been succeeded by Mr. Thos. Huffman, of Napanee.

Hon. R. S. Hudspeth, nephew of Mr. A. Hudspeth, M.P., of Lindsay, has again been elected to the New Jersey Legislature by a majority of 842. He was formerly Speaker and will probably be elected to that position again.

Mr. A. H. Stratton, of Stethem's hardware store, has accepted a position on the road as travelling for a large Montreal hardware firm. He will leave to undertake his new responsibilities about the first of December. We wish him success.

Rev. Mr. Pearson attended the annual meeting of the Lindsay Y.M.C.A. The Watchman says:—"The Rev. M. L. Pearson, Peterborough, gave an eloquent address, during which he mentioned two very important events which took place in 1844, viz., the birth of M. L. Pearson, and the formation of the first Y.M.C.A. in London, England."

Session of Scotia's Sons.

The meeting of the St. Andrew's Society last evening was an enthusiastic one, and was presided over by the new President, Mr. Chas. Cameron. As the day of their patron saint draws nigh, the interest and enthusiasm of every Scotchman should be roused, so that on that occasion the annual dinner may be an event worthy of Auld Scotia's Saint and the Society. The committee which has charge of the celebration reported that arrangements had been made for the holding of the dinner at the Morgan House, where a most elaborate menu will be discussed and an evening of pleasant enjoyment and intercourse spent. A committee was appointed to take charge of the appropriate decoration of the dining hall for the evening, and the event should, and undoubtedly will, bring out a large gathering of Scotchmen "For Auld Lang Syne." Mr. Thos. Menzies, treasurer, submitted his financial statement for the past year, according to which it was shown that there was a balance of $32.62 to the credid of the Society as follows:—

Cash in hand.....$22 27
Cheque.....10 35

The secretary and Mr. Roderick McLennan were appointed auditors to audit the accounts of the treasurer. Some further time was spent in discussing Society matters generally and the meeting broke up with cheers.

Lord A. P. Cecil's Views.

Lord A. P. Cecil preached last night in the Old Baptist Church on the Second Coming of Christ, to an attentive audience. He began by reading Acts, i., 10, 11, and ii., 36, calling attention to three facts connected with the person of Christ. First, that as man He has been rejected and crucified. Second, God has raised Him from the dead and made Him Lord and Christ at His right hand in heaven. And thirdly, that this same Jesus shall come again in like manner as the apostles saw Him ascend. As man He was crucified, as man he sits at the right hand of God, and as man He will come again. The preacher emphasized the fact that though He (Jesus) was "God manifested in the flesh," yet at the same time a real man on the throne of God and not a spirit as is so often taught. Passing on to Acts iii., 19, 20 and 21, he pointed out that there were "times of refreshing" and "times of restitution" spoken of in connection with Christ's coming, whom the heavens must receive till those times come. Then going to Isaiah xi., 1–9, he said that those times were introduced by judgment on the earth and the wicked one—Anti-Christ, so that instead of the world being converted by means of the Gospel, it is going to accept Anti-Christ. (See John x., 43.). Forshadowings of this were seen, he said, already in the boycotting that is going on even in Canada, where more than one instance of a man not being allowed to work because he did not belong to the union, has occurred. (See Revel xiii., 17). He passed on to Isaiah lxv., which he described as a lovely picture of the times of restitution. In the days before the flood men lived hundreds of years, but in the glorious Kingdom of Christ a man's life shall be "as the days of a tree," so that one dying one hundred years old is but "a child." How then can Christ's coming be at the end of the world, if men are to live hundreds of years after he comes? Going on now to Zechariah xiv., he showed that Jerusalem, and not London, nor New York, was to be the metropolis of the earth, in Christ's Kingdom. The last scripture referred to was Revel. xix. and xx., where Christ, as a rider on the white horse, is seen coming from heaven to take vengeance on His enemies, and the armies of heaven (His Heavenly saints) following Him. He smites the nations, and treads the empires of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God, casts the beast (the head of the revived Roman Empire) and the false prophet (the antichrist) alive into the lake of fire. Then (ch. xx) the devil is bound and cast into the bottomless pit, then the thrones are set, and they (that is the heavenly saints, who are thus associated with Christ in judgment; Corinth. vi, 2) sit on them, and those who were put to death under antichrist, are raised and reign with Christ a thousand years. Now, he said, if Christ is to come more than a thousand years before the end of the world, what is to hinder Him coming to-night? Are you ready? Only those who are born again, washed from their sins in His own blood, and sealed with the Holy Spirit are ready. The preacher concluded with an earnest appeal to all present to make sure of salvation. The two stages of Christ's coming will be taken up to-night.

A HANDSOME ADDITION.

To the Peterborough Hotels—A Credit to the Proprietor and Contractor.

Good accommodation for the travelling public is one of the necessities to a prosperous town and to the progress of its business. Peterborough is not badly situated in this respect, as she can boast of some houses that are run in A 1 style. An addition to this latter class will about the middle of next month be made, at which time Mr. Wm. Snowdon will move from his present hotel on Simcoe-st. to his handsome new building which Contractor T. Rutherford is rapidly pushing forward to completion. The building stands on Charlotte-st. and, with its handsome front, ornamented by balconies at each story, presents a fine appearance and is an ornament to the town. The front has been all tuck pointed, which adds much to its appearance and the front elevation is surmounted by four painted zinc ornaments which relieve the monotony.

INSIDE THE HOUSE.

The main entrance is in the centre of the front of the building and is gained by wide steps. Entering here you find yourself in a spacious hall 13x50 feet from which, directly in front of the entrance, ascend a broad flight of stairs leading to the second story. Right is thrown into the hall from an ornamental window at the first hall landing. The clerk's office looks out into the hall, an arch having been cut the entire length of the office. This office also opens into the sitting room in the front, and is connected by a door with the bar in the rear. Off the office there is also a valise and cloak room. The sitting room is well lighted and is 19x26 feet. The bar is the same size and will make a splendid room for the purpose. Across the hall on your left hand side upon entering, is the dining-room. This is a large room, 20x50 feet, wainscotted all round, as is the hall, with hemlock which will be finished in oil, not painted. The ceilings of the dining-room, hall and sitting room are very nicely cornieed and are light and airy rooms. At the north end of the dining-room is a door leading to the carving room and kitchen, which is 23x22 feet and has two entrances from outside. The floors are all oak, finished in oil, and the back flight of stairs are of the same.

THE SECOND AND THIRD STOREYS.

Ascending to the second storey you find a splendid large hall, running the whole width of the building and eleven feet broad, the ceiling of which is relieved by two elliptical arches. There is a pleasant parlor, 20x19 feet, a smaller sitting room opening out onto the balcony in front and eight bedrooms in the front part. There is also a ladies' closet, washroom and bath on this flat. In the back part over the kitchen are five good sized bedrooms.

Climbing another flight of broad stairs you find another hall the same as on the second flight and ten more light and airy bedrooms, and another parlor opening out onto a balcony. In the rear wing are five more bedrooms. The painting, plastering and work throughout the whole building is first-class and does credit to the contractor and sub-contractors.

IN THE BASEMENT.

From the sidewalk outside you can descend by a flight of stairs to the basement on either side. The steps on the east side lead to the sample room where the commercial men will have no trouble getting their goods. On this side is the gentlemen's closet and the wine cellar. In the centre room is one of Gurney's hot air furnaces which supplies the heat for the rooms above. The western steps leads to a room 20x30, which will be fitted up for a barber shop and billiard room. The whole of the basement is plastered and finished in good style. Underneath the kitchen is the laundry room and vegetable cellar. Gas has been placed in all the rooms, and everything about the whole building is adapted and planned for convenience, and the aim has been secured. Mr. Snowden will no doubt receive a good deal of the transit trade through his enterprise.

The sub-contractors were as follows:—Stonework, R. Smith; brickwork, E. Webb; plastering, Thos. Sabine; carpenter work, the contractor; painting, Geo. Fry; roofing and furnace, W. S. Bain & Co.; plumbing, G. Noble & Co.

A Window Full of Babies.

A unique departure in window dressing is to be seen in the eastern window of the Metropolitan grocery on Simcoe-st. The window is floored with Dingman's soap while in the centre is a beautiful advertising picture, and artistically arranged in rows are about a score of little infants creeping over the soap each clutching in his tiny grasp a bar of the suds. The paper youngsters are cute, and the effect of their arrangement is novel and attractive.

Brevities.

—There was no business at the Police Court this morning.

—No arrests last night.

CAMPBELLFORD.

BONE BROKEN BY A FALL.—A son of Mrs John Atcheson, of Seymour, 10 years of age, fell off the granary in the barn, on Thursday last, and broke his arm at the wrist.

HURT BY FALLING.—On Sunday last, while Mrs. Hurst was returning from the English church, she fell at the railway crossing on Bear-st., and dislocated her shoulder joint. A physician was summoned to attend to the injured woman, and the dislocated joint was put in its natural position.—Herald.

BOBCAYGEON.

NAVIGATION.—The last regular trips of the boats were made on Saturday last, the 17th. The Beaubocage kept the Scugog open till Tuesday night, and then King Frost got the upper hand. The Maple Leaf made its last trip on Monday, and on Tuesday the Government cutter Empire went to Fenelon to lay up for the winter. The season is understood to have been a fairly good one for the boats, the summer traffic having been fully an average. The Eusturion did a heavy excursion business, the boat, the crew and Commodore Lane having established themselves in the popularity of the public. The Maple Leaf, under Capt. W. Botum was a great convenience on the lower lake, and in maintaining a reliable and corteous service, did much to extend the attractiveness of the lower lakes as a summer resort.—Independent.

Norway Farms and Farm Houses.

The portion of the Rauma valley, which is level enough to be cultivated, is very fertile, and many fine farms of small extent are passed; the people, too, seem more prosperous than in some other regions. Everywhere hay making is going on, for the weather is delightful, the first good hay season that Norway has had for four years, and hay is an important product. Sometimes you see wires almost like telegraph wires, stretching from the fields below far up to the slopes above. They are used to slide the hay down from the mountain pastures there, for nothing must be lost in this thrifty land. There are no large barns like ours, but groups of small ones, sometimes a dozen together, overlooked by one large gaard or farmhouse.

I may as well pause here to describe these gaards, for their architecture is, I believe, peculiar to Norway. Owing to the great abundance of small timber and the scarcity of sawmills, almost all the houses and barns are built of squared logs. The barns and common huts need only one length of such logs for their walls; but a farmhouse is constructed of several lengths with partitions also of logs, whose ends project, dividing the front of the house into several parts in a quite picturesque manner. The basement is formed of piled up flat stones with one large door. Upon this basement the structure of logs is erected, leaving a convenient shelf all round the house. The chimney is likewise built of flat stones. The whole is covered with boards with a raised edge, which is then filled in solidly with earth and finished off with turf, on which grass and flowers, sometimes even bushes, soon grow. So attached are the country people to this form of building that even handsome boarded houses are sometimes roofed with turf and have the front divided by large prominent posts, representing the primitive log ends.—Norway Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

STILL UNCAPTURED.

The Child Ravisher Uncaught—The Penalty of His Crime.

The miserable wretch who ravished the six-year old child on Wednesday is still at large, and although it is the wish and hope of everyone that he should be captured and pay the penalty which his terrible crime deserves, it looks as though he will go uncaught and unpunished. The police have been most untiring and vigorous in their efforts to track the crime to the perpetrator, but there is still nothing that can be taken as a direct clue.

Chief Boszel and several citizens were scouring all last night, but failed to run against anything and to-day were compelled to take a rest. The Chief has been out and on the move for two days and two nights without ever seeing a bed, and the other officers were the same. They had a hard case to work on without anything that could be called a reliable pointer, and if the beast should escape nothing but words of commendation of their unflagging perseverance can be said of the force.

The penalty for the crime, and the law under which the fiend will suffer should he be apprehended, is that he may be sentenced to death, or to imprisonment for life or for a term not less than seven years.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea whether rising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Bank Thieves in America.

"A 'mob,'" said the detective, "consists usually of two men. One of them is known as the 'stall' and the other the 'sneak.' The cashier, who usually faces the inclosure behind which the clerks are at work, can be made to turn in his chair by the 'stall,' who will pretend to be deaf, and while talking about opening an account will lean over so as to get the cashier's eyes away from the front of the building. In an instant the 'sneak,' with a pen behind his ear and ink on his fingers, perhaps wearing an inky office coat, is behind the railing, having entered through the cashier's room. He is skillful in turning rapidly so that his face is not seen, and knowing exactly where the money is located that he covets, he has it under his coat and is out of the inclosure and out of the building before any one knew even that he was there.

"There are two of the most expert 'mobs' of bank thieves in America at liberty this moment, any member of either of them being fully capable of carrying out just such a crime as I have described. It would not be expedient to make their names public, it is just as easy to rob a bank by the sneak method today as it was fifteen years ago. The only wonder is that there isn't more of it. Your average bank detective would not recognize the king of all bank sneaks who is alive and at liberty today if he walked in and asked the time of day."—New York World.

TALENTS.

Talents are seeds by Heaven's good gift bestowed,
To render back their increase unto God;
Talents are deeds to do, or duties done,
Whate'er their number be—five, two or one.
As is their use, so is their worth,
As is the impulse given,
They wither here upon the earth,
Or ripen here for heaven. —Robert Maguire.

CAUGHT IN A STORM.

"We might just as well have been standing behind the counter in New York all these ten days," sighed Barbara Hale, "for all the out-of-the-way adventures we've had!"

"Who wants out-of-the-way adventures?" said Dorcas Dunn scornfully.

"Behind the counter, indeed!" chimed in Mary Vannecker. "Can you breathe in clover scented air like this behind the counter? Can you get the mountain view like this from Sixth avenue? What more would the girl want, I should like to know?"

Barbara sighed once more and shook her head.

"It is all so tame," she said. "It isn't what I expected at all."

The three girls—Barbara, Dorcas and Mary—were sitting on a side hill under the shade of a grand old cedar tree. Barbara, who had once taken a quarter's lessons in drawing, had a sketch board on her lap and was trying—with but little success, it must be owned—to reproduce the lovely ribbon like curves of the river that wound its way through the valley below.

Mary had her needle work in her lap, and Dorcas, with her hands clasped under her head, had long given up all attempt to read the paper covered novel that she had brought with her.

"The sky and the sunshine are so much better," she said.

They were three shop girls—bright, ambitious, spirited young things, full of life and aspirations, even though they were kept down by the force of circumstances; and they clubbed together their slender resources in order to enjoy their vacation to better advantage.

Dorcas, the business member of the firm, had bought an excursion ticket first, and traveled out to Schepp's valley to see what could be done. But it is needless to say that the hotel and boarding house prices were far beyond their simple means.

"Is there no place," said she, "where we could obtain one room and the very simplest fare for less money?"

"You might try Old Man Morris," said the portly dame who kept the Valley house. "It's a quiet place, and Mrs. Morris she ain't no great of a cook, but there's them as has boarded there, I'm told."

"Where is it?" eagerly asked Dorcas.

And the landlady went to the door to point out a slender blue thread of smoke that was curling up heavenward from a mass of woods on a distant hill, and once more Dorcas set forth on her pilgrimage, this time with undoubted success.

She engaged one room. The board, to be sure, was plain, the bed a coarse husk mattress, with a blanket spread on the floor for Dorcas herself, the furniture home made and unpainted. But there was a grove of pine woods in the rear; the blackbirds piped their silver flutes all day long, and the bees darted in and out of the red lilies by the garden wall, and our three heroines believed themselves to be in paradise.

But even as Barbara Hale thus bewailed herself, a portentous shadow swept across the sun, and looking around, they saw that a mass of livid purple thunder clouds had piled themselves up along the western sky, while distant mutterings, and now and then a sudden flash, announced the coming of a storm.

Dorcas sprang to her feet, Barbara began hurriedly to fold up her sketching apparatus, Mary put her thimble and scissors in her pocket.

"We must get home quickly as possible!" cried all three.

But in availing themselves of a "short cut" across a patch of woods they got hopelessly lost. The sun set behind the purple battlement of clouds, the dusk fell rapidly in these dense woods, and the rain began to patter down in huge drops.

Barbara, the aspirant after adventure, began to cry.

"We are lost!" she said.

"Lost! Nonsense!" said brave Dorcas. "When I can see the railway track shining down below. Who ever got lost close to a railway line? Let's make for the track."

"And get run over," lamented Barbara.

"Not likely when there's only one train a day, and that at noon," laughed Dorcas. "If we walk along the railway line we must come out somewhere, don't you see?"

"And besides," added Mary, "there is a little ruined cabin not far from here where the railroad flagman used to live before they changed the location of the station. I remember Mrs. Morris showing it to me once."

"Oh! oh!" shrieked Barbara. "I couldn't go there! The flagman was killed on the track. There's a g-g-ghost there!"

"Would you rather stay here and be drenched through with rain?" severely demanded Mary.

"Or struck with lightning?" added Dorcas.

And the upshot of it was that the three fugitives took refuge in a miserable old shanty close alongside of the railroad track, where weeds were growing up through the cracks of the floor, and a plentiful portion of the rain came pattering through the leaks in the roof, while the old stone chimney, all settling to one side, looked as if no stroke of lightning could harm it very much.

"But it's some shelter," said Mary cheerfully. "We'll stay here until the shower is over, and then make the best of our way home."

The shower, however, showed no indication of abating in its vigor. The rain still poured down in sheets; the thunder still bellowed through the rocky gorge where the cabin had been built; the lighting still lit up everything with sudden spurts of blue flame, like pantomime effects.

"Oh, dear! oh, dear!" said Barbara, wringing her hands; "it must be midnight!"

"It can't be 9 o'clock yet," said Mary.

"And I'm so hungry! Oh, how I wish I hadn't eaten the last of those sandwiches! Oh, oh! what is that!" fluttered Barbara.

An unusually vivid electrical flash had revealed something white and spectral at the window. All three girls jumped at once.

"The ghost!" shrieked Barbara, stopping her ears and shutting her eyes as tight as was practicable.

"A stray white cow," suggested Mary.

"A young man in a flannel tennis suit," said Dorcas, the closest observer of all.

"Don't let him come in," said Barbara. "We shall be robbed and murdered!"

"Not while we are three to one," said composed Dorcas.

And at the same moment a voice sounded hurriedly at the door:

"Please, may I come in? I know it seems intrusion, but it's raining a deluge and I'm wet through."

"Come in by all means," said Mary.

And the ghost entered, dripping like a fountain.

"All in the dark!" said he, groping his way.

"There are no gas jets here," said Dorcas ironically.

"But we might have a little blaze of sticks," hazarded the new arrival, shaking himself like a Newfoundland dog. "I saw by that last glare of lightning that there was a heap in the corner, and I've got my match box intact."

"Oh, that would be splendid!" cried Dorcas, who was wet and shivering.

"And I've got some fish on a string outside, and we could have some supper," suggested the ghost, cheerfully.

"I'm so-o-o hungry!" wailed Barbara.

The stranger was evidently used to mountain camping. He had a fire kindled in no time, and the fish, cleaned by aid of his pocket knife and washed in one of the pools outside, were presently boiling over the coals, emitting a most savory smell.

"You must be a good genius!" cried Mary.

"I'm only a tramp," said the ghost, "and I'm ever so much obliged to you young ladies for letting me in."

"We couldn't have kept you out if we had tried," said Dorcas, frankly.

"You don't think I would have thrust myself in here against your wishes? Even a tramp wouldn't do that," said the young man.

The sticks had blazed cheerfully up; the ghost economized them to keep the flames alive as long as possible. He told thrilling tales of his experience in these woods; he made himself a most agreeable companion.

"Are you from the Valley house?" asked Dorcas.

"No; I am camping just where it happens."

"Oh!" said Mary. "Then you are poor like us? We are shopgirls on our vacation."

"For," she said to herself, "I am determined he shall not take us for other than we are."

"And," observed the ghost, "I should think you were having a very jolly time of it. A little more trout, Miss—Hale? And how did you come out in these wilderneses?"

So then, of course, little Barbara, who was generally the spokeswoman of the assemblage, related all her efforts to secure summer board.

"You see," said she, "Mr. Archer pays us so small a salary that we haven't much margin for luxury."

"He ought to pay you more," said the ghost. "I'm in business myself. I know how it is. People can't be expected to live on nothing."

"I do believe," cried Dorcas, "you are the tailor's young man from Cutt & Fitt's, next door to Archer's! I thought I had seen your face before! But if you ever get to the head of the firm—and a man can achieve almost anything he pleases—do pay your employes a decent sum!"

"I will," said the young man in the white flannel tennis suit.

And he spoke as if he meant it.

And then Dorcas discoursed still more learnedly about the rights and wrongs, the injustices and petty trials of life behind the counter.

"We are ladies, you see," said she, "and we expect to be treated like ladies. But I suppose you have your troubles too."

"Lots of 'em," said the young man, gazing absently into the fire. "Every one has, I suppose."

So that they all became great friends.

At midnight the rain ceased, and the moon burst in a flood of glory on the dripping scene.

"We can go home now," said Dorcas, clapping her hands. "And I dare say, young man," with a pretty air of patronage, "Mr. Morris could make you up a bed on the kitchen floor at our house, without charging very much for it."

"I should be delighted if he could," said the young man, meekly.

And so it was arranged.

The girls made an extra toilet next morning to meet "the ghost," as they called him, at the breakfast table.

But to their infinite disgust he was gone when they descended.

"Ye see," said old man Morris, "that there white flanning suit o' his'n had shrunk up with the wet, so it wasn't fairly presentable, and he just cut across lots afore daybreak an' cleared out."

"I told you so," said Barbara. "He was a ghost, and being such he dissolved into thin air at cock crow!"

"And I had put on my blue cambric gown," sighed Mary.

"And my hair was crimped so nicely," said Dorcas.

"But he gave me this ere," said Old Man Morris, displaying on the horny palm of his hand a gold half eagle.

"Rather extravagant for a tailor's clerk," said Mary.

"That is just the class of people," said Dorcas, loftily, "who don't know how to spend money properly."

"I thought he was very nice," said Barbara; "and I thought perhaps he was going to be the beginning of a real adventure."

September set in sultry as the tropics this year, and the three girls returned to Archer's great store with unwilling footsteps.

But the cashier met them with a smiling face.

"I've received instructions," said he, "to raise the salaries of all the girls in this department 10 per cent. Young Mr. Archer himself told me to do so."

"Young Mr. Archer!"

"There he is now," said the cashier.

And the next minute the hero of the rainy night had come up and was cordially shaking hands with them.

"Then you are not the tailor's young man after all!" said Mary, a little taken aback.

"Did I say I was?" said Archibald Archer.

At the end of the autumn little Barbara Hale had a confession to make.

"Girls," said she, "when I thought that young Mr. Archer was going to be the beginning of an adventure I was right. He has asked me to marry him, and when we go on our summer vacation next year we shall go together."

And Mary and Dorcas kissed little Barbara and congratulated her from the very bottom of their hearts.

"This," said they, "is an adventure worth having."—Saturday Night.

Will Have a Pleasant Visit.

"I think I will get one of those for my little boy," said Brown, as he stopped before a fakir who was making the day hideous with a big wooden rattle, "he likes anything that will make a noise."

"Then, are you going up town?"

"No, I've got to go to the telegraph office first. My wife expects her mother to-morrow and I want to wire her that I'll meet her at the station."—The Epoch.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

VOL. XX.—No. 122. PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1888. TEN CENTS A WEEK

BARGAINS IN STOVES!

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH FICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to plac the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrfice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE PRICES THAT WILL TELL THEIR OWN STORY:

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Uisters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

IMMORAL PUBLICATIONS

AN EXAMINATION OF THE MAILS TO BE MADE.

All Salacious Literature to be Confiscated—Lieut.-Col. Smith Appointed Extra Aide-de-Camp to the Governor-General.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—His Excellency the Governor-General has appointed Lieut.-Col. Henry R. Smith, 14th Battalion, extra aide-de-camp from July 25, 1888. Lieut.-Col. Smith filled a similar position under Lord Lansdowne.

Attorney-General Martin visited the Department of Railways and Canals to-day with reference to approval of the plans of the railway bridge across the Assiniboine River, authorized by chapter 92 of the acts of last session. This is intended to be the permanent bridge of the Red River Valley Railroad. The river is at present crossed on a temporary trestle bridge.

The mayoralty question is beginning to attract considerable attention. A meeting of French Canadians was held last night and eleven candidates were proposed. These were winnowed down to two: Ald. Beaubien and Dr. Prevost, and on a vote being taken the former was declared the choice of the meeting. Dr. Prevost's friends say he will run. G. B. Pattee of Perley & Pattee, lumbermen, George Hay and Ald. Errott are also spoken of as likely candidates.

It having been brought to the notice of the customs authorities that numbers of copies of The Sporting World and other immoral publications are being received by newsdealers, it is understood that a thorough examination of the mails will be made in a few days and all literature of that kind confiscated.

The Federal Government has purchased a new coal depot at Levis for the Intercolonial Railway.

Mr. E. T. Galt, son of Sir A. T. Galt and secretary-treasurer of the Northwest Coal and Navigation Company, was here to-day on his return from England, where it is understood he has made arrangements for obtaining sufficient capital to change the gauge of the road from Dunmore to Lethbridge from narrow to standard gauge and also to extend the road from Lethbridge to Fort Benton, M. T.

There was a meeting of Council to-day but it is understood only routine business was transacted.

Sir Hector Langevin and Sir Adolphe Caron left for Quebec this afternoon. Sir Hector will return on Tuesday.

NUMA GILLY'S CHARGES.

The Disturbed Condition of that Easily Disturbed Country—France.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—While the sinister shadow of Boulangism steadily increases in the land, the republican factions seem to be on the brink of another quarrel over financial scandals which threatens to be even worse than that under which President Grevy and M. Wilson went down. People are talking more about Numa Gilly's wholesale charges than anything else, in spite of the fact that his sweeping accusations against the politicians of the right and left do not seem so far to have much proof back of them. But, from what I learn, much worse is to come.

The deputies have all received a circular letter signed by F. Martin, ex-agent of the Panama canal company, asserting that Baihute and Barbe, formerly ministers of Public Works, had each received the past two years large bribes in return for the official and parliamentary assistance they had rendered the Panama canal company. In addition Martin says that fully 50 members of the chamber are implicated in a similar corrupt way in the fortunes of Compte DeLesseps' schemes, but he reserves their names in order to concentrate the charge on these ex-ministers and force them to proceed against him in the courts, where he is ready and anxious to meet them. I take the liberty of doubting, however, that they will sue him unless they are forced into it. Martin also attacks the present effort of Lesseps to obtain at least the formal backing of the Credit Foncier for his project of a new loan. It appears that the government is pretty deeply involved in support of this plan, M. Floquet relying a good deal on patriotic flummery about piercing the Isthmus of Panama under the French flag for electioneering capital in the general elections next year. Hence, any big scandal now about the Panama canal will not only smash finally M. DeLesseps' chances for getting any more money out of the confiding French people, but will seriously threaten the government itself.

Quite as important in another way is the opening of subscriptions for the new Russian loan here in France. It is not as much that the investment is a very bad and unwise one financially, but that it will create a lot of political sentiment of a dangerous sort. Every peasant who holds 500f. in Russian paper will have a new belief in the certainty of Russia's friendship for France to the obvious increase of willingness to engage in international adventuras.

Powderly Re-Elected.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 24.—Powderly was yesterday re-elected General Master Workman of the Knights of Labor for the next two years.

Morris L. Wheat of Iowa was elected General Worthy Foreman.

Hayes was elected Secretary-Treasurer, a Powderly victory, and Mrs. Barry director of women's work.

Powderly was chosen to represent the order at the Paris Exposition. He took the floor and stated that although his salary had been left at $5000 he would accept only $2000.

A. W. Wright of Toronto, J. J. Holland and John Costello of Pittsburg and John Devlin of Detroit were elected members of the General Executive Board. A. W. Wright receiving the largest single vote, 94, given in any of the ballots.

ASSIMILATING EDUCATION.

The Matriculation Exams of McGill and Toronto to be Consolidated.

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—The masters of collegiate institutes and high schools in Ontario will be pleased to learn that the matriculation examinations of McGill and Toronto universities will be in all probability assimilated after the end of the present academic year. For years teachers had to struggle against the strain put upon them by a multiplicity of classes, and were considerably relieved when Queen's and Victoria universities decided to adopt the text-books and examinations prescribed by the Provincial University. The universities themselves reaped no little advantage from this wise policy, as the masters are now in a position to devote their whole time and energy towards training their students, thereby giving them a sounder foundation upon which to build during their arts course.

When it is remembered how wide and varied the curriculums of the universities of Ontario now are, it will be seen how impossible it is for teachers to do justice to all the subjects they are called upon to go over with their students, and at the same time prepare candidates for colleges, prescribing different text-books. In collegiate institutes, where there is a large staff, the load is lighter, but in smaller schools the task of the teacher is not by any means an easy one. In Eastern Ontario district, where the smaller schools are particularly found, perhaps more students find their way to McGill, then to the universities of Ontario, and if only one student aimed at matriculation there, and one other intended going through the arts course of the Provincial University, the work of the teacher would be just as irksome and as productive of waste of energy as if he were called on to teach two classes of fifty each.

In Western Ontario few students are prepared for the matriculation examination of McGill, but an occasional one, out of circumstances, will choose that institution for his alma mater, and consequently teachers have either to make a separate class for him or pursue the drudgery of instructing him privately. The Minister of Education, who has done so much during his incumbency for secondary education, was quite aware of these difficulties, and for some time ago opened communication with Sir William Dawson, president of McGill University, with the object of having the course of the sister universities assimilated. Sir William received the proposals in the most friendly manner, and, as already stated, teachers in Eastern Ontario especially will be relieved of a burden which they bore patiently, but which yet had the effect of retarding the progress of the schools under their charge. The text books prescribed for matriculation in Toronto University will now be available for the sister universities in the Province of Quebec.

BLEW THE FELLOW'S HEAD OFF.

A Kentucky Judge in the Capacity of Both Court and Executioner.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 24.—At Sharpsburg last night Judge E. B. Withers, a prominent citizen, shot and instantly killed Lewis Daniels, a negro desperado. Daniels had gone to Judge Withers' house in the absence of that gentleman and outrageously abused the lady members of the family. This the Judge endured, hoping to avoid bloodshed. A few nights ago as Mrs. Withers and her sister, accompanied by a colored woman, who had been Daniels' wife, were on their way home from Judge Withers' store, they were met by Daniels', who at once attacked his wife, threatening to kill her. The terribly frightened colored woman appealed to her white companions. At this Daniels pointed a pistol at Mrs. Withers, telling her he would shoot. The ladies screamed and assistance came, but Daniels was gone.

Judge Withers that night loaded his shotgun. Last night he heard a noise in his kitchen. Taking his gun he went in and found Daniels, whom he ordered to leave. The negro reluctantly left, but had gone only a few steps, when he suddenly wheeled around, thrusting his hands in his pocket as if to draw a pistol. Withers then fired with both barrels of his gun, blowing Daniels' head off. Withers is 65 years old, has been Police Judge of Sharpsburg and is now a justice of the peace. He surrendered and gave bond to appear Monday.

THE ASHBOURNE ACT.

A Number of Amendments to the Land Purchase Bill Negatived.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—In the House of Commons to-night Mr. W. H. Smith moved that the rule compelling adjournment at midnight be again suspended to enable the House to conclude the debate on the Irish Land Purchase Bill. Carried, 195 to 159.

On motion to go into committee on the bill Mr. Parnell proposed an amendment giving the Government power to instruct the Land Commission to deal with arrears when fixing judicial rents. Rejected, 182 to 148.

Mr. Nolan (Home Ruler) moved that purchasing tenants be allowed also to purchase grass land in the neighborhood of their holdings. Negatived, 159 to 128.

Sir B. Walter Foster (Lib.) moved to reduce the amount of the grant to £1,500,000. Rejected, 212 to 154.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—At the sitting of the Parnell Commission to-day Inspector of Police Huggins testified concerning outrages at Castle Island, County Kerry. From November, 1882, to September, 1884, 160 outrages had been committed. He denied that he was employed by The Times.

A Kilkenny Row.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.—The meetings announced to be held throughout Ireland yesterday in memory of the Manchester martyrs were proclaimed by the Government. A few conflicts occurred between the people and the police. The most serious disturbance was at Kilkenny. A despatch received from there at a late hour says that the police were charging in all directions and that a magistrate had threatened to give orders to the police to fire on the mob.

Tommy Tittlemouse's Sovereigns.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The race for the Lancashire stakes of 500 sovereigns at the Manchester meeting yesterday was won by Whipp's Tommy Tittlemouse, Houghton's Arnaniel second and Sir F. Johnstone's The Shrew third.

Jack Chinn Indicted.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 24.—Jack Chinn has been indicted at Newport, Ky., for cutting Bookmaker J. M. Dowling at the Latonia fall meeting.

More Body Snatching.

KINGSTON, Nov. 24.—At a meeting of one of the Anglican committees here recently Rev. Mr. White of Iroquois stated that in his section recently many graves had been desecrated and bodies stolen. He believed that a regular market for corpses existed at Ogdensburg, where they were purchased and sent on to New York and Philadelphia.

Switchmen on Strike.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 24.—The strike of railroad switchmen here is becoming serious. No switch engines were moved yesterday and the yards are in confusion. Business is at a standstill. The roads have called for police protection.

THE CROSSING CONFLICT.

CONCLUSION OF THE ARGUMENT IN THE SUPREME COURT.

Mr. Blake's Little Joke—Attorney-General Martin's Settlement and Justice Strong's Comment Thereon.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—In the Supreme Court yesterday morning Hon. Edward Blake continued his summing up in the Manitoba crossing case, concluding shortly after noon. He reviewed the arguments of Hon. Mr. Mowat and Mr. McCarthy and contended that the act of the Manitoba Legislature became invalid from the time it authorized the construction of a line crossing the Canadian Pacific, or for that matter any of the ten roads specially classified in section 306 of the Railway Act. Mr. Blake went on to show the effect of section 308. Provision by a distinct declaration is there made to legalize by proclamation all railway acts passed by the provinces after May, 1883. Before that date all these acts were legal without obtaining sanction by the Federal Parliament. Mr. Mowat proposed, he said to take advantage of an abolished preamble in order to place a proper construction upon the act. This Mr. Blake contended was going too far. Mr. Mowat improperly believes, he said, that section 306 of the Railway Act does not affect the Legislature, and holds that the analogy between the Crown and the Provincial Legislature is greater than the analogy between the Dominion and the Crown. "Mr. Mowat," added Mr. Blake with a broad smile, "got his erroneous idea possibly because he has long possessed a little crown in his own province." After some further argument Mr. Blake concluded by holding that Parliament had in view the centralization of jurisdiction in railway matters in the hands of the Federal authority. Great necessity existed why the regulation of crossings and the settlement of a score of other questions should rest with a competent legislature, and Parliament in assuming this authority was simply acting in accordance with the principle of the British North America Act.

Attorney-General Martin rose to correct what he called a misunderstanding on the part of Mr. Blake. The portage extension never contemplated crossing the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It proposed to connect with the Manitoba and Northwestern Railway south of Portage la Prairie, as the latter road has authority by virtue of its charter to cross the main line of the Canadian Pacific. Once the crossing at the Portage was effected the Red River road could make the desired connection. The Manitoba Government never contended it had power to cross the main line of the Canadian Pacific. Mr. Martin asked the court to bear this in mind, contending that the Pembroke Mountain branch did not come under the provision of the Railway Act.

Mr. Justice Strong: "We are bound to go by what we get. We must consider the case as was stated by the Railway Committee."

Mr. Mowat asked the court to distinguish in its judgment between the Canadian Pacific Railway and its branches, and expressed the hope that the judgment would be forthcoming shortly.

BOTH OARSMEN CONFIDENT.

Excitement at Washington Over the O'Connor-Teemer Race.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Not since the presidential election has there been such excitement here as now prevails over the coming boat race for the championship of America between O'Connor and Teemer, which takes place on the Potomac River this afternoon. It promises to be the greatest aquatic struggle ever seen in America. Talk in the hotel lobbies all centres on the race. The Canadian contingent here is strong. Two trains arrived yesterday with upwards of 300 from Toronto and vicinity.

As to the betting, which is even, O'Connor has the most followers who are eager to wager their money on him, but there are few takers. The heaviest bet yesterday was made by Joseph Rogers, who wagered $1500 even with R. Morris of Pittsburg. It is estimated that there is upwards of $50,000 here to back O'Connor, but Teemer's friends are few and far between. I saw O'Connor and asked what he thought of the race. He said: "You can say that I never felt better and am confident of victory. Teemer is rowing fast, but I think I can beat him." O'Connor will row at 163 pounds and will use a Ruddock boat with a Warren seat.

Teemer is also sanguine, even more so than O'Connor, but the money is all behind Toronto's sculler. Teemer will also row at 163 pounds and be boated by Ruddock.

The race will take place about 4 o'clock, over what is known as the "lower course," from the foot of F Street to Long Bridge and return, a distance of 3 miles. John B. Elder of the Columbia Boat Club will act as referee.

DEATH OF JUDGE ARMSTRONG.

The Chairman of the Labor Commission Falls Lifeless in the Street.

SOREL, Nov. 24.—General regret is felt here at the sudden death yesterday afternoon of Chief Justice Armstrong, chairman of the Labor Commission. While walking on the street the judge was seen to suddenly stagger and fall on the pavement. The bystanders immediately rushed to his assistance and carried him to an adjoining house where medical aid was sent for, but death had meanwhile ensued from apoplexy. Judge Armstrong was 68 years of age and had resided over ten years in the island of St. Lazy, West Indies, as chief justice. He was also for some years president of the Montreal and Sorel Railway.

The South Norfolk Ry. Completed.

PORT ROWAN, Nov. 24.—The first train on the South Railway reached here, the terminus, at 4 p.m. yesterday, bringing a large number of excursionists from Simcoe and Victoria. The last spike was driven by Mr. B. Killmaster, the President of the road, amid great cheering. A large crowd assembled from the country to witness the event. Freight and passenger trains will be put on at once.

THE MISTAKES OF PEOPLE

With the World, and Things that I Have Seen.

SERMON BY LAYMAN.

To the Editor of the Review.

After all the thousands of years of experience of people with the world, and after all their education and training, they appear to be as far away from improvement as they were before. And thus mistakes are as great and their trials and troubles are as many, notwithstanding their many lessons and advantages. It may be asked why this is so and how it comes to pass that they will not do better. If this question can be answered satisfactorily, as it may be so answered, and if people's attention could be aroused, and their minds forced to look at the matter rightly, would it have any effect upon their future conduct and actions? I fear not. And I say so because men's pride and vanity and their avarice and selfishness are the same as they ever were. Human nature is the same and until that can be changed all their lessons of experience will be void. For the last two thousand years, at all events, the world has been taught all that it requires to know in the way of usefulness and proper living. And if mankind can ever be taught anything they surely ought to have learned long before the present time, how so to do and to live as to avoid their many difficulties and troubles in this life as well as in the life to come. But instead of all this what do we see? We see the course of business preverted. We see, sir, a few men trying to grasp everything. Trying to become rich at the expense of every one else, and trying to keep others poor, so as thereby to feast their love of greed and their love of power. Trying to keep others in ignorance in order the better to make them their slaves. Placing all manner of temptations in their way so as to keep them in degradation and misery, in order that they may be the more worthy to rise up and to help themselves. And what more do we see? We see young men and women going out into the world, often totally inexperienced, but with high hopes and expectations. And we see them commence at the wrong end of their duties, commencing where they ought to leave off. Doing nothing, thinking of nothing but how they are to flourish and make a figure in the world. Taking their last cent for that purpose, taking the money which others have given them to waste in rioting and high living. Taking the means which they earn by their daily toil and spending it in fine furniture and fine dress, and in visiting the theatre and other like places of questionable resort. And then they fail of success and then they complain that the world has been harsh with them, and they even blame providence for their own mistakes and misfortunes. And what more, do we see? We see people who are beginning life, and trying to win the respect of others, giving way to strong drink, wasting the money which should go to help build up their business and to make their families comfortable, in destroying their mental and physical faculties. And as if this drink alone was not enough, wasting their means on expensive cigars, and puffing smoke from their mouths, apparently imagining that they are great men, that the world looks up and honors them according to the amount of smoke they make out of tobacco which is undermining their health and strength, and the cost of which, in the course of a year, would feed and clothe their hungry and naked children. As an illustration of this, I once saw a man with his little boy in a shop and I heard the little fellow ask him to buy him some candies and a cheap toy. But the father said he could not afford the money. I saw a big tear come into that little boy's eye, and they passed out and went on their way. Afterwards I was passing the open door of a saloon, and I saw that same father standing at the bar and wasting twenty times as much money as that little boy wanted in treating those around him to liquor and cigars. I know that that man's family stinted themselves in many things in order to get along, and I have seen his patient wife fairly sinking to the floor from exhaustion through overwork and much trouble, and I thought to myself how many little comforts the money which he was wasting in liquor and cigars would bring them, and how the doing of this would bring back hope to his weary wife and smiles to his ill used children. I have seen worthy men, through the means afforded them by their relatives and friends, rent stores and buy goods and go into business under the most favorable auspices, and their success appeared to be reasonably certain. But they were not content to work along quietly. They were ambitious and they seemed to think that, do what they would, they were certain to succeed. They must have fine, showy residences and fine furniture. And then they must keep up appearances and be as stylish as their neighbors. They must dress fine and give parties. And they did not forget the choice brands of liquor and the superior cigars. By and bye little black clouds began to appear in the distant horizon, and as they grew larger the men's face began to look more anxious and more uneasy. They saw the storm coming on apace, they saw the breakers ahead and they knew their day of doom had come. And not many years after strange faces occupied the old familiar places and their former occupant had gone. Pride and fashion and waste and extravagance, and I may add also drink, have been the ruin of many otherwise wealthy people who might have succeeded had they only lived as they might, lived economically and carefully. And so one generation follows fast after those that have gone before, to be succeeded in their turn by others as foolish as themselves. And so will it be to the end of the chapter, for the world is getting worse in this respect instead of better, and the life of the people appears to be wholly artificial and uncertain. And to work and to save and live within one's means, to live so as to be prepared for a rainy day, is considered beneath the notice of our would-be fashionable ladies and gentlemen and unworthy of their society. In the good old times people lived sensibly. They were willing to work and to save, and they did work and save. But unfortunately some of them lived long enough to see the fruits of their hard toil dissipated by their children and themselves treated harshly and oftentimes denied respectful treatment, oftentimes made to feel that they were in the way and that the sooner they were gone the better for those left behind. And they comforted themselves by thinking and talking of the good old times when they were young and when they worked early and late and when they were contented and happy, little dreaming that the time would soon come when the children they loved and cared for would ill-use them and begrudge them the smallest portion of the means they had saved and had hoped to enjoy. And I have seen men suddenly appear to make a brilliant light, like a passing meteor, and then as suddenly pass away and be seen no more. Their vanity and their ambition knew no bounds and they foolishly imagined that the world was all their own. Now, go down to the neighboring cemeteries and there see the end of all human strivings and all human hopes and ambitions. There be the people who even thought they were going to live forever, who thought there was no one like themselves. And who thought that they could pile up riches and lord it over their fellow men as they pleased. They never reasoned that they were mortal. They never thought that the time would come when they would have to leave all and be laid low in death and put away in the silent tomb, nor did they, perhaps, look forward to the dreadful day of reckoning to come. All they thought of and all they strove for was a little more, and yet a little more. And they said to their conscience, peace, be still. And, sorry am I to say it, I believe the churches are much to blame for these things. The young learn their first lessons of funds and extravagance there. They see grand, showy buildings, elaborately finished in the finest style of modern art. They see no place for the poor there. All is pretence and fine show. A grand organ, a paid choir, music for the ear but not for the heart, a dignified, haughty clergyman, full of pretence and selfishness, looking down upon the people as if he was a little god, is feeling it an honor conferred if he deigns to speak to a layman. And thus the young are taught and trained, and is it any wonder that they learn to become extravagant and to live beyond their means, and is it any wonder that there is so little true religion in the world?

DIED IN AN OPIUM JOINT.

Sad Fate of a Pretty Canadian Girl Who Was Ruined and Deserted.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—A pretty girl dead in a Chinese opium joint. Such was the fate of Louise Cavillea, a handsome Canadian, who was found lifeless in a bunk at the den of Ah Wah, No. 117 Fourth avenue. Louise came here four months ago and was known as Eva Johnston, and plunged into a life of shame. When she went into Ah Wah's place, with a companion named Albert Rogers, she was under the influence of wine, and the effects of both the wine and opium smoking caused her death.

The pretty red brown hair of the dead girl fell over the head of the copper dissecting pan in the Morgue yesterday, while the keen scalpels were busy cutting into her fair flesh. Ah Wah, Ah Lee and other Chinamen stood around in their queer, satin lined blouses and chattered in their strange sing song. They looked scared. Wah, Lee and Rogers were held to answer for her death.

Not long ago Louise was a happy, innocent girl at Toronto, Canada, her parents being well to do. She was graduated from a leading female seminary. It was the same old story of ruin and desertion; her father died of a broken heart because of his daughter's disgrace, and the mother removed from the old home so full of painful memories. The body of the girl will be sent to a small town in Michigan, where the bereaved mother sorrowingly awaits her.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

St. Luke's Young Men's Guild.

One of the most enjoyable meetings of this society was held on Thursday evening in the school room of the church. The Guild is becoming popular, as is evidenced by the number of visitors at the meetings. The Rev. Mr. Warren was in the chair. The principal business of the evening was impromptu speaking by the members All the young men were brought to their feet and some filled out their five minutes in good style. The next meeting is on Thursday, 29th November.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Drunken Talk.

A Frenchman who had imbibed a little too freely of the flowing bowl, was boasting in a bar last night that he knew all about the outraging of the little girl. The police dropped in on him and took him to the cells to see what he would say when he was sober. This morning, however, the man was allowed to go after the Magistrate had given him a severe lecture. No suspicion is attached to him or his companion, whom he claimed committed the deed, as they did not arrive in town until Wednesday night.

The Forged Mortgage.

The man who was arrested in Norwood on suspicion of being the one who had the mortgage drawn up on property belonging to Mr. Robert Gardiner, of Dummer, and forged that gentleman's name to it and then attempted to raise $2,050 on the same, was identified yesterday by Mr. E. B. Stone, who went down for that purpose, as the man for whom he had drawn the mortgage, and who gave his name as Irvine Roorback. The prisoner was remanded until Tuesday when his preleminary trial will take place at Norwood.

Comparative Prices.

The Lindsay Warder, asks "why it is that at Peterborough, Lindsay, and other local points in this district the prices offered are from ten to twelve cents per bushel less than corresponding prices on Toronto market the same day? Perhaps some of the firms doing business on Lindsay market can explain!" The Warder should have omitted Peterborough.

Institute Literary Society.

The weekly meeting of this society was held in the Institute on Friday afternoon Mr. H. Fife, President, was in the chair. The first was a reading by Miss S. Best, which was followed by a debate on "Resolved, that the drama is productive of more good than harm," the affirmative being taken by Miss S. Brown and the negative by Master R. F. McWilliams. The negative won. Master C. Thompson then gave a reading. Mr. Ellis acted as critic. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a grand concert during the coming holidays

A Railway Project.

Another railway scheme, says an exchange, has been developed in Kingston. The new idea is to construct a railway from Kingston to the Georgian Bay, to be officered and equipped by Kingston men, to run through North Hastings, the centre of Peterborough County, part of Haliburton and Muskoka district, connecting with the Pacific junction and the Sault St. Marie railways at Gravenhurst, going through a country not served by railways. It is claimed that the scheme would be entitled to the maximum bonus from the Government.

The Pigeon Creek Bridge.

At a meeting of the Sullivan's Bridge Committee of the County Council held at the Court House this morning, after the business in this matter was concluded, a communication of the Town Council with reference to the Pigeon Creek Bridge was considered and the following resolution adopted:—"That no action be taken in reference to the repairs of Pigeon Creek Bridge as requested by the town till the County of Victoria joins in making such repairs and that in the event of Victoria not contributing a proper proportion, this Committee recommend the Council to abandon the Bridge."

Almost Her Three Score and Ten.

There died at her residence on Antrim-st, this morning Margaret Campbell, the wife of Mr. Wm. Lilly, who is well known throughout the town. The deceased lady was a victim of the jaundice or inflammation of the liver, and had been confined to bed for the past seven weeks. She was born in Scotland some sixty-seven years ago, and was an old resident of Peterborough, having come here about twenty years ago. She was a Christian lady who always took an interest in church, being a Methodist and an active member of the George-st. church. By her death Mr. Tilley loses a devoted and faithful wife, and will receive his many friends' sympathy.

A Reward of $100.

Nothing new has been discovered that will throw any light on who is the man who committed the dastardly outrage of Wednesday afternoon and his capture is now unlocked for. This morning, however, the Mayor issued a proclamation offering a reward of $100 for the apprehension and conviction of the wretch. There are several little girls who were approached last week who could readily recognize the man who accosted them if he were shown to them. The description of the suspected person which is given on the proclamation of the town is as follows: "About thirty or thirty-five years of age, 5 ft. 8 in. high, slim built, sandy moustache and goatee. When last seen he wore large rubber boots, dark coat, light trousers and clothe cap."

Agriculture and Arts Association.

The Port Hope Times says:—"We are pleased to see that Mr. Robert Vance, of Cavan, is again in the field as a candidate for the old Newcastle District, on the board of the Agriculture and Arts Association of Ontario, and we are glad to say with a prospect of being elected by acclamation. Mr. Vance has served one term, and has proven himself a useful member of the Board, being thoroughly versed in the most practical methods of all kinds of farming, and a shrewd, keen business man. He is an active capable worker, and during the past three years has given the greatest satisfaction to the farmers of District No. 5." The REVIEW is pleased to know that Mr. Vance is again a candidate and that his re-election appears so certain, because he is a good representative and a valuable member of the Board.

The Second Advent.

Last night Lord A.P. Cecil took up, as advertised, the two stages of Christ's Second Coming. He first of all pointed out two ways in which our Lord is spoken of in scripture; first, as the Christ—the anointed One. Second, as the Son of the Father, quoting Ps. ii, for the first, and John i, 18 for the second. As the Son of God He will come again to take his brethren to be with Himself in the Father's house, according to his promise in John xiv 1—3. Then will take place the marriage of the Lamb. This, he showed, is the proper hope of the Christian as is seen in first Thess. iv, 15—18. Then, after a brief interval, He and they will return in glory to reign over this world, as was brought out last night. The first stage is as the morning star, the second as the sun of righteousness. The preacher earnestly exhorting his hearers to search the scriptures for themselves and not take for granted what is preached unto them. This the Bereans did when an apostle was the preacher. It was announced at the close that Messrs. Hayhoe and Rochester would continue to preach on Sunday at 3 and 7 o'clock, and Tuesday and Friday at 7.30.

Protestant and Roman Catholic Opinions of the Bible.

The Rev. M. L. Pearson's Bible class lasts just an hour. The Sunday School lesson, Joshua, xxiv chap., 19—28, will occupy half the hour, and the other half will be taken up with a review of Bishop Dowling's lecture on the Bible. This will be continued for a few Sabbaths. All will be made welcome. Come prepared to ask questions. Meeting of class in the George-st. Church on Sunday at 2.30 p. m.

Gentle Zephyrs.

James Farley, who lives near the corner London and Harvey-sts., has evidently run into trouble and failed to escape uninjured. This morning he was in search of the magistrate and justice with a banged eye and blood-covered face. He said his broken head and blackened eye were some of the results of a little breeze of domestic infelicity that fanned the atmosphere of his family circle last night. He will probably seek to have his wrongs and grievances ventilated in the police court.

Obituary.

The Cannington Gleaner publishes an obituary notice of Mrs. Angeline Cooney, a former resident of Peterborough, who died at Cannington on Nov. 13th. Mrs. Cooney was born in Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1813, and came to Canada with her brother, Mr. Wm. Junkin, in 1839, settling in Verulam. In 1840 she was married to Mr. Henry Brandon, who died in 1849. In 1852, through the advice of Mr. John Langton, formerly M.P., now of Toronto, she moved to Peterborough, where one son died and another was drowned. In 1856 she married Mr. Edward Cooney and in 1863 removed from Peterborough to Brock township and to Cannington in 1885. She was ill for six months before her death and passed peacefully away.

The Best This Week.

Last night Prof. Reynolds had a good audience and his exhibition of his mesmeric powers were simply immense. He succeeded in getting about ten good subjects and with these he made the audience laugh until they were in pain. He drew three from their seats in the audience over the backs of seats on to the platform, although they fought hard against it. He put them through the old performances and made them dance, talk through the telephone, sing and play in a minstrel style, play football, play baseball and a dozen other wonderful feats which kept all those who witnessed them in roars of laughter. Queen Victoria's dignity was simply unapproachable and the homage which all the others rendered to her was amusing. The professor should have a bumper house to-night.

Personal.

Mr. T. W. Robinson returned to-day from the west, where he went to look after the affairs of his deceased brother.

Second Lieutenant K. G. Loch has been promoted to a Lieutenancy in No. 6 Company of the 57th Battalion and the promotion is gazetted.

Previous to his departure from Lindsay, Mr. S. A. McMurtry was entertained at a dinner by the Oddfellows and presented with a P. G.'s Jewel. He was also presented with an address by the curling club.

Bishop Dowling delivered his lecture on "The Church and the Bible" in Port Hope on Thursday night. Father Kelly, of Ennismore, and Father Rudkins, of Peterborough, were present. The times says that "whether regarded from the standpoint of the orator or the logician the address was an able one."

The Salvation Army.

Staff-Capt. Boulton, D.O., of the Salvation Army, is about leaving this division after about two years stay and is going to his old division, Chatham, Ont., which is a good division. The staff-captain has been popular and successful here. While here he has opened eight or ten new stations and has paid off considerable debt. He is leaving the division in a flourishing condition, as it now includes twenty corps and four outposts and between thirty and forty officers. The present state of the Army in Canada is 323 corps, 109 outposts and 845 officers. A three days farewell for the staff captain will be held, commencing to-day, in the new temple on Simcoe-st. A farewell banquet will be held this evening, at which all the officers of the division will be present. Staff-Captain Boulton will conduct the meetings this evening and to-morrow, which will be the last meetings in the division he will have charge of. On Monday a Council will be held. The meetings will no doubt be largely attended to bid the staff-captain farewell.

FUN AT THE GRAND.

The Noted Zera Semon opens his week's Engagement.

There is a novel attraction at the Grand Opera House, the great Zera Semon having taken possession for all this week to tickle Ottawa with his wonderful illusions or Black Art. The house was filled in every part last evening, with scarcely a foot of standing room left, and nothing but satisfaction was expressed concerning the entertainment. And their appreciation was well deserved, for the show was quite everything that it pretends to be. Zera Semon is inimitable as an illusionist; Miss Adele Gilbert produces on the musical glasses popular melodies one could listen to a whole evening without tiring. Signor Giovanni shows a troupe of birds educated to a surprising degree. The Royal Marionettes in minstrels tickled the house immensely, being funnier than the funniest live end man ever invented, and the concluding feature of the show, Mme. Strong's lime light and calcium pictures of famous scenes, places and men were such that everyone was sorry when the "Good-night" appeared on the canvas.

A great drawing feature in connection with the show is the gift distribution which takes place nightly, and for which every occupant of the gallery has one ticket, and everyone who pays for admission down stairs two tickets—by no means all blanks, for it seemed last night as if there would be no end of the presents as they were handed round. All the winners of minor presents draw for the grand premiums, two or three in number. The first of these—a dinner set—was drawn last evening by the popular lacrosse player, Wm. McKay, who received a hearty round of applause as he owned up to having the winning number. Albert Proulx, from the gallery, claimed the second prize, a set of chamber crockery. The chief prizes this evening will be a couple of watches.—Ottawa Journal. 1d122

FROM BENCH TO GUTTER.

A Former Chief-Justice of Utah Drops Dead in a Bucket Shop.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—William W. Drummond, ex-Chief Justice of Utah, died suddenly in a low barrel-house on Desplaines-street last night. He was in rags and tottering with the infirmities of dissipation. He had entered the place, presumably to rest a while, and while sitting on a chair by the stove he fell forward to the floor, and when the bartender reached him he was dead.

Judge Drummond came to Chicago from West Virginia in 1851 and practised law here. In 1853 he was appointed by President Pierce, Chief Justice of Utah. Soon afterwards he met a woman named Pleasant Ridgeway, for whom he left his wife and family of five children—four girls and a boy—and on reaching Utah he abandoned himself to a life of such notorious dissipation that in a short time he was forced to resign the judical position he held. He returned to Chicago and resumed the practice of law, but his reputation was such as to render success impossible. He continued to live with the Ridgeway woman until she wearied of him, and abandoned him for another. He went down fast after that.

For the past eight years he has been a frequenter of low lodging houses, and eked out a livelihood by begging, and has been arrested for stealing letters from the street boxes and other like offences. The body was taken to the Morgue. When he was a young man he was looked upon as the most brilliant and promising lawyer in the West.

THE DETROIT EXTENSION.

THE C. P. R. SHAREHOLDERS CONFIRM THE LEASE.

President VanHorne Points Out the Immediate Necessity of the Acquisition—Indications of a Favorable Year.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—At the adjourned meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company held to-day to consider the lease of the Detroit extension of the Ontario and Quebec Railway 327,800 shares were represented and voted unanimously to confirm the lease. The President submitted the correspondence with the Grand Trunk Company concerning a trackage lease between London and the Detroit river, from which it appeared that the Grand Trunk had been approached three times on the subject with fruitless results.

He stated that the real cause of the failure of the last negotiations was a new condition, imposed by the Grand Trunk at the last moment, requiring the Canadian Pacific to discontinue the carriage of its freight traffic between Ontario points and the Canadian Northwest by its own line, via Smith's Falls, and to turn it over to the Grand Trunk for carriage between Toronto and North Bay on terms which he pronounced unreasonable and absurd.

Mr. Van Horne also referred to Sir Henry Tyler's statements concerning the Canadian Pacific, in his speech at the recent half-yearly meeting of the Grand Trunk Company, as unfair and misleading.

He explained the relations of the Canadian Pacific with the Michigan Central and pointed out that the connection with that line was rendered valueless through its control by the New York Central.

He also pointed out that the Ontario and Quebec system and the other eastern lines controlled by the Canadian Pacific Company were practically debarred from participation in the heavy freight and passenger traffic between the Western and New England States and from much other valuable business, and now that the eastern connections of the company were well established the immediate completion of the Detroit extension seemed to be an absolute necessity. It would at once place the company in an independent position and add very largely to its earning power.

The President spoke with great confidence of the general position of the company and stated, that while owing to the late movement of the crops of the Northwest, to the delay in completing and opening the American lines west of Sault Ste. Marie and to other similar causes the results of the year's working would fall short of earlier expections, the surplus above fixed charges would be at least as large as that of last year, and that the excellent condition of the railway, the extensive improvements made this year and the large additions to its rolling stock and other facilities would at once be felt in reduced expenses and increased earnings.

To Run Trains into Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The Evening Journal says the report that the Canadian Pacific road has made arrangements to run trains into Chicago is corroborated by J. Francis Lee, the commercial agent in this city. In answer to inquiries Mr. Lee said: "The Canadian Pacific has made all its arrangements to that end. It is now building a line between London and Windsor, Ont., to connect with Detroit with the Wabash system. It will run trains into this city over the Wabash tracks and will have terminal facilities here in connection with that system."

"Have any arrangements been made for reaching from the northwest, say from St. Paul, as reported?"

"I know of no such arrangements and do not think it has been thought of."

"How soon will you be running your trains into this city?

"We expect to have everything in shape in about a year from now. We will probably be running trains in here by this time next year."

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

MR. BLAKE'S REPORTED RETAINER IN THE CROSSING CASE.

Supreme Court Matters—Mr. Blake to be Present at the Opening of Parliament—Increase in Dominion Land Sales.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—The Supreme Court, having got through the Maritime Province list, has adjourned until Dec. 14 when judgments will be delivered. It will then adjourn for the usual Christmas vacation and meet again on Jan. 15, when the Quebec list will be taken up.

The Free Press says that Mr. Blake will be present at the opening of Parliament, although his physicians may order him to spend a portion of the winter in a southern climate.

The arbitrators in the case of the claims of the Canadian Pacific Railway against the Dominion Government in connection with the British Columbia section of the road will meet here on Dec. 3 for examination of witnesses. Hon. Edward Blake will appear as one of the counsel for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The sale of Dominion lands in the Northwest for the year ending Oct. 31 has been greatly in excess of last year, notably in the last three months of the year, which show an increase of $42,000.

The members of the bar attending the Supreme Court presented a memorial asking for a change in the rules of the court so that two days shall elapse between the close of the maritime province list and the calling of the Quebec list, and two days between the Quebec and Ontario lists. The object is that counsel may neither be taken by surprise by the dropping of cases or bringing on their suits sooner than expected, nor obliged to wait here several days for cases to come on.

They also ask that the court adjourn for half-an-hour each day for lunch. At present the court sits from 11 to 4 without intermission. No reply has yet been given.

The Evening Joureal states on what it says is "good authority" that Mr. Blake's retainer in the Manitoba Railway crossing case before the Supreme Court was $10,000.

The Department of Justice has received a petition sigfied by 25 medical men of Montreal praying for a commutation of the sentence of death passed on Jack Kehoe, the murderer, on the ground that he is of unsound mind.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau is confined to his house with an attack of bronchitis.

It is rumored that two of the vacancies in the Senate for the Province of Quebec have been filled by the appointment of Mr. C. S. Rodier in the place of the late Senator Roland and of Mr. George A. Drummond in the place of the late Senator Ferrier.

Lady Compton's Maiden Speech.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Gladstone presided at a meeting Saturday afternoon in support of Lord Compton's candidacy for the vacant parliamentary seat for the Holborn district of Finsbury. In the course of a speech announcing that she was working to achieve Lord Compton's election Mrs. Gladstone said: "In working for the election of Lord Compton you are furthering the cause of justice and right in Ireland and also in the rest of the kingdom." Lady Compton followed Mrs. Gladstone, making her maiden speech. She was exceedingly nervous at the start and remarked at the close: "The next time I hope I sha'n't be so terrified."

Gov. Blake's Appointment Withdrawn.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Cabinet at its session on Saturday occupied two hours in discussing the matter of appointing colonial governors, especially the Governor of Queensland, and also devoted some time to the question of appointing a chief commissioner of the Metropolitan Police force to succeed Gen. Sir Charles Warren. The discussion of the Queensland matter resulted in the withdrawal of the appointment of Mr. H. A. Blake, late Governor of Newfoundland.

Italian Affairs.

ROME, Nov. 26.—The Government has issued an order forbidding vessels to approach the Is and of Maddelena, the object being to prevent an inspection of the fort on the Island. The authorities will, however, provide pilots for vessels going through the Straits of Bonifacio.

Prime Minister Crispi made a brilliant speech in the Senate Saturday in defence of the communal provincial bill. He dwelt upon the necessity of enlarging the suffrage but said that the right to vote should not be given to illiterate persons.

A Trunk Mystery at Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Nov. 26.—A trunk containing the corpse of Herr Huelseberg, fowarding agent of the Hamburg-American Packet Company, was discovered on the Baaken dock on Saturday. The skull was fractured and a watch and $750 in money were missing. A steward named Daw was narested at Cologne yesterday, charged with being the murderer.

Jack the Ripper's Pal.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A private person living near Nottingham has received a letter signed "Jack the Ripper's Pal," stating that both the writer of the letter and "Jack" committed the recent murders in the Whitechapel district. The writer says that "Jack" is a Bavarian whom he first met aboard a ship returning from America and who exercised mesmeric influence.

A Deathly Plaything.

BINGHAMPTON, Nov. 26.—While Willie Dundon, a 10-year-old lad was playing with a shot gun yesterday afternoon it was accidentally discharged. The full charge took effect in the left breast of his brother's wife, Mrs. Michael Dundon, killing her instantly. Mrs. Dundon was 26 years old and had been married but a short time.

THE WORLD OF LONDON.

UNFLAGGING INTEREST IN THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

Tales of Horror Rehearsed Daily—The Debate on Extending the Ashbourne Act—Mr. Gourley's Question.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Parnell Commission last week has once more brought freshly before the English public old stories of Irish murder and other outrages. What the Home Rule paper sneeringly calls the inevitable tragedy recurs daily. Besides all this evidence, mutterings of a coming storm are heard daily. There are charges and countercharges on both sides. The Attorney-General has more than once intimated his belief that Times witnesses are tampered with. A very curious shooting case, tried last week at the Central Criminal Court, supports his view. Sir. Charles Russell, on the other hand, alleges complicity between The Times and the Irish Administration. He said Friday: "My Lord, we charge deliberately, and shall endeavor to make it good in evidence, that the whole of the executive authorities, as represented by the police and some of the resident magistrates, have been agents of The Times in getting up their case. An inspector, however, who was asked if he was employed by The Times, denied it. On the whole there seems little danger of public interest in these proceedings fading out.

Mr. Parnell has stated with his usual clearness his objection to the extension of Lord Ashbourne's Act. He is for it in principle; that is, he is for the creation of a peasant proprietary. But circumstances are now such in Ireland that in his view no fair trial of the principle is possible. Rich tenants can buy; and the poor cannot. Landlords can choose to whom they will sell; the estate has no voice. The rents on which the purchase money is to be calculated, though judicially settled, are still too high. Arrears will be used by landlords as a means of forcing tenants to make bad bargains. "Buy or go" will be their formula. If tenants do not wish to buy they will be ejected for non-payment of arrears.

Such is a summary of the points the Home Rule leader made. An equitable bargain, added Mr. Parnell, cannot be made on such terms, and tenants would have a claim hereafter to say they were compelled to take advantage of the bargain and were entitled to repudiate it; to which the Tories retort that the authorized plea of the Nationalists is that the Irish peasant cannot be trusted to pay what he has promised to pay. Mr. Parnell's statement would have had more weight with the English public had he omitted this threat of repudiation.

Not less interesting than Mr. Parnell's, if less important, was Lord Randolph Churchill's contribution to this debate. The House was thronged to hear him. Few know when the member for Paddington rises in the House of Commons whether he comes to bless or to curse the Government of which he was once, next after Lord Salisbury, the chief ornament. This time he did both. He criticized both the principle and the details of the bill; attacked its financial provisions, but promised to vote for it on the condition that it was the last of its kind. Mr. Goschen replied to Lord Randolph, pointing out with obvious satisfaction a curious financial error of his predecessor in the Chancellorship of the Exchequer.

The second reading was carried by a majority less than the first, and this was again reduced on the arrears issue, as presented by Mr. Parnell, to thirty-four.

Opportunities for testing more or less intelligently the opinion of the country about Home Rule multiply. The Holborn election will give some fresh indication of what London thinks. Colonel Duncan, who died last week, had 1500 majority two years ago, but the constituency since then has increased and otherwise changed. The Liberals have a good candidate in Lord Compton, and will contest the seat with some hopes of winning, or at least of reducing the old majority. Sundry other vacancies are probable.

Mr. Gourley's question about the Fisheries has been twice postponed at the request of the leader of the House. It now stands for Monday next, but may not be asked then.

THE LATEST FROM PARIS.

Lively Debate in the Chamber of Deputies on the Baudin Question.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—In the Chamber of Deputies Saturday M. Laisart (Boulangist) proposed that the remains of the revolutionist Baudin be transferred from the cemetery where they now lie to the Pantheon.

M. Barodet claimed priority for his motion to a similar effect.

Prime Minister Floquet expressed astonishment that a party allied to the Bonapartists could make such proposals in view of the fact that M. Baudin was a Republican. If the question were discussed M. Barodet's motion ought to have priority, especially as it included similar honors for the remains of Gens. Hoche and Marceau.

M. Laisart insisted that his proposal should be given priority. He declared himself a Republican, but he was dissatisfied with the present republic, which was governed by Orleanists.

M. Floquet retorted: "I never received the adhesion of the Comte de Paris." (Applause).

A vote on the question of priority resulted in favor of M. Barodet's motion, 370 to 21.

Horrible Murder in South Russia.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A murder has occurred at Gravoron, South Russia, which is one of a series resembling in many respects the Whitechapel butcheries except that in connection therewith there is a vein of superstition not revealed within the motives actuating the London fiend. The corpse of a young peasant girl was found in the woods, several parts of the body having been removed and apparently destroyed. A day or two after the discovery two peasants were arrested for burglary. The dead girl's handkerchief was found in their room. The culprits confessed to having murdered the girl and stated in extenuation of their crime that they had slain her in order to procure fat with which to make a candle, believing that the burning of a candle made from the fat of a human body would secure them immunity from detection. This is a common superstition among the inhabitants of southern Russia who believe that the possession of a finger, or a candle made from human fat, is a perfect safeguard from detection of crime.

Two Remarkable Times Issues.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Times presented its readers with two remarkable issues on Wednesday and Friday. Each day the editor found room for but a single editorial, a fact perhaps, without precedent in recent days. The Parliament report on Wednesday filled twenty-two columns, and the Parnell Commission twelve. On Friday eighteen columns were occupied by Parliament, thirteen by the Commission, and one by foreign telegrams. The paper consisted on both days of the usual sixteen pages, or ninety-six columns.

Fire at Waterford.

WATERFORD, Nov. 26.—The furniture warerooms here belonging to G. S. Fowler, managed by A. M. Barber, were burned with most of the contents about 6 p. m. Saturday. Loss about $8000, insured for $2100.

THE RACE ON THE POTOMAC.

William O'Connor Brings Back the Championship to Canada.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Never has a boat race aroused so much enthusiasm in America as Saturday's 3-mile sculling contest on the Potomac River between William O'Connor of Toronto and John Teemer of McKeesport, Pa., for $1000 a side and the championship of America. The long-talked-of battle between the two famous oarsmen has at last been settled and the Canadian boy is the hero of the hour. That he well earned the title of champion of America it is useless to say, for he led from start to finish, Teemer at no time being able to overtake him.

It was 4 o'clock when the referee called the men out, the water being in good condition. O'Connor was the first to make his appearance, wearing a white sleeveless shirt, with blue hoops and black cap. It was fifteen minutes later before Teemer stepped into his shell, dressed in a maroon shirt with a pink cap, and pulled towards the starter's boat.

Teemer, who won the toss, chose the Virginia shore. The men were then got into position and the referee gave the word "go." O'Connor was the first to strike the water and before Teemer could realize it the Canadian had a length to the good, rowing at 41 strokes to the minute. Teemer pulled 40. It then looked as if the race was over as the Canadian was rowing well within himself and increasing his lead.

When half way up the course, three-quarters of a mile from the start, O'Connor settled down to 34 while Teemer was rowing 38 strokes. The Toronto oarsman had three lengths to the good, but steered a little out of his course which gave Teemer a slight advantage, and on reaching the turning buoy Teemer was only 1½ lengths behind O'Connor. That the pace was fast may be judged by the time, O'Connor reaching the buoy in 8.35.

That seemed to break Teemer's heart, for when both men were straightened for home O'Connor quickly increased his advantage to five lengths and it was a procession to the finish. A wind now blew up and with the tide against them the speed was decreased. O'Connor, however, pulled a strong stroke while Teemer was laboring, and though the McKeesportman made several spurts O'Connor drew away, finishing 10 lengths in front in 21.29, Teemer's time being 21.38. The slow time is accounted for by the wind and strong tide.

At the finish O'Connor was loudly cheered, the Potomac four-oared crews carrying the British flag, which was waved to the Canadian. Had the race been rowed on Toronto Bay O'Connor could not have received a better reception, the feeling of the Washington people being with him. Joseph Rogers of Toronto, the backer of O'Connor, said that he now proposed to go to Australia, and wrest the world's championship from Searle. Rogers won a big pot of money.

There have been ugly rumors since the race was decided to the effect that Teamer sold out. In an interview Referee Elder said: "There have been some comments that the race was not an honest one, but I am satisfied that it was and cannot find any reason for changing my decision. I consider myself competent to judge of the character of the contest and I am confident that the race was won fairly and that O'Connor deserves his victory. I regard him as being a wonderful oarsman and I think now that he can not only beat anyone in this country but that he can beat anyone in the world."

The men who had bet money on Teemer declare that Teemer could have beaten O'Connor if he had tried. Jas. W. Sullivan, the Pittsburg man who had increased the stakes to $2500 and who had made other wagers to the extent of $2000 that Teemer would win, has sent a formal notice to each stakeholder not to pay over the money, as he proposes to contest the referee's decision. Mr. Sullivan also called on Referee Elder, and stated that he regarded the race as being unfair and requested that he withhold his decision in order that the matter might be investigated. Mr. Elder, however, replied that he was satisfied that the race was decided on the merits of the two men, but that he was willing to hear any evidence to the contrary which they might desire to produce.

Mr. Sullivan has already employed Campbell Carrington as his attorney and it is likely that some trouble will be caused before the matter is ended. It should be borne in mind that these complaints come from the losers. O'Connor and his friends deny that there was anything wrong about the race and this is the feeling among disinterested observers.

Cleveland's Future.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—When Mr. Cleveland retires from the presidency he will be a younger man than any of his predecessors was on leaving the White House. The President is only 51, has been but a few years married, and in the ordinary course of human events should have many years of activity and comfort before him. After leaving the White House the President will probably soon come face to face with the necessity of adding to his income by professional labor. According to the President's friends nothing is settled concerning the future except that he will not return to Buffalo. The prevailing opinion is that after a journey to Europe he will sell his Washington property and seek to place himself at the head of some financial institution in New York city. Though a trained and successful lawyer it is not thought probable he will care to resume the practice of his profession.

They Left a Note.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 26.—Last March a great sensation was created by the robbery of a cotton belt train at Kingsland in this state. Two men, John Jones and Nelson McQueston, who were captured and identified as the robbers, have been confined in jail at Kingsland since last April awaiting trial. A special says that they escaped last night and left a note saying they would return and stand trial.

A Fatal Feud.

OMAHA, Nov. 26.—A feud of two years' standing between the McCarthy and Williams factions, living about ten miles north of here, resulted in a general fight Friday night at a dance given at the house of Jake Le is, during which George Williams, John Bagley and George Zucher were shot, the first being fatally wounded. Dick McCarthy is supposed to have done the shooting, the weapon used being a shot gun.

A Rebel Outbreak in Venezuela.

PANAMA, Nov. 26.—A rumor which the Venezuelan Consul at Colon has reason to credit has reached here to the effect that a serious revolution has broken out in Venezuela. It is reported that General Crespo, supported by General Sergis Camargo, has landed in the east with an army of 5000 men.

The French to Colonize Tonquin.

A SUICIDE IN MONTREAL.

ARTHUR REED GOES ASTRAY BECAUSE A GIRL JILTED HIM.

He Is Found in His Room at the Richelieu Hotel With a Hole Bored Through His Head and a Revolver by His Side.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—Arthur E. N. Reed, a step-son of Dr. A. Roberts, of Kensington-square, London, Eng., and nephew by marriage of General Sir Fred Roberts, committed suicide here Saturday night. Deceased, whose brother died at sea two years ago, was engaged to be married to a Miss Sutherland who jilted him, since which he has gone to the bad. He came to Canada some time ago and was in the Northwest for a short time. He arrived here about 15 days ago and put up at the Windsor Hotel. He stayed there for two weeks, leaving a couple of days ago and going to the Richelieu Hotel.

About 6 o'clock Saturday night there was a report of a pistol, and upon the officials of the hotel proceeding to his room he was found lying on his bed with a pistol beside him. He had shot himself behind the right ear, and the ball came out over the left eye and fell on the floor. In his pocket was a letter from his mother urging him to live better than he was doing, $148 and some pawn tickets. His trunk and clothes are still at the Windsor, where he owes a week's board. He had presented a letter of introduction to a prominent man here, to whom he applied for a loan of $200, but was refused. The deceased was about 26 years of age. The coroner will hold an inquest to-day.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Serious Charge Against a Physician—Polly Bredin's Children.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—The sensation in police circles yesterday was the arrest of Dr. John Valentine on a charge of criminal malpractice. Ally Wilkinson, a barber, was also arrested on a charge of being concerned in the crime. The police late in the evening were searching for a third party, a business man on King-street west, but he had got posted in time to evade capture and place himself in safety on the other side of the line. The victim of the alleged malpractice is Miss Lizzie Charlton, who lives with her widowed mother at 85 Sackville-street. She was employed at Simpson's Knitting Factory and is 19 years of age. At present she lies between life and death, and in fact the attendant physician has no hope for her recovery. How the police learnt of the case is a mystery, as both the girl and her mother firmly refuse to say anything. When the authorities went to the house on Saturday night to take her dying statement Miss Charlton refused to say anything that would implicate anyone in the crime.

The three children of Polly Bredin have been sent home to 17 Windsor-street from Loretto Abbey, where they were being educated. They were recommended for admittance there by a well-known lady of the city.

H. E. Simpson, photographer of No. 241 King-street east, has been summoned to appear in the Police Court to-day at the instance of Mrs. C. S. Ferol, who charges Simpson with tapping her gas pipes for his own use. The parties are in the same building.

The explosion of a lamp in Geo. Lovell's grocery, at 209 Parliament-street, at 12.05 yesterday morning caused a fire which did $250 damage.

Henry Hunter and William Alexander, the two suspected confidence men, were released on bail on Saturday morning on depositing $250 in cash as a bond for their reappearance. The Boston police want to be notified if the men cross the line into the States.

Last Thursday night a gang of youths raised a disturbance at Kelliher's Hotel, at Esther and Queen-streets. In the fight which ensued a 17-year-old boy named Herbert Verral, received a severe kick in the face, breaking the bridge of his nose. On going home he took to his bed and Dr. Gickie was summoned. Yesterday erysipelas set in and his condition became so serious that it was deemed necessary to inform the police. Last night Detective Johnson arrested William Seagriff, proprietor of the Occident Hall billiard room; Stephen Sneath, 53 Augusta-avenue, and Louis Edmunds, a colored youth residing on Centre-street, on suspicion of having been concerned in the assault on young Verral.

A RAILROAD IN TROUBLE.

The South Norfolk Company Sued for $50,000—A Bad Pitch-in.

HAMILTON, Nov. 26.—On Thursday the new railway between Simcoe and Port Rowan was opened with much jubilation. The road was built by the South Norfolk Railway Company, and is seventeen miles long. But the popping of the inauguration corks had hardly ceased when, on Friday, Sheriff Deeds served on the company a writ for $50,000. Some years ago the Port Rowan and Lake Shore Railway Company, of which Col. Collier was president, secured a charter to build a road along the shore of Lake Erie, between Port Dover and Port Rowan, and continuing along the lake shore from each place. Work was commenced, and eight miles of road, reaching from Port Rowan to Forestville, was graded. Owing to the fact that the promised money was held back the company fell into financial difficulty and work was suspended. Subsequently the South Norfolk Railway Company secured a charter to build a road from Seneca to Port Rowan. This company appropriated the eight miles of grading which had been done by Col. Collier's company, and the $50,000 suit is brought to compel the new company to pay for the work done by the old company.

A pitch-in occurred on the Grand Trunk about midnight on Friday at a point east of the city and though no person was hurt the company will sustain considerable loss through damage to the railway stock and delay of traffic.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—All along the line sounds the premonitary bustle, incidental to the issue of Christmas periodicals. It is pretty well understood that the conductors of Harper's Magazine always intend to issue a Christmas Number which shall be not complete in itself, but arranged on lines somewhat different from those followed during the rest of the year; and the articles in the Christmas Number for 1888 were selected, evidently, with this end in view. The result is an issue strong and novel. The originality of its pages is, perhaps, most striking in the short stories (the serial stories all ended in the November Number) —as in "The Christmas Story of a Little Church," by Grace King, "Sosrus Dismal," by W. W. Archer, and "The Front Yard," by Miss Woolson—this last being a daring comparison of Italian and New England natures and ways. In poetry, too, the number is exceptionally good. Artistically, it has never been surpassed. Harper Bros. Publishers, New York, and for sale by all booksellers.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Work of the General Assembly Drawing to a Close.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—The work of the General Assembly, K. of L., is slowly drawing to a close. Saturday General Worthy Foremen Morris L. Wheat of Iowa, who is ex-officio chairman of the general co-operative board, presented his nominations for members of that board as follows: H. A. Beckmeyer of Newark, N. J., John O'Keefe of Rhode Island, Rudolph Kirchman of St. Louis and Oliver D. Benoit of Montreal. The vote resulted: Breckmeyer 95, O'Keefe 70, Kirchman 24, Benoit 64.

At the afternoon session the law committee took the floor and reported on a couple of propositions. The first looked to the establishment of jury trials in the order, but no action was taken on it. The other opened up the temperance question, and a long discussion ensued. A proposition had been handed in to the committee to abolish the section in the constitution which provides that no intoxicants shall be sold at picnics or other entertainments of the Knights of Labor. It was reported with the remark that the committee deemed it inexpedient. According to the present constitution saloon keepers are now ineligible to membership in the order, and to get around this an amendment was presented to give leave for outsiders to sell liquors at such entertainments, but that members of the order, as knights, shall have no such privilege. The matter was warmly discussed on both sides, but an adjournment was taken before positive action, and it will be again taken up to-day.

General Master Workman Powderly has received a number of telegrams of congratulation on his re-election. Two cities have been heard from with invitations for the next meeting—Toronto, Ont., and Atlanta, Ga. In both cases a formal invitation signed by the mayor and city clerk has been received. The place of meeting will be decided on to-day.

T. B. Barry on Saturday gave to the press the last chapter in his serial story, in which he paid his compliments to the new administration of the order.

Lord Tennyson has been removed to the Isle of Wight and Sir Andrew Clark thinks he will now recover though slowly.

On the London Stock Exchange last week depression prevailed in every department until the last of the week when the tone improved.

Mrs. Amanda Truitt, of Ozark, Mo., on Saturday killed two of her young children with a hatchet and then cut her throat with a butcher knife.

The Consolidated rapid Transit and Elevated Railroad Company has sued The Chicago Times for $250,000 for saying that the company is a corruptionist and has bought the city council.

M. Goblet, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, has ordered the naval department to send another warship to the East African coast to co-operate in the surveillance of vessels engaged in the slave trade.

W. F. Hertenstein, Vice-President of the Swiss Confederation, was subjected to a surgical operation on Saturday, involving the amputation of his right leg. Diseased arteries were the causes which led to the operation.

Wheat is going down with a run, In Chicago on Saturday it dropped from $1.07 for November to $1.05; from $1.07½ for December to $1.05; from $1.07 for January to $1.04½; from $1.10½ for May to $1.08½. In Toronto the fall was even greater and the indications are that the decline will not stop until it is away below a dollar.

Two Chicago men bought a ticket each in a lottery, with the understanding that they were to share any prize drawn by either. One of the tickets drew $15,000, and on Saturday Judge Tuley issued an injunction to prevent the Adams Express Company from paying more than $7500 of the money in their hands to one of the men.

The Kaiser's Reichstag speech continues to fill the public mind in Berlin and an exaggerated optimism regarding abiding peace replaces the pessimistic forebodings current prior to its delivery. In the meantime instead of preparing for a peace millennium the governments are seeking to develop the sinews of war.

The latest advices from Apia, Samoa, dated Nov. 6, say that matters are daily growing worse, the consulates are guarded by platoons of marines, there have been unprovoked assaults upon English and American residents, permitted if not encouraged by the German authorities, and that a decisive battle between Tamasese's and Mataafa's men was then imminent.

A Bowery Lodging House.

I had the curiosity the other night to go into a cheap lodging house on the Bowery, where, nested together, were 157 men, and of these 104 were American born. They had drifted there from all sections of the land, and of these 104 the bookkeeper told me he doubted if there were ten who had one cent beyond the ten cents or the fifteen cents, according to the room they occupied, that they paid for their night's accommodation.—Joe Howard in Chicago News.

An Ancient City Unearthed.

An Austrian Pompeii has just been unearthed near Zara. Zara is the capital of the Austrian province of Dalmatia. Thousands of coins of the Diocletian period and of other early times, rare specimens of Grecian and Roman sculpture and Byzantine architecture were discovered along the Dalmatian shores. Amphitheatres, temples, catacombs and other evidences of a busy and highly civilized community were unearthed.—Chicago Herald.

Messrs. McCausland & Son, Toronto, the well-known makers of Fancy Glass for buildings, have an exquisitely arranged room for the display of paper hangings. Harper's Bazar.
ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S BAZAR will continue to maintain its reputation as an unequalled family journal. Its art illustrations are of the highest order, its literature is of the choicest kind, and its Fashion and Household departments of the most practical and economical character. Its pattern-sheet supplements and fashion-plates alone will save its readers ten times the cost of subscription, and its articles on decorative art, social etiquette, house-keeping, cookery, etc., make it indispensable to every household. Its bright short stories, and timely essays, are among the best published; and not a line is admitted into its columns that could offend the most fastidious taste. Among the attractions of the new volume will be serial stories by Mrs. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT, Mrs. ALEXANDER, WILLIAM BLACK, and THOMAS HARDY, and a series of papers on nursery management by Mrs. CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK.

Scribner's Magazine
For 1889.

The publishers of SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE aim to make it the most popular and enterprising of periodicals, while at all times preserving its high literary character. 25,000 new readers have been drawn to it during the past six months by the increased excellence of its contents (notably the Railway articles), and it closes its second year with a new impetus and an assured success. The illustrations will show some new effects, and nothing to make SCRIBNER'S MAGARINE attractive and interesting will be neglected.

THE RAILROAD ARTICLES will be continued by several very striking papers; one especially interesting by Ex-Postmaster-General Thomas L. James on "The Railway Postal Service." Illustrated.

MR. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON'S serial novel "The Master of Ballantrae," will run through the greater part of the year. Begun in November.

A CORRESPONDENCE and collection of manuscript memoirs relating to J. F. Millet and a famous group of modern FRENCH PAINTERS will furnish the substance of several articles. Illustrated.

The brief end papers written last year by Robert Louis Stevenson, will be replaced by equally interesting contributions by different famous authors. Mr. Thomas Bailey Aldrich will write the first of them for the January number.

Many valuable LITERARY ARTICLES will apear; a paper on Walter Scott's Methods of Work, illustrated from original MSS., a second "Shelf of Old Books," by Mrs. James T. Fields, and many other articles equally noteworthy. Illustrated.

Articles on ART SUBJECTS will be a feature. Papers are arranged to appear by Clarence Cook, E. H. Blashfield, Austin Dobson, and many others. Illustrated.

FISHING ARTICLES desbribing sport in the best fishing grounds will appear. Salmon, Winnifish, Bass, and Tarpon are the subjects now arranged. The authors are well-known sportsmen. Illustrated.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of great variety, touching upon all manner of subjects, travel, biography, description, etc., will appear, but not of the conventional commonplace sort. Illustrated.

Among the most interesting in the list of scientific papers for the year will be a remarkable article by Professor John Trowbridge, upon the most recent developments and uses of PHOTOGRAPHY. Illustrated.

A class of articles which has proved of special interest will be continued by a group of papers upon ELECTRICITY in its most recent applications, by eminent authorities; a remarkable paper on DEEP MINING, and other interesting papers. Unique Illustrations.

CROCKERYWARE

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS, &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

W. J. MASON,

Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

The Inside Track.

Johnston Carey seems to have the inside track on rubber goods this season. d119

Probabilities.

Moderate to fresh winds; fair weather; a little higher temperature.

Remnants,

Having on hand a number of short ends of mantle Cloths, suitable for Ladies' Jackets and Children's Mantles, it will be to your interest to see them before buying elsewhere. Also a very nice stock of Millinery to choose from. W. W. Johnston

The Last the Best.

Prof. Reynolds had a good audience to see his last entertainment on Saturday, and he managed to catch enough good subjects to make a continuous laugh for the audience for about two hours. The professor went to Lindsay to-day and will return here on the 17th of December for a season of four days.

Will Probably Straighten Up.

Michael Driscoll, of Bobcaygeon, has been in town blowing himself for some time and was run in yesterday for being drunk. He is a fine musician and can easily find employment if he kept straight, but liquor has got the upper hand of him for some time past and he has been on a prolonged spree. At the police court this morning he was shaking as though he would fall apart, his nerves being all unstrung by his continued debauch. He was fined $2 and costs or ten days in gaol. He was committed.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 65 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

PERSONAL.—The lady who lost a letter on Saturday while purchasing Tea at M. R. Kidd's can have the same by applying.

Committed for Trial.

Thomas Shouldice, the man from Harvey township who is charged with breaking in to Mr. W. H. Clurton's lodge at Pigeon Lake, was brought up before County Magistrate Edmison again this morning. Mr. John Burnham appeared for the prisoner and Mr. R. E. Wood, C.C.A., was present in the interest of the Crown. No more evidence was taken, and the prisoner was committed for trial on the evidence which was submitted on Monday last and which appeared in the REVIEW. Shouldice will come up before the County Judge to-morrow and may elect to be tried with or without a jury.

Sunday Drunkenness.

A youthful drunk was collared by Officer McGinty on Sunday night and in the tussle that the youth made to get away his countenance was slightly disfigured. A companion of his who was with him interfered with the policeman, and he ran them both in for the night. At the police court this morning the drunk was fined $5 or fifteen days for being intoxicated on Sunday and his companion was fined $2 and costs—$3.50—or ten days in gaol. This Sunday drunkenness is going to be dealt with severely by Magistrate Dumble, who remarked this morning that if hotelkeepers ever expected to gain the support of the general public in the sale of liquor they must close their places on Sunday.

"The Church and the Bible."

Next Sunday evening the Rev. Alex. Bell, of St. Andrew's Church, will deliver a sermon on "The Church and the Bible," according to an announcement he made last evening from his pulpit.

GENTLEMEN! A word with you. There is no reason why your wives should not enjoy a good cup of tea. 5lbs. for $1 at M. R. Kidd's.

The Siding.

The steam pile-driver to be used in constructing the trestle work on the C. P. R. siding is expected here in a few days. Six carloads of rock elm piles have already arrived to be used in this work and it will require about seventy more.

Wanted.

Two good men for town work, one for Fire and one for Accident Insurance. Permanent situation for steady and reliable man. Apply by letter, giving age, salary expected, etc., to Wilson & Morrison, General Insurance Agents. 3122

Y. P. A.

The Y.P.A. of the George-st. Methodist Church will hold a meeting this evening. A large attendance is sought as business of unusual importance is to be transacted. If time permits a splendid programme will be rendered.

Personal.

Mr. J. W. Bennet, barrister, has been appointed a notary public for Ontario.

Mr. Robert Whitla leaves this evening for Banff, N. W. T., where he purposes remaining.

Apples! Apples! Apples!

Messrs. Elliott & Tierney have purchased the entire choice crop of apples, the product of Mr. G. W. Hatton's "Walkerfield orchard" consisting of Snow, Spitzenburgh, H. Pippins, Northern Spy, Beauties of the West, etc. All hand picked and in prime order. Call and taste. Prices reasonable. d89

TRAMP, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching with dry feet, that is those of them who wears King's make of boots. Bought from KIDD, the booter. d118tf

Local Legal.

The following case came up in the Court of Appeal in Toronto on Saturday:—Reg. v. Fife.—W. M. Douglas, for the defendant, moved by way of appeal from an order of Armour, C. J., for an order for a certiorari to remove a warrant of commitment of the defendant for trial for burning a fence under the Malicious Injuries to Property Act. No one contra. Appeal allowed without costs and order for certiorari made.

340 Opera House Block.

Owing to the steady increase in the demand for Fresh Ground Coffee, W. J. Morrow has found it necessary to place in his shop a large coffee mill, manufactured by the Star Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia, and as he uses nothing but the very finest Bean Coffee and grinds daily, or as required, parties can rely on getting the finest coffees to be had in town. d112

Nothing Known Yet.

There has been no new traces found of the man who is suspected of being the ravisher of the six-year-old child. A watch is being kept for him, but it is believed that the wretch is now well away from the scene of his horrible crime. Rumors of all kinds in connection with the case have been afloat, the death of the little child, etc., but it is not believed that any of them contain any truth.

A Good Scheme.

A silver water tankard, with silver drinking cup, is on exhibition in the window of Elliott & Tierney's grocery store. The pitcher is a handsome piece of workmanship and is valued at $25. It is given as a prize to the person who buys the greatest number out of a hundred cans of the Golden Seal Baking Powder. This is a new baking powder and this is the way the manufacturers have taken of introducing it to the public.

Y.M.C.A.

It is understood that Mr. W. J. Herbison, General Secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., has asked to be relieved. Mr. Herbison proposes to devote some time to attend a training school at one of the prominent American cities. Nothing definite has been arranged to provide a successor to Mr. Herbison. During the short time he has been in office he has earned good opinions by his earnestness and ability and had he decided to remain would have very materially advanced the interest of the association.

The Chance of a Decade.

There is every appearance that winter will very soon tighten its grasp upon us. The snow that fell last night was only a starter and before many days hence the beautiful will have fallen deep. Low shoes and delapidated boots will be unwearable, but there is a salvation for these at the great bankrupt sale which is in full blast at Goughs', the Wonderful Cheap Men. The cold will also necessitate the purchasing of heavy flannels and here again Goughs step in and give all an opportunity of procuring protection from the winter's blasts at astonishingly low prices. The people are crowding to the sale, from town and county, and so they should. It is a chance of a decade and all should remember the words, "Never let your chances like the sunbeams fade away." Go to the sale, where you can have the largest stock of dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, etc., to select from, in time.

Last Saturday's Y. "At Home."

The rooms of the "Y" were looking their most inviting at 8 o'clock, and quite a number of friends gathered to enjoy a social hour. At 9 o'clock (refreshment hour) the hall was comfortable filled. Miss Sophia Cameron's humorous recitation and charming song added much to the evening's enjoyment, while the instrumental duet, piano and bones, rendered by Miss Lumsden and Master Brooks was so enthusiastically received that they had to favor the audience with a second selection. Nearly every person took part in the games which were numerous and entertaining, while the cake and coffee maintained their established reputation. At 10 o'clock, the Y. M. C. A. Orchestra led the audience in singing "Auld Lang Syne," and the friends dispersed, doubtless feeling that the hour was well spent, and purposing to come again. An attractive programme is promised for next Saturday evening.

A Railway Suit.

The following case came up before Mr. Justice Falconbridge in Toronto on Saturday, and is reported in the Empire:—Fitzgerald v. Midland Railway Co. and the G.T.R.—Motion on behalf of the defendants, the Midland Railway Co., by way of appeal from the order of the Master-in-Chambers refusing an application to set aside an interlocutory judgment entered by plaintiff on default of appearance. Service of the writ was effected on Mr. Geo. A. Cox, Vice-President of the company, and three or four days thereafter he transmitted it to the solicitors of the company, who inferred, from the letter accompanying it, that it had been the same day as received by them served upon Mr. G. The action is brought to recover $1,000 damages in respect of an embankment constructed and kept raised by the defendants as a road-bed for their lines of railway over and across Smith and Benson-sts., public highways in the town of Peterborough, and immediately off plaintiff's premises; for an injunction restraining the defendants from continuing to maintain the said road-bed and embankment, and for a mandamus to compel arbitration, etc. Douglas Armour supported the motion. Masten showed cause. Stands until Monday (a motion on behalf of the defendants, the G.T.R., being returnable on that day before the Master-in-Chancery to postpone the trial), that the court may be advised of what action the co defendants will take in the matter.

AN ELOQUENT SERMON.

PREACHED TO THE ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY BY REV. E. F. TORRANCE.

Patriotism—Scotland as a Country—History of the Scottish People—They Should be Imitated in Their Habits of Industry and Perseverance, in Their Home Life and in Their love of the Word of God—Verbatim Report of the Discourse.

It was a good congregation that assembled in St. Paul's last evening to hear the Rev. E. F. Torrance deliver the annual sermon to the St. Andrew's Society. The sermon was an eloquent one, and feelings of patriotism and pride for Auld Scotia must have been stirred up within the breast of every Scotchman who listened to the praises of his country and its illustrious men and the history of their forefathers as portrayed by the rev. gentleman. That such was the case, was unmistakeably demonstrated by the hearty manner in which the congregation joined in singing the hymn "I heard the voice of Jesus say" to the Scotchmans favorite air "Auld Lang Syne." Rev. Mr. Torrence took for his text the words:

"Pray for the peace of Jerusalem; they shall prosper that love thee." Psalm 122, 6.

The rev. gentleman said: Patriotism has always been regarded as a virtue of the highest kind. The old classic writers often speak in its praise; and they delight to tell us of those noble men who loved their country better than their lives. While the virtue of patriotism has existed to a certain extent among all nations, their has perhaps never been a nation among whom it has been so widespread as among the Jews. Amid all the vicissitudes of their history, they still retained the love of their native land undiminished. To the Jew Jerusalem was far more than the city of the seven hills was to the Roman or the city of the Violet Crown to the Athenian. For there were considerations which led the Jew to love Jerusalem of a far higher kind than those which led the Roman to love Rome or the Greek to love Athens. In the mind of the Jew Jerusalem was associated with what was most sacred. "Jerusalem is builded as a city that is compact together: Whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, unto the testimony of Israel to give thanks unto the name of the Lord." Jerusalem was the place where the temple stood, and in the temple was the Schechinah where Jehovah manifested his presence. The Jews delighted to think of the past history of Jerusalem as well as of the bright prospect which awaited it in the future. And so even when they were in exile they looked with strong delight towards their native land. And one of their singers expressed the feelings of many when he sang, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth: if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." One of the objects of seems to me to be to appeal to this sentiment of patriotism which exists in the heart of Scotchmen, so as to lead them to cherish feelings of gratitude for the blessings which they have derived from their connection with their native land. To act upon those principles which made their fathers prosperous and great.

First let us consider some of the blessings which Scotchmen derive from their connection with their native land. First of all let us speak of the land itself. It is small in comparison with many other lands, it cannot boast of so bright a sky as Italy or of so salubrious a climate as Southern France, but it has great natural attractions notwithstanding. Travellers from all parts visit its lakes and mountains and are enchanted by the varied beauty and grandeur of the scenery. As the Englishman looks with pride upon those parts of his country which have been immortalized by the verses of the lake poets, so Scotchmen look with pride upon those parts of the Highlands which have been so beautifully described by the author of the Lady of the Lake. If there is anything in the outside world which tends to lift the soul up to God—anything calculated to touch the deepest springs in the human heart—it is the sight of beautiful scenery. The poet says:—

In the meanest flower that blooms
Thoughts that do lie too deep for tears.

What thoughts then may we expect to have awakened by the sight of a lake nestling peacefully amid the surrounding hills or by the sight of a chain of mountains piercing the heavens with their snow capped cliffs. The scenery in the may be compared favorably with scenery in any part of the world. Soft and beautiful as is the scenery of the English lakes, grand and majestic as is that of the Swiss lakes, there are none which have a greater combination of charms than Loch Lomond and Lock Katrine. We may say regarding the land itself. "If I forget the, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning." It has often been observed that the character of a people is influenced to a very considerable extent by the land which they occupy. It is often climate and natural scenery which makes all the difference between a race soft and effeminate and one hardy and manly. No doubt then the Scottish people owe much to the climate and natural scenery of their native land.

Secondly, let us speak of the history of the Scottish people. The history of the Scottish people is one of which any people might well be proud. It is the history of a people who loved liberty and who would make any sacrifices rather than be enslaved. We are all familiar with those periods in Scottish history, when efforts were made to bring Scotland into submission to the English Crown. Though the land was invaded again and again by large armies, though one of the mightiest of English monarchs with the flower of the English nobility, tried their utmost to conquer Scotland, their efforts utterly failed. The names of Wm. Wallace and Robt. Bruce are enshrined in the hearts of Scotchmen, because they fought successfully to deliver their land from a foreign yoke. Not by force of arms, but by right of succession was Scotland joined to the British Crown. The Scottish people have not only been a brave people, but they have been an intelligent people. They have a literature of which any people

MIGHT WELL BE PROUD.

As a people they have always manifested a love for literature, and they have periodical writers of the highest class. The great Scottish poets are read with delight in all parts of the civilized world. The works of the Scottish philosophers are standard works in every university. The Scottish people have not only been a brave and intelligent, but also a religious people. The religious movements which have taken place from time to time in Scotland are among the most interesting and important parts of her history. We can scarcely refer to these religious movements without saying a few words about John Knox, one of the greatest of Reformers, one of the greatest of Scotchmen. Born in the year 1505, at Haddington, the county town of East Lothian, he obtained the rudiments of his education at the grammar school of his native town. When sixteen years of age he went to the University of Glasgow and devoted himself to the study of philosophy and of the early Christian fathers. There is some uncertainty as to his life during the ten years which followed the completion of his studies, but it is probable that he took orders in the Church of Rome as a secular priest and that he was connected with one of the religious establishments in the neighbourhood of Haddington. It was the martyrdom of Wishart which finally led him to profess his adherence to the Protestant faith. As he had now become an object of suspicion, he thought of leaving Scotland and visiting the schools in Germany, but he was persuaded to relinquish his design and to enter the

as a place of safety from the Romish clergy. While there, the castle was besieged and captured by the French. Knox and others were taken as prisoners to Rome. For some months he worked there as a common galley slave, but was finally released and made his way to London. He spent several years in England, preaching in Berwick, Newcastle and London and then on the death of Edward VI. he sailed for Dieppe. Shortly afterwards he became pastor of the English congregation of Frankport, on the Main, but on dissensions arising in the congregation, in regard to certain changes in the form of worship, he relinquished his charge and retired to Geneva.

At the request of some of the nobility, Knox returned to Scotland and began to set forth, both in public and private, the idolatry of the mass. The Romish clergy became alarmed and summoned him to Edinburgh, but so great was his hold upon the people that they were afraid to do anything to him. He left Scotland again for a short time at the call of a congregation in Geneva, but soon returned to spend the remainder of his life in his native land. On the arrival of Queen Mary in Scotland, in 1561, she sent for Knox with the view of overcoming his active opposition to the church of Rome. After several interviews, the Queen saw that the Reformer was proof against all her persuasions. She then attempted to convict him of treason on the ground of a letter which he had written in reference to the trial of two persons for a riot in the Chapel royal. In this too she failed, for Knox was acquitted of all blame in the matter. The strain to which the Reformer had been long subjected now began to tell upon his health, and in 1570 he had a stroke of Apoplexy, from the effect of which he never fully recovered. He died on the 24th of Nov. 1572, and was buried two days afterwards in the church yard of St. Giles.

KNOX HAS BEEN BLAMED,

but without just cause for his harshness and intolerance, he has been blamed for his treatment of Mary. In reality, however, he could not have treated Mary otherwise than he did, without being unfaithful to the cause of Scotland. Better that women weep," said Morton "than that bearded men be forced to weep." "Knox was the constitutional opposition party in Scotland, the nobles of their country called by their station to take that post were not found in it. Knox had to do it or no one." "Knox resembles more than any of the Moderns an old Hebrew prophet. The same inflexibility, intolerance, rigid, narrow-looking adherance to God's truth, stern rebuke in the name of God to all who forsake that truth, an old Hebrew prophet in the guise of an Edinburg minister of the sixteenth century."

One of the most remarkable religious movements in Scotland after the reformation is that which commonly known as the Disruption. The first half of this century was the golden age of piety and eloquence in the Scottish pulpit. During those years God raised up a number of able ministers, who were instrumental in accomplishing much good. Among these the name of Chalmers Cunningham, Candlish and Guthrie, stand out with special prominence. They took a leading part in that movement, which led to 400 ministers giving up their livings rather than have any interference with their spiritual rights. It is said that, when Jeffry saw those ministers leave St. Andrews Church in a body, he remarked, "I am proud of my country men."

Let us consider some of the respects in which we should seek to

IMITATE OUR SCOTTISH FOREFATHERS.

We should seek to imitate them in their habits of industry and perseverance. Industry and perseverance are two of the most prominent characteristics of Scotchmen—characteristics which have helped largely to making the Scottish people what they are. It is due to these qualities that so many Scotchmen, who leave their native land without either fame or fortune, rise to occupy positions of the highest kind. Industry and perseverance are not the most brilliant qualities which men can possess. They are not the qualities which especially excite the admiration of the world and in which men themselves take special pride; but they are among the most valuable qualities which men can possess. They will accomplish more for their possessors in the great majority of cases than qualities of a more brilliant kind. Many blessings are pronounced upon industry and perseverance in the word of God. Solomon says, "He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand; but the hand of the diligent maketh rich." "The hand of the diligent shall bear rule; but the hand of the slothful shall be under tribute." We should also seek to imitate them in their home life. One of the most blessed of all earthly things is

A CHRISTIAN HOME.

Wherein does this blessedness consist? Not in any outward appendages of home. Not in stately mansions or in gorgeous furniture, or in liveried servants. But in the union of heart with heart, in the blessed interchange of loving words in the tender ministry of loving deeds. Some of you remember the description which the poet Burns gives of such a home.

The cheerful supper done wi' serious face,
They round the ingle form a circle wide,
The sire turns o'er with patriarchal grace
The big ha' Bible once his father's pride:
His bonnet rev'rently is laid aside,
His lyart haffets wearing thin an' bare,
Those strains that once did sweet in Zion glide,
He wales a portion with judicious care;
And "Let us worship God" he says with solemn air.

They chant their artless notes in simple guise,
They tune their hearts, by far the noblest aim:
Perhaps Dundee's wild warbling measures rise,
Or plain ye Martyrs, worthy of the name.
Or noble Elgin beats the heav'nward flame,
The sweetest far of Scotia's holy lays,
Compared with Italian trills are tame,
The tickled ear no heartfelt raptures raise,
Nae unison hae they with our Creator's praise.

From scenes like these old Scotias' grandeur springs,
That makes her lov'd at home, rever'd abroad:
Princes and lords are but the breath of kings,
"An honest man's the noblest work of God,'
And certes in fair virtue's heavenly road,
The cottage leaves the palace far behind,
What is a lordling's pomp, a cumbrous load,
Disguising oft the wretch of human kind,
Studied in arts of hell in wickedness refined.

It is from such homes as these that many of Scotland's greatest sons have come. It is such homes as these that have helped to make Scotland what she is. Home life and national life are intimately connected with each other, so that if we know what the home life is we can say what the national life is likely to be. We should seek to imitate them in their love for the Word of God. The question was once asked, "What is the secret of England's greatness." The question was answered by pointing to a Bible. There is no part of the British Isles where the Bible has been so well known and so highly prized as Scotland. The children of Scottish parents have always been instructed in the truths of God's Word in the home and in the school. They have been brought up to reverence the Bible and to carry out its precept in their daily lives. "Reach me the Book" were the dying words of the great Sir Walter Scott, and when asked "what book," he said there is but one, the Bible.

It is often said that the word of God does not hold the same place now in the affections of the Scottish people which it did some years ago. The ministers of her churches are charged with departing from the doctrines of the Reformation and with denying that the Bible is inspired. If this is the case the consequences must be disastrous to the spiritual life of the people. Let us make the Word of God the man of our counsel; let it dwell in us richly and let us follow its guidance.

Information Wanted re Davis.

A letter has been received by Chief Rozel from Marion D. Egbert, attorney-at-law, of Walla Walla, W.T., asking the chief to find if possible a man by the name of Davis, a carpenter, whose brother Thomas W. Davis, an Englishman employed as a grader on Hunter's road, W.T., was murdered at or near Walla Walla on the evening of Nov. 16. The murdered man was found lying beside the track with his throat cut from ear to ear, and no light being thrown upon the perpetrator of the crime the body was given a decent burial. The deceased left some $244 and it is in respect to this that the brother who resides some where around here is wished to be communicated with. Any information relative to the finding of the man Davis should be given to the Chief.

A POPULAR OFFICER,

Farewell Meeting to Staff-Capt. Bolton of the S. A.

There was a big stir in Salvation Army circles on Saturday and Sunday and to-day will be another day of Jubilee, as General Booth's Household Troops Band will arrive here and be at the barracks this evening. The Saturday and Sunday meetings were farewells to Adjutant Bolton, who is leaving here for his old division at Chatham. Adjutant Bolton is now a gentleman of the past, as he has been appointed a Staff-Captain and will now be known as such. He conducted all the meetings and he is so full of vigor and love for the work that the meetings could not but help be enthusiastic under his leadership.

On Saturday evening between 5.30 and 7.30 a grand banquet was tendered him in the basement of the barracks. The spread was a most sumptuous one, and a most happy time was spent by those who partook.

In the evening a "Hallelujah Dinner" was announced to take place at the barracks at 8 o'clock. Staff-Capt. Bolton led the meeting which was full of enthusiasm and a regular free and easy was held. The following officers were present and took part in the meeting:—Capt. Woodgate, of Guelph; Capt. Macklin, of Port Hope; Capt. Grant, of Lakefield; Capt. Webber, of Norwood; Capt. McKee, of Bonca ygeon; Capt. Desson, late of the Northwest now of Cobourg. Short experiences were given by the soldiers and the singing was spirited and good.

Yesterday there was knee drill at seven o'clock in the morning, holiness meeting at 11 o'clock and a grand free and easy in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. Staff-Capt. Bolton also led this meeting. The barracks was filled with an immense audience, and the services were enthusiastic.

In the evening, after a grand march out, another meeting was held in the barracks. Another grand time was experienced and the barracks crowded to the doors to hear the Staff-Captains' farewell address. He made a most fluent and earnest address in which he spoke of the great progress of the army work in general and of this division. He was going back to his old division, but he left many friends behind him in Peterborough. While here he had opened eight or ten new stations and paid off considerable debt and he felt he was leaving this division in a prosperous and flourishing state, as they had now twenty corps and four outposts and between twenty and thirty officers. He appealed in very earnest language to the great necessity for salvation and spoke feelingly to the soldiers.

In leaving this division Staff-Captain Bolton carried with him the fondest wishes of every soldier and officer who has been under him, for he is a great favorite with everybody. He is a most earnest worker and has his heart full of love for the Army.

To-night the barracks will undoubtedly be crowded to hear the English musicians.

AN ARCTIC RAILWAY.

THE LAPP'S QUERY AS HIS REINDEER HOME IS INVADED.

A Great Feat of Locomotion Due to English and Scotch Enterprise—A Mountain of Ore—Picturesque Scenery—Some Curious Remarks.

A railway within the Arctic circle is now an accomplished fact, and to Englishmen and to Scotchmen is due this great feat of locomotion which will connect the Gulf of Bothnia with a very high latitude on the Norwegian coast, but with open water all the year round on the North sea. Gellwara just now is the center of great activity, for the Swedish and Norwegian railway has brought the inexhaustible ores of its mountains to the shores of the Gulf of Bothnia, and a small fleet of English steamers daily await the morning and evening trains at Lulea, which bring from 400 to 500 tons of ore, drawn by a powerful engine of North British manufacture, whilst 10,000 or 12,000 tons of northern coal stands piled upon the railway quays. The Swedes in Norbotten are not altogether friendly to this great undertaking, but the Swedish government wisely recognize the great results which English contractors and British capital have secured for what was practically an inaccessible district, and where, for over eighty years the wealth of the mineral district has been recognized, but there has been no mode of conveyance which could bring it to the highways of commerce.

The mountain itself is of some 300,000 acres in area, and wherever you turn on its face, and even on its summit, traces of the ore are to be found, sometimes at the highest levels protruding; or at the lower workings at a very few feet from the surface. The railway company are themselves working the mines or lodes, which are situated on different parts of the mountains, and from which small tramway lines descend to the line which for five miles steadily ascends the mountains from Gellwara, where even a grand hotel is being erected, and a new church is already complete, in which all nationalities, including the Lapps, meet for service. Although the railway is not yet open for passenger traffic, permission was accorded me to journey to the mines by the courteous resident director at Lulea, Mr. Henry Millets, and although Pullman cars have not yet been transported to these northern latitudes, a very laudable attempt had been made to transpose a break van into a sleeping car, where I passed two nights on my journey up and down.

Starting from the town and port of Lulea, which, like so many other Swedish towns, has been half laid low by fire, the train skirts for miles the side of the Gulf of Bothnia and passes the remarkable old church of Gamle Stadin, an edifice boasting eight centuries of antiquity, and with a carved and gilded tryptich of such remarkable beauty and delicacy that $2,000 has been offered and refused by the parish for the unique specimen of Flemish carving. I was present at the monthly communion of the parish, and was much struck with the solemn demeanor of the peasants, as man and wife walked to the altar together and received the communion in both kinds in their mouth, but without being allowed to touch the elements or handle the chalice. The officiating priest took the eastward position, and during the communion of the people the "Agnus Dei" was sung by a choir in the gallery. At Gellwara there is an old but not very interesting church, now abandoned, as it is full of human remains, and a new and modern building stands about 150 yards from the railway station.

The road to this wonderful center of enterprise and activity traverses a district which wonderfully reminds the traveler of the country between Port Arthur and Winnipeg, on the Canadian Pacific railway, but the view from Gellwara itself is much more interesting and mountainous than can be seen on the Canadian side of the Rocky mountains. The mountain itself from which the railway draws its ore is 2,000 feet above the sea level, and the view from its summit discloses a series of hills and mountains stretching to the Norwegian frontier, towards which the track is being steadily laid. A member of the house of Cecil is one of the railway directors, and Messrs. Wilkinson & Jarvis, of Victor ia street, Westminster, are the energetic contractors to whose pluck and determination, amid many discouragements of local disputants, this great work of crossing the Artic Circle by railway has been accomplished. When the line has been completed to Ofoten it will be the recognized tourist route by which tourists, who have ascended the North Cape, can cross the Norwegian mountain ranges and return southward to Stockholm by rail or water from Lulea, where the Swedish and Norwegian railway now terminates, but from which there will be a connection with the Sundsvall route to Stockholm at Boden.

The mind of local editors and local pressmen is proverbially small, and it is amusing to read in the Norbotten journal of the "patriotic" attempts to save Sweden from the grasp of foreign intruders, but it is only through English capital and British enterprise that the great forests of the north of Sweden have been utilized for the European market, and that this remarkable railway communication has been begun, continued, and will ere long, I believe, be successfully ended, not very far removed from the most northern town in the world. One remarkable fact I learnt at a lode where eight Scotch miners were at work, that at the same price for piece work as paid to the Swedes, they had secured seven kroners per diem (7s. 7½d.), and the Swedes never got beyond three. The most curious remarks are made by the Lapps, who come down to see the engines draw in their loads of coal and draw out their loads of ore. "Is this power from heaven" is the first query of the Lapp beholder as he sees his reindeer home at last invaded.—Our London Post.

The Gift of Whistling.

Whistling has become to be quite as great if not a greater nuisance than cigarette smoking. Indeed, I notice than a number of brokers' offices on Wall street have signs conspicuously displayed above the cashier's window, politely requesting the young men who deliver stock not to whistle while they are waiting for their checks. Exactly why the sibilant gift has been endowed in the human race is not altogether apparent. If it were limited alone to men who own dogs we might still, with the exception of mosquitoes and a few other annoyances, justly contend that Nature had made nothing that was utterly useless. But when the whistle—I allude to the intransitive verb and not to the nickel plated instrument—is made to do service to Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, popular marches or sentimental ballads, it is, if not used with the greatest judgment and control, positively fatal. If there was such a thing, for instance, as getting out an injunction against this counterfeit on music, or even if it were possible to corner the market, the benefit that would accrue from such a state of affairs is quite incalculable.—John Preston Beecher in New York News.

New York's "Organized" Charities.

Our organized charities are so much "organized" that individual relief is next to an impossibility. I have now and then taken the liberty of sending a family with a card to a relief association, and that relief association, after investigation, has sent them a half ton of coal. On one occasion they sent a half ton of coal to a family which had pawned its stove, its bed, its table, its chairs, everything except a pallet of straw and two candlesticks! In the hurry scurry of my work I simply took in the idea that there was a poor family who needed help, and I gave my card, indorsing the application, and turned to my work, and a week after was intensely chagrined—the chagrin somewhat tinged by the irony of the amusing fact, I must say, that the relief was a half ton of coal, which they had no stove to burn in and no place to keep if they had had a stove.—Joe Howard in Chicago News.

During a Lifetime.

It has been computed that during a lifetime of three score years and ten the blood of a human being travels 4,352,466 miles; that his heart beats 2,528,845,000 times.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, irregular hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack whenever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2 50 and 3 00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

PROVINCIAL BOUNDARIES.

THE NORTHERN LIMITS OF ONTARIO AND QUEBEC.

Arrangements in Progress for a Meeting to Adjust the Questions—The St. Lawrence Telegraph System.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—When the Premiers and Auditors of Ontario and Quebec were here some time ago for the purpose of endeavoring to settle the outstanding debts between these provinces and the Dominion it was mentioned in this correspondence that Mr. Mercier had an interview with Sir John with a view to arranging for a meeting for the purpose of trying to agree on the northern boundaries of Ontario and Quebec. It is now understood that orrangements for such a meeting are in progress and it is expected to take place shortly.

The Minister of Justice has three cases of capital punishment under consideration just now.

Surveys of Lakes Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Winnipegosis were made by the Interior Department last year and charts will be issued as soon as further data regarding adjacent land, etc., are obtained.

In the Exchequer Court yesterday morning the case of Clark and Barber v. the Queen was called and by the consent of the parties interested the hearing was adjourned sine die. In the case of Pouliot v. the Queen argument on demurrer was fixed for Thursday.

Representations having been made to the Government urging a further extension of the telegraph system on the north shore of the St. Lawrence towards the Straits of Belle Isle, it is probable that another section of the line will be undertaken next summer. It will be remembered that this was a private scheme of the late Senator Fortin and at his instance the Government has built about 300 miles of the line, from Bale St. Paul to a point beyond the Moisic River. It will require 400 miles more, a portion of which will have to be cable to reach Fortune Bay.

A petition containing over 3500 signatures has been received by the Department of Justice praying for the repeal of the Scott Act in the County of Victoria, Ont.

It is expected that the water will be let out of the Dominion canals about next Saturday.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau is reported somewhat better, but is still very unwell.

Hon. G. E. Foster returned yesterday from his trip to New Brunswick to be present at the death-bed of his father.

C. H. McIntosh returned to the city yesterday from a two weeks' trip to Winnipeg.

Parliament to Meet Jan. 24 or 31.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—Parliament will meet for the despatch of business on either Jan. 24 or 31. The matter was informally discussed by the Cabinet yesterday and a definite decision will be arrived at in a few days.

Kingston Jottings.

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.—Half a dozen American deserters came to Kingston from Sackett's Harbor last week.

Recently Mrs. White, wife of Rev. Mr. White, of Amherst Island, came near being choked with a piece of meat. When her husband reached home he found her prostrated, and with difficulty her life was saved.

The Government has purchased Dr. Horsey's residence on King-street for the commandant of the R.M.C. at $12,500.

A thief entered John Robertson's store at Hartington and stole $100 worth of goods. It is thought the burglar is an Indian recently liberated from the penitentiary. He carries a shotgun which he would use before being captured. He is now at large in the woods.

Harry and Alexander Cartwright, sons of Sir Richard, went shooting on Saturday, and, as they were to have returned on Sunday and a terrible gale blew Sunday night, it is feared that they have met with an accident. Sir Richard went to Wolfe Island yesterday in search of his two sons. Harry is employed in the B.N.A. Bank and Alexander is here from Toronto on a visit.

About 200 citizens took an excursion over the N. and T. yesterday to see the line which Kingstonians are asked to bonus for extension to this city.

Hamilton News.

HAMILTON, Nov. 27.—The store of Joseph Mills & Son, hatters and furriers, on James street, was entered Sunday night by burglars, who effected an entrance from the rear of the premises. Fifteen Persian lamb caps and about $10 in cash—in all amounting to about $150—were carried off by the thieves. From the fact that they were undisturbed, and that the store is stocked with expensive fur garments, it is surprising that a larger haul was not made.

About $20 worth of cocoanuts and prepared cocoanut was also stolen Sunday night from the warehouse of James Simpson & Co., 36 McNab-street north.

At the Police Court yesterday morning some daylight was let in on the manner in which some husbands respect their marital vows. Leonard Jordan, who brought a charge of aggravated assault against Clayton Forsyth, told the court that the latter's wife deputed him to go to a certain house of ill-fame and bring her husband home. When Jordan got into the mansion where Forsyth was revelling and broached the object of his mission, the latter, who was standing on the stairway, kicked complainant in the ear. The magistrate, out of consideration for his wife, allowed prisoner to go with a fine of $10 and some good advice for future use.

Seaforth Votes Against a Bonus.

SEAFORTH, Nov. 27.—The bonus of $2500 to assist Thomas Hendry in building his foundry which was destroyed by fire here last summer, was voted upon yesterday and defeated by a majority of nine.

THE FISHERIES QUESTION.

MR. GOURLEY RECEIVES A CURT REPLY IN THE HOUSE.

The Debate on the Land Purchase Bill Resumed—Another Amendment Proposed by Mr. Parnell Rejected.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—In the House of Commons last night E. T. Gourley (Lib.) asked if the correspondence on the American fisheries question was to be produced; whether it was the intention of the Government to negotiate for a new Commission, and whether in the meantime, owing to the divergence of legal opinion relative to the treaty of 1818, it was intended to suspend the enforcement of these provisions.

Sir James Fergusson, Parliamentary Secretary for the Foreign Office, curtly replied: "The Government will not publish any papers nor make any statement on the subject at present. A modus vivendi is in operation."

W. H. Smith, the Government leader, replying to a question intimated that the Government under the present circumstances was unable to make any statement regarding the appointment of a minister at Washington.

Mr. Stanhope, the War Secretary, announced that British troops would be sent to Suakim if the naval authorities required support in driving the rebels inland.

The House then went into committee and the debate on the Land Purchase Bill was resumed.

Mr. Parnell proposed an amendment to the effect that no money be advanced for the purpose of more than one holding, if such holding were rated at not less than £20 yearly. He urged that the adoption of his proposal was necessary in order to provide for a useful distribution of this parliamentary grant. This sum ought to be husbanded and used as far as possible to establish a genuine peasant proprietary.

Mr. Balfour replied to Mr. Parnell. This was his first appearance in the House since his sickness and when he rose to speak he was loudly cheered. He contended that Mr. Parnell's amendment if adopted would interfere with the smooth working of the plan of sale. The men who had various holdings were as a rule the flower of the tenantry, they were thrifty, energetic farmers who saved money for the purpose of land investment. It would be unwise to exclude these men from the benefits of the act. Besides it was a great convenience to both the landlords and the tenants when an estate was sold as a whole.

Mr. Sexton contended that unless the amendment was accepted a new class of small landlords would be created, giving trouble in the future.

At this point David Sheehy, member for South Galway, a Nationalist, stopped the debate, appealing to the chairman on a question of privilege. He stated that he was leaving the House when an attendant handed him what appeared to be an ordinary visitor's card. Upon going into the lobby a constable from Ireland served him with a summons under the Coercion Act. He moved to report progress in order to give the House an opportunity to discuss this audacious breach of privilege.

Mr. Balfour deplored the incident and did not know under what authority it had happened. He entirely disapproved of such measures occurring within the precincts of the House. ["Hear! Hear!"]

Sir William Harcourt held the Government responsible for the instructions which had been given the constable serving the summons. The dignity of the House was affronted by it and an inquiry was therefore necessary.

Mr. Balfour disclaimed responsibility for the act and stated that he would give an emphatic pledge that so far as the Irish Executive was concerned the incident would not occur again.

John Morley proposed that a committee be appointed to enquire into the circumstances of the incident. Mr. Smith consented and a committee was appointed including Sir William Harcourt, Mr. Morley, Sir Charles Russell, Mr. Parnell, Mr. Timothy Healy, Home Secretary Matthews, Mr. Goschen, Mr. Madden, Sir Edward Clark and Sir Walter Ridley.

A vote was then taken on Mr. Parnell's amendment and it was lost, 154 to 111.

A Warrant Issued for Mr. Harrington

DUBLIN, Nov. 27.—Edward Harrington, M.P., failed to appear in court yesterday in answer to a summons charging him with inciting tenants to adopt the plan of campaign through his paper, The Kerry Sentinel. His counsel applied for a postponement of the case in order that Mr. Harrington could attend the sitting of the Parnell Commission in London. The magistrate refused to grant the application because the inciting continued. A warrant has been issued for Harrington's arrest.

Six Summons for Mr. Finucane.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Six summons were served upon Mr. Finucane, M. P., last evening as he was entering the House of Commons. Detectives were waiting to serve summons on other Irish members, who are to be prosecuted for intimidating farmers who have taken holdings from which tenants have been evicted.

M. WILSON REAPPEARS.

The Deputies Adjourn as an Expression of Their Sentiments.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—M. Wilson, son-in-law of Vice-President Grevy, appeared yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies for the first time since his trial. After the transaction of some formal business M. Mesureur, alluding to the presence of M. Wilson, proposed to suspend the sitting for one hour, stating that the Chamber of Deputies would understand the reason.

M. d'Ornano, a Bonapartist, thought the Chamber ought to adjourn altogether.

M. Mesureur's motion was approved by a vote of 335 to 30.

On resuming its sitting M. Millerand moved that the Chamber, having given sufficient indication of its sentiments, return to the order of the day.

M. Wilson thereupon left the Chamber accompanied by M. Andrieux.

A Chinaman Beaten and Robbed.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—A brutal assault was made last evening upon a Chinaman named Sang Wah, who keeps a laundry at 328 St. Lawrence Main-street. About 5 o'clock two men entered the place, and while one of the ruffians set to work to beat the proprietor, the other rifled the till, and after securing $50 the scoundrels made off, leaving Sang Wah in almost a dying condition. No arrests have yet been made, and the life of the injured man is despaired of.

Not Permitted to Land.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The steamer Gratwick, whose crew is supposed to be afflicted with smallpox and one of whom died after leaving the boat at Buffalo, arrived from the latter place off South Chicago yesterday morning. The vessel was not permitted to come to her dock.

Belgian Coal Miners on Strike.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 27.—The strike of Belgian coal miners is spreading. Gendarmes and guards are patrolling the troubled district.

Drowned on Her Way to Church.

ORILLIA, Nov. 27.—On Sunday while Wm. McPhee was drawing Miss Kate Rook to church on a hand sleigh the ice gave way precipitating both into the lake. McPhee was rescued in an exhausted condition but Miss Rook was drowned. Her body was found during the night.

A CRIME OR A HOAX?

Chocolates Sprinkled With Yellow Powder Turn Up in a Dead Letter.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—What is either another case of attempted poisoning by means of candy or a silly joke of some Toronto crank has just been brought to light by the officials of the Postoffice Department. A few days ago there reached the dead letter office here a small cardboard box addressed to an individual at Galt, Ont. The package had been sent letter postage from Toronto, but only bore a one cent stamp, and consequently, being short of postage, was forwarded to the dead letter office for additional postage. On being opened by the officials to discover, if possible, the name of the sender, the following appeared on a piece of paper about four inches square, evidently written by a female:

"Charles—I send these with my love. Meta murdered.

HANNAH.

"I defy you to show these to Mat Howie. I curse the day I ever saw you. Eat of these and die, you cowardly villain."

An examination of the box was made yesterday and it was found to contain three or four chocolate creams, which had evidently been broken before being placed in the box. The white, creamy substance, probably congealed from exposure, had been well sprinkled with a yellowish powder having something of the appearance of insect poison. The precise number of the candies cannot be ascertained, as they were separated in about a dozen or fifteen pieces.

The box is one of ordinary cardboard, 3¼ by 2 inches. The address was evidently in a female hand-writing, as also the word "Hannah" on the bottom of the receptacle. There has been no little discussion among the officials here as to whether the candies were sent in a joke or in earnest. The Postmaster-General has the matter under consideration and will decide in a day or two what to do about it.

FIRE AT GUELPH.

The Barns at the Model Farm Completely Destroyed—Loss $30,000.

GUELPH, Nov. 27.—The Ontario Government has sustained a serious loss by the destruction of their barns at the Model Farm last night. The reflection was first noticed from the city about 6.30, and almost immediately after the flames shot high in the air. The barns were the largest in the Dominion, and the flames were seen several miles away. The main barns were burned to the ground, also the two large wings attached to it for the horse stable and sheep pens. The bull shed was also completely destroyed. The live stock are all saved.

The fire started in the upper part of the main barn. All the students and attendants had left only a short time before for their supper. Prof. Shaw was in the barn 15 minutes before it was discovered and everything was all right. The opinion of the officials is that the barn was fired by an incendiary.

The total loss is estimated at $30,000

Woolen Mills Burned.

ST. JOHN, N.B, Nov. 27.—The woolen mills and tannery of J. M. Johnson & Co., Portland, were destroyed by fire last evening, together with a large quantity of stock on hand. The fire originated in the boiler room. Loss, $8000; insured for $4000 in the Western, Quebec and Central.

An Australian Newspaper Burnt Out.

SYDNEY N. S. W., Nov. 27.—The offices of The Town and Country Journal have been burned. Loss £100,000. The offices were the finest in Australia.

"MAN-WHO-WALKS-FAST."

Lord Lonsdale's Title Among the Indians of the Arctic Circle.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 26.—Lord Lonsdale is now in the Arctic circle and is making a large collection of birds and animals for the Scottish National History Society of Edinburgh. He is known amongst the Indians as "Man-who-walks-fast."

Wheat continues to drop.

Alex. McMicken may be a third candidate for the mayoralty.

The ice on the Red River is covered with water owing to the warm weather.

A lumberman on Lake Winnipeg is said to have decamped.

Arthur Reid's Suicide.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—Although the inquest on the body of Arthur E. Noel Reid took place, nothing of importance was elicited apart from the fact that the young man had run up a bill for $246 at the Windsor hotel, and when being asked to settle the same the other day, he told Mr. Sweet that as soon as he got a draft on Calgary cashed the bill would be paid. It appears, too, that a letter reached here with a draft for £200 sterling from his mother, Mrs. Roberts. A great deal has been said about the suicide being brought about because the victim had been rejected by a lady member of Lydia Thompson's theatrical company, but this seems to have been greatly exaggerated. The jury declared that the deceased had committed suicide while in a state of temporary mental aberration.

New Brunswick Notes.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 27.—The snow which fell to a depth of 4 or 5 inches in Southern New Brunswick has already about disappeared by reason of the heavy rainstorm which followed. The wind blew a gale all Sunday night and part of yesterday and bad news from sea is expected. The scarcity of tonnage continues. Coasting freights are higher by several points than they have been for some years.

Word from the lumber districts indicates that the winter's operations will be commenced on a scale much larger than usual. Wages to axemen on the north shore are reported twenty-five per cent. higher than last year.

Mayor Thorne will be a candidate for a third term.

Convict Roberts, who escaped from Dorchester Penitentiary, has been captured.

The Quebec Boodle Enquiry.

QUEBEC, Nov. 27.—In the boodle enquiry yesterday a number of witnesses were examined, amongst others Mr. Landry, ex-M.P., who deposed that when he was contributing the articles to The Nouvelliste charging the mayor and councillors with illegally receiving money in connection with the waterworks contract, they had offered Mr. Langelier to publish any reply he had to make in their columns, and he never took advantage of such offer.

A Daring Attempt.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—A young man went into Grant's jewelry store on Beaver Hall hill last evening. Asking to see some diamonds he was shown about $1400 worth. He at once snatched the plate of jewels and skipped. Grant followed him and fired three shots, but did not hit him. The thief dropped the diamonds, which were recovered, but escaped himself.

Rejoicing in Windsor.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 27.—There is great rejoicing in Windsor over the decision of the Canadian Pacific to build a road from London, and property in the west end has taken a jump. From the conversation of Mr. Jennings, mechanical superintendent, with the town officials it is thought operations will be commenced here immediately, and that by the end of 1889 the road will be in running order. The question of giving a bonus if the road locates its division shops at Windsor is discussed. Chatham will submit a bylaw to the taxpayers on Thursday, asking for a bonus of $40,000 to the road.

THE WORK OF THE STORM

NEW ENGLAND'S COASTS STREWN WITH WRECKS.

A Nor'easter on the Atlantic—The Fated Crew of the Edward Norton—"On the Reef of Norman's Woe."

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—The schooner Mattie E. Eaton, hence for Port Spain, is ashore on Nantasket beech full of water. The schooner Avelon, St. John for New York, dragged ashore on Spectacle Island on Sunday. She will probably float when the weather moderates. She experienced terrific weather in the bay. Three of the crew were washed overboard and lost. Their names were Charles Blackford, John Doucelle and James Todd, all of Tiverton, N.S. The schooner Cox and Green from Philadelphia is ashore here and reported to have bilged. The schooner Bertha F. Walker from Philadelphia is ashore at Hull. Captain Westgate and the first mate were lost. The schooner Gertrude Abbott of Philadelphia is also ashore here.

At Danvers, Mass., the storm is the worst ever experienced at this time of year. The wind blew a hurricane and the snow drifted to the height of three and four feet. Horse cars were abandoned all along the line and religious services at the churches were abandoned last night.

At Portsmouth, N.H., the schooner Oliver Dyer of Saco went ashore at Joy's Point, Newcastle, yesterday morning. The crew took to the rigging and were rescued by the life-saving crew with the exception of the cook, who was drowned. The vessel will be a total loss. The schooner James H. Deputy of Bath is ashore at Newcastle, but will be gotten off. An unknown schooner is ashore on Clark's Island high and dry.

At Salem, Mass., reports of damage by the storm, which continues with unabated fury, continue to come in. The yacht Gracie went ashore at Ormes' Point and was badly stove. The schooner Richard Dority of Sedgwick, Me., broke her moorings and drifted ashore at the Willows where she lies high and dry and will probably go to pieces.

At Gloucester, Mass., the British brig Alice, of Lockport, N.S., which was at anchor inside of Ten Pound Island, went adrift on Sunday and her crew abandoned her Sunday night and went aboard of the schooner J. and J. Locke of Barrington, N.S. The J. and J. Locke afterwards went adrift and the two crews abandoned her and went on board of another schooner, where they remained all night. Both the Alice and the Locke are supposed to be lost as they drifted to sea.

The beach in the neighborhood of Norman's Woe is strewn with wreckage, consisting of lumber, lath, barrels, etc. Several vessels that lay in the outer harbor are missing and it is supposed that they have drifted to sea. Several could be seen from Stage Fort with colors in the rigging signalling for tugs. The northeast storm still continues with unabated fury. The snow has changed to rain and the weather is so thick that it is almost impossible to see more than 300 yards from the shore. The wires of all the telegraph companies are down and no communication by telegraph can be had with Boston or any of the adjoining towns. It is feared that great damage has been done to shipping along the coast. There have been numerous minor accidents in this harbor. The storm is of longer duration than any known here for years.

As far as can be learned here the names of those lost on the schooner Edward Morton are Captain Frank Curran and his son, 14 years old; Michael McDougall, Patrick Mullaly, Michael-Curran, James Brown, D. Lafferty, Lawrence Flaherty, John Hornish, Lawrence Bennett (colored), Archie Campbell. There were probably four or five others on board, supposed to be Nova Scotians, whose names could not be ascertained. Lawrence Allen, one of the crew, is the only one known to be saved. He reported in person this morning to the owner.

There May be Worse News to Come.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—This city and the surrounding neighborhood are still suffering under the storm which raged over almost the entire country Sunday and more especially Sunday night. Until noon it was drizzling and blowing in New York, and going about was most disagreeable. The force of the storm was shown by the number of broken telegraph and telephone wires seen everywhere, and by the damage reported along the river front. Telegraph and telephone communication with a great number of other places were cut off and telegrams were only received subject to indefinite delay. But according to Sergeant Dunn, the officer in charge of the signal service bureau in this city, the worst effects of the storm may not yet have been reported. He said:

"The storm is a very destructive and extensive one. It is now clearing off, the storm centre having passed us in a northeasterly direction, following the course of the steamer line. Steamers coming from Europe—those which left the latter part of last week—will encounter it in its full strength. The steamers leaving later were warned by this bureau from Washington via Paris and London of the storm and its direction and were therefore prepared in time to change their course. The area of the trouble has been a very extensive one, covering the entire coast from Florida to Nova Scotia."

Driven From Their Homes.

ATLANTIC, N. J., Nov. 27.—The terrific storm which began Sunday continued all through the night with increasing fury and is still raging and spreading destruction from end to end of the ocean boulevard. Houses, galleries and cottages were broken to pieces. Should the gale continue it is predicted that to-night's tide will complete the work of destruction along the ocean front. Many of the owners of the properties destroyed are non-residents and in the confusion and excitement of the hour an accurate estimate of the losses cannot be made, but they will be very heavy.

There have been many narrow escapes from drowning but so far no lives have been reported lost. Residents along the greater part of Baltic-avenue were compelled to use boats to get away from their flooded houses and many distressing scenes were witnessed during the night as the poor, badly frightened and in many cases scantily clad inhabitants, mostly colored people, sought safety and shelter from the rising water and the blinding hail and howling wind.

Manhattan Beach Disasters.

MANHATTAN BEACH, Nov. 27.—About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the esplanade, which runs along the whole front of the Manhattan Beach Company's property about 750 feet, was thrown into the air and destroyed from one end to the other. Immediately afterwards the depot at the west end of the marine railway was swept out to sea bodily and in a few minutes more fully one-third of the track of the road was carried away. The Brighton pavilion was partially carried away and it is feared the rest of the building and what is left of the marine railroad and the east end depot will go at the next high tide if the storm continues.

Lasers and Arrests.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—On the way to his hotel from the banquet of the Patriotic League on Sunday Gen. Boulanger was continuously cheered. Police lined the route and made 40 arrests. Most of the prisoners were subsequently released.

WORK OF THE ARMY.

There are, probably, no public officers whose acts are more freely criticized than those of the police forces, and they are subjected to as much faultfinding as to intelligent criticism. If a crime is committed and the perpetrator of it is not apprehended, the police are generally at once charged with being either negligent or stupid. The horrors in London are a striking illustration of this and the police of the metropolis have been severely criticized at home and abroad. Newspapers in America and in other countries have sneered at the inability of the London police and detectives to arrest the fiend or lunatic who has committed these awful crimes. Yet it is more than probable that the police have done all that could be done to capture the murderer.

The New York World has prepared a list of notable crimes committed in the United States the perpetrators of which have never been discovered and it should make the United States press hesitate to sneer further at the London authorities. In Texas a few years ago seven women were murdered within a short space of time and in such a manner as to indicate that they were all committed by the same individual. Numerous theories were advanced and clues suggested, but the murderer remains undiscovered to this day. Since the suggestion has been made in London that a Malay cook is the slayer of Whitechapel it is remembered that a Malay cook was suspected in Texas, but there is nothing to show that the Texan and the London fiends are the same. There is a record of mysterious crimes in all the principal cities of the United States. In New York alone there is a list of forty-three beginning with the murder of Benjamin Nathan, a wealthy private banker, in 1870. Another New York journal states that there is on the average a murder or mysterious disappearance every week in New York that baffles the skill of the detectives. With such a record in their cities the United States papers should be slow to criticize the police of other countries, and it does not appear that American detective methods are superior to the English.

It is true that policemen and detectives should be better able to protect from and detect criminals than ordinary citizens. It is their business to do so, and they are expected to have especial aptitude and training for such work. Yet they cannot be expected to do impossibilities, and while there are cases that baffle their skill, there are frequently cases of detection showing wonderful ability to unravel mysteries. Failure to discover or arrest a criminal does not of itself show lack of ability or diligence, and faultfinding is very discouraging to officers who are straining every nerve to do their duty. The point of the whole matter is that police officials should not be condemned by the opinion of an anxious public, nor until a dispassionate inquiry showed inefficiency.

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

Football.—The Norwood and 'Varsity football teams played a friendly game here on Saturday. The following are the teams with their positions:—

'VARSITY.	POSITION.	NORWOOD.
Suckler	Goal	Hutchison
Blake	Backs	Finlay
Edgar		Stephenson
Lockhart	Half	Smith
Stone	Backs	Roberts
Peat		Brackenridge
McDonald	Rt. Wing	Edwards
Fraser, (capt.)		Bewell, (capt.)
Paterson	Centre	Trouscott
Wood	Wing	Ormiston

The game started at 2.30 sharp, and at first Norwood had if anything the best of it. The 'Varsity, however, braced up, and kept the ball in dangerous proximity to the Norwood goal. Fraser managed to score after about fifteen minutes' play. On the kick-off the Norwood forwards made a determined rush, but it was no use, as the 'Varsity defence was impassable, and the forwards, securing the ball, kept Hutchinson the Norwood goalkeeper, busy. Shortly before half-time Casey Wood scored for the 'Varsity by a pretty corner kick.

After half-time the play was for a time very even, but the 'Varsity again asserted their superiority, and time after time Hutchinson was called on to defend his position, which he did splendidly. At last Fraser managed to get one past him. Shortly afterwards time was called, and a good game ended in favour of the 'Varsity by 3 to 0. Bewell, Ormiston and Hutchinson carried off the honors for Norwood. As to the 'Varsity players it would be unfair to particularize any one player where all did so well. The 'Varsity boys returned to the city immediately after the game highly satisfied with the trip, and declaring that Norwood is the most hospitable town in Canada.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask you druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Gambling House Keeper Fined—Poor Lilly Charlton—A Crook in Quod.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—Charles W. Chesson, the young man who keeps the house No. 21 Mercer-street, where young Payne of Illinois lost $140 at poker, surrendered to the police yesterday, and upon pleading guilty to a charge of keeping a gambling house was fined $50 and costs or thirty days' imprisonment.

A cripple giving his name as William Brennan was arrested yesterday on a charge of vagrancy. It is thought that his real name is Lownsborough, that in 1873 he was tried with a man named Francis Smith on a charge of having killed one Currie, on which he was acquitted; that a year or so afterwards he was sent to penitentiary for robbery, and that after serving three months he escaped and fled to the States, where he lost a leg while railroading.

The case against Herbert E. Simpson, photographer, charged with illegally using Mrs. Fierce's gas, was dismissed by the Police Magistrate yesterday, the evidence failing to support a criminal charge.

The young girl Lille Charlton, on whom there was an abortion performed, is still lying at the point of death at her widowed mother's home, No. 55 Sackville-street, and although apparently not suffering as much as she did Sunday night she is evidently weaker and steadily growing worse. Dr. Valentine was too ill at the jail to put in an appearance at the Police Court yesterday and the other prisoner charged with the crime, young Ally Wilkinson, was remanded until Dec. 3, bail being refused. Druggist John O. Wood, who is wanted in connection with the case, cannot be found.

Draughtsman McMinn of the Waterworks Department has resigned.

On Saturday a man named John Crocker was arrested at Port Credit on a charge of having stolen a horse and buggy from Wm. Stock of this city. When the prisoner was brought before the magistrate yesterday his counsel got him remanded to jail for a week to sober up. It appears that the young man is highly connected, and was sent from New York to this city to be treated for dipsomania. He, however got drunk, became delirious, and while in this condition jumped into Mr. Stock's rig and drove away to escape from the devils that were pursuing him.

The firm of Lowden, Paton & Co., wholesale druggists, is on the point of dissolution and liquidation and a chequered career will be closed. John Paton was taken into the firm about fourteen months ago and has sunk $25,000 in the concern. He has instructed his solicitor to take proceedings against Mr. Lowden for obtaining money under false pretences, claiming that misrepresentations were made to him when he entered the partnership.

Fred. A. Clarry of Parkdale, whose prosecution for selling tickets in his lottery, called Clarry's Grand Villa Sweepstakes, is still fresh in the public mind, was arrested yesterday, charged with running a lottery.

Mid-Winter in Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—Sunday and yesterday a characteristic November wind and snowstorm has prevailed at Montreal. The wind began from the northeast and attained a maximum velocity of 46 miles per hour. Snow began falling late in the evening and continued falling until about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when it was blowing at a mile a minute steady, with a few gusts as high as 72 miles per hour. The snow piled up in great drifts and the streets had a mid-winter look, sleighs making their appearance pretty generally, though the windswept many places bare.

Belleville Briefs.

Belleville, Nov. 27.—At the Police Court yesterday morning Henry Godfrey, found guilty of horse stealing, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Stephen Cummins was yesterday fined $10 or 30 days for having fowls in his possession for the purpose of fighting.

The case of Mary Champagne against Edward Caton, charging him with seduction, has been adjourned until Dec. 3.

It being found that the work performed by the Grand Trunk Railway employes on Sunday was a necessity, the case against them has been dismissed.

CROCKERYWARE

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as these of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS, &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders,

W. J. MASON,
Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Dinner Sets.

Among the large job lot of crockery now being sold on Water-st., next Jas. Stevenson's office, are over 20 dinner sets at prices from $4 up, less than half what they are worth. An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Union of Two Good Ones.

A meeting of the Y. P. A. of the George-st. Methodist Church was held last night. Matters of business were alone considered. A communication was received from the Endeavor Society upon which the following action was taken: It was decided to have union meetings of these societies once a month, the first to be held in the George-st. Church on the 10th of December. A choice programme, consisting of a debate, songs, recitations, etc., will be rendered. Debaters were chosen and all arrangements were made for a first-class entertainment on that occasion.

The Alleged Forger Escapes.

Irwine Roraback was to have come up for preliminary trial at Norwood to day for forging the name of Robt. H. Gardner, of Dummer, to a mortgage for $2,050, but for a very good reason the hearing did not take place. It appears that Constable Hill had the prisoner under his eagle eye for safe keeping, and the cells being unfit for occupation the constable took his prisoner to his own house. On Saturday evening the constable had business down town and left the alleged forger locked in a room in charge of two other parties. On his return it was found that Roraback had effected his escape. Telegrams have been sent to different places with a description of the man wanted, but no trace of him has been found. Roraback is a man about 65 years old, with gray hair and whiskers, bald, and wore a full cloth suit of clothes with patched knee. Mr. Stone, who drew up the mortgage, went down to Norwood to-day.

THE HOUSEHOLD BAND,

A Good Musical Organization—Its Formation and the Object of the Visit.

When the 5.15 train upon which was the band of Gen. Booth's household troops drew into the G.T.R. station last evening the platform was crowded with Salvationists and others who had assembled to give a hearty welcome to the Old Country musicians. There were a large number of officers and soldiers present and a procession headed by the celebrated band was formed and marched to the barracks by way of Charlotte, George and Simcoe-sts. On the way round the band was followed by an immense crowd. Arriving at the barracks the bandsmen were given a good supper in the basement and they required it as they had not had a meal since morning.

In the evening a march out took place headed by the Household band and again their excellent music was listened to by hundreds. On their return to the barracks an immense crowd surged into the building, filling it to its great capacity.

THE REPUTATION OF THE BAND

had preceded it and the people turned out to the meeting just to hear them play. The band is under the leadership of Staff-Bandmaster Applebee, who was formerly of Her Majesty's army and who is supposed to be the second best cornet player in the world. There are twenty-six pieces in the band, including nine cornets. There are no reed instruments, the band being entirely brass. Not only do they play, but they sing splendidly and many of their choruses were fine indeed. The Staff-Bandmaster's cornet playing was grand, and the many selections given by the band were also good. Every man knows his instrument and their tuition under their excellent leader has made them artists.

Staff-Bandmaster Applebee conducted the meeting in true Army style. Besides those visiting officers who were present yesterday the following were in the gallery last evening:—Capt. Wale, Capt. Mades, Capt. Campbell, Capt. Kempt, Lieut. Westmore, Lieut. Brett, Lieut. Smith, Lieut. Bruff, Lieut. Flowers, Lieut. Spencer, Lieut. Boyier and Lieut. Purdy. Between the selections of the band and their choruses several of the bandsmen gave their testimonies. One was a sailor or "follower of the sea," as he called it, and he spoke of his wild seafaring life and recklessness until he had met the Army and became converted. Another had been a London gambler and horse racer and he also told the story of his conversion. Another was a young Scotchman who had lived a rough life in the great city and finally been converted through the Army. All the testimonies were interesting and impressive.

THE BAND AND ITS OBJECT.

Staff-Bandmaster Applebee took occasion to explain the object of this tour of the band through Canada. He said a great many people were saying it was only another scheme to fill Gen. Booth's coffers, but this was not so. A year and eight months ago Gen. Booth had called for volunteers who were willing to leave home and situations to enlist in a band without any salary. In less than two weeks the general had one hundred and sixty volunteers. Two bands were then organized, and it was from this one hundred and sixty that the lads on the platform had been selected. They had travelled since then 5,000 miles, of which they had walked 2,500. They had, he said, walked thirty-three miles one day and night, and taken part in three meetings. Often he had seen some of the lads with blistered and even bleeding feet, they had all laid on the hard barracks floor night after night and not one of them had received one cent for salary. He said they would have been fools to have left good homes and situations, bright prospects and loved ones for General Booth. No, it was the love of God that had caused them to go into the work. He spoke of the wife and family he had left behind in England, and said it was not for General Booth he had done this, but for the desire to work for God. The band had come to Canada for two reasons, first to preach in every city and town the Gospel of Christ and secondly, because Commissioner Combs was something like $2,000 in debt. This debt was caused by the overdrawing of the sick and wounded fund which supports the hospital established in Toronto by Mr. Goederham for sick and worn out officers. He appealed to the audience to help with their money to pay off this debt. Subscriptions were called for and quite an amount raised.

After another selection by the band the Staff-Bandmaster made an earnest appeal to the unsaved to come forward and the meeting closed.

The band went to Lindsay this morning.

His Return Visit.

In deference to the expressed wish of very many of our citizens who were unable to meet Mr. Morris, the expert optician, during his visit to my store last week, I have succeeded in arranging for another visit for Saturday next, the 1st December, which will afford the desired opportunity for the disappointed ones, and would counsel all those who value their sight to see him. His ability assures to all purchasers unequalled ease and comfort in the use of the very best spectacles, "The B. Laurance & Co.'s Manufacture," for which I am the sole agent in Peterborough and vicinity. Do not mistake the date—For one day only, Saturday, Dec. 1st. J. A Celebrated Lecturer.

Last evening the regular meeting of the Endeavor Society was held. President Arthur Tebb in the chair. The attendance was not very large. After devotional exercises the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary. Business of considerable importance occupied the attention of the members until about nine o'clock. It was decided to engage John R. Clarke, the world renowned orator, to give his matchless lecture on "John B. Gough, and humor and eloquence," in January. Mr. Clarke is now engaged in Albany, N.Y., and is delighting immense audiences. An entertainment with the Y.P.A. of George-st. Methodist church was arranged for. Messrs. Thos. Barrie and H. Stock were chosen as leaders in the debate to be given in the George-st. Methodist church lecture room in about two weeks. After intermission a short but interesting programme was rendered. Secretary Herbison, of the Y.M.C.A., delighted the audience with one of his choice readings and an able essay on the "Pleasant Dance in its relation to Religion and Morality," was given by the ex-president.

A MIDNIGHT ASSAULT.

A Tailor's head badly Kicked and his nose Bitten by some Unknown.

With his face covered with blood and his head cut and bruised a man by the name of Boats, a tailor who is employed at Mr. A. Mercer's tailoring establishment, staggered into the police station shortly after midnight this morning, and reported to the police that he had been assaulted, kicked about his head and his nose badly bitten. There was one part of the story which could not be doubted, and that was the last, for the man's nose was bleeding and the marks of a man's teeth were to be seen on his nose and the side of his head was badly cut and bruised. He must either have been assaulted as he stated, or else had a most loving meeting with an old friend whom he owed a dollar or two, and whose embrace had been tender and hearty in the extreme. To-day Boats' countenance is decorated with much sticking plaster in memorium of the midnight attack.

The story the man told was this. He was going along Charlotte-st., just having past George, when and asked him for a match. He gave the fellow a match and he then wanted to know what time it was. Without waiting to receive the answer or give Boats time to consult his chronometer, the stranger called "time" on himself and without further ceremony proceeded to walk all over and around Boats. They had a tussel and during this the contemptible coward managed to get his victim's nasal organ between his teeth and bit it most unmercifully. He kicked the tailor on the side of the head, in the ribs and pummelled him generally. Boats also says the man drew a knife and tried to rifle his pockets when he was frightened away. He would be able to identify the man who assaulted him he thinks, although he did not know him or had never seen him before.

If the story of the assault is to be credited, the miserable coward who committed it should most assuredly be caught if possible for such events are far too interesting to have occurring frequently in our midst, and the man who will chew another is a beast and should be given something which he will remember.

It was Appreciated.

On the way from the station to the Salvation Army barracks last evening the band of General Booth's household troops stopped and serenaded the REVIEW office. The music of such an excellent organization can always be appreciated.

A Good Debate.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist Church met in the large vestry last night. There was a large attendance. The Rev. P. Clifton Parker was in the chair. After devotional exercises the subject called for discussion was "Perseverance in Grace." Dr. Scott introduced the Calvinistic view, and, after stating the doctrine, produced evidence from Scripture from its connection with other doctrines and from the nature of saving grace. The paper was able and exhaustive. Mr. Minore very gallantly and faithfully held the American view before the meeting, arraying his arguments as historical, inferential and Scriptural. Afterward. Messrs. Lenham, J. C. Turnbull, Bell, Billings, Wm. Turnbull, Hillier, Gillespie and M. Kidd, took part in the discussion. The chairman weighed the evidence pro and con and pronounced in favor of the Calvinistic view. The interesting and profitable meeting was brought to a close at 9.30.

A Good Entertainment.

Standing room only was obtainable at the Opera House last evening when Zera Semon's Novelty Company opened its season of one week. The audience was delighted with the entertainment, which is a good one and well worth seeing. The performance was opened by Zera Semon in his wonderful illusions of the black art, which were all new and interesting. Miss Adele Gilbert, assisted by Signor Giovanni, gave a choice selection of popular melodies upon the musical glasses, and was repeatedly encored. Zera Semon, the wonderful ventriloquist, kept the audience in roars of laughter. Signor Giovanni, the successful bird educator, and his marvelous flock of performing canaries entertained the audience, after which the royal marrionettes gave a most entertaining minstrel performance, which surprised and delighted everybody. Mme. Strong's magnificent pictures in the air concluded the performance which is a first-class one in every respect, all the numbers being new and interesting. The giving away of the prizes to the holders of numbers then took place, one in every seven tickets getting a prize which were all useful or ornamental articles. The tea set was captured by Fred Nesbitt and the chamber set, by Mr. R. S. Henderson. A silver watch and another chamber set will be the two large prizes to night when there will probably be a good house.

Brevities.

—Damp, bad weather.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To the Gentlemen who recently formed the Board of the Collegiate Institute and now form the Board of High School Trustees:

DEAR SIRS,—As you are still privileged to superintend the heating and ventilating of the school (subject of course to the paternal supervision of the Government inspector), I respectfully direct your attention to the necessity for improvements on the method of heating the class rooms and corridors.

The custom at present is to allow the fires gradually to die out, so that by four o'clock, the hour at which the school is supposed to close, the class rooms have become moderately cold. After that the cooling process goes on rapidly and in a very short time the rooms are too cold to be fit for occupation.

Now, as you no doubt are aware, in order to conduct the school in an orderly manner, a number of rules and regulations have been made, the infringment of any of which, subjects the pupils to be required to remain in the class rooms an hour or a half hour after the school has been dismissed.

Meanwhile the halls in which the scholars out-door garments hang have become so many ice houses, and when the wraps are put on, instead of contributing to keep the wearers warm, they strike a chill into them, which not only causes great discomfort, but has on more than one occasion been the direct cause of a fit of serious illness to the unfortunate victims of this mistaken economy of fuel. I make no complaint that the rules and regulations are enforced, but as some of the pupils are frequently guilty of a breach of some one of the 987,591,863 rules which have been made for their government. I suggest in the interest of the health and comfort of the pupils that some steps be immediately taken to remedy the evil complained of.

I am sure that the most heroic an of teachers does not desire to cause the death or permanent ill health of any of the pupils under his charge, and I feel confident that no member of the Board would like even to share in the responsibility of being directly or indirectly morally liable for such a calamity.

Now, that the matter has been brought under the notice of those who are in duty bound to remedy, the evils referred to, I trust that the teachers may discover some other mode of punishment until different arrangements are made for the disposal of the pupils overclothing, and the heating of the class rooms. I do not like to threaten to invoke arbitrary authority, but if some remedial steps are not immediately taken, I shall feel it my duty to complain to one of the several inspectors, and it may perhaps bring the Board to a proper frame of mind by reducing the present High School to a public school. As a student, I feel that the students have claims on the inspectors that cannot well be overlooked. We have without exception purchased all text books written by inspectors, even when we had in our possession one or more equally good works (written perhaps by some previous inspector), on the same subject.

It is to be hoped that the school authorities will see that these grievances are done away with, and not place in the hands of the education office a reasonable excuse for still further curtailing the power of the Board of Trustees, and transferring the same to paid Government servants.

I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
A STUDENT.

THE CHEESE MARKETS.

The Utica market yesterday was not very active for cheese. Many lots were closed out altogether while others were left to be finished up next week. The usual number of large factories were still making skim cheese and will probably continue until into December some time, but next Monday will finish up the market days for this season. Factorymen are congratulating themselves on the successful ending of the season and the fine prices they are getting for late ends. Following is a list of sales: 1619 boxes at 10c., 366 boxes at 10¼c., 150 boxes at 10⅜c., 608 at 10⅜c., 115 boxes at 10⅜c., 410 boxes at 10½c., 425 boxes at commission.

THE ETHICS of Civilization

It is to meet these THREE REQUIREMENTS that our efforts are constantly and successfully directed.

We make Clothing for Men, Boys and Children from honest, serviceable fabrics, CUT in a fashionable and tasteful manner to FIT perfectly, and put together by the best Tailors money can secure and in the HIGHEST STYLE of workmanship.

We sell this Well-Made Clothing at PRICES 25 to 40 per cent. LOWER than the same qualities can be purchased for anywhere else in the world.

Suggestion Outside of Hypnotism.

Suggestibility is by no means peculiar to hypnotized persons. Almost every one is sensitive to suggestion to a certain extent when awake, for in every human being, no matter how skeptical he may consider himself, there exists a certain degree of credulity, and this credulity may be played upon and taken advantage of in a measure. Children can be made to believe the most preposterous statements if they are made with sufficient gravity. The majority of healthy children are, moreover, auto-suggestionists; that is, they create air castles, in which they soon come to believe firmly as objective realities. Too often such auto-suggestions are regarded by parents and friends as deliberate lies. They are in reality simply the creations of phantasy, which have become established as truths in consequence of being unopposed and uncorrected by reason and experience. In the course of time the reasoning faculties are developed and hold the imagination in check.

Nevertheless, even adults are met with in whom the imagination so readily gets the upper hand that they may be induced to believe the most impossible things. I recently saw a young woman of moderate intelligence and education who was so readily influenced by suggestion in the waking state that she was unable to move from the place where she stood on being suddenly and decidedly told that it was impossible for her to budge. She could be made to see people who were in reality not present, and on the other hand could be made blind to the presence of persons and objects actually in the room. After repeatedly affirming that she was absolutely insensible to pain, it became possible to pass a needle deeply into the skin without provoking any signs of discomfort.—Dr. Christian A. Herter in Popular Science Monthly.

NOTIONS OF SAVAGES.

SOME STRANGE BELIEFS OF THE SIMPLE CHILDREN OF EARTH.

Darwinism Anticipated by Tribes of Africa—Curious Ideas Concerning White People—What Savages Thought of the Clothing of Civilization—Animals.

Savage beliefs regarding cosmogony, geography and the kindred sciences are so numerous that a volume would not contain them, and may be passed by, although some of them are exceedingly strange and interesting. Of greater interest to most readers are their notions about mankind, dress, domestic animals, furniture, etc., a few of which will illustrate the character of the larger number that might be given.

The first time natives of the province of Victoria, in Australia, saw an ox grazing, the whole tribe turned out to watch him, and the most daring warriors begged him to give them the huge horns he wore. Many savages call the game by name in hunting, just as a herdsman calls his cows. Tupinamba women in Brazil go to the ant-hills and call the ants out, promising them nuts, while those of New South Wales beg the fish to be caught. In the cabins of Canada Indians there was an individual especially charged with this duty.

Bolivian Yuracanes would not feed corn to their fowls, saying that as they could not raise it they ought not to have it. Many tribes of Africa, Paraguay and Central America anticipated Darwinism in their belief that monkeys were formerly men who have lost the art of speech because they are not made to labor.

It is difficult for us to understand the belief held by many savages that they are the sole inhabitants of the earth. Comanches, Caribs, New Guinea tribes and Marquesans had no idea that there were any other people on earth besides their own, and similar ideas were entertained by Rocky Mountain tribes, Orinoco Indians, Australian aborigines, Marianne Islanders and natives of Tasmania. Forty years since natives of the Marquesas Islands professed a like ignorance of any inhabitants upon the earth outside their own island.

Many of the natives of the West India and South Sea Islands and Indian tribes of North and South America thought that the first white people they saw came from heaven. Esquimaux believed that the first ship arriving on their coast came from the sun or the moon, from which latter planet came the crew. A Senegal tribe, as well as the Caribs, maintained that the white people came from the sea, and that ships were their only habitations.

Some negroes on the eastern frontier of Congo were greatly astonished at finding all the white persons wearing clothing, not imagining how they could procure so great a quantity. So pleased were the simple natives of a country to the south of Sahara with buttons that Park was kept some time buttoning and unbuttoning his coat, to show the use of these attachments. The king of Bondo and his officers greatly admired an umbrella, and were some time in learning how to use a machine so marvelous, and New Zealanders were equally impressed with one, delighting to open and close it. The inhabitants of an island in the east believed that the man, his clothes and his shoes were of one piece, and were only convinced of the contrary by a close examination. A Senegal tribe was convinced that this must be the case with the missionaries.

Some women on the borders of the Great Sahara thought the Abbe Poiret had a green skin because he wore gloves of that hue, and others in a nomadic tribe of Morocco were very much frightened at seeing Drummond Hay pull off his gloves. Tasmanians were very much surprised to see a traveler do the same. African Ishmaelites thought the boots were a part of the natural body, and wondered much that they should be dark while the faces were white. Another African tribe thought that a missionary was detaching his feet when removing the shoes, and that his black stockings were a detachable part of a double skin with which he was provided. The Uazaramos of Africa thought that another, who wore glasses, had four eyes, one pair of which were detachable. Some New Zealanders were persuaded that a wig was but the skin of the head, and that its removal was accomplished by magic. Hawaiians thought Cook's officers were horned because they wore three-cornered chapeaux, and believed that their pockets were entrances to great natural reservoirs of treasures within their bodies.

Guinea negroes, Tahitians and tribes of the New Britain archipelago, believed that cloth, arms, hatchets, mirrors and other objects of the kind were fruits of the earth, and Tahitians sowed nails to raise a crop, while Caribs planted gunpowder in the ground, with a similar expectation.

Several Australian tribes as well as natives of New South Wales and Mexicans, thought the horse and rider inseparable, and exceedingly astonished to see the human part of the Centaur descend from his perch. South Sea islanders thought the first horse brought on shore was a pig, to which latter animal they were accustomed.

Kamschatkans thought all animals understood their language, and addressed to them most flattering words. Yacuts of Siberia call the bear lord, illustrious old man, good father, and beg of him humbly the permission to continue their journey. The tiger is named lord or grandfather by Cambodia tribes, and the Annamite call him Sir Tiger, and address prayers to him. Philippine islanders beg the crocodiles not to do them any harm, while inhabitants of one of the Fiji islands think the shark will not attack them if they call out, "I am from Coloumba" (their village).

Negroes usually think wine is blood, on first seeing it. Some Esquimaux thought biscuit dried seals' flesh. When Canadian Indians saw white men, for the first time, eat bread and drink wine they thought them wood and blood. One African tribe is convinced that rivers of rum flow on the European coast. Missionaries enumerated rum as one of the blessings of paradise to the Vezes, a Madagascar tribe.—F. S. Bassett.

Sir William Thompson considers Edison's discovery of the phonograph "one of the greatest in the practical application of science ever made."

New Device for Advertising.

"Talking about advertising schemes," said a well known boot and shoe merchant in the heart of the city, "I have more of them submitted to me in a day than I can considerately weigh in six months. But, say, the latest thing out for adoption was sprung on me the other day, and no doubt some venturesome chap will adopt it some time. When he does there'll be a howl. A man walked in here not long ago and introduced himself as so-and-so, accompanying his card with the assurance that he had just the thing I was in search of—a novel advertising device. He wanted to sell me the exclusive use of it instanter. And truly it was great! A veritable automatic printing press concealed in the sole of a boot! It consisted of a pair of men's size foot gear, with wooden soles of light construction. Describing the sole of the foot, where the stitches usually appear on an ordinary boot, was a line of bristles about the width of a thread seam, or a little wider. These were fastened to a small tube inlaid into the sole. The tube came out of the back and ran up the leg to a small reservoir attached to a circle of metal at the top. The reservoir was to be filled with ink, or a colored fluid of some sort, and was intended to supply the small tube and eventually fill the bristle or brush lines.

"The scheme was, as he represented it, to put on the boots after he had inscribed an 'ad' for my house in bristles inside of the lines describing the sole, then walk down Michigan boulevard and other aristocratic avenues having stone sidewalks. Don't you see, every step taken would leave an imprint on the flags, and a lasting advertisement remained to confront the populace. His idea was to do the walking at night when his tracks would not be noticed until daylight revealed them. The only reason I did not go into the scheme with him was that I feared our high toned citizens would come down on me for damages. When I suggested this the inventor left to consult a lawyer as to his liability in the matter, and I am awaiting his report. Stencils and like devices have been used in the past for this purpose, but this beats anything I have ever heard of. What do you think of it?"—Chicago Herald.

Deposit of the Great Rivers.

The average discharge from the Missouri into the Mississippi is estimated at 170 cubic feet per second. This would be 500,000 cubic yards per day, and 180,000,000 of cubic yards per year. At flood stage the sediment has reached the enormous amount of 4,000,000 of cubic yards in one day. This would make a bank twenty-three miles long and 100 square yards across, and 1,000 miles of such levee in a year. When the united rivers pour into the gulf the output of soil annually is twice the above amount. The meaning of such figures it is impossible to measure. One hundred and fifty cubic miles of the continent tumbled annually into the sea by one water shed. The wear and waste of cultivatable soil is enormous. But the great problem for man is how to control the mud laden waters so that they shall not destroy ruthlessly on the way to their discharge.—Globe-Democrat.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2 00, 2 50 and 3 00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

FEARS FOR THE STANLEY.

THE NEW STEAMER PROBABLY OUT IN THE BIG BLOW.

Extension of Bonding Privileges to the Northern Pacific—The 90-Days Quarantine on American Cattle to Remain.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—It is understood that the Government has decided to extend to the Northern Pacific Railway the same bonding facilities enjoyed by other roads on their giving the customary surety bonds, which will amount to $80,000.

Ever since the Dominion Government surveyed the Swan district efforts have been made to get the parties who settled the surveys to make entry of their lands, but with only partial success. Circular after circular has been issued by the Dominion Lands Commissioner, but very little attention has been paid to them. The districts in which entries have been most backward are Prince Albert, Carlton, Duck Lake and along the south branch of the Saskatchewan. The Government has now sent Mr. Bourgeois, D.L.S., to Duck Lake and vicinity to try to get entries made, and a new circular has been issued informing the settlers that it is in their own interests to have their entries made right away. The circular concludes as follows: "Notice is also hereby given that inasmuch as many of the persons herein referred to are doubtless now entitled to a patent for their lands, application for patent in all such cases should be made at the same time that homestead entry is obtained." In this connection it may be stated that the halfbreeds of Batoche have never made any entries in the Interior Department, but nevertheless the Government has never disturbed them in the enjoyment of their lands.

It is understood that the request of the Montana ranchmen, that the ninety-day quarantine on American cattle entering the Northwest be removed, will not be granted, as it is felt that if this was done the English Government would most probably schedule Canadian cattle and our exporters would lose the advantage which they now possess over American exporters of being able to transport their cattle from one point of the United Kingdom to another while American cattle must be killed at the port at which they are landed.

Some anxiety was felt in the Marine Department to-day as to the safety of the new Government steamer Stanley, built on the Clyde, which was to have sailed on Nov. 21. If she did so she was probably in the storm which raged on the Atlantic on Saturday and Sunday, and being, comparatively speaking, a small vessel she may have had difficulty in weathering so severe a gale. A cablegram was sent to Glasgow to-day to ascertain whether she had sailed.

The United States Treasury Department officials deny the truth of the report that there has been any change in the policy of the Administration or of the department towards the Alaska seal fisheries. There has been a relaxation this season of their watchfulness in Behring Sea.

General Middleton and Adjutant-General Powell to-day examined a new water bottle, the invention of Mr. Lewis of Quebec, and expressed themselves so pleased with it that its adoption by the Canada Militia will be recommended. It is of block tin, stout and serviceable, and will stand a good deal of knocking about. Its chief advantage, however, is that it contains a small charcoal filter so that muddy or partly impure water can be rendered drinkable in a few minutes, a great advantage to troops on the march in a poorly watered country. General Middleton said with reference to it: "No European army has yet got anything like a good water bottle. They are either of glass or wood. In England the troops carry the latter. If I am not mistaken the Imperial authorities have offered a reward for a suitable water bottle, one that will suit all requirements. This new invention costs something like 50 cents, I believe. It is a little heavier than the ordinary article."

Over 200 members of the Northwest Mounted Police, or about one-fifth of their number, have postoffice savings bank accounts, their joint accumulation amounting to about $25,000.

One of the small portable buildings at the Mounted Police Barracks at Regina was destroyed by fire on Saturday night.

The last of the fishery cruisers in commission, the Vigilant, was docked for repairs at Halifax on Saturday.

General Middleton says that the visit of Sir John Ross, Commander of Her Majesty's Forces in British North America, to British Columbia is purely one of pleasure, and has no connection with the Imperial fortification scheme.

His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Stanley visited the Collegiate Institute to-day. They will leave for Toronto Thursday night to attend the ball of the St. Andrew's Society on the following evening. On Saturday they will go to Hamilton, when His Excellency will open the Art Exhibition.

Done by Drink.

HALIFAX, Nov. 27.—Two revolting tragedies from drink are reported. Eliza Nixon, aged 35, wife of Thomas Nixon, blacksmith, drank herself to death, leaving a family of little children. At the coroner's inquest a woman swore that deceased drank "a pint and a half of gin a day." Last evening William Summers, an old soldier, got drunk and beat his wife. She ran into a next door neighbor's to escape his ferocity. Summers then smashed his stove and all the furniture, followed his wife and continued to beat her in the neighbor's house. This was objected to by Frank Norgraine, the neighbor, and the two men clinched. Summers got his grip on Norgraine's throat, and when he let go the latter exclaimed: "My God, I'm dying," and rolled over and died. He was a respectable man, aged 55, a native of Sweden. Summers is a drunken scamp of 35. He was arrested.

THE LATEST FROM LONDON

RESUMPTION OF THE LAND PURCHASE BILL DEBATE.

Another Batch of Evidence Concerning Outrages Given Before the Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Smith stated that if British troops were sent to Sugkim they would not be employed beyond the vicinity of the port.

Mr. Balfour intimated that Mr. Harrington, Mr. Finucane and other members of the Irish party under warrant of arrest would be permitted to attend the sittings of Parliament during the time the Irish estimates were under discussion.

The debate on the Irish Land Purchase bill was resumed and Mr. Shaw-Lefevre moved to insert in the bill a provision directing that no advance shall be made to any tenant or purchaser exceeding £2000. He urged that tenants borrowing above that sum came within the landlord and not within the peasant proprietor class.

Mr. Balfour proposed as a substitute for Mr. Shaw-Lefevre's proposal that no advance exceeding £3000 be made unless the land commission decide that a large advance, not, however, exceeding £5000, is expedient.

Mr. Balfour's proposal was agreed to.

Mr. Shaw-Lefevre next moved that no advance be given unless the tenant or his predecessors in the title had occupied the holdings for at least five years. The motion was rejected. The Government accepted a clause proposed by Mr. Healy exempting the purchaser from all liabilities for rent arrears from the date the purchase is sanctioned.

Mr. Healy then proposed a clause with the object of preventing the enforcement of purchase by threats of eviction. Rejected.

Other amendments proposed by Mr. Healy were negatived and the bill finally passed the committee stage.

The Oaths Bill Passed.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Oaths Bill was passed in the House of Lords to-day without amendment.

SICK AND TIRED OF REITERATION.

The Parnellites' Counsel Object to the Mass of Evidence Touching Outrages.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—At the sitting of the Parnell Commission to-day Sergeant Gilhooly of County Kerry testified concerning outrages. He said that an increase of police had been necessary at Castle Island.

Sir Charles Russel, counsel for the Parnellites, interrupting the witness said: "We admit all that, we are sick and tired of reiteration entailing enormous expenses."

Presiding Justice Hannen said he hoped the details would be given as briefly as possible.

Witness continuing said that since 1880 the police force had been doubled. Prior to the founding of the league in 1880 the district had been quiet. Afterwards outrages had been general. He had kept a book for recording outrages.

Sir Charles Russell demanded that the book be produced.

Sir Henry James said the book contained letters and official communications respecting certain persons and it was desirable they should not be published.

Sir Charles Russell asked: "Why should The Times counsel have access to the book and we be denied the same privilege? Until the judges rule otherwise I shall continue to call for this and every other book referred to in the case."

Mr. Reid, for the Parnellites, also urged that the book be produced. He said if counsel were not allowed to see the book they would not have an opportunity to meet the case properly.

Justice Hannen said it was highly desirable that the whole book, including a column headed "Motives," should be produced. Special entries relating to certain persons ought not perhaps to be disclosed. He suggested that Sir Henry James and Sir Charles Russell inspect the book, and then if they did not agree the judges themselves would inspect it.

Other policemen then testified at length concerning outrages. Mr. Reid suggested that in order to save time witnesses should state simply the number of outrages they were cognizant of and the period in which they were committed. Justice Hannen welcomed the suggestion and Sir Henry James promised to comply with it as far as possible.

Inspector Davis said he had discovered that there was an inner circle of the League which organized Fenians to execute the League's behests. He declined to give the name of his informant. Mr. Reid pressed him for the name and witness finally appealed to the court for protection against the question. Mr. Reid complained that his clients were at the mercy of an anonymous informer. If he had the name he might prove the informant the greatest liar in the three kingdoms. Sir Henry James said the witness might have good reason for concealing the name. Mr. Reid said he would defer the question. Witness then in answer to questions said the man who gave him the information was not in the pay of the police. He was a member of the League and had taken part in the work of the inner circles. Another person similarly situated had also informed him of the workings of the inner circles. One of the informants could be subpœnaed, but the other could not. Mr. Reid concluded his cross-examination by reading extracts from speeches made by Father O'Reardon denouncing outrages as a shame and a disgrace.

Proclaimed Baronies.

DUBLIN, Nov. 27.—The Baronies of Connell and West Offaly in Kildare have been proclaimed under the second section of the Crimes Act.

The Grasping Landlords.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Henry George in an address in London this evening said that the grasping for land in America was rapidly making that country similar to England. He wanted to utterly abolish landlordism and to grant to every child a share in the soil.

The Queer French.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The Journal des Debats and other Parisian journals ridicule the action of the majority of the Chamber of Deputies in adopting the motion of M. Mesnoeer yesterday to adjourn the sitting for an hour on account of the presence of M. Wilson, the son-in-law of ex-President Grevy. They say the members who voted for the motion evidently desired to give France a proof of the purity of conscience, austerity and virtue of the Chamber. M. Wilson, in an interview, said the incident would not have the effect of keeping him from the Chamber. He would continue the struggle no matter what action the members might take.

The New M.P. for Cariboo.

VICTORIA, Nov. 27.—Mr. Barnard, who has just been elected M.P. for Cariboo by a majority of 23, is a son of Mr. F. J. Barnard, who formerly represented Yale, B.C., in the House of Commons, and is also a nephew of Mr. J. T. Barnard of Hamilton, Ont. Cariboo is the smallest constituency in the Dominion. Its inhabitants number 7550 and the voters on the roll 489.

Failure of a Chicago Tobacco Firm.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Sues & Uhlendorf, tobacconists, assigned to-day with liabilities of $50,000.

KNOCKED DOWN AND ROBBED.

A Belt Containing $200 Taken from Adam Ambrozenvitch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Adam Ambrozenvitch, a coal miner, removed from Pennsylvania to Jersey City a week ago with his family. He had saved $200 while working in the mines, and he carried it with him in a belt. Jacob Rueskoffski, William Stonowiski, and John Laviiski, also miners, came to Jersey City with him. They all intended returning to their native land. Ambrozenvitch had a friend in Jersey City, and was staying with his family at his house until the steamer for which they had tickets was ready to sail. Saturday night he went out for a walk. At the corner of Washington-street and Railroad-avenue three men stepped from behind a building, and one of them, who he says was Rueskoffski, said in Polish: "What have you got about you?"

"Nothing. Hello Jacob!" replied Ambrozenvitch. The three men then surrounded him he says, and demanded his money. He tried to get away and was knocked down. One of the men tried to get on his body, but he slipped away and got up. All three of them attacked him then, and finally succeeded in getting him down on the ground where they beat him until he was unconscious. When he recovered his senses he found that the belt with his money had been stolen. He went to Justice Weed's office and swore out a warrant for the arrest of the three men who had accompanied him from Pennsylvania. Rueskoffski was arrested and held in default of $1000 bail. He denied knowing anything about the robbery. The other two men could not be found.

SCHNEPPER DID KILL HIMSELF.

Waited in Central Park Until 5.40 a.m., and then Shot Himself Dead.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The warning to the Park police on Saturday that Barber Christian Schnepper had gone to the Park to commit suicide did not save Schnepper. At 5.40 o'clock Sunday morning Policeman Bagley heard a pistol shot near the Arsenal, and, hastening in the direction of the sound, found a man with a wound in the right temple. Beside him was a revolver. The man died in a few minutes. He was Schnepper, who left the house of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Rose, at 71 Bank-street, on Saturday night. He took her little boy into the street, gave him his watch and other jewelry and money, and told him to give them to his mother and tell her that Schnepper had gone to Central Park.

Schnepper had a barber shop in Red Bank for five or six years. His business was good and he was prosperous and happy until about three years ago. He fell sick then, and when he was again well enough to go to work he found his skill gone. His hand was unsteady and he did not dare use a razor. He sold his business and subsequently tried to make a living by selling books and other light work. A year ago last summer he bought a kerosene oil route. He was obliged to give that up when cold weather came on. These reverses brought on the despondency which ended in his suicide. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias and other benefit orders.

THE LATEST IN TRUSTS.

Contemplated Formation of a Gigantic Railway Combine.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—A local paper says For several weeks past, Jay Gould, C. P. Huntington, Charles Francis Adams, W. B. Strong and other railroad magnates interested in Western railroads have been holding conferences in New York, in which Chairman Midgley of the Southwestern Railway Association has taken a prominent part. It has been learned that the project under consideration contemplates the formation of a gigantic railroad trust or clearing house comprising all roads between points west of a line drawn through Chicago and Milwaukee on the east, St. Paul and Minneapolis on the north, Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming on the west and Arkansas on the south. All the existing freight and passenger associations within the territory named are to be abolished and merged in the new trust or clearing house.

A Rumored Settlement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—There were many rumors current in regard to a settlement of trunk line matters to-day, but nothing official can be obtained.

Chauncey M. Depew said to-night that there is no definite plan under consideration for the settlement of the freight question. He thought, however, that the difficulties would be righted in a few days, but in answer to the many rumors of adjustment said: "I assure you we have done nothing more toward a settlement to-day than any other day this week."

Two Fatal Boiler Explosions.

POYNETTE, Wis., Nov. 27.—The boiler of a threshing machine exploded last evening, frightfully mahgling and killing Jack Tuttle and Charles York and seriously injuring Alison Cross, Ira Hall, Warren Palmer and Wm. Buckley. Mr. Buckley was the owner of the machine, and died of his injuries.

COCHRAN, Ind., Nov. 27.—The boiler in the chair factory exploded yesterday, killing Wm. Benecke, John Stark and Wm. Matthews, jr., and severely injuring Fred. Bruce, the engineer. The factory was destroyed.

Selling Type for a Wager.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Leo Monheimer and Peter Thienes set type yesterday for a wager of $250 a side, Monheimer winning. There were two stretches of three hours each, with half an hour's interval. Monheimer set 11,167 ems and Thienes 10,880, the matter being straight minion.

The winner lost 19 minutes in correcting, while Thienes lost 32 minutes and then became discouraged.

A Foundered Collier.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—The steamer Allentown, said to have foundered off Cohasset, carried her full capacity of coal consigned to Salem, Mass., parties and had a crew of 18 men. She sailed from Philadelphia Nov. 21, and was due to arrive on Saturday last. The steamer cost $250,000 and belonged to the Philadelphia and Reading Company, to whom the cargo also belonged. Nothing can be learned here of the crew list or insurance on the vessel.

Quick and Complete Destruction.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 27.—The storm has abated, much to the relief of property owners along the beach. A survey of the situation shows that no such destruction to property has ever been known since the incorporation of the city. The work of the waves was quick and complete.

Both Legs Were Cut Off.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Frederick P. Bagely, 18 years old, a native of St. Mary's, Ont., was trying to get on a freight train on the New Haven Railroad yesterday afternoon, when he fell on the track and was run over. Both his legs were cut off.

DOINGS IN THE DOMINION.

POLLY BREDIN HELD FOR TRIAL FOR BIGAMY.

The Toronto Malpractice Case—Montreal's Jack the Ripper—The St. Kitts Piracy Cases Dismissed.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—Herbert Verral, the young man who was maltreated in a west end saloon on Thursday, and who it was thought would succumb to erysipelas, was yesterday morning pronounced out of danger.

The enterprising Mr. Clarry who strove to part with his mansion at Parkdale with the aid of a $5 ticket lottery, and who was fined $20 and costs for doing so, was again in the Police Court yesterday, charged with not surrendering the books and tickets of the "Grand Villa" sweepstakes as he was required to do. Mr. Clarry obtained a remand.

J. Henderson, of Burlington, missed a horse from his stable Monday. Yesterday morning it was found at Duck's Hotel at the Humber, where the gentleman who unceremoniously borrowed it had left it.

Lilly Charlton, the victim of the alleged malpractice with which Dr. Valentine is accused, is in a critical condition, and a consultation of physicians took place yesterday afternoon. Wood, the druggist charged with aiding in the criminal operation, is reported by his attorney to be visiting friends and ready to return when wanted for trial. The girl has made a dying statement which is not to be made public if she recovers.

Fred Barber's inamorata Polly Bredin was again in the dock yesterday on a charge of bigamy. She looked haggard, and during the proceedings wept copiously. Rev. Mr. Wallace, who married her to Bredin in July, 1874, at the Queen's Hotel, testified to the regularity of the marriage, but could not identify the woman. William Thomas, one of the witnesses to the union, remembered the occurrence, but not the parties. Rev. Mr. Bredin, father of the husband, told how he met the couple a few days after the marriage, and they subsequently stopped in his house in Bowmanville. Rev. C. S. Stowith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Niagara Falls, N. Y., said he married the woman in the dock on Nov. 14 to Frederick Barber, and the marriage was solemnized according to the laws of New York and the ordinances of the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Woolnough, who lived next door to Mrs. Bredin when the latter kept the house at 182 Adelaide-street, swore that Bredin was a frequent visitor, and that when Mrs. Bredin moved to Windsor-street he was on hand at the removal and assisted in the work. Finally, Detective Slemin deposed that Mrs. Bredin had admitted to him before her arrest that she divorced herself from her husband, but that the latter was not divorced from her. Police Magistrate Denison decided that a strong case was made out sufficient to commit, but as Mr. Meredith, counsel for prisoner, desired that the case should go before the Assizes and not the General Sessions, it was agreed that until the latter are concluded the case should be remanded from week to week. Mrs. Bredin was subsequently admitted to bail, herself in $1000 and two sureties in $500 each.

A. B. Cameron, barrister, and Miss Alice Walker, daughter of ex-Ald. David Walker, were married in St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning in the presence of a large and fashionable assembly.

The case of the Queen v. Gibson was argued in the Queen's Bench yesterday. This is a crown case reserved by the County Court at Hamilton as to the sufficiency of an indictment charging the defendant with injuring one Edward Biscombe in his trade as a bricklayer. A resolution was passed in the Hamilton Bricklayers and Masons Union that no union men should work on the new City Hall building so long as Biscombe was employed. Upon these facts an indictment was laid, which the County Judge reserved for the decision of the full court. After an extensive argument judgment was reserved.

The agreement between the city and the University authorities respecting Queen's Park lease and the chairs to be endowed by the city in connection therewith was finally concluded yesterday. The agreement provides that the actions against the city shall be dismissed, thus restoring the original lease with the balance of its term, namely, 970 years at a nominal rent. The two chairs established by the city are made conditional upon the Government of Ontario spending an equivalent sum ($6000) on the salaries of professors and lecturers in the School of Science to be maintained in Toronto. The effect of this is that the city practically secures an endowment of $12000 a year for the University by spending $6000 on the two chairs selected by it.

THE WHISKY DETECTIVES.

Charges of Perjury Against Them Fall to the Ground at St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 27.—Police Magistrate Comfort this morning gave his decision in the whisky detective perjury cases. He first took up the case of John Jaynes, which also applied equally to the case of Elijah Jaynes, and also indirectly on the case of Mrs. Sherlock. All the evidence, generally speaking, was greatly modified on cross-examination, and was not sufficient to commit the prisoners. In the case of Mrs. Sherlock, although there was no doubt she was anxious to tell what she thought to be true, she contradicted herself in several instances, and he thought it was simply from her memory failing her that caused her evidence to break down when it did. He would, therefore, also dismiss her case.

Montreal's Jack the Ripper.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—When the wife of Baker Jos. Cloran of McCord-street awoke this morning at 5.30 o'clock she found a man lying on the sofa in the sitting room. She hastened to the telephone to summon the police and then demanded the man's business in her house. He suddenly jumped up and drawing a large knife from his hip pocket remarked: "I am Jack the Ripper, and if you don't keep quiet I'll silence you." Hearing a noise on the front stair the individual rushed through a rear door and escaped just as four policemen entered the house.

Ingersoll Cheese Market.

INGERSOLL, Nov. 28.—This week 14 factories registered 7575 boxes principally September and balance of season's make, the total offering being considerably smaller than last week on account of several factories having sold through the week. Yesterday 4 factories sold 2735 boxes at 11½c. Sales through the week run from 11½c to 11¼c. Market brisk, 19 factories represented, 9 buyers present. Cable, 55 shillings, Cable, Nov. 26, 1887, was 59 shillings.

The American Ejectments.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, Nov. 27.—The backbone of resistance to the Snell ejectments is effectually broken. Farmers from all parts of the disputed land were here yesterday, and five of them made settlements by which they will be allowed to resume possession of their farms. The terms made in most cases were called easy.

The Switchmen's Strike Declared Off.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The strike of the switchmen employed at the Union Stock yards because two members of the day force were appointed yard masters of the night force was declared off to-day and the strikers returned to work to-night. The matter was compromised.

CANADA AND AUSTRALIA.

A SIDNEY, Australia, paper gives an account of a lecture delivered in that city by Principal Grant, of Queen's University, Kingston. His subject was "Australia "from a Canadian's Point of View," and he had a large and appreciative audience, the Chief Justice being in the chair and leading men of New South Wales on the platform or in the hall. Principal Grant, while showing his appreciation of the land of which he was a guest, says the Toronto Empire, did not forget that he was a Canadian, and not shrink from expressing his preference for his own country, as he said: "In Canada nature suspended operation "for half the year, out here she went on all "the year round, so that they could often "raise several crops in the year. This "abundance of natural advantages was "not, however, without its drawbacks, as "physical advantages were not always for "the best. The long winter in Canada "tended to encourage the finest form of "life, home life, and the young men were "induced to study, and the people were "obliged to be hardy, thoughtful and self-"denying; and these were the virtues "which after all made a nation." He also called upon his hearers to learn a lesson from Canada, and, following our example, to unite the Australian colonies into one Dominion. He said: "The quickening of "national sentiment was a matter of great "importance, which meant in the first "place a United Australia; in this matter "they were somewhat ahead in Canada. "Another Wentworth ought to rise up here "to-day and form a united Australia on the "lines which Canada had adopted. In the "old days the Canadian provinces spent a "good deal of time in carrying out tariffs "against each other; but they had at "length emerged from this state, and the "effect had been good in widening the na-"tional character, and it had also made "them more modest, for, while they felt it "was good to be a Canadian, still the speci-"al glory was that they were and must be at "the same time Britons. (Applause.) Aus-"tralia, too, must unite; for it was impos-"sible without union to have common ac-"tion, and he would invite them to seek "for union at the earliest possible mo-"ment. From no quarter of Australia "could this proposal more fittingly come "than from this colony, and from the men "whom he now saw around him. The great "secret of the American and Canadian "strength was their internal union; for no "matter how much they might differ with "regard to external relations no one ever "dreamed of attempting to interfere with "the union between the different States. "Canada had succeeded in securing the "union of her provinces in spite of many "difficulties, and it was a matter of the "greatest importance that in view, not "only of their own interest, but of the re-"lations between the colonies, that Aus-"tralia should unite and form one nation." While thus advising them he spoke with no uncertain sound as to maintaining the unity of the British Empire, telling them "it would not be wise to break off their re-"lations with the Mother Country, as "they were too small to form a nation of "their own, and, besides, no nation had "ever risen to greatness which had not re-"spected its past, and the nation which "subordinated sentiment to money-mak-"ing was doomed. Every colonial states-"man he had met was averse to separ-"ation; but he wished to put the matter on "higher ground than either interest or the "fear of aggression, as the grip of honor "should be binding on the nation."

Again he told them "they were members "of the greatest commonwealth ever "known, yet were asked to become instead "mere Canadians or Australians." And in his concluding remarks we find him described as dwelling eloquently on the past and present greatness of the British Empire and expressing the confident hope that the Australians would never seek to sever their relations with this great and glorious Empire. Naturally, Principal Grant had some words to say in regard to the proposed closer relations between Canada and Australia, and was cordial in his invitation to his hearers thus to unite themselves more intimately with this country. He said:—"There should be "the closest possible intercourse between "the countries, and the first thing he would "advocate would be a cable between New "Zealand and Vancouver, which would not "be open to the same chances of interup-"tion as the present line. This seemed to "him to be a most natural and proper "measure from every point of view, as "cablegrams at the present rate cost far "too much. It was pleasant for a man to "be able to keep up communications with "his relations, but the tarriff now was "simply prohibitive. He hoped they would "push this through, and he hoped also to "soon see steamship communication be-"tween Australia and Vancouver. It was "one of the first duties of a Government to "see to the matter of cheap cable and tele-"graphic communication. In the next "place, trade relations should be cultivated "between Canada and Australia, for trade "was life, and he hoped that the proposed "conference between Australia and the "colonies would come off."

In several respects an advance has been made in this question since Principal Grant thus spoke, says the Empire. The steamships are already being constructed, with a mail subsidy assured to them; the survey is being made for the cable, and influential men are urging on the work; and, as to the conference, invitations have already been sent by the Canadian authorities, and there is little doubt they will be cordially received. Principal Grant has been doing good work in aiding to prepare the way for the better knowledge and closer relations that are apparently at hand, with every prospect of mutual benefit.

RECKONING THE LOSSES.

Terrible Destruction of Life and Property Caused by the Storm.

COHASSET, Mass., Nov. 27.—The damage by the fearful storm which has raged along the south shore for the past three days is far in excess of anything of the kind before known in this locality and a careful inspection of the property along the coast line from Cohasset to Windmill Point, Hull, shows it to be much greater than was indicated in yesterday's despatches. All day long wreckage of various descriptions has been coming ashore along the beach, more particularly at Sandy Cove. Huge timbers, spars, cabin furniture, fine inside furnishings, chairs, life-preservers and other articles appertaining to the steamer's outfit and many of them stamped with the word "Allentown" have been seen in the breakers off shore and found scattered along the water front. This wreckage tells too plainly that the steamer Allentown has been broken up on one of the huge sunken ledges off this port. The vessel must have gone down with all on board a very few minutes after striking.

$30,000 Damage Done at Coney Island.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.— The amount of damage done at Coney Island by the storm will probably reach $30,000.

The Cable Parted.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Nov. 27.—The cable connecting this island with the mainland has parted at the shore end and is lost.

TRAPPING A BEAR.

October the Finest Bear Hunting Season of the Year—Setting the Trap for Bruin. An Angry Animal—A Ticklish Undertaking.

Benjamin J. Jones of Cortland county, N. Y., on his way to the bear regions, near the headwaters of the Sinnamahoning creek, says he takes more solid comfort hunting bears for a month out in the wilds of Potter county than he does on his fertile farm in Cortland during all the rest of the year. In a talk with Farmer Jones he said:

SETTING THE TRAP.

"After I have selected a spot where I want to set a trap I find a fallen tree about a foot in diameter. On the trunk of the tree I place the butts of small logs, one on top of the other, just as they do in building up a log hut, and let the other ends spread out on the ground in the shape of a letter V, with the point at the tree trunk. Then I drive a nail in the log and hang the bait on it so that the bear can come along the next day, march right into the log pen with the open front, grab the bait and run off with it. Oh, no, I don't set any trap then. The bear has no difficulty in hooking the bait and making off with it, but he won't come back the next day after to see if there is any more meat around there to be gobbled up, but you can set it down as a fact that he will come nosing around again within a week as sure as he lives.

"From now until the ground freezes up is the best time to trap bears out there. Their skins are good from now on, and they can scent the bait half a dozen times further now than they can after it gets so cold that the bait will freeze. We use almost any kind of fresh meat for bait, and if it hangs till it gets tainted a little a bear will smell it when he is a mile away, and hustle around and nose about until he finds it. In cold weather the meat will freeze right up, and a bear's nostrils can't scent it ten rods away. That is one reason why I trap bears in October, and the other reason is because October is the finest month in all the year to be out in the woods.

"Just as likely as not he will make his appearance on the third day. In order to know whether the meat has been carried away or not, you have to visit the place every day. When I find that the meat is gone I place fresh bait directly under where the other has been hanging, pinning it to the ground with a crotched sapling. Then I set the trap. I place it about three feet from the bait, and in a direct line with it, making sure that the pan of the trap is toward the point from which the bear is to come. If the pan is placed toward the bait, it is more than likely that the bear will bring his foot down too near the end of the jaws, and in that case ten chances to one you will find nothing but a bear's toe or two when you go to the trap. After I have got the trap set and nicely covered with leaves, and have hitched the chain to either a small piece of timber or an iron claw a little larger than my hand, I place a stick as large as my leg across the logs at the mouth of the V-shaped enclosure, and then go away.

MAD AS A HORNET.

"Everything is now ready for him to nose around, and when he gets to the stick that lies across the mouth of the pen he will not try to push it away. He will not even try to raise it up with his nose or to crawl under it, but he will lift up one of his fore feet, throw it over the stick, and bring it down right on to the trap. Then there is some tall thrashing around, for the bear is just then one of the most astonished animals in creation, and in his wild attempts to free his foot he breaks down the bushes and tears things up generally. He is madder than a whole nest of hornets over the fix he finds himself in, but when he learns that the trap does not hold him to the spot he cools off a bit, does everything he can think of to coax the trap to open its jaws and nurses his painful foot.

"Looking for the bear after you have found that the trap has been carried away, especially when the undergrowth is dense, is very exciting. It is ticklish business, for you don't know what minute you may run foul of the bear, and, if you happen to come pat upon him, he will plunge at you and make such a noise that for a few seconds you will be almost beside yourself. If there is ever a time that a bear will fight any living thing that he gets his eye on, it is when a trap is making every minute of his life miserable. He acts as though you had something to do with getting him into the trouble, and he does his best to get square with you for it. Of course you have a good gun well in hand when you find him, and the weight of the hook on the other end of the chain keeps him from making quite as fast speed through the bushes and over the logs as you make, and you soon stop his noise with a chunk of lead."—New York Sun.

Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Dinner Sets.

Among the large job lot of crockery now being sold on Water-st., next Jas. Stevenson's office, are over 20 dinner sets at prices from $4 up, less than half what they are worth. The quality is the very finest enamelled work while the price is less than that charged for common white goods. Also 200 chamber sets, white and colored. 500 dozen dinner, tea and breakfast plates, ect. Going fast. Not open evenings except Saturday. d124eod-w48

A Quarrel and a Knife.

A couple of the employees of the Lock Works got into an altercation yesterday afternoon. One was willing to fight the disputed matter out with his bare fists, but the other produced a knife but was restrained from using it. The first man was at the Police Court this morning intending to lay a complaint against the knife-drawer, but on second thought he decided he had better let well enough alone.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111f

PERSONAL.—The lady who lost a letter on Saturday, while purchasing Tea at M. R. Kidd's can have the same by applying.

The Prize Winners.

A good audience again crowded the Opera House to witness the entertainment of the Zera Semon Novelty Company, and again they were delighted by the novel and interesting features introduced. Zera Semon in the tricks of the black art is good, and his marrionette minstrels are something that are entirely new and are most amusing. The many other attractions mentioned last night were successfully put on, and the drawing for the prizes occasioned considerable fun. A young lady would capture a bag of flour, another a ham, etc., One out of every seven tickets got prizes last night, and the drawing for the big prizes resulted in A. P. Morgan getting the silver watch, Herbert Dickson the tea set and J. E. Harris the chamber set. Tonight another performance will be given, when the leading prizes will be a gold watch and a tea and chamber set.

A NEW HUNTER-ST. HOTEL.

Mr. C. Halpin's Block Nearly Completed —An Hotel and a Store.

The building for an hotel and store being erected by Mr. C. Halpin, on Hunter-st., and which will be occupied by Mr. J. Carey, of Ennismore, is nearing completion. It is a brick building, with solid brick walls and substantially constructed. The size of the structure is 40 feet by 80 feet, and it is three storeys high, with a cellar the full size of the building. There is a kitchen 14 feet by 26 feet, also constructed of brick. The front of the building presents a good appearance. There is a porch at the main entrance formed by a recess in the wall, and a balcony over the entrance. A hall ten feet wide runs from the front to the back of the building. To the left of the hall there is a comfortable sitting room and a bar room, and to the right an airy dining room 14 feet by 40 feet. These rooms are being well finished and tastely painted and fitted up for the comfort and convenience of guests.

The main stairway is in the hall. The second storey contains a wide landing, and from this archways open out into a hall that runs the full length of the building. There is a sitting room on this flat and eight comfortable bedrooms on either side of the hall.

In the third story there is a landing and hall similar to those in the second, and nine bedrooms.

A good stable has been built in the yard. It is also constructed of brick and is 26 by 36 feet. It is furnished with stalls and will provide accommodation for nineteen horses.

The store is 20 by 40 feet, also three storeys high. It is being fitted up ready for business and the second and third storeys are arranged for a dwelling and contain ten rooms.

The whole block is well built, conveniently laid out and is being furnished in good style. James Bogue did the stone work for the building; P. McNamara, the brickwork; M. Burns, the carpentry; T. McGrath, the painting, and J. Murty, the tinning. The block will cost about $5,000.

Twenty-Five Cents Only.

Complaints have been made that some of the local cab drivers have been charging more than the law allows them to collect as a fee for a passenger. A police court case will probably be the result of a cabby asking fifty cents for one passenger yesterday.

Shooting Sportsmen.

The Gun Club will have a shoot on Friday afternoon next at three o'clock, at the Riverside Park. Peoria blackbirds will be used, and all local sportsmen who possess a gun are invited to be present and take part in the sport. A good afternoon's fun is anticipated.

340 Opera House Block.

Owing to the steady increase in the demand for Fresh Ground Coffee, W. J. Morrow has found it necessary to place in his shop a large coffee mill, manufactured by the Star Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia, and as he uses nothing but the very finest Bean Coffee and grinds daily, or as required, parties can rely on getting the finest coffees to be had in town. d112

Grand Ball and Supper.

Jubilee Lodge of 'Prentice Boys intend holding a grand ball and supper on Dec. 18th. The ball will be held in the Orange Hall, corner of George and Simcoe-sts. The arrangements are in the hands of a competent committee and an exceedingly pleasant time is expected. Visitors are expected from Belleville and other places. The tickets have been placed at 50 cent.

New Map.

We are in receipt of a very handsome map of the Dominion of Canada, from the publishing house of John Lovell, of Montreal. The map is traced from the latest surveys and shows very clearly the division of the eight provinces of the Dominion. In size it is 24x27, and in pocket book form the price is $3 25 or if mounted on rollers, $3 50. It is well executed, and thoroughly reliable. It will be given with Lovell's Gazetteer and History of Canada.

Peterborough Might Adopt the Same.

The Ministerial Association of Belleville has passed a lengthy resolution strongly urging the city authorities to enforce the laws against Sabbath desecration and condemning the flagrant and constant violation of the Lord's Day by railways, steamboats, carters, vendors of milk, etc. The milk dealers of the city have expressed a desire to give up Sabbath delivery as soon as public sentiment will sustain them.

Change in a George-st. Business.

This last week has witnessed a change in the proprietorship of one of George-sts. business houses, Mr. G. C. Clarke, merchant tailor and gents' furnisher, having sold out his entire business to Mr. W. H. Meredith. The latter gentleman has for several years past been employed as cutter in Mr. Clarke's establishment and during that time has made many friends for himself, and his work as cutter has been of such character that a good tailoring trade has been established. Mr. Meredith will carry a full stock of gents' furnishings and will, if possible, give more careful attention to the tailoring department. He will undoubtedly meet with a large patronage and we wish him success in his business venture.

His Return Visit.

In deference to the expressed wish of very many of our citizens who were unable to meet Mr. Morris, the expert optician, during his visit to my store last week, I have succeeded in arranging for another visit for Saturday next, the 1st December, which will afford the desired opportunity for the disappointed ones, and would counsel all those who value their sight to see him. His ability assures to all purchasers unequalled ease and comfort in the use of the very best spectacles, "The B. Laurance & Co.'s Manufacture," for which I am the sole agent in Peterborough and vicinity. Do not mistake the date—For one day only, Saturday, Dec. 1st. J. Flocking to Take Advantage.

Neither rain, wind nor hail appears to have any effect on the rush to LeBrun's clothing store. People are going where they can get the most value for their money, and, having learned that at LeBrun's they can get the finest of garments at absolute cost prices, are flocking to take advantage of the chance. The sale is a big success. Workingmen can now obtain greater value for their money than ever before, and this means a heap to the workingman. Every line in the store is reduced in price. Clothing, furnishings, etc., have all passed under the axe of the executioner, who has cut the prices down to a bare nothing. Will you neglect this opportunity? To do so is to throw away your chances. The great sale continues and will boom stronger than ever.

A Fine Horse Purchased.

Mr. A. P. Morgan, of the Morgan House has been on the lookout for some time past for a chance to purchase a good horse, and he has at last secured one that fills the bill. He has bought from Mr. F. W. McRae, of Beaverton, the dark bay mare Mayflower, which, it will be remembered by the local horsemen, was here at the races on the ice last winter when she done the mile in 2.34. She is about nine years old, stands fifteen and a half hands high and is classed with the 2.30's. She is a pretty, clean little mare, and Mr. Morgan and other horsemen who know her believe that she is capable of getting down into the 2.0's with proper training, and be able to trot a race with any flyer in the Dominion. However, Mr. Morgan did not purchase her so much for her speed on racing as he did for breeding, for which purpose with her record she will be valuable. This is a valuable addition to Peterborough's list of flyers.

"The Mystery of a Hansom Cab."

Publication will begin in Friday's issue of the EVENING REVIEW of a new and interesting story, "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," by Fergus W. Hume. Look out for the opening chapters and secure the story entire.

W. C. T. U. Business.

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Paton opened the meeting with the usual devotional exercises, after which business of importance took up most of the time. The success of the first "At Home" was very encouraging and the Union expects to hold another at some future date in the south end of the town, hoping by this means to create a deeper interest in their especial work.

Horse and Buggy.

It appears that Joe Johnston, the man arrested at Lindsay a couple of days ago for the stealing of a buggy at Belleville, had an accomplice by the name of Duval, who stole a horse from Thos. Calvert, near Resboro. Both men have been companions for some years past, and as Johnston had a horse with the buggy it was suspected he had stolen it, and it was subsequently learned that the two pals had stolen it from a pasture field. They both got six months at Belleville yesterday.

In Aid of Barnardo Home.

The bazaar which opened Monday in the school room of St. John's Church, is being fairly well patronized although the weather has been most disagreeable and unfavorable. It will continue all week and conclude on Friday evening with an entertainment. The bazaar is not confined to the ladies of St. John's Church alone, as ladies from all the town churches have contributed towards it. The fancy work and other articles which are offered for sale make quite a display and consist of articles of all descriptions—useful, ornamental, expensive, cheap, elaborate and plain. The proceeds are to be devoted to the Barnardo Home.

A Railway Suit.

This case came up again in Toronto on Tuesday.—Fitzgerald v. Midland Railway Co. and G. T. R.—Motion on behalf of the defendants, the G. T. R., to set aside the notice of trial, as irregular, on the ground that the joinder of issue was not filed at the hour of three o'clock on the last day for filing same, and the defendant's solicitor was informed that no issue was filed when he made enquiry at three o'clock. The joinder of issue was received that day by the officer at his house, and the person filing it was given to understand that it would be filed as of that day. The officer when he received the issue had marked "filed" on it, but had not endorsed the date, nor had he cancelled the stamp. Ayleworth supported the motion. Masten showed cause. Motion dismissed. Costs to plaintiff in any event.

After a sumptuous repast, provided by the good lady of the house, the hearty wishes of the guests were expressed for the future well-being of Mr. and Mrs. Oakman. Several presents, appropriate to the occasion, were given, and a very pleasant evening's intercourse enjoyed by all.—Star.

IMPORTANT.

We have just been advised, and we are sure the people of Peterborough will be pleased to know, that A. L. Davis & Co. have decided to put the whole of their stock of books, stationary and fancy goods on the market at cost price, commencing 1st December, and their stock, being in such good condition, the public are sure to get dollar for dollar. This sale is made necessary on account of extensive improvements which are to be made this winter in their store.

AN ENGLISH COUNTY COURT.

A Judge Describes Odd Cases of Debt Collections.

Judge Chalmers in The Fortnightly Review.

In the Urban County Court a large number of the cases consist of criminal or quasi criminal frauds which are treated as civil debts. In illustration of my meaning I will take seven instances from cases which have been before me this day on which I am writing. In three cases goods had been obtained from the plaintiff by false pretences. In the fourth a workman had obtained credit by telling the plaintiff that his wages were thirty-five shillings a week, whereas in fact he was only getting twenty-two shillings. In two more cases the defendant had been employed to collect money and had misappropriated it. In the last the defendant, a skilled artisan, had borrowed £20 from a girl he was "walking out with" to pay the arrears of a bastardy order which another girl had obtained against him. When he had got the money he "dropped" the young woman and repudiated the debt. In cases like these I take a much harder view of the debtor's means than I do in the case of a poor wretch who has been run into debt by a spendthrift wife or who has fallen into the clutches of a money lender. It is generally very difficult to learn the truth as to the debtor's means. The atmosphere of a County Court reeks with perjury, and the judge has frequently an anxious and unpleasant task. When both parties appear their statements differ widely, and the truth is generally somewhere between the two. In a case before me the other day, the plaintiff swore that the defendant had four lathes and employed sixteen men. The defendant swore that he had one lathe and was only assisted by his son and a lad of 15.

I adjourned the case for further evidence, and have not yet learned the result. When the debtor does not appear, and I do not know the plaintiff, I usually take his statement subject to a mental discount of thirty-three per cent., but occasionally I find I have been deceived. Not long ago I committed a defendant for non-payment of a debt of £4. The plaintiff described him as a builder engaged in building a row of new houses which he specified. When the warrant officer went to arrest him he found that he was a poor, old, broken-down bricklayer, 70 years of age, with a wooden leg. A good-natured builder had employed him to do some nominal work on the houses in question at a wage of seven shillings a week.

Of course I at once cancelled the warrant. The great mass of the lying, however, is done by the defendants. Many of the plaintiffs who come frequently before me are quite trustworthy. Among the most honest of them is a little German clothier, who speaks broken English. I have often had opportunities of testing his accuracy, and have never found him deviate a hair's breadth from the truth. The habitual defendants are up to every kind of trick. I dare say they get to know the length of the judge's foot, but, on the other hand, the judge often gets to know a good deal about them. One old gentleman who frequently appeared before me always represented himself as a decayed builder dependent on the charity of a married daughter.

One fine day, however, he brought an action in the High Court, and in the course of the proceedings filed an affidavit in which he stated that he had an uncharged income of £300 a year. The affidavit, the contents of which came to my knowledge, proved an expensive one to the old gentleman. When a workman is summoned his wife usually appears for him. This prevents him from losing a day's work, and, as an experienced registrar observed to me when I was first appointed, there is an additional advantage—the woman can always lie better and cry better. When the debtor's wife appears in rags and tatters, I have often been told by the plaintiff that she is dressed up for the occasion. A poor woman appeared some months ago and pleaded that her husband was out of work. I asked why in that case he did not come himself. She replied that it was because he had been obliged to pawn his last pair of boots. From the look of the woman I believed her story and dismissed the summons. In three subsequent cases the same day women came forward and told me the same story.

I disbelieved them, and the defense has not been set up again. Another day a woman told me a pitiable story of misfortune. Her husband was only doing three days' work a week, and she had four children down with scarlet fever. One she said she expected to find dead on her return. I dismissed the summons, but the woman instead of returning to her dying child went quietly back to her place in court, and seemed much amused at the subsequent cases. Either she had lied to me or the child was well insured. In the Midlands the mortality among insured children is high. Not long ago a woman appeared for her husband. She stated that he had been for some time out of work and that a fortnight before he had set out on foot for London to find employment, and that she had not heard of him since. The creditor said he believed he had seen him at work in Birmingham a few days before, but was not positive. I dismissed the case. A few minutes afterward the creditor hurried back into court to inform me that the woman's husband had been waiting for her outside the court, and that the pair were then in the public house opposite celebrating their victory.

When I have been imposed on by some specious tale of fictitious woe, I often see the defendant jeering at the unsuccessful plaintiff as they leave the court. From these cases, taken from hundreds of similar ones, it must be plain that it is frequently no easy matter to get at the truth as to a debtor's means and position. Dr. Johnson says somewhere that human nature is a d——d rascal, and there is a great deal of this human nature patent in judgment debtors. However, when the people are really poor I say but little to them when I catch them tricking me. I have an uncomfortable suspicion that were I as hard up as they are, with a wife and family to support, I might become as big a rascal as any one of them.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Nova Scotia Notes.

HALIFAX, Nov. 27.—Alderman H. F. Worrall, flour and general grocer, has assigned. The liabilities are not stated, but will be heavy. Mrs. Worrall is preferred for $35,000. Mr. Worrall has been unfortunate in business speculations, and has lost a large amount of money. His latest loss was by Miller, the absconding baker. Mr. Worrall was not only a heavy creditor, but one of his bondsmen for supplying bread to the Imperial troops. Mr. Worrall had to take over the contract, and this also involved loss. Mr. Worrall married the widow of W. L. Black a few years ago, and she was worth a quarter of a million.

Last month 2127 ounces of gold were mined in Nova Scotia. The Old Albion mine at Montague, near Halifax, is being reworked by a small company. A 200 nugget was found on Saturday and purchased by the Local Government. It will be sent to the Imperial Exhibition at London.

THE BOOK BUSINESS.

THE FINANCIAL RELATIONS OF AUTHOR AND PUBLISHER.

The Poor Chap Who Pays for His Own Plates and Printing—Press Notices—Per Cent. on Sales—The Subscription System.

No firm accepts a book and buys it in manuscript, unless it is sure that it will prove remunerative. Several of the larger firms are also publishers of monthlies. The custom is to buy manuscript that can first be used in the monthly or weekly, and then sent out in book form. In this way there is a saving in the expense of the magazine, and so wide advertisement given the story, or other serial, that it is sure to sell well when published separately. But the poor chap who pays for his own plates and printing gets very little advertising. The firm holds it to be its first duty to push its own books. It gets 50 per cent. for handling "Jones' Essays and Reviews," that handling consisting in advertising, mailing to purchasers and distributing to the press. But you may be sure that as little advertising will be done as the author will submit to endure. A sure way of determining which of the books published by any firm are its own property, and which the property of authors, is to note which receive by the firm, the most extensive advertising. If a book is very thoroughly and persistently pushed, it is owned by the publishers. Of course there is a difference in firms, and this discrimination is not often carried so far that the firm can be charged with dishonesty. But the 50 per cent. charge in reality requires, and should secure for the book, a very earnest push. Every reasonable effort should be made to get it before the public, and keep it there. As a rule it is thrust forward for a couple of months, at the most. I still allow an exception to a few firms. After that it is never spoken of by the publishers, or the slightest interest taken in it, except to alphabetically locate it in their catalogues. If it reach a second edition, in spite of their hinderances, there is seldom any note taken of it by the publisher, but his 50 per cent goes on.

Let us count up on a specie basis. A book selling for $1.50 will cost the author, for plates and printing 1,000 copies, from $800 to $900. He now owns the stock with the plates, and can do as he pleases with it. He can probably do nothing without further aid of the publisher. He hires him to handle the book. This includes sending to the press for criticism, say 150 copies. Fifty copies more will be absorbed in the way of furnishing those distinguished people whose opinions will be of value. You may deduct 500 copies from your first edition, "handled" without any cash return. But you get your press notices, sometimes valueless and nonsensical, sometimes antagonistic, but needful. Your 800 volumes left we presume to be sold, which will net $12,000; you will receive $600 toward defraying the cost of publication. In nine cases out of ten your book does not sell 800 copies in ten years. You can pocket your loss and earn your bread some other way. But if a second edition is demanded, you still leave one-half the sales with your publisher, and get out of the possible $1,500, $750. You will now be recompensed for the original outlay, and have from $300 to $400 over. The "if," however, is very large.

The other plan, whereby the publisher gives an auther ten or other per cent. on sales, is fairly and picturesquely shown up by Mr. Hawthorne. Let us look at this a little closer. A book, novel or otherwise, that is of readable value, costs not less than six months' close work. And there are a few books put on the market each year that embody the research, experience and thought of many years. Suppose a volume to have cost its writer one year of thinking, study and composing. Copying and proof reading may be added as the positive torture part of the work—the appendix of fire. He then begins to get his 10 cents a copy sold. You may take your figures from this point from Hawthorne. At the end of the first year after issue he gets $100. "Or, if the edition be the unusual one of 5,000, the author's share will be $500." My object in this article is to help to dispel the visions of aspirants to authorship. The successful novelists pocket from $100 to $500 a year. You will do much better raising onions at $1 per bushel in Connecticut bottom lands, or even corn in the river bottoms of Kansas. It is folly to fling yourself among the Bohemians with only hopes and expectations to pay your board bill. Not one author in 500 is enriched; not over one in 100 gets a competence, while with many it is out of pocket to publish.

For sure profit the subscription system offers most advantages. That is, the book by agents is carried to and urged on purchasers, while in the other cases it is left on the shelf to wait for purchasers. The subscription book often reaches 25,000 copies; not seldom 50,000 or 75,000 and in some cases of special notoriety, it passes to and above 100,000. There are many things to be said in favor of this system, but with rare exceptions it is the publisher who reap the harvest. He buys brains, and retails them in a market of his own making. It is simply a question with an author whether he can do better than make the sale. If he receive 10 cents a copy on the sale of 10,000 copies, he receives his $1,000. The custom is to allow the percentage to diminish until 25,000 copies or more are sold, and then lapse altogether.

There are many forms of contract entered into between authors and publishers of a cooperative sort. Some firms arrange as follows: The writer of a book shall pay for the making of the plates, the publisher doing the press work and binding, with advertising. In this case the author, not owning stock, receives what copies he desires for private use at a large discount, say 60 to 70 per cent., and a royalty of 15 cents on all copies sold. Of course this plan is capable of any amount of modifications. It is not likely, however, in any form, to enrich the writer of a book.

This leaves us the final, and not at all agreeable, fact that he who writes a book must seek something else besides cash returns. The equivalent is often more than sufficient in the honor received.—"E. P. P." in Globe-Democrat.

FOR BURGLARY.

A Hamilton Dry Goods Clerk Arrested on a Serious Charge.

HAMILTON, Nov. 27.—John James Jarvis, a good-looking dry goods clerk, who has been working for James Shea for about three weeks, was arrested this afternoon on a serious charge of burglary. Jarvis is a well-dressed young man about 21 years old. He was formerly employed by J. L. Mader, a dry goods merchant in Attwood, a small town in the county of Perth. He worked there off and on for about two years, but left four or five weeks ago to accept a more lucrative position in Listowel. One Sunday night about a month ago he returned to Attwood and went into Mr. Mader's store without getting his permission. Jarvis retained possession of some keys which enabled him to get into the premises. He was caught in the act of going through the safe, but the level-headed person who detected him allowed him to escape out of the back door. That was the last seen of Jarvis in Attwood. Mader got a tip from a commercial traveler that the young man was working in a store here, and Constable Struthers was sent to hunt him up. He arrived this morning, and in company with two detectives went to the store where he was employed and took him in charge.

Judge Sinclair to-day granted a summons to quash a conviction in a liquor case against John Berlinghoff and H. R. Hall. The defendants were fined $40 by the police magistrate for keeping their bar-rooms open during prohibited hours. The case will come up for argument on Dec. 10.

M. Wilson Sits Again With the Deputies.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The Senate has adopted the commercial convention between France and China.

In the Chamber of Deputies Gen. Boulanger's election from the Department of the Nord was declared valid.

M. Wilson was again present in the Chamber of Deputies to-day. The deputies did not suspend the session as was done yesterday to manifest their displeasure at his presence.

The council of the Grand Orient Masons have decided to take part in the demonstration at the grave of the revolutionist Baudin on Dec. 2.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

To All Whom it May Concern

IN THE TOWN OF PETERBGROUGH.

It is not necessary to send away from your own town to buy Waterproof Horse and Waggon Covers Lap Rugs, &c. Encourage local industry when you can buy as cheap and cheaper, and better, and by doing so you help to build up your own town and have the money in circulation.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Miss's' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1888.

THE LAST DAY IN JANUARY

FINALLY FIXED FOR THE MEETING OF PARLIAMENT.

The Stanley Wasn't in the Storm—Confusing Geographical Nomenclature—The Chaudiere Lumber Cut.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—At the meeting of Council yesterday it was decided to call Parliament for the despatch of business on Thursday, Jan. 31.

The anxiety felt about the new Government steamer Stanley, which it was feared had been caught in the recent storm, has been allayed by the receipt by the Marine Department of a cable message from Glasgow stating that the steamer was only handed over by the builders to the agent of the department on Saturday, and was expected to sail from Greenock yesterday.

Sheriff Hathaway of Clark County, Mont., arrived here yesterday for the purpose of getting the warrant for the extradition of George Goden, or Coden, a French half-breed who escaped from Helena Jail while under sentence of death for the murder of an old settler named Embody. Goden was captured by the Northwest Mounted Police and is in jail in Edmonton. The police will receive a reward of $300 for his arrest. Sheriff Hathaway left for Edmonton last night.

The Commissioner of Inland Revenue will probably order another analysis of milk to be made shortly. The department is at present analyzing baking powders and lard.

In a letter received by a gentleman here the school instructor of the Oka Indians who removed a few years ago to the Township of Gibson, Muskoka district, reports that the crops have been very good. There is plenty of work on the reservation and wages are high.

Dr. Montizambert, medical officer at Grosse Isle quarantine station, is in the city. He says that the number of cases of infectious disease dealt with at the quarantine station were about the same as last year. The new regulations which went into operation in 1887 are working admirably and producing the most satisfactory results. Dr. Montizambert states that it is not uncommon for him to have yellow fever cases at Grosse Isle. Last August he believed some convalescent cases arrived at Grosse Isle. The patients were landed and kept in the hospital until well and the vessel was thoroughly fumigated. In regard to the scheme of building a landing at Grosse Isle on the plan of that at New Orleans for disinfecting clothes and bedding, Dr. Montizambert says he is still inquiring into the subject and he will very likely recommend that the New Orleans plan be not adopted and that the construction of the landing be put off for another year. He has studied the whole question in the United States and is convinced that it is possible to get some better system.

A deputation representing the Dominion Land Surveyor's Association had an interview with the Minister of Interior yesterday with reference to geographical nomenclature in the Northwest. They pointed out that the same names for lakes and rivers were repeated over and over again, which made it very confusing. Mr. Dewdney promised to take the matter into consideration.

The lumber cut by the Chaudiere mills during the past season is estimated at about 500,000,000 feet which is somewhat in excess of last year's cut.

The contract for harbor works at Penetanguishene has been awarded by the Public Works Department to Porter & Reed of Wiarton.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau's health does not improve, and some of his friends are urging another trip to Paris, but he scarcely feels strong enough to undertake a sea voyage at this time of the year.

Commander Bolton of the Bayfield has presented to the Marine Department his report on the survey of the Georgian Bay conducted last summer in the entrance to Collingwood harbor and a portion of the bay near Owen Sound.

Mr. A. M. Burgess, Deputy Minister of Interior, who has been on sick leave for three months, will resume his duties on Jan. 1, by which time it is expected his health will be entirely restored.

NO LAW TO FIT THE CASE.

A Woman Arrested in Montreal for Wearing the Attire of a Man.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—A woman named McKeen was brought before the Chief of Police yesterday charged with going about dressed in men's clothes. She came from below Quebec some six months ago and hired out as a gardener to a gentleman in this city and has been working there ever since. She has occupied the same room with the coachman who yesterday morning made the discovery that she was a woman dressed in man's attire and had her arrested. The Chief discharged her as he could find no law under which he could hold her. She says that she left her husband because he threatened to kill her and she was dressed in men's clothes in order to obtain employment.

Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, Nov. 29.—Shortly before noon yesterday a scaffold on which several men were working at a house in process of erection, gave way and Marshall Kirkendall, a painter, was thrown to the ground, a distance of about 20 feet. His jaw was broken and he sustained other painful injuries. The other men saved themselves by jumping on the roof of the bay window.

J. D. Barnes of Philadelphia, Supreme Chief of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, instituted a lodge of the order here last evening.

A painter named Pollit took a fit at the top of the main staircase of the Masonic Building yesterday morning, and tumbled to the bottom. The fall cured his fit and he was able to walk home.

TIMELY LONDON TOPICS.

KING MILAN'S GAMBLING ENTERPRISE FORBIDDEN.

A Clever Royal Surgeon—Serious News from Suakim—Emperor William's Illness—The Queenstown Governorship.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Prince Louis Ferdinand of Bavaria, who married the Infanta Paz of Spain, is a very clever surgeon, and in one of the hospitals at Madrid recently operated on a woman suffering from cancer of the breast with complete success. His relative, Duke Charles Theodore, of Bavaria, the brother of the Empress of Austria, is both an oculist and a surgeon, and very skilful. But his fondness for the knife is not appreciated at the Vienna and Munich hospitals, for whenever he operates all regular arrangements are upset, and the whole staff is required to be in attendance on him. He must always be respectfully addressed as "Your Royal Highness," and strict etiquette is observed, all of which is decidedly a nuisance. When the Duke is at Vienna he often passes his whole day at the general hospital, and if any arms or legs are to be cut he hastens joyfully to the work.

King Milan, who is fearfully short of money and whose credit is utterly exhausted, has been obliged by the emperors of Russia and Austria to relinquish the plan which he had formed for refilling his coffers by establishing public gaming tables at Belgrade. As the wealthy nobles of Hungary, Austria and Russia would inevitably have become the earliest victims of his Servian majesty's roulette and rouge et noir tables, the two emperors have peremptorily forbidden the enterprise.

News from Suakim increases in seriousness. It is admitted that the present garrison is unable to drive off the besieging force. Suakim itself cannot be taken, for the causeway by which it must be approached is commanded by British gunboats, but neither can the native entrenchments be carried, nor their fire silenced. There is talk of sending more British troops to Suakim, and questions are asked in the House of Commons, Mr. Stanhope said troops would certainly be sent if needed, but no more than were needed to dislodge the rebels.

Lord Randolph Churchill's advice to Lord Salisbury to appoint a successor to Lord Sackville forthwith has been declined with thanks, so Mr. Smith's answer to Mr. Gourley in the House of Commons was understood to signify. But there is some feeling on the matter, and some sound Tories interpret his answer as meaning no more than that Lord Salisbury has not yet made up his mind. Lord Randolph, I hear, considers it so important that unless something is done he will call the attention of the House to the subject. The House has really nothing to do with sending diplomatists abroad, and if Lord Randolph speaks it will be to put pressure on the Government indirectly. Many member of the House agree with him, and the Opposition may be trusted to back him up if he wishes to be disagreeable to the Prime Minister. There is outside the House very little interest in the matter.

The Duke of Marlboro's quarrel with the rector of Woodstock has drawn forth a letter from the rector. The Duke, he says, has not closed the schools and has no power to close them. He has withdrawn his subscription, but it was only $50, not $500 as reported. He has forbidden the rector to give religious instruction in other schools, which seem to be under the duke's control. Finally he has withdrawn the rector's privilege of driving through Blenheim park. The rector, it must be said, put himself in the wrong originally by assuming to pronounce against the validity of the duke's recent marriage. Whether the duke could not afford to ignore this is a question which perhaps can only be answered in Woodstock.

The Duchess of Sutherland's death is sincerely regretted, but socially will have little effect in London, except that of putting a number of families into mourning. Stafford House has rarely been opened of late. The Duchess has for many years had not only the respect, but for reasons widely known, the deep sympathies of society. The duke's absence at such a moment, the circumstances of his journey and his companionship are commented upon with severity. The Queen's journey to London and visit to the family are a striking proof of her friendship for the late Duchess.

There have been sundry reports in court circles here of late that Emperor William is suffering from an acute attack of his chronic trouble, a swelling inside the ear, about which the doctors are much alarmed. It keeps him awake almost continually, and drives him to constant occupation for relief. His odd way of turning up at sunrise drills, and his strange activity in rushing from one function to another all day, are thus accounted for. On Sunday one of the people best informed in England on inner Berlin news told me that he had become worse during the last few days and it is announced that owing to a cold he will remain indoors during the rest of the week. If the ear malady should take a serious turn there would be immense excitement all over Europe.

There is a rumor in the lobbies that Lord Balfour of Burleigh is to be Governor of Queensland, in place of Sir Henry Arthur Blake, who will be forced to resign in the face of the Irish protest.

CUT HIS THROAT.

A Letter to Two Witnesses in His Pocket—Walter Strong Will Not Die.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—George Strong, 47 years old, a waiter by occupation and an Englishman by birth, tried to kill himself at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by cutting his throat with a razor at his lodging house, 54 New Chambers-street. Thomas Cassidy and Charles Broad, who lived in the house, and Thomas Gorman of 18 Cherry-street told the Oak-street police that they were all in Strong's room when Strong caught up a razor, the blade of which was tied to the handle by a string, and drew it across his throat. After notifying the police they found the following note:

"Dear Tom and Charley: God Bless you both. I am starving for hunger. I hope the Lord will forgive me for this. George Strong."

On the other side of the sheet Strong had written:

"Mr.——has Being the Care of all this, but I forgive him."

Strong is said to have a wife living in England. The police noted "despondency" as the cause of his attempt at suicide. He was taken to the Chambers-street Hospital, and will probably recover.

Belleville Briefs.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 29.—An expert is examining some of the Mazinora gold mines in the interest of an English company.

Thos. Gordon, who left Millbridge on Sunday night on his way to a shanty, was the next morning found drowned in a creek.

Thos. Minor was yesterday remanded until Monday on the charge of stealing $33 and a bank check from his employer, John Matthewson. The money was stolen from the pocket of Mathewson's vest which he had hung up in his office.

Yesterday afternoon while Mr. F. Pymer was working over a spirit lamp it exploded, burning his face very badly.

ONLY TWO BIG HOLES WERE FOUND.

And 1000 Pounds of Nitro-Glycerine, a Team and a Magazine Vanished.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 29.—A shock like an earthquake was caused by an explosion of nitro-glycerine at the Van Vleck Magazine, one mile north of Pleasantville. "Doc" Haggerty, employed by the Torpedo Company, whose factory is situated on Hemlock Run, ten miles above Warren, left the factory early in the morning with a load of 1000 pounds of glycerine in cans for the Van Vleck Magazine. He passed through Pleasantville about 11.30 o'clock. Half an hour later the explosion was heard.

A party left at once for the magazine. At the place where it had stood they found a great cavity in the hillside, and just in front of this where the team had stopped with the load was another hole twenty feet square and ten deep. Not the slightest trace of Haggerty was found. About two hundred yards away a few small bits of horse flesh were picked up, but not another vestige of the team, driver or magazine remained.

Haggerty lived at Hemlock and leaves a widow and six children. He was an experienced driver, and it is thought that rough roads caused the disaster, although another theory of the explosion is that in unloading the nitro-glycerine Haggerty dropped one of the cans.

A schoolhouse about a quarter of a mile from the magazine was completely wrecked and the dwelling-house of a man named Gutshaw was shaken to pieces, and Mrs. Gutshaw, who was looking out of the window, was fatally injured by flying debris. Trees, rocks and earth were hurled in all directions. Luckily for the people of the village the magazine did not contain the usual amount of nitro glycerine.

WIDDEMER CHOOSES HIS WIFE.

He Could not Keep Her and His Pastorate too, so He Threw up the Latter.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—By the terms of the sentence imposed upon the Rev. Howard T. Widdemer by Bishop Whitaker, the clergyman was practically obliged to choose between keeping his wife and remaining in the Protestant Episcopal Church. He has now decided to accept the former alternative, and on Friday last he sent the following letter to the Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania:

"NEW YORK, Nov. 23, 1888.

"Right Rev. O. W. Whitaker:

"I desire hereby to withdraw from all connection with the Protestant Episcopal Church, in order that I may feel entirely free to continue the Lord's work in whatsoever direction his providence may seem to point. Please accept this letter as a final and absolute severance on my part of all relations with the above named church.

"Very truly, HOWARD T. WIDDEMER."

The charge upon which Mr. Widdemer was found guilty by an ecclesiastical court and sentenced by the Bishop was the violation of the church canon upon marriage and divorce. It was shown that he had been divorced from his first wife in Hartford, Conn., on April 11, 1882, upon a charge of desertion, and that on Nov. 1 of the same year he married again, the first wife being then living.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

A Philadelphia Woman Convicted of Poisoning Her 9-Year-old Daughter.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Sarah Jane Whiteling, who has been on trial for the past three days on a charge of causing the death of her 9-year-old daughter Bertha, by administering poison in April last, brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree last evening.

[The crime for which Mrs. Whiteling was tried was one of a series of three with which she is charged, the allegation being that she not only murdered her daughter Bertha but also her husband and their baby boy, aged 2 years, and collected insurance on the lives of her victims amounting in the aggregate to $3500. The defence at her trial was insanity.]

Indignation at Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 29—Three new cases of yellow fever were reported here yesterday, no deaths. There is great indignation over the refusal of the Board of Health to issue a proclamation allowing the return of refugees to the city. Hazen, a returned New York refugee who has been residing at Burnside Beach of late, came to town yesterday and was arrested and fined $100. He refused to pay the fine and now lies in the city jail. On the other hand one or two refugees are known to have come in on yesterday's Northern train and no notice of the fact was taken by the police.

The Haytian Blockade.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The Secretary of State has received a telegram from Cape Haytien stating that in spite of the blockade declared by the provisional Government at Port au Prince against that port several ships have entered, among others the German steamer Holsatia on Nov. 22, which loaded 10,000 bags of coffee, and the German steamer Cremona, which entered on Nov. 27, and landed a cargo from Europe.

The Crew Probably Drowned.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Nov. 29.—The steamer Nickerson has arrived and reports having "picked up" on Middle Bank yesterday the schooner M. & A. Morrison of Shelburne, N. S., which had been abandoned. She was dismasted and waterlogged, only the bow and after house are above the water and her hatches are off. The fate of the crew is a mystery, but they were probably washed overboard during the gale.

Sympathy from a Sister Republic.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The Secretary of State has sent the following telegram to the Chancellor of the Swiss Confederation at Berne: "By direction of the President I make expression of the sorrow felt throughout the United States for the death of the honored head of the Swiss republic."

Rioting Pennsylvania Miners.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Nov. 29.—Two gangs of Russian and Italian miners, between whom there has existed a bitter feud for months, met on the streets of Mount Carmel yesterday, and for an hour a bloody riot followed. Several on both sides were stabbed, and the injuries of three of the men may prove fatal.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—The bronze bust of John McCullough, the dead tragedian, in the character of Virginius was unveiled at Mount Moriah Cemetery yesterday afternoon in the presence of a distinguished company of members of the histrionic profession and friends of the actor.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The Conference Committee representing the lines east and west of Chicago, having under consideration the division of rates on through traffic, adjourned yesterday subject to the call of the chairman.

An Overdue Steamer.

CHARLESTON, S.C., Nov. 29.—The steamer Gulf Stream, which sailed from New York for Charleston on Friday last, has not been heard from.

A Grand Trunk Brakeman Injured.

COPETOWN, Nov. 29.—A brakeman named Fred Grafton, while coupling cars at the Grand Trunk Railway station here Tuesday night, got two of the fingers of his left hand badly smashed. His foot slipped while in the act of coupling, which caused the accident.

HEALY HATES HASTINESS.

HIS AMENDMENTS TO THE LAND PURCHASE BILL ACCEPTED.

But He Objects to the Third Reading and the House Adjourns—Mr. Harrington Not to Be Arrested at Present.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—In the House of Commons last evening Mr. Balfour said that Edward Harrington would not be arrested under the pending warrant against him during the debate on the Irish estimates.

Mr. Smith announced the withdrawal of the Tax Bill.

The debate on the Irish Land Purchase Bill was resumed and Mr. Mahony (Nat.) moved the insertion in the bill of a new clause to the effect that the Land Commission shall take as security for the payment by tenants of their instalments the improvements executed by the tenant or his predecessor on his title.

Mr. Balfour opposed the motion on the ground that it would introduce great confusion, and also because it was against the interests of the purchasing tenant.

The motion was rejected.

Mr. Smith, the Government leader, appealed to the House to assist in closing the discussion on the bill. The Government, he said, was desirous of meeting the Opposition as far as possible and would accept the series of amendments proposed by Mr. Healy relating to subletting to laborers and also the provision that the Land Commission shall not sanction an advance of money to a tenant unless they are certain that the application of the tenant was not made under duress. The Government also intended to promote the bill dealing with the registration of titles.

Mr. Morley and Mr. Shaw-Lefevre both expressed themselves satisfied with these concessions and Mr. Smith thereupon moved that the bill be read a third time.

Mr. Healy, however, objected on account of undue haste and the House adjourned.

Henry George on the Land Purchase Bill.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Henry George, in a speech at Glasgow last evening, said that the feeling of the country was against buying out the Irish landlords, if it was good to use the national credit to enable countrymen to buy their own land, why was it not good to use the national credit to enable townsmen to buy their house?

What "Roaster" Means.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Several witnesses were examined before the Parnell Commission yesterday with reference to outrages in the Castle Island district, County Kerry. Maurice Kennedy, a farmer, reluctantly gave evidence regarding the proceedings of the local league of which he himself was a member. He had heard the word "roaster" used at meetings of the League but did not know its meaning. Mr. Shannon, a Dublin solicitor who is assisting The Times, testified that Kennedy told him that the local league had a list of roasters hung up in the office. Roaster meant a turn-spit for roasting or boycotting landlords. The people were forbidden to work for men whose names were on the list of roasters.

The Plan Failed.

DUBLIN, Nov. 29.—The efforts of the tenants on the Marquis of Conyngham's estate at Glenties to carry out the plan of campaign has failed and they have accepted a reduction of five shillings. Their demand was for a reduction of eight shillings.

European Disarmament Impracticable.

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—In the Reichstag yesterday the debate on the budget was resumed and Herr Liebknecht (Radical) attacked the foreign policy of the Government and suggested that it ought to propose a general European disarmament.

Herr von Boetticher, Prussian Minister of State and Imperial Secretary of State for the Interior, declared that the suggestion was impracticable. Prince Bismarck, he said, had never provoked a conflict—on the contrary he steadfastly sought peace. The Federal Governments were well aware that the social legislation of past years has not removed all evils, but they would have been held forgetful of duty if they had done nothing. Their endeavors had been to remedy the evils singly. The Government cast back upon the Socialist party the charge of pursuing a policy of aggravation. It was the desire of the Government to reconcile antagonism and promote the welfare of all classes.

Papal Questions.

ROME, Nov. 29.—The Vatican has received hundreds of telegrams inquiring whether the Pope intends to quit Rome. Cardinal Rampolla has replied to the Nuncios abroad that nothing has been decided upon.

An inquiry has been addressed to the German government through Baron von Schloezer as to whether the Emperor William's silence with reference to his visit to the Pope is to be interpreted as an indication of coolness between Germany and the Vatican.

German Distrust of Austria.

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—The Cologne Gazette alluding to a reported difference between Prince Henry of Reuss, the German ambassador at Vienna, and Count von Taafe, the Austrian Prime Minister, says that Germany regards with ever increasing disquiet the growing strength of those Austrian parties which are at heart hostile to the German alliance. The Post, discussing the situation in Austria, expresses fear that the influence of Germany is seriously threatened and that the alliance is imperilled.

A New Australian Industry.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 29.—Ferret breeding is a new and highly profitable branch of farming in Australia and New Zealand. One firm has commenced business on a large scale, and has contracted to supply 14,000 ferrets per annum for three years to the government at $2 a head, the creatures being delivered when three months old. The stud of this particular firm consists of 200 ferrets and 30 rabbits, and the milk of three cows is required every day for their food.

Burglary at Stouffville.

STOUFFVILLE, Nov. 29.—Early yesterday morning someone entered the house of Rev. Mr. Percy of this place and stole a pair of pantaloons and $30 in cash. No trace of the burglar can be found.

Burned in His Cabin.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 29.—The facts regarding the death of Stephen Shelby who was burned to death in his cabin on the fifth concession of Yarmouth, are such as lead to the impression that deceased had while drunk overturned the lamp, which set fire to his cabin, consuming it and him also.

NEW STATES.

THE Congress of the United States which assembles March 4th next, under a Republican President and with probably a small Republican majority in both branches, will be called upon, says the Montreal Gazette, to consider the important question of the admission of two or more new states. Dakota has long been knocking at the door of Congress. Montana and Washington territories are also applicants for admission, and so far as population and preliminary state organization are essentials to representation at Washington, they are likely to be established. The Republican party is favorably inclined to the demands of the territories in the belief that the new state delegates to the House and Senate will be of their political persuasion, and that the Republican strength in Congress and in a Presidential election will thereby be increased. Already deputations from Dakota have been urging upon General Harrison the advisability of calling a special session of the fifty-first Congress to arrange for the immediate admission of that territory to the rights of statehood, and an effort to create a public sentiment in favor of this proposal is to be made. South Dakota has already formed a constitution and elected state officers, a legislature and senators. It is proposed that North Dakota shall take the same action this winter under authority from the Territorial Legislature to meet in January, and that the other territories, where the favorable attitude of the Legislature-elect is not so certain, shall hold conventions to declare the supposed wish of their people for statehood, and to set the machinery of agitation at work. Democrats in the territories are equally favorable to their admission to full state rights, and are urging President Cleveland to dish the Republicans by his party taking favorable action in Congress this winter before his term expires. There is, however, a doubt whether Dakota will be divided into two states, and whether either party can be got to heartily support the demand of the other territories, as the Eastern members are jealous of the growing power of the of the west, and hestate to give Dakota twice as much power in the United States Senate as New York or any other of the Eastern States. However, the Republicans are pledged to the admission of Dakota, have a party advantage to gain therefrom, and as General Harrison was the father of the division movement in the Senate, it is probable he will favor her admission as two states.

CANADA'S DAIRY INTEREST.

MR. W. H. LYNCH, of Danville, Que., is a well-known author of pamphlets and letters upon dairying subjects. He has given much time to the study of dairy matters, practically and scientifically, and is well informed in regard to dairy interests.

Mr. Lynch has recently returned from Europe, where he made a careful study of dairy methods and practices in Great Britain and on the continent. The information he obtained he is embodying in a series of articles, which will no doubt be of interest and value. The dairy interest in Canada is a very important one and one upon which any information will be welcomed that will guide those engaged in it. These letters have been copyrighted by Mr. Lynch, and by an arrangement made by the REVIEW they will be published in this paper as they are prepared and furnished by the author.

The first of the series is given in this issue of the REVIEW upon "Canada as a Dairy Country." The subjects of the other articles will be "Canada's Status in the English Market," "Among the British Dairy Farmers," "Among the British Importers," "Butter Packages for Export Trade," "Lines of Possible Improvement," "What the Danes Have Done," "A Model System of Milk Supply," "Dairy Schools," "The Normandy System of Marketing," "New Ideas Learned from Foreign Practices," "A Dominion Organization Needed," "Government's Place in the Work," "Need of Private Enterprise," "England as a Future Market," "Something about Unique Holland," &c.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Wandering Jew to Sail from England To-day—A Suspected Murderer.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—Robert Huegan, who a short time since had his foot crushed in the works of Messrs. Inglis & Hunter, will have to lose it to-day.

Roland Gideon Israel Barnett, whose connection with the frauds perpetrated on the Central Bank occasioned a hurried leave-taking from the city, and who was subsequently arrested and held in London, Eng., sails for Canada to-day in charge of a Scotland Yard detective.

Geo. Gowland, who carried on a jewelry establishment at 191 King-street east, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of insanity and lodged in No. 1 Station. Gowland's mind is undoubtedly deranged.

A boy named William Case was arrested Tuesday evening at the Union Station for trespassing. Yesterday morning Case told the magistrate that he ran away from his home in Rochester. The authorities of the Flour City will be communicated with. Case told a detective that he stole a sum of money from a Rochester merchant to pay his railroad fare.

The Mining Commission, appointed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature, held a sitting yesterday in the Agricultural Department's offices. John Charlton, M. P., presided, and associated with him were Archibald Blue, Hamilton Merritt, William Coe and Prof. Bell, of the Dominion Geological Survey. Mr. Blue conducted the examinations of A. J. Cattenach, solicitor for the former Silver Islet Mining Co., Thomas Ledyard, another mining expert, J. D. Dewar, J. A. Proctor, Geo. A. Shaw, David Boyle and Prof. Galbraith. Mr. Boyle thought a school of mining instruction like the Columbia School of Mines should be established here.

William Williams admitted to the larceny of a coat from C. Martin & Co. yesterday. One prior conviction was entered against Williams, who was sent to the Central Prison for six months.

Lilly Charlton was very low last night and there is no hope of her recovery.

Detective John Cuddy yesterday afternoon brought to Police Headquarters Eddie Lake, whom he captured in Union Station. Lake was slated as a vagrant. He is a well-known crook, and will be remembered as the party who about a year ago was tried with George Stone for shooting at Mr. Wallace Nesbitt. Stone and Lake were charged with burglarizing Mr. Nesbitt's house at Stanley-crescent and Grosvenor-street, and were surprised and fired the shot. Stone is now doing a term, but Lake was acquitted and ordered to leave the city, which he did but returned yesterday. The detectives think that he has just come from Detroit, although he claims that his last place of residence was Montreal. A patrolman was murdered in Detroit Monday, being by burglars it is supposed, and if Lake is just from that city he may know something of the crime.

VICTORIA AND FEDERATION.

Lindsay District Declines for Various Reasons to Accept the Allotment.

LINDSAY, Nov. 29.—At a convention of the Lindsay district in the Cambridge-street Church yesterday, after a most exciting discussion this resolution, moved by Rev. Foster McAmmond of Fenelon Falls, and seconded by Rev. W. D. P. Wilson of Janetville, was finally carried:

"That whereas the Conference special committee has allotted to this district the sum of $2485 to be raised for the federation scheme, it is the opinion of this convention that the amount is out of all proportion to the financial ability of the district, and while we fully accord to the Secretary of Education the right under General Conference authority to collect by personal subscriptions throughout the district for the federation scheme, we do not feel as a district that our present financial circumstances and the attitude of our people generally towards the movement would justify us in accepting the allotment laid upon the district."

FIRE AT SARNIA.

The Alexander House Completely Gutted Late Last Night.

SARNIA, Nov. 29.—The Alexander House of this town caught fire about 11.30 last evening. Fire was first discovered near the roof in the back part of the building and an alarm was quickly given. All the guests and employes had plenty of time to get out and save their personal effects. The building being a frame structure burned very rapidly and the inside of the building is completely gutted. A large quantity of the furniture was saved in a damaged condition. It is believed to have been insured but details cannot be obtained at present.

HIS TRUNK WAS MISSING.

A Montreal Commercial Traveler Loses $6000 Worth of Jewelry Samples.

MONTREAL, Nov. 29.—Arthur St. Jean, commercial traveller for Alfred Eaves, wholesale jeweler, has returned from a three weeks' trip in the Eastern Townships, during which he had with him two valuable trunks, each containing over $6000 worth of jewelry. When St. Jean came to Waterloo from Sherbrooke on Tuesday of last week he missed one of his trunks, and since then every effort to find it has been fruitless. One supposition is that it was stolen and smuggled over the line.

Indians Killing Cattle.

FORT MCLEOD, Man., Nov. 29.—There is considerable complaint among the stockmen of the Little Bow district about prowling bands of Indians that frequent that part of the country. It is absolutely certain that these Indians are killing cattle, more particularly young calves. They get permits to go down there for game. Those who know the country say they cannot get enough to keep them alive, and, that their real object is to kill cattle. Any action that Commissioner Herchmer can take to protect the cattle on these isolated ranges will be much appreciated by the cattlemen.

A Painful Accident.

BRIGHT, Nov. 29.—A painful accident occurred yesterday at Plattaville. While working at the large brick building now being erected by Mr. Jones, the scaffolding gave way precipitating James Bond from the third story on to a pile of bricks, breaking one leg. Other serious injury is feared.

Suicide of an Old Pensioner.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

CROCKERYWARE

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &C.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

W. J. MASON,

Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Apprentice and Foreman.

An assault case was before the Magistrate this morning, Zotique LeFleur charging Jas. Craig with having assaulted him. It appears LeFleur is an apprentice in Craig's shop and was making a noise and using improper language in the workshop when Craig struck him several times. The Magistrate said, although a foreman had no right to strike an apprentice, still under the circumstances he would not find the accused guilty.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 85 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

A Good Stand.

The grocery trade in Peterborough has had an addition to its list of first-class businesses recently, Mr. John Braden having opened a store is the new block on Hunter-st., just east of the Post Office and next to Muckleston's hardware establishment. The store has been nicely fitted up and will undoubtedly prove a good stand. It has been stocked with a complete line of groceries, canned goods, etc., and Mr. Braden will undoubtedly receive a fair share of patronage, as he is no novice in the business and will handle nothing but satisfactory articles.

Hunting for the Wretch.

Constable Adams and Mr. Frank Fairin, who went up north last Saturday to see if any trace of the wretch who raped the little girl last week could be found, returned home last night without having been able to find the slightest trace of the man. They visited all the lumber shanties away out back of Minden, but no track of him was to be found. They felt satisfied that the suspected party is not in that locality and it is just possible that he has taken some other direction. Mr. Fairin did not go as a special constable, but just from an anxiety to catch such a miserable excuse for a man if possible. Constable Adams and himself had a pretty hard trip and are both pretty well fagged out.

Capture of the Gold Watch.

The Zera Semon Novelty Company had a fair house last night considering the disagreeable weather. The entertainment was good throughout, as usual, a great deal of fun and amusement being provoked by the marrionette ministreis. The prizes again occasioned quite a scramble. The gold watch was captured by Edward Lynch. There will be valuable prizes again to-night.

Geo. Williamson, of Hastings, was in town yesterday, and without much effort on his part was enabled to get pretty full before the shades of night fell upon the earth. That Railway Suit.

The following case came up in Chambers before McMahon, J., of Osgoode Hall, Toronto, yesterday:—Fitzgerald v. Midland Ry. Co. and G. T. R.—Motion on behalf of the defendants, the G. T. R. served by plantiff on the 20th day of November inst., with the copy and order of said notice of trial, upon the ground that the same was irregularly and prematurely served in that at the time of the service of said notice no joinder of issue had been filed in this action, and that the pleadings were not, in fact, closed. Aylesworth supported the motion, and cited Broderick.

His Return Visit.

In deference to the expressed wish of very many of our citizens who were unable to meet Mr. Morris, the expert optician, during his visit to my store last week, I have succeeded in arranging for another visit for Saturday next, the 1st December, which will afford the desired opportunity for the disappointed ones, and would counsel all those who value their sight to see him. Sullivan & Co.'s Clean Sweep.

To achieve success in anything requires two things. First make your plans, then carry them out. That is precisely what M. Sullivan & Co. are now doing. They have planned a big, sweeping, clearing sale. They are now carrying out their plans. A critical look through the stock decided that the store was crowded with goods. Something had to be done and a clearing sale was inaugurated, commencing on Saturday, Dec. 1st. This will be no petty running off of a few lines just as a bait, but a veritable sweep—a winning sweepstake for all who patronize it. You will buy during the holidays, then why not buy now? Why not buy next week? Why not buy while this sale continues? Bring your common sense to bear on the question and take advantage of a good thing when you hear of it.

Removed to New Premises.

We are pleased to note that the branch of the Port Hope Knitting Works located here is meeting with great success. They have removed from Simcoe-st. to 382 George-st., lately occupied by A. McNeil. The shop is divided into three departments. The first department is that of ladies' and children's underwear, hoods, mitts, hootees, etc. The next is for hosiery. In this department you can find all qualities from stockings heavier than home made to silk. The next is for gents' and boys' underwear, socks, etc., and the back shop is being fitted up to accommodate the hosiery knitters. The entire shop is most admirably fitted up and we bespeak for the branch a still greater trade in he future than in the past.

Entertainment at North Smith.

The annual meeting of the patrons of North Smith cheese factory was held yesterday afternoon. After the business meeting was over, tea was served at 5 o'clock and then an entertainment was held. Prof. Robertson, of the Guelph Agricultural College, was present and the entertainment was an immense success. An excellent and lengthy programme was presented and Prof. Robertson gave a short address, in which he did not confine himself particularly to dairying, but adapted himself to the occasion and made an appropriate speech. Mr. J. B. Stratton, M.P.P., was also present and made a few remarks. The closing of the factory's business could not have taken place under more pleasing circumstances.

An Old Settler Dies in his Chair.

The news was brought to town last evening that Matthew Bell, of the township of Smith, had died very suddenly in the afternoon. Mr. Bell was a man who was widely known and much respected, and the news met with many expressions of sorrow. It appears that the deceased gentleman had just finished his mid-day meal and was sitting in his arm chair, when the hand of death struck him down. It is not known what the medical men stated to be the cause of death, but it is supposed it was apoplexy. Mr. Bell was sixty-eight years old, and came to Smith with his parents about sixty-five years ago, on lot 17, in the 9th concession of Smith. His father was a native of Yorkshire county, England. He was a gentleman who was universally respected throughout the county. His wife survives him, and he leaves two children, Thomas N. Bell, who resided with his father, and Mary Jane, who is now Mrs. Bredin, of Lakefield. Mr. F. J. Bell, Division Court Clerk in Peterborough, is a nephew of the deceased. The funeral will take place tomorrow at 2 p.m.

MEETING OF CREDITORS.

The Disposition of the Estate of Thos. Menzies under Consideration.

For some weeks the financial difficulties in which Mr. Thos. Menzies, stationer of the town has been surrounded have been a matter of public comment. It was known that for some time he had been heavily involved in difficulties growing out of the banking business which he carried on. Some short time ago he decided to place himself in the hands of his creditors and instructed Mr. W. H. Moore, his solicitor, to call a meeting at which the creditors could be met and if possible matters arranged and in event of this not being done the estate placed in the hands of an assignee. Transacting, as Mr. Menzies did, practically a banking business the matter of his difficulties assumed more of public character than ordinarily and we give the following somewhat extended report of the meeting.

The meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon and was largely attended by creditors and local legal men representing clients.

Mr. Moore made a statement to the meeting of affairs as they stood after a general examination of the books and papers. Mr. Moore said that the unsecured liabilities amounted to about $19,000, the assets of stock in the store as taken to $14,000 and book debts—all collectable—to $300. The real estate owned by Mr. Menzies, and assumed to be worth $18,200 was covered by mortgages to the amount of $14,500. Mr. Menzies was desirous of paying every creditor and proposed to do so if he had time, but this he, Mr. Moore, thought not practicable. It was desirous to get from the meeting an expression of opinion as to whether the creditors would accept a proposition in the shape of a compromise or would they insist on an assignment being made. It would be well to remember that the stock in the store included a lot of goods very old and which if placed on a forced sale would bring only a small amount. Any expression of opinion they had been able to get placed the value at about 30c. on the dollar. Mr. Menzies was desirous to give up everything to his creditors. He had lost during the last few years over $15,000 in various unremunative speculations.

In reply to a question from a creditor Mr. Moore said Mr. Menzies was not in a position just then to say what he would do. In reply to another question it was stated that Mr. Menzies and dropped between $4,000 and $5,000 at the time of building the O. & Q. Railway.

Mr. J. Burnham on behalf of his clients asked if Mr. Menzies could not make an offer. Mr. Moore replied that there was nothing in particular to realize on except the stock. Mr. Menzies was willing to take hold of the stock and do the best he could. In this event it was necessary to have the consent of all creditors.

Enquiry was made by Mr. Geo. Edmison, representing several creditors, as to how the loss had been made, and Mr. Moore read a statement showing items of losses at various times during the last 12 years. After the foregoing statement was read. Serious losses had been incurred during the last 5 years.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall asked if Mr. Menzies had not received money on deposit during the last 5 or 6 weeks, at a time when Mr. Menzies must have known he was in serious difficulties. Mr. Edmison also made enquiry in the same direction.

After some explanations and discussion as to the probable cash value of the real estate Mr. Moore said he thought as favorable an outcome as possible would be that Mr. Menzies could pay 25c. on the dollar, in and by 18 months hence.

Mr. Edmison urged that a fuller and more explicit statement of moneys received and paid out was required and due the creditors. It would appear that deposits to the amount of nearly $10,000 had been made during the last few years. Where, he asked, was the money paid in by depositors?

Mr. Moore replied that payments had been made, in the course of business to those drawing out money.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson ventured his opinion that matters would look up much better than expected. He had confidence in Mr. Menzies, that while unfortunate he wished to do everything in his power to repay creditors.

In a conversational way enquiries were made and answered relative to whether or not Mr. Menzies knew he was going behind. Mr. Hall denied that any money whatever had been paid to his firm by Mr. Menzies during the last few weeks.

Mr. Edmison urged that any payments made up to within a month ago should be refunded. Several creditors here threw in remarks relative to individual transactions.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson, as a creditor, said he was satisfied that Mr. Menzies had put no money out of the road. He had just simply gone behind.

In reply to an enquiry Mr. Moore said that the real estate comprised the Homestead in town, a dwelling house at Mount Forest, some farm lands and lots and other properties, the value of which was assumed by Mr. Menzie at $29,000. This valuation was, competent opinion had decided, too high. In fact careful estimate placed the cash value at $18,200. Against this there were mortgages to the amount of $14,500. A first mortgage had been taken some 10 or 12 years ago. Subsequently other incumberances were placed to the amount of nearly $8,000, in all $14,500 as stated. There was, he assumed, from the examination made, about $5,000 or $6,000 liabilities against the stock.

From a local stationer present the opinion was taken that the stock would bring on sale en bloc about 25 cents to 30 cents on the dollar, and a Toronto creditor expressed himself as willing to go a trifle higher.

Mr. Stevenson, after a review of the circumstances, favored turning the stock into money, and if possible placing it in Mr. Menzies' hands to sell. He could realize on it inside of six months or a year.

Taking the cash value of the stock at from $4,000 to $5,000, and in addition the value of the real estate over liabilities on the same, it was figured out that a payment of 25 cents on the dollar could be made. A remark being made as to the nature of the security afforded by the real estate for the amount on mortgage, Mr. Moore said that the people who held the mortgages would be glad to be relieved. The homestead, while mortgaged for more, would be hassled over to any purchaser for $10,000 and the mortgagor would be glad to get it.

After some further discussion it was suggested on behalf of Mr. Menzies that time be allowed in which to make an offer. This was met by the objection that what was to be done should be done on the spot. The creditors who not all present were largely represented. Delay might add to the known amount of liabilities while the assets available would certainly grow no larger. The proposition to appoint a receiver and continue sale of the stock, retail, was not favorably entertained. It would take too long a time to realize anything, it was contended.

Mr. Burnham pointed out that any proposition should come from Mr. Menzies to the creditors, not from the creditors to Mr. Menzies, who should make some statement of what he was prepared to do.

Mr. Moore asked for a week in which to consider the affairs of the estate and reach a definite conclusion as to what could be done.

This was objected to, and Mr. Deyell enquired as to what foundation Mr. Menzies had for stating to him, Mr. Deyell, that he, Mr. Menzies, was perfectly solvent and could pay three dollars for every dollar he owned.

Mr. Menzies replied that he, (Mr. M.,) was mistaken at the time.

Mr. Moore held a short conference with his client and made the proposition that Mr. Menzies showed pay the preferred claims in full (some $400), and pay creditors 22½ cts. on the dollar in cash, in 30 days.

This drew out some discussion and comment on the value of the stock. Mr. Hall figured it out that the estate was worth at least 40c. on the dollar.

Mr. D. W. Dumble was asked by several creditors as to his opinion of the state of affairs and replied that the best thing to do was to accept the compromise which should be as large as possible. The expenses of an assignment would seriously cut down the amount available for payment on account.

The feeling seeming to be in favor of an assignment being made, Mr. Dumble suggested that a vote be taken and moved "that the creditors who would prefer to accept a cash payment of 25c. on the dollar, in preference to an assignment signify their wishes by voting yea and nay."

Mr. Jas. Stevenson seconded the motion.

The expression of opinion by creditors could hardly be called a full one, but quite a number voted in favor of the motion. No vote was given in favor of an assignment being made.

Matters were at a standstill for some time during which several enquiries were made in reference to what had become of some $8,000 advances made on the security of the real estate during the last 3 years. The only definite fact forthcoming was that it had all disappeared among the general business transactions.

The proposition to pay creditors 25 cents on the dollar was again discussed. Mr. Moore, for his client, could not consent without time to consider. In default of a definite statement on behalf of Mr. Menzies that the payment would be made, several gentlemen urged that an assignment be at once made, or at least executed with the provision that if a satisfactory proposition was not reached that it be carried out in a few days.

Mr. Moore was urged to say that 25 cents on the dollar would be paid, but he pointed out that he should require to consult friends who might come to the relief of Mr. Menzies. A conference was held in the inner office to determine what the prospects were, and in the interval many of those present withdrew.

After some time it was understood that nothing definite should be settled, but that Mr. Moore would advise creditors of any tangible proposition that could be made, the question of an assignment being left over.

Live Stock.

The Montreal Gazette of Tuesday says: The total exports of cattle for the season of navigation now closed were 60,504 head, against 64,631 in 1887, 63,932 in 1886, 61,947 in 1885 and 57,288 in 1884. The total export of sheep were 45,528 head, against 36,027 in 1887, 93,855 in 1886, 39,401 in 1885 and 62,959 in 1884. At the Montreal stock yards, at Point St. Charles this morning, the receipts of cattle were large for this season of the year, there being about 600 head on the market which were all butchers' stock, and the market was over supplied with cattle. The export season from this port is over and the offerings of this class will likely be light for some time. In regard to cattle this morning business was quiet, in fact there was little enquiry and as there were few on the market little trade was accomplished. There was a large attendance of local cattle dealers, but the demand was slow owing to the stormy weather and the market was dull with little business doing. The bulk of the stock was left over for next market day. Prices were steady all round. Good export cattle may be quoted at 4½@4¾c, medium do at 3½@4½c. Good butchers cattle sold at 3½@4c, medium do at 3¼@4¼c and culls at 2½@2¾c per lb. live weight. The offerings of sheep and lambs were light for which there was little enquiry and the market was quiet with only a small volume of business at 3½@4c per lb. live weight. Now that the cold weather has set in the receipts of live hogs are falling off considerably and will likely continue so as dressed hogs are coming in fairly well. However, what few were offered sold at 5½@6½c per lb. The supply of lambs was light at $2.50@$3.50 each. Calves were scarce at $4@$8 each as to quality.

The tooth of a harrow made a fearful gash in his hip, but otherwise he escaped more serious injuries. Dr. Coughlan was sent for and dressed the wound.—Star.

A PRINCIPAL AND LADY TEACHER ENGAGED.—A special meeting of the School Board was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening to fill the vacancies in the teaching staff of the public school. Present, all the members, Mr. Gordon in the chair. The Board had 24 applications in the junior department. All the applications were read and after due consideration, Mr. Graham moved, seconded by Mr. Smith,—That Miss A. Sherin be engaged at a salary of $225 per annum.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Cochrane, seconded by Mr. Graham,—That Miss L. McDonald be engaged as teacher of the junior department at a salary of $250 per annum.—Carried. For the position of Principal fifty-three applications were received and read, after which Mr. Smith moved, seconded by Mr. Cochrane,—That the Board accept the application of Mr. W. J. Campbell, of Keene, as Principal for the year 1889. Mr. Dench said that Mr. Campbell had not sent in his application. Mr. Smith replied that Mr. Campbell had made a personal application and had seen a majority of the members of the Board. Mr. Abbott expressed himself as dissatisfied, and thought Mr. Campbell should have made application in the proper way, and have sent testimonials. Mr. Cochrane said he had heard a great deal about this matter, and wished it to be understood that no hole and corner meeting had been held, but Mr. Campbell had endeavored to see all the members of the board, but was unable to do so, and had secured the support of a majority of the members, and on the strength of that support promised, had resigned his present position as teacher at Keene. The motion was then put and carried. The Board then adjourned until their regular meeting in December.

OUR DAIRY INTERESTS.

HOW CANADA'S BUTTER EXPORT TRADE HAS FALLEN OFF.

Mr. Lynch's Second Letter on the Dairying Interest in Canada—Cheese v. Butter—Success of the Former—A Great Future for the Butter Trade.

(Published by permission of the Author.)

In Canada's resources, developed and undeveloped, the field, the forest, the fishery, the mine, manufactures and commerce, all occupy no mean place. It is, however, no depreciation of the other resources to say that both in actual results and in future promise, the first named stands highest in importance. Our exports are an illustration of this fact. In 1887 our agricultural exports amounted to more than half of the total exports. The industry which, by virtue of exports, is second in importance is that of the forest, and the exports of the latter were less than half those of the field. In round millions of dollars, our total exports, in 1887, were as follows:

The field	$41,000,000
The forest	20,000,000
Fisheries	7,000,000
Mines	4,000,000
Manufactures	3,000,000
Furs	2,000,000
Miscellaneous	1,000,000
Total	$78,000,000

In this classification I have made a departure from that of the trade and navigation tables. In the "field" (agriculture) I have included "animals and their products," except "furs," which I have classified separately.

These figures, striking as they are, do not fully express the relative importance of agriculture. Among the considerations which emphasize that expression are the following: 1. The forest products exported are more nearly in a raw state, like deals, planks, etc., and do not represent the employment afforded that field products do, the latter including such products as cattle, cheese, butter, grain, etc. (2.) Forest products belong only to the new phase of the country, and must wane with its development, while the field is the present backbone and the future promise of the country; and our highest prosperity in the future will be contingent upon its best and continuous expansion and improvement, which both are possible.

Now, an analysis of the exports of our most important and valuable agricultural resources will show there is one special branch of the industry which overtops the other branches, even as agriculture itself stands higher than our other resources. We exported in 1887 in round million dollars:

Cheese and butter	$ 8,000,000
Horned cattle	6,000,000
Barley	5,000,000
Wheat	4,000,000
Peas	2,000,000
Flour	2,000,000
Horses	2,000,000
Eggs	(nearly) 2,000,000
Sundries	10,000,000
Total	$41,000,000

The dairy exports here stand highest of all. Indeed, they exceeded our combined exports of sheep, fruit, bacon, hay, oats, hides, potatoes and wool! They were nearly 20 per cent. of all the agricultural exports and over 10 per cent. of our total exports.

These facts indicate, so far as exports have any meaning, that the dairy is a factor in our industrial economy which is second to no other. It is such a factor in a sense not indicated by figures, for milk production rather than being unduly exhaustive to the soil is favorable to a system of cultivation which will help to renew the fertility of soil already impoverished by grain cropping. It is the Canadian experience that the intelligent production of milk and the skilful manufacture of its products, brings prosperity to the agriculturist.

The manifest advantages of dairying, and the large place it has in our industrial economy, bespeak a condition of things favorable to the future prosperity and progress of the country.

Unhappily, a further analysis of our dairy exports will greatly modify any self-congratulations. While in a general splendid expansion and rapid growth of our exports, our dairy products, as a whole, have kept pace with the most important of our other exports, one of these dairy products has been steadily falling behind in a most marked degree. The years 1872 to 1887, which increased our total exports from 61 to 78 million dollars, or 22 per cent., increased our cheese and butter exports from $5,500,000 to $8,000,000, or 48 per cent; while our butter exports, instead of showing that balance of increase, have actually fallen off from three and a half millions to one million dollars, or no less than 73 per cent.! It, of course, follows that the exports of cheese must have had an almost phenomenal expansion, in order to have given the combined exports so good a showing as they have made. And the actual increase of our cheese exports has, indeed, been something striking. From less than two million dollars in 1872, they have grown to over seven million dollars in 1887, an expansion of about 296 per cent.!

The actual reputation abroad of Canadian cheese, compared with what it was before the trade began to assume noticeable proportions, is a flattering confirmation of the conclusions which naturally follow from a study of the above figures. At one time Canadian cheese was exported under an American brand, to give it a better hold upon the English market; to-day it is to be feared that shrewd Americans know too well that American cheese will sell better in England if put upon the market as Canadian. The reputation of Canadian cheese is now second to none, and the success of the Dominion in cheese production has already awakened considerable enquiry as to our methods among our competitors. Both in Denmark, the present butter country par excellence, and in Holland, the premier country for milk productions and dairy exports, I saw indications of a disposition to study the reasons of Canada's success. Incidentally I might remark that for four years the south-western counties of Scotland have been steadily improving the quality of their cheese under the personal instruction of Canadian cheesemakers, who are introducing the Canadian system. The first season the canny Scots were content with the importation of one instructor; but now they are not satisfied with less than two of our best men, whom they secure in the most practical, business-like way, by liberal remuneration for what they find to be exceedingly valuable service.

On the other hand, the actual reputation abroad of Canadian butter to-day, compared to what it was at one time, is of a less flattering character. Indeed, it is a question which has fallen off the most, our exports of butter (which we have seen has gone down 73 per cent.) or our reputation for making it!

So much for the past of our dairy industry. What is its possible and probable future? To myself, in spite of the discouraging aspects of one branch of our enquiry, the outlook is hopeful.

First—The country is remarkably well adapted for dairying. The success of the cheese industry is abundant proof of adaptation for the production of milk, and of one at least of the milk products. Our failure in butter exportation is not necessarily proof that the country is not adapted for butter production. The quantity of butter which we export is small in proportion to what we consume at home. The Canadian people are light consumers of cheese, but heavy consumers of butter. Our butter consumption is to a very considerable extent of an exacting character, and it absorbs a larger proportion, if not nearly all, of the very best portion of our whole make. Local prices for the best of our butter are usually sufficiently high to force the exporter to handle quantities of cheaper and inferior butter. One butter maker within a mile of my writing has sold no butter for years at less than 20 cents per pound. He always has "his price," and a few years ago his price was 25 cents per pound. This butter has usually been sold directly to some of the many consumers always on the lookout for good butter at any reasonable price. Doubtless not a single tub of it ever found its way into the exports, for the reason that it was always spoken for, and usually at figures which forbid its export. The person referred to has just sent one tub to a Montreal family, whose head writes that it is "very fine butter." One tub has gone to Kingston, Ont.; one goes to Ottawa, and the balance is spoken for by a Montreal retailer. There is nothing exceptional in this instance, it is merely illustrative of a condition of things which bears upon the question of the grade of our whole butter production.

Again, the faulty condition of butter in a foreign market is not always a proof that the butter was devoid of quality when first made. It may not have been packed to provide for the trying conditions of its subsequent handling. It may have been unfairly tested in its transportation or by speculative "holding."

As a matter of fact, in every province of the Dominion, and very likely in every country, more or less butter has been and is being made, which would be considered fine in any market. It is unlikely that in Ireland itself better butter can be made than in our own Prince Edward Island—equally green and beautiful. "Gilt-edged" butter may be made almost anywhere in maritime Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, with their rich marshes and grassy slopes, kissed by Atlantic sea breezes. Quebec has its Eastern Townships, the very name of which is synonymous with the best butter of the country. It has, too, its Kamouraska district, which though it has shipped enough bad butter to spoil the best reputation, did it in spite of cattle, grasses and atmosphere which have produced some, and might have produced more, of the finest milk and butter in the world. Ontario being more of a wheat-growing country, has had less of the advantage of having made butter-making in some degree a specialty, but it is not to be doubted that in every one of its rich counties excellent butter has been made, though tons of it have been spoiled by bad mixing and store packing. As for our glorious Western heritage—the prairies—there may be some parts of it lacking the abundance of pure water essential to the production of finest butter, but they are probably only a small proportion of the whole, and where there is water there are the added advantages of superb dairy cattle, rich, sweet prairie grasses, nature's purest air, cool summer nights, and, let it be added, a people of enterprise and intelligence, the pick of every where. If Canada does not take first rank as a dairy country, it will not be because she is not favored by nature with all the essential conditions of grasses, water, climate, etc.

Doubtless there are districts in Canada, because of natural conditions or circumstances, not so well adapted for butter as for cheese production. This may be true of some of our wheat growing water-scant Ontario counties, or some of the rich low clay lands of our Quebec parishes; but these districts will confine themselves more closely to cheese production, as a profitable specialty, making butter only in a supplementary way, and mainly for consumption more or less local.

Second.—The genius of the people of Canada is equal to the special needs of successful dairying. Here I have touched upon an important factor of success. Natural advantages, though necessary to completest success, are almost less than half the battle. We are coming more and more into days of skilful competition, in which intelligence, enterprise and skill will play the fullest part. Scientific investigation, to discover nature's secrets; experimental work, leading to perfection of method; ingenious inventions, to perfect necessary appliances; originality and push in enterprise—all are necessary to success in the strong competition already upon us. In pushing to the front in cheese making, Canada has shown herself peopled with a race possessed of the necessary qualifications for success. The growth of the cheese industry, if carefully studied, will be seen to be not an accident nor a sport, but a real growth, due to the intelligent enterprise of the people most intimately connected with that growth. It is the united action of the pioneers of the industry in Ontario, in association, assisted, in a moderate degree only, by the Government, which gave the first impetus to what is now our great factory system of cheese-making. Quebec followed closely upon Ontario, and now other provinces are on the move. The cheese industry is now so well in hand that there can be little doubt of such steady progress that the Dominion will lead all competitors in the race.

The good judgment of the Canadian cheese makers is well indicated by their temper on the question of the adulteration of cheese. All the plausible arguments to greedily resort to the tempting profits of robbing the milk of its cream, and substituting something cheaper, are always met by a unanimous, even impatient opposition by our associated cheese makers. The wisdom of this disposition becomes more and more apparent in the ever improving reputation of our cheese in Great Britain. In a recent official examination of, I think, nearly 300 samples of Canadian cheese in England, not one was found to be adulterated.

In butter production, while there are no evidences of marked success, while there are rather evidences of failure, the genius of our people must be equal to the needs of the situation, even as it was in the case of cheese production. But the people should set themselves at once and heartily to the task. What has been done already in this connection will show that the temper of the people is for improvement and progress, but not enough has been done and not enough attempted. I do not claim that the task is a light one; I claim, only, that the genius of the people is equal to the need, if it will assert itself here as it has done elsewhere. What action must needs be taken, it is not within the scope of the present writing to discuss.

The agencies which are already working for improvement of dairying in Canada are, mainly, the following:—

The Western and Eastern Dairymen's associations of Ontario, and the Dairymen's association of Quebec, have been more than all else instrumental in building up our great cheese industry, and making it what it is. The Ontario Creameries' association, of recent organization, is promising of much help to the butter industry. The Nova Scotia Dairymen's association is a live organization, and for about five years has done good pioneer work. There is an association in Manitoba, of whose practical work I cannot speak from personal knowledge. The Ontario Agricultural college, at Guelph, has made a good beginning with its work in creamery, but it doubtless has its best work yet to do. It is now doing good experimental work, and perhaps better lecture work outside among the farmers, and the head of this department has abilities of the highest order, which fit him well to do a great work for general Canadian dairying. The Dominion experimental farm at Ottawa has not yet put itself on the record of things accomplished, but it may be made to do a most important and much needed service in the line of experiment and education. Canada has an excellent agricultural press, which has done and is doing a grand work educating its readers. The ordinary newspaper itself is keenly alive to its own power to reach and impress the masses in the direction of improvement. The Dominion and some of the provincial governments have made a beginning by circulating dairy literature specially prepared. As the writer of some of the pamphlets issued I am glad to have substantial evidence that it has one good work.

In view of our natural advantages, the genius of our people, what has already been attained, and an awakened disposition throughout the country to make a greater progress, there is surely reason to hope for the dairy industry in Canada a great future.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fanuels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

REPORTED MAIL ROBBERY

AN ENTIRE WESTERN POUCH FOR OTTAWA MISSING.

Executive Clemency to be Exercised in the Case of Murderer Kehoe—The Atlantic Mail Service.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—It is understood that His Excellency has decided to exercise executive clemency in the case of Kehoe, now under sentence of death in Montreal for the murder of Dogherty, and that the death sentence has been commuted to imprisonment for life.

In the case of Webb, who pleaded guilty of the murder of his wife in Brandon, Man., and of a British Columbia Indian named Tsimappore, which have been under consideration, the law will be allowed to take its course.

Captain Labelle, M.P., had an interview with Hon. C. H. Tupper, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, this morning and urged the placing of two new lighthouses on the St. Lawrence opposite Sorel. He also wants some dredging done at the entrance to the Richelieu River.

A deputation of seed merchants, consisting of Messrs. Bruce & Evans of Hamilton and Mr. Briggs, representing the Steele Company of Toronto, had an interview with Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs to-day, and urged that millet and Hungarian grass seeds, which are now charged 15 per cent. ad valorem duty as agricultural grass seeds, be brought under the order-in-council declaring ordinary grass seeds as free from duty. The Minister promised to take the matter into consideration.

There is no truth in the reports which have been circulated that the Government is throwing obstacles in the way of intending exhibitors at the Paris exhibition next year. The Dominion Government have simply decided not to be officially represented at the exhibition, but private exhibitors are, of course, at liberty to do as they please.

J. F. Wood, M.P., was here to-day. He said it is intended to push the construction of the New York, St. Lawrence and Ottawa Railway, chartered last session to run from Ottawa to Brockville or to a point between Brockville and Westport on the Brockville, Westport and Sault Ste. Marie Railway.

It is reported that some three weeks ago a mail from the west consisting of registered and unregistered letters was either lost or stolen in transit to Ottawa, and that no trace of it has so far been found. Mr. French, Postoffice Inspector, refused to give any information about the matter.

He Was a Hustler.

MONCTON, N. B., Nov. 29.—The other day a young mechanic left Berwick in the cars of the Windsor and Annapolis Railroad for Kentville. At Waterville he stepped from the cars for his bitters and tarrying too long at the cups was left behind. Under the pressure of a little extra steam he at once started in pursuit of the cars, and after running two miles overtook them at Cambridge, and there resuming his seat went on his way rejoicing.

SOCIETY SADLY SHOCKED

THE GREAT SIR ROBERT WALPOLE'S NAUGHTY HEIR.

Miss Vallery Weidemann's Suit for Breach of Promise—The Case Comes to a Sudden End.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Society has received another distressing shock by the announcement that the heir of Sir Robert Walpole, the celebrated Prime Minister of the first and second Georges, and the future Earl of Orford, has been sued for breach of promise. The case was called in the Queen's Bench division. The plaintiff, Miss Valery Weidemann, brought the suit against Capt. Robert Horace Walpole for breach of promise and for libel, claiming £1000 damages.

Not many months ago Capt. Walpole and Miss Corbin, an American lady, were quietly married in Paris, and from subsequent events it is presumed that the affair was conducted privately owing to Miss Weidemann's avowed intention of making trouble for the groom.

The principal witness was Miss Weidemann herself. She is a bright, freshlooking blonde, the daughter of a North German pastor, and a person of education and refined manners. Although subjected to sharp interrogations she told her story in an impressive manner. She testified that Capt. Walpole met her in 1882 at the Hotel d'Angeleterre at Constantinople, where she was employed as governess to the proprietor's daughters. He met her at dinner one night and made her acquaintance, much against her will. He paid her marked attention for several days after that, and finally asked her to marry him, at the same time forcibly kissing her. She angrily left him and when she returned from the opera that night she did not notice that the bolt catch on her bedroom door had been removed. She sat at the window a few minutes before she knew that Walpole was at her side. She ordered him from her room and tried to ring the servants' bell, but he forcibly restrained her, and, after convincing her that he loved her sincerely, he finally accomplished his purpose. Next evening he dined with her, and as an earnest of his intentions he placed his signet ring on her finger. She has it now, though Capt. Walpole made repeated attempts to recover it. Next day he persuaded her to go to Cannes, and gave her £100. On arriving there she met his mother, but when she spoke of her supposed engagement, Mrs. Walpole told her the captain was only a friend, and that he would be ruined if he did not marry a rich girl. Mrs. Walpole contrived to have her put out of the hotel. Capt. Walpole then sent a friend—Capt. Darlington—to her to take her to Paris, where he promised to meet her. At Paris Walpole told her to meet him in Berlin, but when she arrived here she found that he had no intention of meeting her. She then went to her brother-in-law's in Germany, where her child was born in 1883.

The witness admitted by implication that when she heard of Capt. Walpole's intended marriage she sent to Miss Corbin the following note:

"I shall meet you one day, and you will bear my curse to the d——d end of your existence. This for marrying a man you have no right to marry."

Capt. Walpole will deny the promise, and plead that if it was made it was in Turkey, where no action is maintainable. He claims that the signet ring was stolen, and the letter which he wrote his agent accusing her of theft is the basis for an action for libel, which Walpole will plead as privileged.

A Verdict for the Defendant.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The case of Valery Weidemann against Robert Horace Walgrole, the heir presumptive of the Earldom of Welford, for breach of promise, was continued to-day. The plaintiff contradicted herself and declined to answer vital questions. Finally the jury interfered, the trial was stopped and a verdict for the defendant was rendered.

A Triple Tragedy.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—Details of a horrible outrage, murder and suicide come from Nevada, Mo., to-day. The outrage and murder were committed about eight miles west of Nevada, the victim being Miss Ella Wray, aged 21, the daughter of a widow lady and belonging to one of the best families in that section. Yesterday Miss Wray accompanied George Corb, who taught the district school and boarded with Mrs. Wray, to the city. Corb returned last night alone and informed a brother of Miss Wray that the girl had been dragged from the buggy and murdered by two unknown men. The body was found in a clump of bushes near the roadside, the young woman's throat having been cut from ear to ear. Corb was placed under guard and during the night committed suicide by taking poison, thus escaping lynching. The coroner's inquest developed the fact that the girl had been outraged and then murdered.

The Strikers in the Soup.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 29.—The railroads have filled the places of the striking switchmen, and the strike is claimed by the company to be practically over. The companies have refused to treat with Grand Master Switchman Sweeney, as he is regarded as a disturber. At the railway superintendents' meeting concession to the strikers demands was unanimously refused. The latter hope to receive aid from the firemen and engineers.

Arrested on Suspicion.

BUFFALO, Nov. 29.—David McAuliffe and Wm. Smith were arrested here last night on suspicion of being implicated in the robbery of Joseph Mills & Son's hat store at Hamilton, Ont., Sunday night. The men were trying to sell Persian lamb caps that had Mills' name stamped inside, and they were immediately taken into custody. The authorities here notified Chief McKinnon of Hamilton of the arrest, and he instructed them to hold the men.

Cleveland Had a Popular Majority.

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—The Herald says Cleveland had a plurality of 79,500 of the vote cast for president, the totals being Cleveland, 5,569,990; Harrison, 5,490,491. These figures, however, are only approximate, and the official returns may somewhat alter them. The entire vote thrown was 11,285,825, or about 1,250,000 over the vote four years ago, when Mr. Cleveland had a plurality of 62,683 over Blaine.

A Rebuke for Sir Morell.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—At a council meeting of the British Medical Society a resolution was passed deprecating the publication of the details of the late Emperor Frederick's sickness as a violation of professional confidence. The council accepted the regrets of the editor of the society's organ concerning the publication of them.

Slaughter of Caribou.

QUEBEC, Nov. 29.—The annual slaughter of caribou in this section has commenced. Hunters just returned to the city report that they were very successful, and that the caribou are more than usually abundant but hard to get at, as there are only eight or ten inches of snow yet in the woods.

AN M. P.'s BREACH OF TRUST.

The Holborn Division of London Elect a Conservative.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Robert Gent Davis, M. P. for the Kennington division of Lambeth, was committed to prison on Tuesday for contempt of court in failing to pay £3778 due by him as administrator of his uncle's estate. He appeared in court to-day and offered to apologize and to refund the money. The judge, however, refused to interfere, and the order of arrest was handed to the sheriff for execution. Davis' debt was subscribed by Tory members of Parliament to prevent the disgrace of the arrest of a member for a breach of trust.

In the House of Commons to-day Timothy Healy asked what steps Mr. Smith, the Government leader, intended to recommend the House to take regarding the charge against Mr. Davis of using money received in a fiduciary capacity.

Mr. Smith denied the existence of any proof to justify him in asking the House to pronounce judgment on Mr. Davis.

Edmund Robertson (Lib.) reminded the House that the expulsion of a member should be decreed for a breach of trust, and he asked if Mr. Davis' conduct did not amount to that.

Mr. Smith protested against hasty action in a matter affecting the character and honor of a member.

Mr. Healy intimated that unless the Government acted in the matter he would move on Tuesday next that a writ be issued for an election to fill the seat now held by Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis has been imprisoned.

Mr. Bradlaugh moved to adjourn the House in order to call attention to the continued imprisonment of Mr. Moroney in Kilmainham jail for contempt of court under the Coercion Act. He said that Mr. Moroney was suffering in health and becoming insane. He represented that bankruptcy proceedings had been used with the view to compel Mr. Moroney to divulge certain things which Mr. Moroney refused to divulge. Mr. Bradlaugh maintained that his refusal although illegal was morally justified and that Moroney ought not to be punished by indefinite imprisonment.

Mr. Balfour and Sir Richard Webster contended that the Government had no power to order the release of Moroney. It was his own fault if he refused to purge himself of his contempt.

After a long debate the motion was rejected, 195 to 159.

A desultory discussion on the Ashbourne Act then followed and finally the bill passed the third reading, 202 to 141.

During the evening a report reached the House that Lord Compton, the Gladstone candidate in the Holborn district of London, had been elected. When the news was received the Gladstonian members stood on their benches and cheered themselves hoarse. A subsequent report showed Mr. Bruce, the Conservative candidate, was successful and a similar scene was enacted by the Conservative members. So prolonged was the cheering that the Speaker with difficulty restored order.

Lord Compton's in the Soup.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The election in the Holborn district of London to-day resulted in the choice of Mr. Bruce (Con.) by a vote of 4386 against 3433 for Lord Compton, the Gladstonian.

Crime and the League.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Inspector Crane gave evidence before the Parnell Commission to-day as to the progress of crime in Ireland being coincident with the formation of branches of the league. Wherever a league organization was started outrages followed. Not every leaguer was a moonlighter but the majority of moonlighters were leaguers. On cross-examination the witness admitted that he had never been able to trace directly the connection of persons convicted of outrages with the league. Certainly no official of the league had ever been convicted. No crime has occurred in connection with Home Rule agitation or the extension of the franchise. Every crime arose over land disputes.

Inspector Rice deposed that he had always understood that moonlighters executed the behests of the League. On being cross-examined by Mr. Harrington the witness said he could not point out a single instance, supported by proof, where the League had directed a moonlight outrage.

Rents Reduced.

DUBLIN, Nov. 29.—The Land Commission has reduced the rents on the Kenmare estates at Killarney 50 per cent.

A JUVENILE RIPPER.

Arrest of a 11-year-old Boy for the Havani Murder.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A boy named Husband, aged 11 years, the first to give notice of the discovery of the body of the boy Zarle, who was found dying in the streets of Havani yesterday morning with his throat cut from ear to ear, has been arrested for the murder. The crime was undoubtedly committed in imitation of "Jack the Ripper," the chronicles of whose butcheries have excited depraved youth in many parts of the kingdom to emulation of his deeds and the police throughout the country are thus confronted with a new problem.

The Spitalelds Vigilance Committee, organised to aid the constabulary in detecting the Whitechapel murderer and preventing further crimes, have secured the approval of the police to their appointment of ten men each night to watch the courts and alleys of the East End and otherwise act conjointly with the metropolitan force. Each man will carry a dark lantern, a whistle and a night stick, and be invested with all requisite authority.

The New Metropolitan Chief.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Col. James Munro, who has been appointed Chief Commissioner of Metropolitan Police to succeed Gen. Sir Charles Warren, served 25 years in Bengal, whence he returned to England in 1884 to replace Mr. Howard Vincent, at present member of Parliament for the central district of Sheffield, as director of criminal examinations. He was subsequently appointed Assistant Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, but resigned recently owing to his inability to endure the harshness of Gen. Warren, and accepted a position in the Home Office. His appointment, which the Queen has sanctioned, is a personal triumph and universally approved.

German Apathy Annoys Austria.

PESTH, Nov. 29.—The Nemzet, the organ of Premier Tisza, in replying to an article in The North German Gazette of Berlin, declares that it is the wish of Premier Tisza to maintain treaties only as a safeguard to Austrian interests, and that he does not desire to share the Balkans with Russia. He hopes that the German press will cease treating eastern affairs with apathy, as it is annoying to Austria.

The Beauce Gold Fields.

QUEBEC, Nov. 29.—The Beauce gold fields are just now being vigorously boomed, and considerable quantities of land in the vicinity of the mines, as well as mining rights, are changing hands. Among others, Mr. Lockwood is reported to have disposed of $10,000 worth of rights to McArthur Bros., and the latter firm have sold part of their claim for $50,000.

CAPTAIN BRISE OF THE WEST RIDING REGIMENT SHOT.

Killed by a Kick—Plucky Rescue—Eviction at Hamilton—Kingston Votes Two Railway Bonuses.

HALIFAX, Nov. 29.—Captain Ruggles Brise of the West Riding Regiment, met with a terrible and fatal accident to-night. He had just returned from a shooting excursion in the country and was alighting from his wagon at Robinson's livery stables. As he went to step out, his foot caught in some way with a double barrelled gun, both barrels of which were loaded. The weapon was discharged and the contents of the two barrels lodged in his stomach. He was carried into the stables and afterwards removed to the Artillery barracks, living for only one hour. His wife was summoned and reached him just before he lost consciousness. Captain Brise was about 35 years old and came to Halifax from Bermuda with his regiment a couple of months ago. He was married two years ago to a Bermuda lady and had one child.

An inquest is to be held to-morrow.

EVICTION AT HAMILTON.

An Old Woman Put on the Sidewalk—A Lively Runaway.

HAMILTON, Nov. 29.—This afternoon the police were notified that Mary Foley, an old woman who lives on Young-street, between Cherry and Wellington-street, was cruelly ejected from her home by a bailiff, who had a distress warrant for rent. The old woman was found lying helplessly drunk on a mattrass in front of the house. The bailiff made the seizure, put Mrs. Foley and her trunk on the sidewalk and locked the door. Sergeant Finch provided her with lodgings at the police cells.

James Manning's house, on the Governor's road, was broken into a few evenings ago. A watch, a brooch, $4 in cash, and all the food in the house were stolen.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Cruickshank was practising the children of the Hess-street school in the fire drill in preparation for the visit of the Governor-General. A little crippled girl named Baker was in one of the upper rooms and she did not go out with the rest of the children when the alarm sounded. Two young rascals of boys ran up stairs after the rest of the children were out and yelled to her that the stairs were burning. She was so badly frightened that she became unconscious, and the teachers had much difficulty in restoring her.

About 10 o'clock this morning a runaway horse made things lively in the vicinity of the James-street market. David Henry, a lad who drives for Charles Vosper, butcher, left a colt standing in front of 42 Market-street. While he was away the horse became restless and started off at a 2.40 gait along Market-street. A man who works for James Goldie, flour dealer, tried to stop it and was dragged along the road for some distance. The wagon also passed over him, but luckily he was not hurt. After two collisions, in the last of which the wagon was demolished, the animal was stopped.

A PLUCKY RESCUE.

Narrow Escape From Drowning of a Campbellford Girl.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29.—This afternoon as a 12 year-old daughter of Mr. J. Alexander was getting a pail of water from a flume, her hat fell off and reaching for it she fell in and was carried down with the current. This flume is covered and extends for several hundred feet without an opening. Fortunately she was observed going under the covered place by Mr. Henderson, who plunged in after her. Others arriving the planking was torn up some distance down the rise and both were rescued.

Fatal Accident to a Manitoba Man—News of the Northwest.

THE SARNIA FIRE.

Doubtful if the Hotel can be Re-built—The Insurances.

SARNIA, Nov. 29.—The Alexander House, badly burned last night, was valued at from $8000 to $10,000 and was insured for $5500, $2500 being in the Western, $2,000 in the Royal and $1000 in the Scottish Union. It is a question whether or not the building will be a total loss, the damage being so great as to possibly prevent its being rebuilt under the fire limits bylaw. Andrew Alexander, sr., is the owner.

The contents were insured by George Johnston, the landlord, for $4,335, $1000 being in the Royal and the balance being in the Lancashire.

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

Flocking to Take Advantage.

Neither rain, wind nor hail appears to have any effect on the rush to LeBrun's clothing store. People are going where they can get the most value for their money, and, having learned that at LeBrun's they can get the finest of garments at absolute cost prices, are flocking to take advantage of the chance. The sale is a big success. Workingmen can now obtain greater value for their money than ever before, and this means a heap to the workingman. Every line in the store is reduced in price. Clothing, furnishings, etc., have all passed under the axe of the executioner, who has cut the prices down to a bare nothing. Will you neglect this opportunity? To do so is to throw away your chances. The great sale continues and will boom stronger than ever.

The Opening Chapter.

To-day there is commenced in the REVIEW the publication of a new story, "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," a romance of deep interest. See the opening chapters and secure the whole story.

Blowing Bag-Pipe.

To-day is St. Andrew's day, the anniversary of Auld Scotia's patron saints, and the thoughts of all Scotchmen will drift back to the heather clad hills and the many anniversaries in the auld land. The local St. Andrew's Society listened to and eloquent sermon on Sunday last, preached to them by Rev. E. F. Torrance, and to-night the anniversary will be enthusiastically celebrated by a grand banquet at the Morgan House, when there will be a great gathering of the clans.

Personal.

The Rev. J. C. Davidson, M. A., is in town and will assume his duties as curate in charge of St. John's Church on Sunday.

The New York Sunday Democrat of Nov. 25th says:—"Miss M. E. Cahill, the accomplished and beautiful daughter of Mr. Thos. Cahill, of Peterborough, has been passing the autumn with the Barkers, of Paluski-st., Brooklyn. Miss Cahill left for home Wednesday, having won many friends by her social qualities and conversational powers."

Court of Chancery.

The Court of Chancery opened here about one o'clock to-day before Chancellor Boyd. The docket is comprised of six cases. The legal gentleman who were present from a distance were: Messrs. W. A. Reeve, Q.C., Toronto; W. Creeleman, Toronto; McClive, St. Catharines; G. H. Watson, Toronto, and N. Beck.

BURNHAM VS. MALONEY.—This was the first case. It was an action brought by Elias Burnham against John Maloney to enforce the payment of an award of $600 made by Mr. McGill on an outstanding account, which the plaintiff claimed from the defendant. It seems the plaintiff had an account against the defendant against which the latter had a contra account. Mr. McGill acted as arbitrator on the accounts and, it was held, only considered the plaintiff's side as to what should and should not be held as bona fide. Plaintiff was nonsuited. Creeleman (Blake & Co.) for plaintiff; Dumble & Leonard, for defendant.

HILLIARD VS. PECK.—In progress as we go to press.

The case of Fitzgerald vs. McWilliams has been settled out of court.

GENTLEMEN! A word with you. There is no reason why your wives should not enjoy a good cup of tea. 5lbs. for $1 at M. E. Kidd's.

IMPORTANT.

We have just been advised, and we are sure the people of Peterborough will be pleased to know, that A. L. Davis & Co. have decided to put the whole of their stock of books, stationery and fancy goods on the market at cost price, commencing 1st December, and their stock being in such good condition the public are sure to get dollar for dollar. This sale is made necessary on account of extensive improvements which are to be made this winter in their store.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Mr. W. G. Owen, the well-known horse trainer, died at 4 o'clock yesterday morning of inflammation of the lungs after a week's illness. His name was familiar on every race course in America.

Lilly Charlton, the victim of Dr. Valentine's alleged malpractice, is still alive but there is no hope of her recovery. Dr. Valentine is much better at the jail, and it is expected that he will be around in a few days. He is still suffering, however, from the terrible shock to his nerves, occasioned by dissipation and his subsequent arrest.

Yesterday morning's express brought up from Ottawa Capt. the Hon. C. C. Colville and Mrs. Colville and Capt. A. McMahon, aides of His Excellency the Governor-General. They drove at once to the Queen's Hotel to attend to the preparations for the stay of the Vice-Regal party on their visit to Toronto, to be present at the St. Andrew's Society's ball to-morrow night. The party, which will arrive from Ottawa this morning, will be made up of Lord Stanley and Her Excellency, Miss Lester, Hon. A. Stanley, and Capt. J. Bagot and Mrs. Bagot. Eight valets and servants will accompany the Governor-General's party.

Fred. A. Clarry, projector of the Grand Villa sweepstakes, was released on bail yesterday morning. The charges against him will be heard to-day.

James Robertson, who gives himself out in some quarters as a graduate of Cambridge and others as a poor relative, was fined in the Police Court yesterday morning $50 or 90 days for trying to obtain money on the latter representation.

Edward Lake, who was arrested some time ago for complicity in the burglary of Wallace Nesbitt's house, and was arrested for vagrancy yesterday, in the Police Court this morning, though he pleaded hard for liberty, was remanded for a week.

The Chancellor yesterday handed down judgment in the village of Markham v. township of Markham case. The case is brought to compel the township to pay up its share of the $20,000 to the old Nipissing Railway and to fix the proportion to be paid by the defendant after the village became a separate municipality. The Chancellor gave judgment for the plaintiff with a reference to the Master to fix the amount payable, and saddled the defendants with the costs.

The World says this morning: For some days past there has been a rumor on the street that a lawyer of an adjacent city, who was a well-known operator on a large scale in cattle and dairy farming and manufacturing speculations was about to assign. The result was not expected to be disastrous inasmuch as it was well-known that his family was at his back with a million or so to their credit. Yesterday, however, it leaked out that the million had been so seriously encroached upon that serious disaster was at hand. Mr. B. B. Osler, it is understood, has charge of

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

W. J. MASON,
Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Pictures on Canvas.

The St. Luke's Literary Guild held an entertainment last evening. The weather was not the most favorable, but there was a fair audience. The programme was a lecture by Mr. E. R. Burt, which was illustrated with views on canvas. The subject of the views was the Artic regions, and Mr. Burt did it justice.

Prizes Again.

A large audience again witnessed the entertainment of the Zera Semon Novelty Company and enjoyed the excellent variety programme that they have been delighting their audiences with all week. The watch was secured last night by Mrs. S. S. Miller, the china tea set by Wm. Doucett and the chamber set by August Barrett. The same prizes will be given away again this evening, and a good house should be the company's.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Will be Caught Every Time.

Some farmers are foolish enough to think that by a little sharpness (?) they can increase the number of quarters they have stowed away in the toe of the old sock, but never were men so badly deceived as this class of dishonest farmers. It requires no phenomenal sharpness nor is it any trick for a farmer to sell a bag of apples or potatoes on the market to Mr. So-and-so and get the price of the bag in hard cash and then drive up to the house and tell Mrs. So-and-so that her husband did not pay for them, and in this way get two prices for the one thing. But they will get caught every time. Last Saturday Mr. Patrick Sheehan, of Ashburnham, bought a bag of potatoes from a yoeman and paid for them. The farmer drives up to Mr. Sheehan's and collects the money a second time, by saying the man had not paid him on the market. The farmer is known, and the air of the Police Court will probably ruffle that yoeman's whiskers before long.

BIGGEST BOOM YET!

ABOUT $315,000 SPENT

ON BUILDINGS PUT UP THIS YEAR AND BEING ERECTED.

Ashburnham Shares in the Boom—New Blocks of Stores, Additions to the Factories, a Building for Religious Purposes, and Countless Dwellings.

The number of buildings erected in Peterborough this year is surprising. To these who were not in a position to form an idea of what was being done the amount spent in building operations during the season must be astonishing. All who feel an interest in the growth of the town must be gratified with the advance made.

When the season opened it was not thought that the amount spent in building would be so very large. In fact, an impression got abroad that this would be an "off" year and one or two papers in neighboring places said, rather spitefully, that Peterborough's growth was checked. How far they were astray a shows. Last year the amount spent in building ran up to nearly $200,000, one year before that it totalled nearly $250,000, and for a number of years it has been in or about the amount spent last year. But this year the record is broken. The total amount spent in the town during the year on building operations, as near as can be ascertained, is about or a little over $270,000. and in the village of Ashburnham about $45,000, making a grand total for the both places, which are commercially one, of over $315,000.

The list in town includes three blocks of stores, one place for religious worship (the Salvation Army temple), two hotels, a woollen factory and additions to other manufacturing establishments, and a large number of residence. A feature of the season has been the large number of dwelling houses, erected by mechanics and others to be occupied by themselves and their families.

The list of buildings and of work done that follows is as complete and as accurate as could be obtained. It may so that some buildings and work have been omitted that should have been included. On the other hand some buildings now in course of erection and included may not be completed this year, and if both could be put together they would probably about balance and leave the total very nearly unchanged. If any buildings are omitted we would be pleased to have our attention called to them and the particulars given. The list is as follows:—

Argyle-st.

The Nicholls Hospital is in course of erection on property in the North Ward. The building is of three storeys, large and massive, in modern style suitable for public buildings, and arranged in compliance with the Government requirements in this respect. The site overlooks the river and with the building forms an important feature of the view in the locality, and is a conspicuous object from leading roads. All details necessary in such a building have been carefully carried out and the construction is thoroughly well done, the object in view being permanency and comfort. The sum required to erect the building has been generously donated by Mrs. Robt. Nicholls and when finished it will be tangible proof of her generosity and thoughtfulness. Plans were made by Mr. W. Blackwell, Architect, and from which the work has been carried out. Ground was broken early in May and work has gone on uninterruptedly since under direction of the contractor, Mr. A. Rutherford. The lower storey or basement is built chiefly of limestone, with cut stone sills to all windows. The walls are of brick, very heavy and thick. The roof, in gothic style, is covered partly with iron and partly with shingles. The brickwork will be tuck-pointed at finish of the work. The interior walls are lined with matched lumber which covers a coat of plaster on the brick. Strapping, lath and plaster are placed over the sheeting. Great care has been taken to render the building absolutely frost proof. The ground floor and floor of first storey is hardwood laid over inch matched lumber. All floors are deafened. Commodious halls afford access to all parts of the hospital. Massive arches are thrown across the halls relieving the appearance. The staircases are broad and built of oak. The separate wards are large and well ventilated with large open fireplaces in each room and ventilating shafts built from the cellar to the roof. The space allotted to the staff and assistants is ample and every convenience provided. The building will be heated by steam or hot water apparatus. The contractor has the work sufficiently advanced to promise the completion early next spring. Ample drainage has been arranged for. Stonework by H. Sherwood; cut-stonework by J. Burgess; brickwork by P. J. McNamara; carpenter work by the contractor; plastering by W. Whitehair; painting and glazing by R. Carton; plumbing and gas fitting by A. Death of Mrs. Roxburgh.

The Norwood Register say:—"It is our painful duty, as we go to press, to chronicle the death of Eliza J., wife of our esteemed townsman, W. E. Roxburgh, Esq. The deceased passed away on Wednesday in the 52nd year of her age. The bereaved husband and family have the the deepest sympathy of all." Mr. Roxburgh and family will assuredly receive the warmest sympathy in their affliction, made more severe by the death early in the autumn of Mr. Roxburgh's daughter.

A Happy Time and Good Programme.

A gathering of happy children and a delighted audience took place last evening in the Sabbath school room of St. John's church, the occasion being the holding of a concert by the Girl's Guild of the church. The success of the meeting was a matter of general comment, the credit for which is largely due to Miss B. Rickey, who has given a great deal of time and gone to considerable trouble in training the children for the choruses, tableaux, etc. The chairman of the evening was a little gentleman, Master Bince Rickey, only ten years of age, yet the able and manly style in which he filled the seat of honor could not have been surpassed by one who was much his superior in years and experience. The programme was an excellent one, and we attach it in full, without any comment as all the numbers merit praise. The choruses were sang by about fifty children and sounded well, while the tableaux were remarkable well put on and elicited much praise, that of "Innocence" being called for a second time. The choruses by the little children from Hazelbrae were splendid. The following was the programme:—

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

CHAPTER I.

WHAT THE "ARGUS" SAID.

HE following report appeared in The Argus newspaper of Saturday, the 28th July, 18—:

"Truth is said to be stranger than fiction, and certainly the extraordinary murder which took place in Melbourne on Thursday night, or rather Friday morning, goes a long way toward verifying this saying. A crime has been committed by an unknown assassin, within a short distance of the principal streets of this great city, and is surrounded by an impenetrable mystery. Indeed, from the nature of the crime itself, the place where it was committed, and the fact that the assassin has escaped without leaving a trace behind him, it would seem as though the case itself had been taken bodily out of one of Gaboreau's novels, and that his famous detective Lecocq only would be able to unravel it. The facts of the case are simply these:

"On the 27th day of July, at the hour of twenty minutes to 2 o'clock in the morning, a hansom cab drove up to the police station, in Grey street, St. Kilda, and the driver made the startling statement that his cab contained the body of a man whom he had reason to believe had been murdered.

"Being taken into the presence of the inspector, the cabman, who gave his name as Malcolm Royston, related the following strange story:

"'At the hour of 1 o'clock in the morning, he was driving down Collins street East, when as he was passing the Burke and Wills monument he was hailed by a gentleman standing at the corner by the Scotch church. He immediately drove up, and saw that the gentleman who hailed him was supporting the deceased, who appeared to be very intoxicated. Both were in evening dress, but the deceased had no overcoat on, while the other wore a short covert coat of a light fawn color, which was open. As Royston drove up, the gentleman in the light coat said, 'Look here, cabby, here's some fellow awfully tight, you'd better take him home!'

"Royston then asked him if the drunken man was his friend, but this the other denied, saying that he had just picked him up from the foot path, and did not know him from Adam. At this moment the deceased turned his face up to the light of the lamp under which both were standing, and the other seemed to recognize him, for he recolled a pace, letting the drunken man fall in a heap on the pavement, and gasping out 'You!' he turned on his heel, and walked rapidly away down Russell street in the direction of Bourke street.

"Royston was staring after him, and wondering at his strange conduct, when he was recalled to himself by the voice of the deceased, who had struggled to his feet, and was holding on to the lamp post, swaying to and fro. 'I wan' g'ome,' he said in a thick voice, 'St. Kilda.' He then tried to get into the cab, but was too drunk to do so, and finally sat down again on the pavement. Seeing this, Royston got down, and lifting him up, helped him into the cab with some considerable difficulty. The deceased fell back into the cab, and seemed to drop off to sleep; so, after closing the door, Royston turned to remount his driving seat, when he found the gentleman in the light coat whom he had seen holding up the deceased, close to his elbow. Royston said, 'Oh, you've come back,' and the other answered, 'Yes, I've changed my mind, and will see him home.' As he said this he opened the door of the cab, stepped in beside the deceased, and told Royston to drive down to St. Kilda. Royston, who was glad that the friend of the deceased had come to look after him, drove as he had been directed, but near the Church of England Grammar school, on the St. Kilda road, the gentleman in the light coat called out to him to stop. He did so, and the gentleman got out of the cab, closing the door after him.

"'He won't let me take him home,' he said, 'so I'll just walk back to the city, and you can drive him to St. Kilda.'

"'What street, sir?' asked Royston.

"'Grey street, I fancy,' said the other, 'but my friend will direct you when you get to the Junction.'

"'Ain't he too much on, sir?' said Royston, dubiously.

"'Oh, no; I think he'll be able to tell you where he lives. It's Grey street or Ackland street, I fancy. I don't know which.'

"He then opened the door of the cab and looked in. 'Good night, old man,' he said. The other apparently did not answer, for the gentleman in the light coat, shrugging his shoulders and muttering 'sulky brute,' closed the door again. He then gave Royston half a sovereign, lit a cigarette, and after making a few remarks about the beauty of the night walked off quickly in the direction of Melbourne. Royston drove down to the Junction, and having stopped there, according to his instructions, he asked his fare several times where he was to drive him to. Receiving no answer, and thinking that the deceased was too drunk to answer, he got down from his seat, opened the door of the cab, and found the deceased lying back in the corner with a handkerchief across his mouth. He put out his hand with the intention of rousing him, thinking that he had gone to sleep, when on touching him the deceased fell forward, and on examination, to his horror, he found that he was quite dead. Alarmed at what had taken place, and suspecting the gentleman in the light coat, he drove to the police station at St. Kilda, and there made the above report. The body of the deceased was taken out of the cab and brought into the station, a doctor being sent for at once. On his arrival, however, he found that life was quite extinct, and also discovered that the handkerchief which was tied lightly over the mouth was saturated with chloroform. He has no hesitation in stating that from the way in which the handkerchief was placed, and the presence of chloroform, a murder had been committed, and from all appearances the deceased died easily and without a struggle. The deceased is a slender man, of medium height, with a dark complexion, and is dressed in evening dress, which will render identification difficult, as it is a costume which has not any distinctive mark to render it noticeable. There were no papers nor cards found on the deceased from which his name could be discovered, and the clothing was not marked in any way. The handkerchief, however, which was tied across his mouth, was of white silk, and marked in one of the corners with the letters 'O. W.' in red silk. The assassin, of course, may have used his own handkerchief to commit the crime, so that if the initials are those of his own name they may ultimately lead to his detection. There will be an inquest held on the body of the deceased this morning, when, no doubt, some evidence, may be elicited which may solve the mystery."

In Monday morning's issue of The Argus the following article appeared with reference to the matter:

"The following additional evidence has been obtained which may throw some light on the mysterious murder in a hansom cab, of which we gave a full description in Saturday's issue: 'Another hansom cabman called at the police office and gave a clew which will, no doubt, prove of value to the detectives in their search after the murderer. He states that he was driving up the St. Kilda road on Friday morning about half-past 1 o'clock, when he was hailed by a gentleman in a light coat, who stepped into the cab and told him to drive to Powlett street, in East Melbourne. He did so, and, after paying him, the gentleman got out at the corner of Wellington parade and Powlett street and walked slowly up Powlett street, while the cab drove back to town. Here all clew ends, but there can be no doubt in the minds of our readers as to the identity of the man in the light coat who got out of Royston's cab on the St. Kilda road, with the one who entered the other cab and alighted therefrom at Powlett street. There could have been no struggle, as the cabman Royston would surely have heard the noise had any taken place. The supposition is, therefore, that the deceased was too drunk to make any resistance, and the other, watching his opportunity, placed the handkerchief saturated with chloroform over the mouth of his victim, and after a few ineffectual struggles the latter would relapse into a state of stupor from such inhalation. The man in the light coat, judging from his conduct before getting into the cab, appears to have known the deceased, though from the circumstances of his walking away on recognition, and returning again, shows that his attitude toward the deceased was not altogether a friendly one.

"'Here is a great chance for some of our detectives to render themselves famous, and we feel sure that they will do their utmost to trace the author of this cowardly and daring murder.'"

CHAPTER II.

THE EVIDENCE AT THE INQUEST.

At the inquest held on the body found in the hansom cab the following articles taken from the deceased were placed on the table:

1. Two pounds ten shillings in gold and silver.

2. The white silk handkerchief which was saturated with chloroform, and was found tied across the mouth of the deceased, marked with the letters 'O. W.' in red silk.

3. A cigarette case of Russian leather, half filled with cigarettes.

4. A left hand white glove of kid—rather soiled—with black seams down the back.

Samuel Gorby, of the detective office, was present in order to see if anything might be said by the witnesses likely to point to the cause or to the author of the crime.

The first witness called was Malcolm Royston, in whose cab the crime had been committed. He told the same story as had already appeared in The Argus, and the following facts were elicited by the coroner:

Q. Can you give a description of the gentleman in the light coat who was holding the deceased when you drove up?

A. I did not observe him very closely, as my attention was taken up by the deceased; and, besides, the gentleman in the light coat was in the shadow.

Q. Describe him from what you saw of him.

A. He was fair, I think, because I could see his mustache, rather tall, and in evening dress, with a light coat over it. I could not see his face very plainly, as he wore a soft felt hat, which was pulled down over his eyes.

Q. What kind of hat was it he wore—a wide awake?

A. Yes. The brim was turned down, and I could only see his mouth and mustache.

Q. What did he say when you asked him if he knew the deceased?

A. He said he didn't; that he had just picked him up.

Q. And afterwards he seemed to recognize him?

A. Yes. When the deceased looked up he said "You!" and let him fall on to the ground; then he walked away toward Bourke street.

Q. Did he look back?

A. Not that I saw.

Q. How long were you looking after him?

A. About a minute.

Q. And when did you see him again?

A. After I put deceased into the cab I turned round and found him at my elbow.

Q. And what did he say?

A. I said, "Oh! you've come back," and he said, "Yes, I've changed my mind, and will see him home," and then he got into the cab, and told me to drive to St. Kilda.

Q. He spoke then as if he knew the deceased?

A. Yes; I thought that he only recognized him when he looked up, and perhaps, having had a row with him, walked away, but thought he'd come back.

Q. Did you see him coming back?

A. No; the first I saw of him was at my elbow when I turned.

Q. And when did he get out?

A. Just as I was turning down by the grammar school, on the St. Kilda road.

Q. Did you hear any sounds of fighting or struggling in the cab during the drive?

A. No; the road was rather rough, and the noise of the wheels going over the stones would have prevented me hearing anything.

Q. When the gentleman in the light coat got out did he appear disturbed?

A. No; he was perfectly calm.

Q. How could you tell that?

A. Because the moon had risen and I could see plainly.

Q. Did you see his face then?

A. No; his hat was pulled down over it. I only saw as much as I did when he entered the cab in Collins street.

Q. Were his clothes torn or disarranged in any way?

A. No; the only difference I saw in him was that his coat was buttoned.

Q. And was it open when he got in?

A. No; but it was when he was holding up the deceased.

Q. Then he buttoned it before he came back and got into the cab?

A. Yes, I suppose so.

Q. What did he say when he got out of the cab on the St. Kilda road?

A. He said that the deceased would not let him take him home, and that he would walk back to Melbourne.

Q. And you asked him where you were to drive the deceased to?

To be Continued.

THANKSGIVING IN THE STATES.

A Day of Mingled Religious Devotion, Charity and Saturnalia.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Thanksgiving was a day of religious devotion, charity and saturnalia in this city as heretofore. The customary services of praise and thanks, the customary sermons on the bounties of Providence and the increasing prosperity of the land, drew many to the different churches in the morning. In the different missions, houses of industry and the prisons, substantial meals, in which of course the turkey figured, were distributed.

Suicide of a Stratford Man.

GORE BAY, Nov. 29.—A man by the name of Charles Tobin, supposed to be from Stratford, suicided at Spanish River on Wednesday evening of this week by cutting his throat with a razor. It is supposed that he was suffering from melancholia. He had been working in the woods for some time, became sick, had come out to go home and was staying at Thos. Mills' boarding house at the Spanish River mills until the boat arrived.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but we take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better, goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

A BIG BLAZE IN LONDON.

THE McCLARY MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S BUILDING BURNT.

Nothing Standing but the Walls—The Loss Estimated at $150,000—Several Firemen Thrown from a Ladder.

LONDON, Ont. Nov. 30.—At 2.45 this evening fire broke out in the japanning department on the top floor of the four-storey building belonging to and occupied by the McClary Manufacturing Company, the largest stove and tin woking establishment in Ontario, if not in the Dominion.

Within thirty minutes the entire main building was a roaring furnace, floor after floor with the finest machinery of the kind in the country falling, until nothing remained but the walls.

It is difficult to estimate the loss at the present moment, but one of the managers thinks it will be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Three or four of the firemen were thrown from one of the ladders by a mass of falling debris but none of them seriously injured.

An $8000 Fire at Trenton.

TRENTON, Ont., Nov. 30.—A fire broke out in the store of B. E. Bell last night. It was supposed to be extinguished, but this morning broke out afresh, destroying the whole block and burning out S. E. ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

Vice-Royalty and Beauty at the Toronto Pavilion.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Could St. Andrew, the patron saint of Old Scotia, have taken a peep into the Pavilion at Horticultural Gardens last night he would have seen something that would interest him. There, beneath a canopy of flags and bright lights, surrounded by a profusion of decorations and pervaded by the perfume of flowers and exotics, the whole softened by tuneful music, between two and three hundred revelers whiled away the midnight hours. It was the annual ball of St. Andrew's Society, generally the public social event of the season.

Last night's affair has been the talk of the town for a month past, because the Governor-General had promised to attend in person and bring with him Lady Stanley of Preston and his entire court. His Excellency did, to the unbounded delight of President D. R. Wilkie and his brother officers and members of St. Andrew's Society. Mrs. Langtry, who it had been whispered would be there, did not put in an appearance.

Many of the dresses were really handsome. Of course all eyes were on the ladies from Rideau Hall.

Lady Stanley of Preston wore a dress of heavy green velvet and pink brocade; ornaments, diamonds.

Hon. Mrs. Colville wore a dress of white tulle, with body and sash of rich brocade trimmed with white ostrich feathers; ornaments, diamonds.

Mrs. Josseline Bagot wore a dress of rich pink brocade, trimmed with white crepe de chene; ornaments, diamonds.

Miss Lister wore a dress of soft white tulle, with large pink moire sash; ornaments, diamonds.

AGAINST EXEMPTIONS.

Victoria County Council Moves Abolition—Lindsay Notes.

LINDSAY, Nov. 30.—A carpenter named Alex. Bell fell from the new postoffice here to-day and broke his leg.

The County Council of Victoria, which closed its session to-day, passed a resolution in favor of abolishing all exemptions from taxation and a petition will be presented to the Provincial Government to that effect. The Council also unanimously passed a resolution to memorialize the Minister of Militia for the establishment of the Victoria County Battalion of active militia with a battalion drill shed at Lindsay. It was decided to appeal to the Supreme Court the question of boundary bridges between Peterboro and Victoria, Peterboro now declining to assist in the maintenance of the same.

Adam Hudspeth, M.P., on Thursday received a cablegram from Sir Charles Tupper informing him that his application for a Royal Humane Society's medal for bravery by a young Englishman of Peterboro, aged 19, named Heathcote, was granted. Heathcote last summer saved two young ladies from drowning.

Jones of Boston, which was captured on Oct. 20 while proceeding to Gonaives and arbitrarily ordered to Port-au-Prince, has been released and an indemnity of $10,000 paid to Captain Collins. All port charges and custom duties on the cargo were remitted. The Consul says this may be considered a very satisfactory disposition of the incident of the illegal capture and detention of the vessel.

United States Railroads.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission will cover about 70 pages of print with appendices amounting to some 200 pages additional. The report says: The railroad mileage of the country on June 30, 1888, is estimated at 153,781, of which 2312 miles had been completed and brought into operation within the six months preceding that day. The railway construction in 1886 was 8471 miles against 12,688 miles in 1887. The number of corporations represented in the mileage is 1231, but by reason of leases or other contract amendments many corporations hold control of and operate one or more roads owned by other roads and the whole number making reports of operation was 665. The commission heard and decided 50 cases. Six are not yet decided but the evidence is all in, nine uncompleted cases are still before the commission, 23 cases withdrawn or settled and 10 suspended by request. Nine cases are assigned for hearing.

Salisbury's Attack on Gladstone.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Lord Salisbury, in a speech at Edinburg to-day referring to the treatment of Irish political prisoners held that such treatment ought to deter others from following their example and so long as such offenders were dangerous to the community they must be treated like other offenders. He warned the Unionists to watch Mr. Gladstone who, he said, was showing an increasing tendency to accept the extreme views of the Separatists. There was growing in Mr. Gladstone's mind a distant idea of the entire separation of Ireland. He (Salisbury) trusted that Scotch Liberals would cease to attach much importance to mere party names. The great questions of upholding the Empire and providing employment for its teeming millions ought to be considered supreme from a patriotic point of view.

It is rumored that the Arab chief, Bushiri, with 800 soldiers, is assembling the tribes at Bagamoyo for a fresh attack.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The Socialist members of the Reichstag have published an appeal to their supporters to continue agitation and collect funds for defraying the expenses of the next election, which is expected to take place in the autumn of 1889. The appeal concludes: "The times are now favorable to us as never before. A radical social reform is necessary, for the peasant citizen suffers equally with the workman." The supposed object of the manifesto is to gain a wider ground upon which to conduct the agitation than is permitted under the present laws against the Socialists, excepting at the period of elections.

The men were picked up last Tuesday off Hatteras. Captain Bennett said to-day: "In all of my quarter of a century's experience at sea I never encountered such weather as we experienced on this last voyage. From Saturday till rescued the crew clung to the vessel as she lay helpless in the water, and nearly perishing of hunger, thirst and exposure prayed for death to relieve our sufferings."

England's Invitation to Italy.

ROME, Nov. 30.—The Directo urges Italy not to accept England's invitation to help in the protection of Suakim, on the ground that Italy's participation would be costly and dangerous, besides engendering the hostility of the Soudanese, who ought rather to be conciliated with the view of securing their support against Abyssinia.

HAPPY HAMILTON.

Preparing for Lord Stanley's Visit—Suit for False Arrest.

HAMILTON, Nov. 30.—As rapidly as possible everything is being put into readiness for the reception of the Governor-General, Lady Stanley and party. Men were employed until a late hour last night in the erection of the arch on King-street, which is beginning to present the appearance of a portion of an old castle. The men worked by the light of two electric lamps, in the light of which the arch looked rather imposing. Under Chief Aitchison's directions the city arch in front of the temporary City Hall is beginning to look well. Words of welcome have already been put in place upon it. The private decorations are going on all over the city. Streamers bearing mottos, flags and banners are being hung out on all hands.

A farmer named Copp living in Nelson township is suing Henry Foster, J. P., of Burlington, for $10,000 damages for false arrest. Copp's cows were impounded and he was fined $1 and costs. This he refused to pay and after the justice of the peace had given him a week to do it in he was brought up again, but refused to pay, and addressed a most unseemly remark to Mr. Foster, who at once sentenced him to twelve days' imprisonment—seven for not paying his fine and five days for contempt of court. At the end of the seven days he was bailed out, and a writ has been issued against Mr. Foster.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the Salvation Army Notes.

Staff-Captain Marshall, who succeeds adjutant Bolton in charge of this division, arrived in town this morning from Ottawa. This division, of which Peterborough is the headquarters, extends to Brighton, includes Port Hope, Lindsay and north to Kinmount and east to Campbellford. Staff-Capt. Marshall was a merchant in Acton, Ont., previous to his conversion, which was on March 22nd, 1885. Since then he has been stationed at the following places:—Cadet at Oakville, lieutenant at Whitby, captain at Sherbrooke, Montreal and Toronto Temple. He was appointed adjutant to the Woodstock division in April, 1887, and after staying there eight months was tarnsferred to Ottawa division, where he remained a year. He was promoted to a staff captaincy when transferred to this division. During the year Staff-Capt. Marshall was in charge of Ottawa division nine new stations were opened, 1,600 people had come to the penitent form and 500 were enrolled under the rules of the army. He addressed 500 meetings during the year and left the division in a flourishing condition.

Capt. Thomas Howell, who has had charge of this station for four months, leaves next week. He and Staff-Capt. McHardy will travel through the country, visiting the different stations, as Army evangelists. Capt. Howell is a popular officer and his departure is regretted. Lieut. Hague will have charge of the station until Capt. Howell's successor arrives.

Staff-Capt. Marshall will conduct the meetings at the temple to-morrow, and Capt. Howell will farewell at the meetings.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

An Important Case—The Docket Disposed of To-day.

Hilliard vs. Beck et al.—An action brought to recover the value of certain buildings erected on lands leased from the Rev. J. W. R. Beck, as rector of Peterborough. The lease was dated in 1866 and was for 21 years with a covenent for perpetual renewal or that the lessor should pay the value of the buildings on the premises. In 1875 the Synod sold the lands to the defendant Stothart, subject to the existing leases. The lease expired in November 1887, and prior to the expiration, defendant Stothart called upon defendants to arbitrate and an award was made directing Stothart to pay $380 as the value of the lands and one-half the cost of arbitration. Stothart then refused to pay plaintiff, holding that the rector had no power to grant the lease for a longer period than 21 years and that he had no power to covenant to pay for improvements on lands, and that even if the rector himself was liable for such a lease, he, Stothart, was not. His Lordship gave judgment holding that in equity the rector, whether he had power or not to grant time, was bound by his acts and was liable to pay plaintiff or to renew that the rector himself thought this at the time of sale to Stothart and made a stipulation of contract that Stothart should be bound by existing lease, and that, as he himself said in his evidence, the burden of his liability would then be transferred to Stothart. His Lordship also held that Stothart had made himself liable by accepting rent from Hilliard from date of his purchase down to 1887, and also by his conduct in seeking the arbitration and he would adjuge Stothart to pay full amount of plaintiff's claims and costs and also the costs of his co-defendants. Dumble & Leonard for plaintiff; A.P. Poussette and H.T. Beck, of Toronto, for defendant Beck; and G. H. Watson, of Toronto, and R. E. Wood, for defendant Stothart.

Molsons Bank vs. Drew, Lewis et. al.—This was an action transferred from Perth and was wholly one of legal points, the chief of which was that of separate estate. One of the defendants, Mrs. Lewis, denied her liability on the ground that she was a married woman at the time of entering into a certain agreement or contract and had no separate estate. His Lordship reserved judgment. W. A. Reeve, Q. C., Toronto, J. R. Lavelle, Smith Falls, for plaintiff, W. A. McClure, of St. Catherines, for defendant Mrs. Lewis. No counsel for the other defendants.

Bishop Dowling's Lecture

ON THE CHURCH AND THE BIBLE, IT'S EXCELLENCIES COMMENDED, WITH REFLECTIONS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The Roman Catholics of Peterborough are indeed to be congratulated on the utterances of Bishop Dowling to their church in his recent lecture.

It is a new thing for the Bible to be publicly commended and the people urged to read it by a Roman Catholic Bishop, and it has excited no small degree of surprise.

Priests and Bishops, in times past, have been wont to condemn the Bible, and in many instances burned it. We are thankful, and we deem it a great excellency in the lecture under consideration that the opposite course is adopted. This will please our brethren of the Orange Societies, who, in all their processions, carry before them very conspicuously, an open Bible. They will now understand, whatever may have been the case in the past and in Ireland, that in this country, and in this part of the province of Ontario, for the future at least, their Roman Catholic brethren are to have open Bibles as well as themselves. And it will now be in order for our Roman Catholic brethren who have not Bibles to procure them at once and as their good Bishop exhorts them, peruse them with diligence. Another excellency in this interesting and very able lecture is his Lordship's affirmation respecting the true church. If, he says, "the Catholic church had been and was now the enemy of the Bible," according to a prevailing impression, then, "the Church was the enemy of God." This is what Protestants have always affirmed, and it is susceptible of a logical demonstration, as follows:—All who love God, love also his Word; the true church is a lover of God. Therefore, the true church loves also his Word. And it necessarily follows that those Priests and Bishops and those churches that in times past have opposed the word of God, that have denounced it, and have persecuted and imprisoned, and put to death, men and women for perusing it and abiding by it, have been enemies of God, and no true churches, but anti-christian and apostate.

If this view be correct and a church, as His Lordship says, that is an enemy of the Bible is an enemy of God, then what shall be said with respect to the following facts:—

1. That the Bishops of the Church of Rome in Ireland, in Europe and in this country have been generally opposed to the circulation of the Bible, and even the reading of the Scriptures in the schools of the country. Whereas God says, "These words that I command you, thou shalt teach them diligently to thy children." Deut. 4, 10.

2. That in the most respectable and intelligent nunnery schools for the education of young ladies in Canada, the use of the Scriptures by the Roman Catholic pupils is forbidden. A lady in this town, who was educated in one of these schools in Quebec, says "not even the New Testament was used."

3. That in Rome itself, the very centre of the Church's influence and power, the Bible among the people generally, was, before the introduction of Protestantism, an unknown book, the only Bible they knew being the "Mass Book."

In the seventeeth century, the Jansenaries, a sect of the Romish Church, taught similiar sentiments on the scriptures to those propounded by Bishop Dowling, but they were condemned by the famous Bull—"Unigenitus" issued in the year 1713, and their teaching pronounced pernicious.

His Lordship's expressions of affection for the Bible are such as to give joy to the heart of every true Christian and we trust and hope his flock may be like minded.

Yours, &c.,
G. H. DAVIS.

P. S.—The inaccuracies of the lecture will be noted in my next.

IMPORTANT.

We have just been advised, and we are sure the people of Peterborough will be pleased to know, that A. L. Davis & Co. have decided to put the whole of their stock of books, stationery and fancy goods on the market at cost price, commencing 1st December, and their stock being in such good condition the public are sure to get dollar for dollar. This sale is made necessary on account of extensive improvements which are to be made this winter in their store.

Messrs. McClausland & Son, Toronto, the well-known makers of Fancy Glass for buildings, have an exquisitely arranged room for the display of paper hangings. Their trade in this department has been so good that not a roll of last year's stock is left on hand, and their assortment to-day is beyond a doubt the finest in Canada. We understand the firm mail samples with prices attached.

CROCKERYWARE

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROOKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROOKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

W. J. MASON.

Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Business College L. S.

At a meeting of the Business College Literary Society held last night the following officers were elected:—

PRESIDENT.—Miss Moffat.
VICE-PRESIDENT.—Miss Sailsbury.
SECRETARY.—Mr. T. Joseph Cleary.
ASSIST. SEC.—Mr. Ed. N. Easton.
TREASURER.—Mr. D. McCabe.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Personal.

Public School Inspector Tilley was in town to-day.

Mr. Wm. Cluxton addressed the commercial union club at the annual meeting in Toronto, giving the Mail says, an account of the progress of the movement in Peterborough county.

The Cobourg World says:—"Mr. Geo. S. Bean, B. A., B. Sc., is now principal and manager of the Peterborough Business College—the most practical school in Ontario for a complete course in commercial science. We congratulate Principal Bean on his new dignities and wish him success in his new responsibilities. Mr. Bean is a graduate of Victoria University, and a son-in-law of our townsman, Mr. Jonathan Sailsbury, Cobourg, therefore, claims him as a 'close connection.'"

Medal from the Royal Humane Society.

The Royal Humane Society of London, Eng., has awarded Mr. Wm. Heathcote a silver medal for his courage in rescuing two young ladies from drowning in July last. The two, one of whom was employed at Mr. R. E. Wood's at Oak Orchard, were out on Pigeon Lake in a canoe, with a boy paddling, when they upset. Mr. Heathcote was at Oak Orchard with Mr. J. E. Belcher, C. E., and was on the lake with some children at the time. He heard the cries, and though both young ladies had sunk in the water he, by the exercise of admirable courage and coolness, succeeded in getting them out. They were taken to the shore and through the efforts of Dr. Boucher and others were resuscitated. Mr. Heathcote deserves the medal. Mr. Hudspeth, M. P., of Lindsay, who had interested himself in the matter, received a cablegram from Sir Charles Tupper informing him that the medal had been awarded to Mr. Heathcote, and in a letter to Mr. Belcher Mr. Hudspeth says:—"I am extremely gratified at the result of my application and think that in Sir Charles Tupper we have the right man in the right place." The same remark would apply to South Victoria's representative.

SCOTCHMEN CELEBRATE

THE ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR PATRON SAINTS

By a Grand Banquet at the Morgan House—Over one Hundred Present—The Toasts and Responses—A good Bill of Fare—Songs, Speeches and a Pleasant Evening Generally.

It was expected and hoped that the thirtieth annual celebration of the local St. Andrew's Society would be a success, but that its success would be of so pronounced a character was never dreamed of by any of the society. The expected number of participants was more than doubled, and shortly after eight o'clock about one hundred and thirty Scotchmen, their descendants and friends filed into the spacious dining-room of the Morgan House and took their seats around the festive board. The dining-hall had been most artistically decorated with mottos, flags and bunting arranged neatly by Mr. J. J. Turner, and the menu was one which a king could have consulted and been satisfied. Mr. Morgan had spared nothing in fulfilling his part of the programme and merited the warm tokens of satisfaction which were tendered him at the close. President Chas. Cameron occupied the seat of honor, and the duties of presiding fell into good hands. On the right of the President sat Mayor Stevenson, M.P., while the chair to his left was filled by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P. There was an enthusiasm evinced at the gathering which arose from the fond remembrances of the auld land which these annual celebrations bring to all, and the following words most aptly expresses the feelings which animated those present:—

Frien'ship makes a' mair happy,
Frien'ship ties us a delight,
Frien'ship transcendes the grapple,
Frien'ship brings us here to-night.

Prof. Doucet's orchestra was present and warmed the hearts of all with Scottish airs while the haggis was being disposed of.

After the edibles had been done ample justice, the tables were cleared, the glasses filled and the toasts list began.

THE TOASTS AND RESPONSES.

President CAMERON with a few introductory remarks proposed the first toast of the evening "The Queen and the Royal Family" which was heartily drank amid enthusiasm. "The Governor-General" was the next toast paid. In doing so the President spoke of His Excellency as never having been among them but nevertheless his name will receive a hearty reception, and it did. "For he's a jolly good fellow" was sung with a vim.

"The Army, Navy and Volunteers" was next honored, followed by "Rule Britannia." Vice-President Hendry was then called upon for the "Death of Nelson" and responded in good style.

Surgeon-Major Kincaid was the first to speak to this military toast, and in a brief, patriotic speech referred to his connection with the volunteer force and to the spirit of patriotism that had been evinced by the volunteers when the call of duty had been sounded. He also touched on the Home Rule question and declared himself a warm Home Ruler. He hoped to live to see a federal Parliament ruling over all the Empire in London and each colony of Great Britain dealing with its home affairs. In concluding he said Peterborough had a battalion of which she should be proud and, indeed, so should Canada. Major Bell was the second respondent and spoke to the toast in a happy manner, mentioning the brilliant records of the soldiers of the land of the heather. He spoke also of the patriotism of our volunteer force. Capt. Deuntaun was proud that he held a commission in the Canadian Militia, and spoke of the many difficulties under which the volunteer force labored. They were striving to get new armouries, and if successful the 57th would soon be second to none in the Dominion.

THE SCOTCHMAN'S TOAST.

"The Day and a' Wha' Honor it," the toast of the evening, was proposed with a few patriotic remarks by the President and drank amidst uproarious applause. Mr. Wm. Telford, Bard of the Society, by special request, read one of his old poems "My Grannie and Me," which was amusing. He then read the annual ode, specially written by himself for the occasion which will be published to-morrow. Mr. Telford said this was the twenty-ninth time he had been called upon, and he had told the President if he had played on the one string as long as he had they would play out, and the President had said "I'll give you a text," and he had accordingly given the words, "Auld Kail het up Again."

President CAMERON said he had forgotten to perform a pleasing task. He had received a handsome card from Hamilton, on which were a few verses appropriate to St. Andrew's Day, which he read.

Ex-President Wm. Cumming was the first Scotchman to respond to the toast of "The Day and a' Wha' Honor it." In a short speech he said he had been in the St. Andrew's Society since it first started in Ashburnham, thirty years ago. Mr. Alexander Stewart responded to the toast with a characteristic Scotch song given in good style. Mr. Wm. Learmouth, an old Scotchman about eighty years of age, spoke to the toast and gave reminiscences of Peterborough as he found it fifty-three years ago and sat down amid great applause.

THE CANADIAN'S TOAST.

First Vice-President Hendry in a few very appropriate words proposed "Canada Our Home," which was warmly received. Mr. Duncan McLeod was the first to rise to do honor to this toast, and in an extended address he spoke of the settlement and growth of Canada, and the important part which Scotchmen had played in the pioneer work and the country's progress. He mentioned with pride the illustrious men in Canada who owed to Scotland their birth or descent. Mr. G. M. Roger made a few happy remarks on the toast, speaking of Canada's many advantages.

OUR LEGISLATORS.

Second Vice-President Thos. Telford, with a brief introduction, proposed "The Parliament of Canada and Legislature of Ontario," which was drunk heartily. Mayor Stevenson, M. P., was the first brought to his feet to speak to this toast. He was delighted, he said, with the evening he had spent amongst them. He would not detain them to make any remarks in reference to the parliament. He thought it was a grand thing for men to gather once a year and awaken the love of their native country, and Scotchmen could specially do this with enthusiasm, as they came from a land of heroes and great men. He spoke flatteringly of Bard Telford in very warm words and wished him long life. He again thanked the Society for their kindness and wished them success. Mr. J. R. Stratton was next to respond. It afforded him much pleasure to be present and, he said, this was the thirteenth time he had been honored by being present with them. He believed in these societies, which were attended with so many pleasing features. The Legislature had several Scotchmen in it, including the Premier. They were ahead of the Old Country in many respects. He was a Canadian and was proud of it, but he was delighted to join with any society in celebrating their natal day. Many privileges which Canadians enjoyed to-day, they owed to Scotchmen, and he was sure no Canadian would forget the land that gave him birth. He spoke of the good work of the St. Andrew's Society and thanked them for giving him an opportunity of being present and for the mention of the Legislature.

Mr. Henry Bowie gave a good Scotch song in characteristic style, which was loudly applauded and encored.

PROFESSIONAL MEN SPEAK.

"The Learned Professions" was proposed with a few remarks by Mr. Walter Paterson, and was heartily drank, and "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung with a hurrah. Mr. J. O'Meara was the first professional man to speak to the toast. The professors were largely represented he said and he would not detain them by any extended remarks. He spoke strongly of national societies so honoring the day of their patron saint and referred in most glowing language to the sentiment of love of country. Mr. G. M. Roger said it was the Scotch element which had been one of the most distinguishing features in Canada's prosperity. Canada had, he said, a bar of which she should be proud. Mr. R. E. Hall was the third professional man to rise and speak to the toast and in a neat little speech did justice to it. Mr. J. H. Burnham in a short, happy speech, also honored the toast, and was followed by Mr. R. M. Denniston in another brief, bright address, in which he said he agreed that Canada could well be proud of her bench and bar. Dr. Kincaid also dropped a few remarks for the medical profession. He did not believe in building up Canada on the deeds of the Old Country, for they had come to this country to hew out a destiny for themselves. Dr. Bell was the last to speak to the profession and thanked them for the hearty manner in which it had been received. He read an amusing account of how St. Andrew's Day is celebrated in Calcutta, India, which created great amusement.

FARMERS, MERCHANTS AND MANUFACTURERS.

Third Vice-President, Duncan McLeod, proposed the toast of our agricultural, mercantile and manufacturing interests. Mr. H. Bowie gave "Allister McAllister" in his own amusing style. Mr. Wm. Spence spoke to the toast and in a good address touched on the three heads and said he had enjoyed himself exceedingly and thanked them for the manner in which they had drunk the toast. Mr. D. Belleghem was called to respond to the toast representing the manufacturing interests. Peterborough should be proud of her manufacturers, and the beauty of them was they asked no bonuses but stood on their own bottoms. They had all added largely to the premises and he hoped the assessors would not count them when they came around. Mr. John Davidson, of Smith, spoke for the agricultural interests in a good speech.

MAYOR AND COUNCILLORS.

"The Mayor and Corporation of Peterborough," was proposed by the First Vice-President, and heartily drank. Mayor Stevenson said he had been in municipal life since incorporation of the town and probably knew as much about its matters as any man, and he knew of no town which was more prosperous or occupied a better position. Their manufacturers were prospering and their credit was good, equal in fact to some of the large cities. His time in the Civic Chair would probably be short, but he knew that future councils would induce manufacturers to come here and the town would prosper. He was, he thought, one of the oldest citizens in Peterborough. Councillor Cahill arose to speak to the toast. He thanked them for the hearty manner in which they had drank it and said he could only acquiesce in what the Mayor had said. He had been connected with the corporation for the last fifteen years, and during that time he had striven to advance the interests of the town, and, he thought, they had succeeded. He had enjoyed the gathering immensely, and he had never known until that night what he had missed by not attending these dinners.

SONGS AND TOASTS.

Mr. Alex. Morrison gave a good song, "The Ladies," was proposed by the Bard and was happily responded to by Messrs. Allison and Hall.

Mr. Stewart dropped in a Scottish song in good style. This was followed by a true Scottish trio by Messrs. McKim, McCallum and Munroe. Mr. Wm. Brackenridge gave a song, which he rendered with the vim of a young man.

The Press was proposed heartily and responded to by representatives of the Examiner and REVIEW.

"Our Host and Hostess" was enthusiastically received and drank, amongst uproarious applause. The Bard had prepared an ode to the host and hostess, which was good and most flattering. Mr. Morgan thanked the gathering in a few suitable words.

Mr. Brackenridge gave another good song and Auld Lang Syne was sung by the entire assemblege, followed by the final "God Save the Queen." The gathering broke up happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again.

PRICES AND PROSPECTS.

MOST MARKETS QUIETER THAN LAST WEEK.

The Tone of Stock Speculation Improved—Continued Evidence of a Short Wheat Crop—Active Demand for Wool.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's indicate that the storm of the early part of the week, the Thanksgiving holiday and the approach of the end of the month, together with the proximity of the Christmas holidays, have had some effect on the course and volume of general trade, but cities sending least favorable reports state the situation to be fairly satisfactory and the outlook favorable. Most markets, excepting wool, cottons, boots and shoes, are slightly quieter than last week.

Cattle are lower at western centres after heavier receipts, but hogs at most points are higher under better demands for packing.

The situation in the steel rail industry has grown worse instead of better. Notwithstanding the published statement that the steel rail mills had partitioned the east, central west and west among themselves in order to establish a profitable minimum price for rails the determination of one or two mills to have their way has not been overcome by conference or solicitation. Business has therefore been checked, buyers waiting to learn whether $27.50, $26.50 or $25.50 is to be the established price.

The steel rail consumption for 1888 is about 50 per cent. of the capacity of domestic mills. There is no gain of moment in pig iron, western furnaces are relatively most active. Under the new contract between the copper mining companies and the French combination a 20 per cent. reduction in output beginning Jan. 1 is contemplated.

The conclusion of an arrangement to advance railroad rates in the west and southwest, aided by symptoms of a trunk line pacification, improved the tone of stock speculation and caused irregular improvement in values. In general the money markets continue easy with no material change in the rates. Money at New York is easy, call loans 2 and 2½ per cent., foreign exchange strong at figures just below the gold shipping point, though gold is still being exported on special arrangements. About $2,000,000 have gone abroad this week. Demand sterling $4.88 to 4.88¼.

Evidence of a short wheat crop continues. Bradstreet's telegraphed advices from San Francisco are that inquiries have been received there from Australia for wheat and corn. The New Zealand surplus for export is only 900,000 bushels, most of which will go to New South Wales and Queensland, owing to the dry weather there. During the past week but 704,811 bushels of wheat (and flour as wheat) were exported from the United States, both coasts (Portland not heard from), compared with 1,446,413 bushels last week and 2,663,000 bushels in the corresponding week of 1887. The total wheat (and flour as wheat) exported July 1 to date (five months) is 45,717,811 bushels, against 66,000,000 bushels in a like portion of last year. Wheat is off 1½c. on the week and flour, high grades, is about 5c. to 10c. off. Corn is 2½c. and oats 1c. lower.

The active demand for wool continues well sustained at all leading markets, but woolen fabrics do not show a corresponding advance which does not aid smaller manufacturers. It is believed spring woolen goods are bound to sell higher. The mills are all fully employed. Conditions before noted check dry goods jobbing operations. Transactions in print cloths are very heavy and lighter stocks are a result, with prices advanced 1c. Fine bleached goods are higher and fine colored cottons and low grade bleached goods are stronger. There are a large number of orders for spring delivery. Leading makes of ginghams are ordered well ahead. Flannels have advanced in price. Cotton is more active on a declining market (1c. on the week), due to tame advices from abroad. There is an increased crop movement and lower quotations at primary points. A tendency to further decrease in the crop estimates is noticeable.

Prices of raw sugars have favored holders about 1-16c. As meltings exceeded arrivals refiners' stocks were reduced at New York 4157 tons and importers' stock to an extent which makes them the lightest at New York in a long series of years. Foreign advices per cable favored the tendency of prices here. There has been more enquiry for refined, and prices are up about 1-8c. Two ships have been chartered at San Francisco to proceed to Manilla and load sugar for New York at $9.50 per ton. Refined sugar is 1⅛c higher at San Francisco. New Orleans new crop receipts show a noteworthy increase in the yield over late expectations.

Coffee sustained an advance of about 1c. on more liberal purchases of desirable invoices by jobbers and distributors, the demand being conspicuous in East Indian as well as Brazilian.

A COPYRIGHT QUESTION.

Meeting of Montreal Booksmakers — The Berne Bill in Disfavor.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—At a meeting of publishers, booksellers and printers of Montreal this afternoon resolutions were adopted to the effect that having heard the explanations of the deputation from the Copyright Association of Canada, showing conclusively the great injury which would result to the publishing, printing, bookselling and bookmanufacturing interests of the Dominion by the adoption of what is known as the Berne Bill, and also being convinced of the inadequacy of the present Canadian Copyright Act to secure justice to important Canadian interests, and also believing that if said act is amended in the direction suggested by the Copyright Association of Canada the interests of every industry connected with the manufacture of books in Canada would be thereby universally benefited; therefore we express our hearty sympathy with and approval of the objects of the Copyright Association of Canada in their crusade against the Berne Bill and in their agitation in favor of amending the present Copyright Act in the direction indicated.

AN INCREASE ALL ROUND.

Winnipeg's Exports and Imports—A Deficit in the City Sinking Fund.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 30.—The trustees of the city sinking fund say there is $250,000 now owing to the fund, and they intend notifying the bondholders of the fact and ascertain what shall be done.

Supporters of the bylaw defeated yesterday claim that taxation will increase 50 per cent. next year.

The customs returns for November show a large increase over the same month last year. Exports $105,524, increase $31,090; imports $121,248, increase $28,106; entered for consumption $126,741, increase $32,158; duty collected $36,083, increase $7852.

Shields, the Toronto boy convicted of stealing a check and gun, was sentenced to two years.

The Northern Pacific and Manitoba road discharged 100 laborers to-night.

A 3-weeks-old foundling was left at the door of Rev. Mr. Pentreath last night.

During the year 16,883 immigrants have arrived, being 351 less than last year to the same date.

Montreal Crooks in Quod.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—The detectives to-night arrested three well-known crooks named Alfred and Henri Piche and Wm. Smith Asbery, the men who on Wednesday afternoon smashed the window of Picken's broker's office and stole $750. The two Piches are well-known penitentiary birds, having been there for robbery. Smith hails from California.

L'Assomption Election Annulled.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—The election of Dr. Forest, M.P.P. for L'Assomption, was annulled to-day by the Court of Review for corrupt acts of two agents without the defendant's knowledge.

Re-elected.

MADRID, Dec. 1.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day re-elected Senor Marlos president of that body.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.80, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets to Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 3 1888.

SOME SENATORIAL GOSSIP.

FOUR VACANCIES LIKELY TO BE FILLED AT ONCE.

Charlie Rykert and Mr. Montplaisir, M.P., Mentioned as Two of the Probabilities —The Crossing Case.

OTTAWA, Dec. 2.—There are still four vacancies in the Senate which it is most probable will be filled before Parliament meets: One for New Brunswick, caused by the death of the late Mr. John Ferguson, one for Quebec by the death of the late Mr. P. Fortin, one for Ontario by the death of the late Speaker J. B. Plumb and one for Manitoba by the appointment of Hon. John Schultz to the Lieutenant-Governorship. The Quebec vacancy will probably be filled by the appointment of Mr. Montplaisir, M.P. for Champlain, and rumor has it that Charlie Rykert will be Mr. Plumb's successor.

The transcription of the notes of the argument before the Supreme Court in the Manitoba railway case has been completed and copies sent to the judges, and judgment will probably be delivered when the court meets again on Dec. 14.

It is stated that Sir Charles Tupper will shortly visit Canada to give evidence in the arbitration case between the Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway arising out of the Onderdonk contracts on the British Columbia section.

Mr. P. Purcell, M. P., Glengarry, has contributed $100 to the Parnell defence fund.

The Customs Department received notice yesterday of the burning of the revenue cutter Prince Albert at Sandwich Pier.

The Free Press states, apparently on information furnished by someone in the Militia Department, that an appropriation will be asked next session for a Quartermaster-General at headquarters, a position provided for by the Militia Act but not hitherto filled, and mentions the name of Lieut.-Col. Duchesnay in connection with the appointment.

Mr. Schwab, Vice-Consul of France, and Mr. Boissere of the French line of steamers had an interview with the Minister of Finance yesterday, with reference to a continuation of the subsidy to the line of steamers between Canada and France.

Extensive seizures of smelts which were being shipped to the United States from Chatham Junction and other places in New Brunswick were made last week. The close season for smelts only expired yesterday, and these fish were consequently illegally caught. Some of the barrels seized were marked oysters.

Seven divorce suits will come before the Senate next session.

Yesterday's Canada Gazette contained new regulations relating to salmon and trout fishing in British Columbia.

BOOTH'S BAD TEMPER.

A Caledonia Wife Sues for Alimony—Two Fatal Accidents at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Dec. 2.—An interesting suit for alimony will likely come on at the next Assize Court here. Jonathan Booth is a wealthy farmer living a few miles from the village of Caledonia, where he formerly kept hotel. Booth is separated from his wife, who is now a resident of this city. Mrs. Booth says she cannot live with her husband because of his violent temper, and she had to leave him. She will therefore sue for alimony. Booth denies this, and says his home is open to her whenever she chooses to come to it. Mrs. Booth has her two girls with her. Up to last Thursday Mr. Booth had a son living with him on the farm. On that day the boy jumped on a horse, rode to Caledonia, took the train to Hamilton and after a conference with his mother, disappeared, presumably, it is said, to affect the suit. Mr. Booth was examined yesterday as to the amount of his wealth. He will be remembered as the owner of the once famous trotting sire Caledonia Chief.

It is rumored here that the C. P. R. will purchase the old post office building in James street from the Government and use it as an office for their business when they get into Hamilton, which they expect to do next summer.

Hugh Findlay, an elderly moulder, was drinking in Duffy's saloon, John-street, yesterday afternoon. Attempting to reach the basement of the building he fell down a flight of stairs, breaking his neck. He died in a few minutes.

Graham Woods, aged 15, a son of Mr. Walter Woods, was thrown from a horse yesterday afternoon near Bay and Ferry-streets by the animal becoming frightened by a dog. The young fellow's foot caught in the stirrup and he was dragged several yards, being kicked by the horse. He never recovered conaciousness and died at 11 o'clock this morning.

The Colonies and Their Governors.

ADELAIDE, N. S. W., Dec. 2.—Sir William Robinson, Governor of South Australia, has declared that there is no desire in the colonies to lessen England's constitutional responsibility in the appointment of colonial governors. He is of the opinion that when the wishes of the colonies are fully understood by the home government, an adjustment satisfactory to all parties will not be difficult. He has suggested that the colonies send delegates to England to confer with the Government upon the whole question. The press support the views of the Governor.

Death of a Centenarian.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 2.—John Crawford, aged 102, died here yesterday of pneumonia. He was a native of Donegal, Ireland, where he lived until the death of his wife eight years ago.

Jacksonville's Death Roll.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 1.—Five new cases of yellow fever and two deaths here to-day.

THE WORLD OF LONDON.

AN ANGRY WEEK IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Lord Salisbury's Cheery Confidence—Sympathy Wasted on Moroney—Queensland's New Governor—The Holborn Election.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Mr. Smalley cables The Tribune from London: Lord Salisbury's visit to Edinburgh has given occasion to a great demonstration, intended perhaps as a set-off to Mr. Gladstone's at Birmingham. Each leader carries the war into the enemy's country. There is no difficulty in arranging a Tory meeting in the heart of Mid-Lothian. The platforms bristle with celebrities. Lord Rosebery excepted, almost every man of rank, social position or high position of any kind who used to figure at Mr. Gladstone's meetings in his last Mid-Lothian campaign, in 1884, is now a Unionist. Lord Salisbury was overwhelmed with addresses, deputations, applause and entreaties for more speeches. The half-dozen addresses he delivered are remarkable for their cheery confidence. Their chief novelty consists in a cynical avowal of his readiness to see women vote, because he thinks they would vote with the Tories.

The week in Parliament has been an angry one. Mr. Smith's efforts to get on with business are met with what he and his party regard as obstruction. Mr. Labouchere appears to be leading the Liberal party in Mr. Gladstone's absence. The Ashbourne Act has been carried at last. All business relating to the estimate is so much in arrears that the House suspends the midnight rule and even sits to-day, Mr. Labouchere austerely protesting. The Irish estimates come on next week, and scenes without number may be expected. All the Irish members for whom summonses are out are to be left unmolested while this battle rages.

The Moroney case is one on which sympathies are thrown away. He is a bankrupt who refused to answer the judge's questions about his bankruptcy in the Bankruptcy Court. He was, therefore, as any other bankrupt in contempt would have been, sent to jail. There he has lain for two years. His health is bad and he is an Irish tenant, so his case is one out of which a grievance may be manufactured by treating it as a matter of sentiment and not a matter of law and fact.

Queensland is treated like a spoilt child. Sir Henry Norman, Governor of Jamaica, who has accepted Queensland, is one of the ablest men in the service, well entitled to a much better post. He takes this to get the Ministers out of trouble, and because a man of sound judgment and firm character is wanted at Brisbane.

Nothing could be more satisfactory than the Holborn election. Both sides are pleased. The Liberals are pleased because they have increased their vote more than their opponents have and diminished the majority against them by some 800 votes. The Unionists are pleased because they have elected their man. Lord Compton, though defeated, is one of the heroes of the week, a distinction which he shares with Mr. Jeremiah Sullivan, of the Royal Irish Constabulary; Mr. Thomas Moroney, the recalcitrant debtor in an Irish jail; Mr. Monroe, the new Chief of Police, and Mr. Gerst Davis, who, as one Radical journal puts it, has transferred his public address from the House of Commons to Wandsworth Jail.

Miss Wisdman and the Honorable Horace Walpole should be added to this list. The action of this German governess against the heir to the Earldom of Orford for breach of promise ends in his favor, but not to his credit.

Birmingham is to become a city. Perhaps you supposed it was one already, being a place of 440,000 inhabitants. It has been a borough for 50 years, and now is ambitious of a title which, says the town clerk in a letter to the Home Secretary, is popularly supposed to carry with it an accession of dignity. What is the difference between a town and a city is hard to determine with precision. Liverpool and Manchester were made cities when they had Bishops created for them, but Belfast has lately been made a city, though it certainly has no no Bishop. Leeds is not a city, nor is Sheffield. Only the Queen can transform a town into a city, and she only does it on a petition by the town. So Birmingham, through its Town Council, is going to implore Her Majesty to bestow this favor. As the Home Secretary is one of the members for Birmingham, and as Birmingham is the third place in England, it is supposed the petition will be readily granted.

The book of the week is Earl Stanhope's "Notes of Conversations with the Duke of Wellington." This little volume abounds in anecdotes of the most interesting kind; interesting, above all, as giving the Duke's opinions in his own words on people and events in his own time.

Mr. Gilbert's new play, "Brantinghame Hall," in four acts, produced at the St. James Theatre, met with a dubious reception. The critics are divided, as the house was, but on the whole the majority reluctantly condemn the play.

A Murderer's Body Found.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Dec. 2.—The body of George Donovan, the murderer of young King, was found yesterday morning in the Prospect-street reservoir.

INTERESTING ITEMS BY WIRE.

In the House of Commons on Saturday John Morley moved a nominal reduction in committee of supply on the vote of £236,260 for embassies and missions, to raise a discussion on the proposal to send troops to Suakim, and attacked the Government's Egyptian policy. Rejected, 136 to 101.

The Italian Government has introduced in the Chamber of Deputies a bill asking supplementary credits of 109,000,000 lire on account of the army and 27,000,000 lire on account of the navy.

A murderous fight took place in the streets of Portland, Ore., yesterday, between two factions of Chinese highbinders. Over fifty shots were exchanged, four highbinders were shot down and two others seriously injured.

The propeller Michigan caught fire off Sandusky yesterday and was partially destroyed.

The People's Bank at Fairmount, Neb., failed Saturday with $20,000 liabilities and meagre assets. The president is missing.

In his annual report the Postmaster-General of the United States argues strongly in favor of postal telegraphy and urges the appointment of a commission to that end.

The second big mineral strike in Helena, Mont., was made on Friday. The first was about a month ago, on the principal street, of placer gold. The find Friday was in the residence portion, of a gold quartz vein seven feet wide, assaying handsomely. Property owners are much excited.

At New York Saturday Emerson O. Salisbury, aged 50 years, killed himself in the boarding-house, No. 108 West Forty-fifth street, with a dose of morphine.

Dynamiter Hronek was convicted at Chicago Saturday, of participation in the plot to assassinate Inspector Bonfield and Judges Garry and Grinnel, and his punishment was fixed by the jury at 12 years in the penitentiary.

Death of Judge Globensky.

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—Judge Globensky died here to-night of inflammation of the bowels. He was appointed Judge of the Superior Court about a year ago and was formerly a law partner of Hon. Senator Lacoste. He was admitted to the bar in 1861.

THE BAUDIN DEMONSTRATION.

A Failure in Point of Numbers—The Procession Made Ridiculous.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—A host of sightseers gathered around the Baudin monument at the entrance to the Montmarte Cemetery this morning. Delegates from the Deputies Union of the Left and the Republican Union and from the Republican Left of the Senate, not wishing to take part in the municipal procession, arrived in separate groups and placed wreaths at the foot of the monument. The municipal parade started from the Hotel de Ville at 1.15 p.m. and slowly proceeded through the streets, reaching the cemetery at 3 o'clock. The police stopped all carriage traffic along the route at noon and formed a cordon in order to keep back the crowd. No incident occurred that impeded the march of the paraders. On passing the Northern Railway station there were cries of "Vive la Republique," mingled with hissing. On the Boulevard Magenta a man who tried to break through the line of paraders was arrested.

The procession in point of numbers was a failure, the number of those in line being variously estimated at from 3000 to 4000. Half of those taking part were delegates from the provinces. The spectators were mostly sightseers, making no display of political feeling. At the corner of the Boulevard St. Denis the students' delegation, which was greeted with cries of "Vive la Republique," responded with "A bas Boulanger." A trophy of the Journal la Lanterne evoked shouts of "Down with the Jews." The appearance of a group composed of persons proscribed in the coup d'etat of 1851 or wounded in the revolution of 1848 everywhere elicited fervent cheers.

The first portion of the procession presented an orderly and dignified appearance, but the latter part was disorganized owing to the pressure of the crowds following, which consisted mainly of the rabble and which sang the "Marseillaise" and the "Carmagnole." A number of women joined the ranks in the heart of the city. This detracted from the serious appearance of the procession and the crowd was afterwards inclined to make the demonstration a matter for jest, laughing and jeering at the delegates. Some of the delegates were annoyed by the jeers of the spectators and falling out of the ranks disappeared into the crowd.

On arriving at the monument M. Darlot, president of the Municipal Council, delivered an oration. He said the object of the demonstration was to commemorate Baudin's intrepid defence the republic's rights against Cæsarism and to honor those who had been proscribed or had fallen at the time of the coup d'etat. After a vigorous attack upon Boulangism he said: "The democracy, acquiring renewed strength in the example of the glorious dead, is prepared to face Cæsarism—which is again daring to raise its head. Comforted by the noble memories of the past, let us unite with confidence."

The speech was received with cries of "Vive La Republique" and prolonged cheers. There were no dissenting cries. The procession filed past the monument and then returned singing the "Marseillaise." In the evening the city resumed its normal aspect. The Boulangist committee in its manifesto declares that although it refrains from the Baudin demonstrations, it venerates the memory of Baudin. It urges citizens to withstand the provocations of the Government which is seeking a chance to create in Paris another second of December.

Congress to Meet To-day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—President Cleveland's annual message will be sent to both Houses of Congress to-morrow immediately upon receipt of the usual notification that they are ready to receive any communication he has to make. No delay is anticipated in the organization as no deaths occurred in the recess and there are no new members to swear in. It is more than probable that the reading of the message will consume the first legislative day, and it is understood to be of unusual length. The report of the Secretary of the Treasury will not be sent to Congress until Tuesday. The program for the week in the Senate will depend on the result of the meeting of the Committee on Finance called for Tuesday morning. If it is then decided to take up the committee's revenue measure, the Senate's substitute for the Mills tariff bill, pending at the close of the last session, its consideration will precludе the possibility of any other bill coming to the front until it is disposed of. It is the expressed desire of Senators Morrill, Allison and Sherman to push the measure to a vote so that it seems probable the bill will be taken up. If by any possibility the revenue bill should not come up the probabilities of the course of legislation are rather vague.

A BURNING MINE.

No Hope for the Eight Men Imprisoned in the Calumet Mine.

HANCOCK, Dec. 2.—The Calumet mine continues to burn freely. All hope of rescuing the eight imprisoned miners is given up. The authorities have permitted the fire to burn itself out, as it is not more than 600 feet from the surface, and everything to aid in burning out the shaft is being done.

A Pork Packing House Burnt.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 2.—Just after 6 o'clock last evening fire was discovered in the Armour-Cudahy packing house, South Omaha, and before the flames were extinguished the engine rooms, blacksmith shops, boiler rooms and guano department were almost destroyed. The origin of the fire is a mystery, although the general impression among the employes is that the fire originated from the petroleum gas machine. The damage to the building will be fully $10,000, and may be much more, while, if the machinery be ruined, as it likely is, the total loss will foot up to $100,000.

A $100,000 Loss in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Fire broke out last evening in the fourth floor of a large six-story building at Crosby and Houston-streets, causing damage amounting to nearly $100,000 before being extinguished.

France's War Budget.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—At a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday M. De Freycinet explained that he had arrived at an agreement with the Budget Committee for an extra loan on account of defensive works. He said the estimates of the total expenditures of the War Department were 500,000,000 francs, of which the estimates for 400,000,000 would immediately be submitted to the Chamber. The credits for the War Office for 1889 were estimated at 180,000,000 francs.

Henry George Banqueted in London.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Henry George spoke at a banquet in London last night. Many notable Radicals were present. The first thing to do, he said, was to secure land values for public use, which would open a whole vista of possible reforms. He opposed a peasant proprietary. His speech was received with great enthusiasm.

President Diaz Enters on His Third Term.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 2.—President Diaz took the oath of office yesterday. This is President Diaz's third term and his second consecutive term. The Government made a great display with firing of cannon, parade of troops, etc. There was no popular demonstration.

WILLIAM KEEPS 'EM BUSY

A RUMOR THAT THE KAISER SUFFERS FROM AN AURAL TUMOR.

Semi-Official Reports Say His Malady is a Severe Cold—Meanwhile the Cabinet Finds His Activity Intense.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—The Emperor's prolonged absence from public life has given rise to tumors that he is suffering from an aural tumor which is assuming an aggravated form. Semi-official reports state that his illness is simply a severe cold contracted through exposure during the recent hunt at Hetzlingen. No medical advice has been sought beyond that of the household doctors. The ear complaint slightly increased during the height of the catarrhal fever but improved, with the return of normal health. Although the weather is mild the Emperor is advised to remain indoors for some days to come. He has been in excellent spirits and has been fit for work throughout the week, receiving visitors and transacting business as usual. He employed part of his enforced leisure in elaborating the details of further army and navy reforms. He kept his military cabinet very busy, demanding immediate reports on a variety of questions. The officials of the Cabinet find his incessant activity something too much for them. He keeps them working sometimes night and day, insisting that there be no delay in the report he demands, his unvarying orders being to reply within 24 hours. The Admiralty officials share the excitement of the war officers. The Emperor's ardor extends into every department.

The Reichstag Commission will begin to consider the budget Monday. The Commission will hear privately more about the armament than was disclosed in open debate in the Reichstag. Chief of the Admiralty Court DeMonts capidily told the Reichstag that the memorandum on the navy was drawn up purposely so that foreign nations might not learn more than was necessary. The feeling of distrust among members of the Reichstag regarding the appropriations for armaments is on the increase, and some opposition will doubtless be offered.

Prince Bismarck will appear in the Reichstag on the occasion of the debate on colonial affairs.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Charlton Inquest—No Trace of Druggist John O. Wood.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—The inquest into the death of Lillie Charlton was opened at the residence of the deceased, No. 85 Sackville-street, at 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It took some time to get a jury together. County Crown Attorney Badgerow and Inspector Archabold were immediately on the scene and were followed by Coroner Johnson. The jurors were sworn, viewed the body and dismissed to assemble in the Police Court room at 8 in the evening. Meanwhile Coroner Johnson had instructed Drs Strange, Wilberforce Aikens, J. H. Richardson and John Cavan to make a post mortem examination. The report will not be known for some time, but it is understood that enough evidence was adduced to satisfy the medical men that the girl had died from malpractice. The immediate cause of death was peritonitis, the result of the operation which she had undergone. The inquest was reopened at 10 o'clock. There were present Coroner Johnson, the jury, Mr. Badgerow, Detectives Reburn, John Cuddy and Barrows, the two prisoners, a dozen spectators and the reporters of the morning papers. Mr. N. Gordon Bigelow, counsel for Wilkinson, was on hand, but Mr. N. Murphy, Dr. Valentine's lawyer, did not appear, having made a mistake in the hour of the meeting of the court. Inspector Archabold was the only witness examined. His testimony was with reference to the arrests. The inquest was adjourned until Dec. 10 at 8 p. m. The man that the public would most like to get their hands on just now is Druggist John O. Wood. There are various estimates of his location; some say he never left the city, that he is under safe cover; others there are who report that he is in the vicinity of Niagara Falls, and a number of his acquaintances believe that he is now safe in Mexico. Wherever he may be he has successfully covered his tracks up to date.

The police on Saturday night were called upon to handle two stabbing cases. The first occurred on Miss Terrace avenue about 7.30 and was the result of a fight over a woman. The victim of the stabbing is John James Young and the alleged wielder of the stiletto Pasquil Rugia, an Italian who lives in rear of 37 Mission-avenue, and of which he is the nominal proprietor. The story goes that Young visited the place to take his wife Martha Ionia, who is Rugia's wife in an attempt to prevent it stabbed the husband in the abdomen with a knife. The police succeeded in arresting Rugia. The house at 95 Bathurst-street was also the scene on Saturday night of a drunken orgy, which resulted in a raid by the police. The only two persons found were Honora O'Connor and John Teef. The latter was found to be suffering from several stabs in the face and head, which Dr. Spragge dressed on his arrival at St. Andrews' Market-station. Teef refused to tell how he came by his wounds, and was promptly locked up as a frequenter, Honora herself being charged with being the keeper of the den.

There is no little comment over the Jersey Lily's non-appearance at the St. Andrew's ball. The World says when it came to the ears of Lady Stanley that Mrs. Langtry would attend and expected to be presented, the former intimated that she would not receive Mrs. Langtry, to whom this information was delicately conveyed. The ground that Her Excellency took was that as Her Majesty the Queen had declined to receive the famous beauty she as a vice-regal representative could not do so either.

The first free breakefast of the season was given at Richmond Hall yesterday and 70 persons enjoyed the feast.

THE LIQUOR PLEBISCITE.

Decided Against by the Northwest Assembly—A Crooked Customs Official.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 2.—The legal experts of the Northwest Assembly have reported that the proposed plebiscite on the liquor question would be unconstitutional, and the Assembly by a vote of 7 to 14 have decided not to take the vote.

Some of the Indians who went to the United States last summer as patent medicine advertisements have died since their return home from the effects of the eastern climate.

Customs Officer Smith of Killarney has gone across the line after having borrowed all the money he could from his friends. The Government is let in for a large amount.

Crossley and Hunter's evangelistic services close this week. Over 1200 have professed conversion.

Queer Shovers at Windsor.

WINDSOR, Dec. 2.—The police were notified last evening that a drove of strangers were flooding the town with counterfeit half dollars of Canadian denomination. A citizen who had received one pointed out a stranger to Officer Nash, alleging that he was the person who gave him the bad coin. He was immediately arrested and gave his name as Benj. Meadows, a machinist of Detroit. None of the stuff was found on him.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

of $18,000 WORTH OF GOODS, new choice and fresh, and selling at 50c. on the dollar. We leave it to you to name the prices! We go further! We will absolutely give you goods at your own figures. Bearing in mind that 30 days finishes the sale in Sheppard's old premises, we offer

A FAULTY BY-LAW.

The Public at the Mercy of the Cabmen—A Case in Point.

An important case came before the police magistrate this morning, when Harry Drake, a cabman, was charged with having charged more than he was legally entitled by law. The by-law says that a cabman may charge twenty-five cents for each adult passenger, and fifteen cents for children under ten years of age, but does not specify if there is to be any charge for baggage or not. It was shown that Drake had driven the lady from the station to a house on north George-st. and had charged fifty cents as her fare. Mr. A. Stevenson appeared for the defendant and claimed that his client had done no more than the literal wording of the by-law called for, as he had taken a valise and parcel for the lady, and was therefore entitled to charge more than the specified twenty-five cents. Magistrate Dumble said that more than the legal fare had been charged, but, as they wanted law, he would give it to them, strictly. The by-law made no provision as to what if anything should be charged for baggage and, therefore, if Drake charged twenty-five cents for the passenger and twenty-five cents for the valise and parcel, he could not convict under the by law as no mention was made of baggage, and he would therefore dismiss the case without costs. The by-law, he said, was faulty, and until the Council made some change in it the public would be at the mercy of the cabmen, who might charge what they pleased for baggage. He was glad the case had been brought up and thought it would prove to be for the public good, as a proper by-law would now be framed.

Owing to the steady increase in the demand for Fresh Ground Coffee, W. J. PERSONAL.—The lady who lost a letter on Saturday while purchasing Tea at M. R. Kidd's can have the same by applying.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passeages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

A Good Address.

Professor Robertson delivered an address on cheesemaking to an audience of farmers in the council chamber, on Saturday afternoon. He spoke for about an hour and the lecture was very practical and instructive. The report is unavoidably crowded out of this issue.

Legal.

At Toronto on Saturday:—Reg. v. Fife.—W. M. Douglas, for the defendant, moved on the return of a certiorari for an order nisi to quash a commitment of the defendant for trial for burning a fence on the ground that no offence was shown and that a question of title was involved in the dispute between the defendant and complainant. Granted.

Church Notes.

A service in memoriam of Mrs. Lilly, was held in George-st. church last evening, Rev. M. L. Pearson preaching an appropriate sermon. The deceased lady had for many years been a member of the church and had always evinced a zeal in all Christian work.

Rev. J. C. Davidson, the new curate of St. John's church, preached his first sermon to a good congregation last evening. He is a young man, has a good delivery and gave an eloquent discourse.

THE LAST LOOK.

Oh! dewy fields upon the distant hills,
Across the waters reach how fair they lie,
Unto the sight how quietly they spread,
How stilly grow and ripe. As days go by
I see them softly answer to the sky
For shower and sun, light cloud and lengthened rain,
For all the bounty from that largeness shed;
Uplifting to its face their glistening sheen,
Their rich brown tints, their fibers firmly spun,
The first young freshness of their vivid green,
The gold white of their ripeness. Ah! the light
Dies softly o'er them with the set of sun.
Good night, O fields, good night.

I am aweary now of all my work,
Of vain endeavor, of success hard won
And hardly held. Oh, peace! the evening falls,
The coolness, quiet, soft oblivion.
I lay me down to rest, my toil is done.
It is so good to sleep and be renewed,
The morning is so sweet. When morning calls
I will lift up my eyes again and be Able for joy. When new the daylight fills
The air, my freshened vision glad will see
Fair sloping to the misty thither beach
The dewy fields upon the distant hills
Across the waters' reach.

For a Young Couple.

What is needed to insure a larger degree of happiness in this world is moral independence and moral principle. The notion that the end is attained when the altar is reached is almost a criminal mistake. That is not the end; it is only the beginning. As a rough farmer once said, "to marry and love each other for a few months is as easy as rolling off a log; but to love each other right along for forty years, up hill and down, well, it's quite a job."

There is hard work before a young couple. They must get used to each other, make mutual concessions, get their plans, aims, interests to work smoothly in double harness. There is too much kicking in the traces, too strong a desire to have one's own way, too little forbearance, an insistence upon one's rights, but a forgetfulness of one's duties.

Then it is well to remember that at 25 you can't have what you will perhaps be able to buy when you are 50, if you are economical. Young people spend too freely, are unwilling to pinch themselves in order to have a surplus, delight in show, and are apt to live beyond their means.—New York Herald.

TALENTS.

Talents are seeds by Heaven's good gift bestowed,
To render back their increase unto God;
Talents are deeds to do, or duties done,
Whate'er their number be—five, two or one.
As is their use, so is their worth,
As is the impulse given,
They wither here upon the earth,
Or ripen here for heaven. —Robert Maguire.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &C.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Concert I. O. O. F.

Those friends who wish to obtain tickets or the concert and social on Tuesday, Dec. 11th, to be held in Otonabee Lodge rooms, had better do so as soon as possible, as the numbers are limited, to be obtained from any of the members of the Lodge.

Acknowledgement.

The Lady Superintendent thankfully acknowledges the following donations to the Nicholls Hospital in November:—Mrs. Morrow, milk (daily); jelly; Mrs. Weller, jelly; Mr. G. M. Roger, fruit, cream and illustrated papers; a friend, one barrel of apples; a friend, a large quantity of old cotton and muslin.

Given a Chance.

Little Herbert Daly, of the Grand Central, was sent out on an errand on Saturday afternoon, and while running up street with the money wherewith to make the purchase on which he had been sent, he was met by a larger boy and the money taken from him. The boy who committed the sneaking act is known to Mr. Daly and had better turn the money he stole from the little fellow or it may be unpleasant for him.

An Incorrect Report.

The report that the man who is suspected of having committed the outrage last week had been seen in Toronto and had eaten his dinner with a Peterborough man on Sunday last, was most positively denied by a telegram from the gentleman, Mr. Warren, at whose house the suspected man was said to have dined. Mr. Warren says the report was incorrect and that he has not seen the man for over two years.

The Nicholls Hospital.

The following is the monthly report of the Hospital:—Number of patients in the Hospital at the month ending Nov. 30th, 1888, 5. Diseases—Hip joint disease, 1; debility, 1; typhoid fever, 2; scabies, 1. Discharged cured during month, 15. From Peterborough, 13; from the county, 1. Pay patients, 8; non-pay, 8. Dr. Fife attending physician for November. Dr. Halliday and Dr. Pigeon for the attendance on private ward patients.

Capt. Howell's Farewell.

On Sunday Staff-Captain Marshall conducted the meetings at the Salvation Army temple and they were largely attended. In the evening the hall was filled. Capt. Tom. Howell read a portion of scripture and gave an earnest address. During the evening he explained why he was leaving—to engage in special work. He regretted leaving Peterborough, he said, as he had learned to love it and its people. He had been well received here by all. He had heard a great deal about Peterborough before coming here and expected much, and he had not been disappointed. He assured them that he would never forget them and he would ever remember them in his prayers. Capt. Howell leaves with the good wishes of the Peterborough soldiers.

Personal.

Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, of London, Ont., a former resident of Peterborough and well known here, for the past three years manager of the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company for western Ontario, has severed his connection with the company by resignation, and we understand will assume the position of inspector of the Canada Life Company for eastern Ontario under the management of Mr. Geo. A. Cox, thus returning to his "first love" in insurance business.

Mr. R. H. Matson, well known in Peterborough, who has been in town for the past two weeks assisting the general agent here, Mr. E. E. Henderson, of the British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, left for Toronto to-day. Mr. Matson has also tendered his resignation as superintendent of this company and retires at an early day. During Mr. Matson's visit here he made hosts of friends and is exceedingly popular.

REPLY TO THE BISHOP.

REV. ALEX. BELL PREACHES ON "THE CHURCH AND THE BIBLE."

An Immense Audience to hear Him—What is Meant by the Church and the Bible—The Duty of the Church as Regards the Bible—His Lordship's Statements Disputed.

An immense congregation filled St. Andrew's church to its utmost capacity last evening, to hear Rev. Alexander Bell in his reply to His Lordship Bishop Dowling on "The Church and the Bible." Camp stools were brought into requisition in order to seat the entire audience. The rev. gentleman based his discourse on the words:—

"Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—Matthew 28 19 20.

He said he was going to speak of "The Church and the Bible" and to make the matter clear and better fixed in their minds, what he would say he would group around three points and, without any preface, these points were: The Church, the Bible, and the duty of the church as regards the Bible. What do we mean by the church? In Scripture it had one invariable meaning—an assembly of God's people, a society of Christians. At the will of the writer, it might be applied to a small company or a greater number. However, they never found this sense of the word absent. In its widest application it embraced the whole family of God, all saints in heaven and believers on earth, as it was said "Christ loved the church and gave himself for it." Invariably the Scriptural was a company of Christian pastors and people, together in one society and never separated, whether great or small. How very different from this scriptural meaning was that definition given by His Lordship Bishop Dowling on this subject. Those who had heard the lecture or read the reports in the press knew that His Lordship separated the pastors from the people and restricted the meaning of the church so as to include the pastors only. This, to begin with, was unscriptural, but it was not without design. It served a purpose which would appear. Having imagined the church composed wholly of pastors the Bishop had glided immediately into the arrogant assumption that his papal definition of a church was, to the exclusion of all others, the one true Church of Christ, the church to which Christ gave His commission to go and preach to all nations and the promises of His presence always. And, said the preacher, His Lordship continued to the end to build upon this huge assumption that the church composed of the pastors of the papacy is the church, the pastors of which only had the right to teach, to interpret the Bible; the right to say by whom, where and when the Bible should be possessed and read. The modesty of this claim was remarkable, and amounted to this that the priesthood of the papal church alone have the divine authority to dispense the Scriptures. This was the claim boldly and unblushingly made to-day and it would be a grand assumption if it could be proved to be true. But the creed of Pope Pius bound every priest, under oath, not to receive or interpret the Scriptures but according to the unanimous consent of the fathers. That consent had never been found, and Rome was, therefore, to-day by her own constitution and decree without an authorized teacher.

Then they came to the Bible. They

that collection of sacred writings known as the Holy Scriptures and which they believed were written by inspired writers. It was divided into two parts, the old and new testaments, and he said without waiting to detail the history of the canon he would briefly say that, taking the combined testimony of the two earliest versions of the New Testament—Syriac and Old Latin—all the books were known and received in some part of the church, except second Peter, before the end of the second century. In the fourth century the canon was fixed as they now had it and received by the churches both east and west. This was at a time when Rome was only one among a number of churches and she had no more to do with it than the others. She stood on a perfect level with all the churches. That was before the Church of Rome as at present constituted was in existence, and from that time till the present that Bible had been received and kept without the help of Rome. The Greeks had kept the Bible and the Sylacs and Waldenses also without the help of Rome. The Church of Rome had asked what would they had done if she had not kept the Bible? Their answer was that if Rome had been swept out of existence fourteen centuries ago they would still have had the Bible. He did not think they had any reason to be humbly grateful. Had Rome given them the Bible? No! She forbade the reading of it, and it was wrested from her reluctant hands. History showed them that when this was done, her greatest maledictions were hurled after them and their Bible laid under her curse at the present time. This Bible was not for pastors, but for the people also. They heard constantly from the lips of Jesus when on earth, "It is written," showing that those he was addressing had access to the Bible and were to judge. He said, also, "Search the Scriptures," which was said, not to pastors, but to the multitude, thus showing that they had a right to read the Bible. The preacher also quoted from the apostles to the same point, and showing that the Word of God was by the authority of Jesus Christ and intended to be in a tongue which the people could read, and the whole character and purpose of the writers showed that it was for the people. Then thirdly there was the DUTY OF THE CHURCH TO THE BIBLE.

The duty of the church was to teach it to the people, and this was clearly shown by the words of the text. It was clear then that the true Church of God would be faithful to her Lord's commands, would teach the Bible, scatter the Word and give the Bible to the people. But had the Church of Rome by her dealings with the Bible proved her claim to be to the exclusion of all others the one true Church of Christ? In the early centuries Rome, no doubt, like the other churches, did her share of spreading the Word, but when the Papacy was built up and unscriptural dogmas, purgatory, saint worship, mass, transubstantiation, worship of Mary and such things were required to be received, the consciences of men rebelled and denounced them as heresy and it was then the trouble began. Rome could not bear to be rebuked and so persecution began, and finding at length that her trouble was always with those who had the Bible, she decreed to prohibit the use of the Bible in the vulgar tongue at the Council of Toulouse, in 1229 and ever since her path had been marked by opposition to the spreading of the Bible. The same council had established the inquisition. The bulls of Popes and decrees of council had marked her history—first visiting with excommunication and, where she had power, with death, those who read the Bible against her will. The reasons given by Bishop Dowling for this course were remarkable, the preacher said. The first was that the version was a corrupt one. If this was so why did not Rome supply a correct one, instead of leaving the people without a Bible. The second reason was that the Albigenses, who believed in two Gods, condemned marriage, were heretics and had been corrupting the hearts of the faithful. That seemed queer logic. Because the unfaithful were doing wrong to take away the Word from the faithful as well. The decree did not say "a corrupt version" but simply the Bible, and every man found with a Bible. The preacher said the Albigenses were a quiet and godly people, and Faber had by Rome's own witnesses, Faradin, the annalist of Bergundy, and Bernard Girard, the historiographer of France, brought out the fact that the Albigenses were falsely accused of enormities because they spoke too freely of the vices of the prelates. This libel on them was made for prohibiting the Bible. His Lordship, the minister said, put forward the letter of Pope Pius VI. to Martini, who had translated the Bible into Italian as an evidence that Rome encouraged the reading of the Bible but he forgot to tell them that the very next pope, Pius VII, put that same Martini Bible on the index of prohibited books. The preacher told of how Seymour in 1849 had searched every store in Rome for a Bible and could only find two copies of the Martini version, and they were worth 150 francs or $30 each. This was how Rome had provided her people with the Bible. On June 27th, 1816, Pope Pius VII denounced Bible societies and in 1819 denounced the circulation of the Bible in Irish schools. Leo XII on May 3rd, 1824, also denounced the Bible societies, and Pius IX—did the same thing. In 1713, in his famous bull Unigenitus, Clement XI denounced as false, shocking, scandalous, offensive to pious ears, seditious and blasphemous a proposition that it was useful and necessary for all sorts of persons to study the Scriptures. Since 1229 Gaussen enumerates no less than sixteen bulls of Popes and seven or eight decrees of council against Bibles and heretics. His Lordship had said twenty editions of the Bible had been issued by the Church of Rome before the birth of Luther, but Dr. Wiseman had done better than that and had enumerated 54 versions and editions of the same version during the fifteenth century, a thousand each, perhaps, for all Germany, Italy, France, Spain, Belgium, Bohemia, a number which would not have given one to each of the clergy of any one of those countries. This was exceedingly generous. He would see what Protestants had done about the same periods. In Henry VII.'s time (22 years) 48 editions had been printed; in Edward VI.'s (6½ years) 45 editions had been printed; in Mary's time, a little over five years, only one edition appeared, while in Elizabeth's reign of 44 years 111 editions were printed. So it went on and Protestants had multiplied the Bible and scattered them, while Rome had surrounded its spread with difficulties. Tyndale had his Bible burned and was a martyr himself afterwards in 1536. The works of Fryth and Coverdale met the same fate, being condemned by the inquisition. At Seville and Salamanca thousands of volumes were publicly burned and in 1834 a petition was before the House of Commons in London about Bible burning in Ireland. Some said this was all in by-gone-days and that things were changed, but they should see. He then read from a little book which was called "The Power Behind the Pope," in which was a letter from Cardinal Jacobine to Henry Lassarre, a learned Frenchman, sanctioning his translation of the Bible. This letter was dated December 4th, 1886. During the year that followed twenty-five editions of the Lassarre Bible were printed, and about a year after its publication and sanction, there was another letter condemning the version and placing it on the prohibited book list. There was nothing, the reverend gentleman said, like putting on a bold front in a bad cause, and the Papacy would not suffer for want of it. But he did not think there was anything so unfortunate and unwise as to attempt to prove that the Papacy was a friend of the Bible. No heretic had ever forbidden the use of the Bible, but Rome had burned and cursed it.

TO DUTY AS AN EXCUSE

"Y" At Home.

The "Y" hall continues to be a pleasant resort for a goodly number of people. Last Saturday night the numbers on the programme were filled chiefly by little people who acquitted themselves very creditably. An instrumental solo by Miss Zoe Kincaid, and a duet by Miss Mabel McGuire and Miss Nettie McFadden, showed very careful training. A recitation by a very little girl (Miss Laura McGuire), was a playful satire on the many loves of a boy's life, from his first "pinafore attachment" on to the sober realities of matrimony. Mrs. Jones sang a vocal solo in good and pleasing style. The wants of the physical man were well provided for, and a general "At Homeness" pervaded the gathering. Next Saturday evening the "Y" have styled "Editor's Night," when those much abused caterers to the public intellectual appetites are for once to receive full justice.

A Terrible and Tempestous Time.

Probabilities indicate that winter weather may be looked for during the month. Snow, sleet, rain and hail will follow one another with increasing severity. It behoves mankind in general to be prepared. With this end in view get out on deck. Scour the meteological and business horizon. Wrap your body. Wrap it up well to stand the biawested climate. Good, warm clothing will be a necessity. Now, see here. Put down the fact that Gough Bros., the wonderful cheap men, are running out the Sheppard bankrupt stock by the cart load. It must be carried, pitched or thrown out of the stand by first of January next. This means absolute whacking bargains for all buyers. Prices are pretty nearly what you like to pay. Come along and get a mighty dollar's worth for your dollar. And remember, you can clothe your feet as well at the George-st. store, where the latter business is carried on in the interests of the mighty people. Give the firm a call and buy yourself rich.

A Farewell Gathering.

On Saturday evening a happy gathering took place in the dining-room of the Commercial House when a number of his brother Oddfellows and a few friends entertained Mr. A. H. Stratton at a farewell dinner as he is to-night leaving Peterborough to take a position on the road as travelling salesman of a Montreal house. Vice-Grand Wm. F. Greey presided at the head of the table, and Mr. R. H. Hall filled the vice-chair. The usual toast list was drank and responded to. The toast of the evening "Our Guest" was enthusiastically drank, and Mr. Stratton made a feeling reply, expressing his regret at severing connections which had always been the most pleasant and said that his Peterborough friends and Otonabee Lodge would never be forgotten. Many were the expressions of sorrow and regret at the departure of Mr. Stratton, and equally numerous were the wishes for success. The gathering broke up before mid-night, with "Auld Lang Syne" and the national anthem. Mr. Stratton takes to-night's train for Montreal and will carry with him the wishes of a host of friends that his brightest prospects and anticipations may become realities in the near future.

Court of Chancery.

The following were the two cases that concluded the court on Saturday:—

REDPATH vs. CASTLE.—The plaintiff was entirely successful in establishing the fact that the defendant, Arthur Kidd, or somebody acting in concert with him, had forged the impeached deed and the Chancellor adjudged it and all other instruments registered against the property in question by Kidd and those claiming under him fraudulent and void and ordered their removal from the registry. The Chancellor also held that the plaintiff had clearly established his title to the lot and ordered that a declaration to that effect should be embodied in the judgment and that a certificate of the same be registered. Costs were awarded against the defendants, Arthur Kidd and Francis M. Castle. Geo. H. Watson (Toronto) and Hall & Hayes, for the plaintiff. Edmison & Dixon and E. A. Peck for defendants.

BEATS VS. BRADBURN.—An action to set aside an agreement for sale of certain lands, the defendant claiming the agreement was not binding, and plaintiff seeking to enforce it. Decision was given for defendant. Poussette, Q. C., for plaintiff; Edmison & Dixon, for defendant.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

A. Yes; and he said that the deceased lived either in Grey street or Ackland street, St. Kilda, but that the deceased would direct me at the Junction.

Q. Did you not think that the deceased was too drunk to direct you?

A. Yes, I did; but his friend said that the sleep and the shaking of the cab would sober him a bit by the time I got to the Junction.

Q. The gentleman in the light coat apparently did not know where the deceased lived?

A. No; he said it was either in Ackland street or Grey street.

Q. Did you not think that curious?

A. No; I thought he might be a club friend of the deceased.

Q. How long did the man in the light coat talk to you?

A. About five minutes.

Q. And during that time you heard no noise in the cab?

A. No; I thought the deceased had gone to sleep.

Q. And after the man in the light coat said good night to the deceased what happened?

A. He lit a cigarette, gave me a half sovereign, and walked off towards Melbourne.

Q. Did you observe if the gentleman in the light coat had his handkerchief with him?

A. Oh, yes; because he dusted his boots with it. The road was very dusty.

Q. Did you notice any striking peculiarity about him?

A. Well, no; except that he wore a diamond ring.

Q. What was there peculiar about that?

A. He wore it on the forefinger of the right hand, and I never saw it that way before.

Q. When did you notice this?

A. When he was lighting his cigarette.

Q. How often did you call to the deceased when you got to the Junction?

A. Three or four times. I then got down, and found he was quite dead.

Q. How was he lying?

A. He was doubled up in the far corner of the cab, very much in the same position as I left him when I put him in. His head was hanging on one side, and there was a handkerchief across his mouth. When I touched him he fell into the other corner of the cab, and then I found out he was dead. I immediately drove to the St. Kilda police station and told the police.

At the conclusion of Royston's evidence, during which Gorby had been continually taking notes, Robert Chinston was called. He deposed:

I am a duly qualified medical practitioner, residing in Collins street East. I made a post-mortem examination of the body of the deceased on Friday.

Q. That was within a few hours after his death?

A. Yes; seeing from the position of the handkerchief and the presence of chloroform that he had died through chloroform, and knowing how quickly that poison evaporates, I made the examination at once.

Coroner: Go on, sir.

Dr. Chinston: Externally, the body was healthy looking and well nourished. There were no marks of violence. The staining apparent at the back of the legs and trunk was due to post mortem congestion. Internally, the brain was hyperæmic, and there was a considerable amount of congestion, especially apparent in the superficial vessels. There was no brain disease. The lungs were healthy, but slightly congested. On opening the thorax there was a faint spirituous odor discernible. The stomach contained about a pint of completely digested food. The heart was flaccid. The right heart contained a considerable quantity of dark, fluid blood. There was a tendency to fatty degeneration of that organ. I am of the opinion that deceased died from the inhalation of some such vapor as chloroform or methylena.

Q. You say there was a tendency to fatty degeneration of the heart. Would that have anything to do with the death of deceased?

A. Not of itself. But chloroform administered while the heart was in such a state would have a decided tendency to accelerate the fatal result. At the same time, I may mention that the post mortem signs of poisoning by chloroform are mostly negative.

Dr. Chinston was then permitted to retire, and Clement Rankin, another hansom cabman, was called. He deposed: I am a cabman, living in Collingwood, and usually drive a hansom cab. I remember Thursday last. I had driven a party down to St. Kilda, and was returning about half-past 1 o'clock. About this time past the grammar school I was hailed by a gentleman in a light coat; he was smoking a cigarette, and told me to drive him to Powlett street, East Melbourne. I did so, and he got out at the corner of Wellington parade and Powlett street. He paid me half a sovereign for my fare, and then walked up Powlett street, while I drove back to town.

Q. What time was it you stopped at Powlett street?

A. Two o'clock exactly.

Q. How do you know?

A. Because it was a still night, and I heard the postoffice clock strike 2 o'clock.

Q. Did you notice anything peculiar about the man in the light coat?

A. No; he looked just the same as any one else. I thought he was some swell of the town out for a lark. His hat was pulled down over his eyes and I could not see his face.

Q. Did you notice if he wore a ring?

A. Yes, I did. When he was handing me the half sovereign I saw he had a diamond ring on the forefinger of his right hand.

Q. He did not say why he was on the St. Kilda road at such an hour?

A. No; he did not.

Clement Rankin was then ordered to stand down, and the coroner then summed up an address of half an hour's duration. There was, he pointed out, no doubt that the death of the deceased had resulted not from natural causes, but from the effects of poisoning. Only slight evidence had been obtained up to the present time regarding the circumstances of the case, but the only person who could be accused of committing the crime was the unknown man who entered the cab with the deceased on Friday morning at the corner of the Scotch church, near the Burke and Wills monument. It had been proved the deceased, when he entered the cab, was, to all appearances, in good health, though in a state of intoxication, and the fact that he was found by the cabman Royston, after the man in the light coat had left the cab, with a handkerchief saturated with chloroform tied over his mouth, would seem to show that he had died through the inhalation of chloroform, which had been deliberately administered. All the obtainable evidence in the case was circumstantial, but, nevertheless, showed conclusively that a crime had been committed. Therefore, as the circumstances of the case pointed to one conclusion, the jury could not do otherwise than frame a verdict in accordance with that conclusion.

The jury retired at 4 o'clock, and, after an absence of a quarter of an hour, returned with the following verdict: "That the deceased, whose name there was no evidence to show, died on the 27th day of July, from the effects of poison, namely, chloroform, feloniously administered by some person unknown; and the jury, on their oaths, say that the said unknown person feloniously, willfully and maliciously did murder the said deceased."

CHAPTER III.

ONE HUNDRED POUNDS REWARD.

V. R.

MURDER.

£100 REWARD.

"Whereas, on Friday, the 27th day of July, the body of a man, name unknown, was found in a hansom cab. And whereas, at an inquest held at St. Kilda, on the 30th day of July, a verdict of willful murder, against some person unknown, was brought in by the jury. The deceased is of medium height, with a dark complexion, dark hair, clean shaved, has a mole on the left temple, and was dressed in evening dress. Notice is hereby given that a reward of £100 will be paid by the government for such information as will lead to the conviction of the murderer, who is presumed to be a man who entered the hansom cab with the deceased at the corner of Collins and Russell streets, on the morning of the 27th day of July."

To be continued.

THE LEAGUE AND CRIME.

Important Testimony Given Before the Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—It has been an important if not a sensational week of the Parnell Commission. The Times has at last begun its effort to connect the League more directly with crime. Mr. Crane, District Inspector of Police in Ireland, is a shining example of this new class of witnesses. He is an Englishman educated at Oxford and belonging socially to the landlord, not to the tenant class. Kerry was his district. The substance of his evidence was that Kerry down to 1879 was quiet, orderly and peaceful; the landlords popular, the rents paid; evictions began in 1880; the League came in 1881, and disorder and crime came with it; coercion stopped much of this crime, but when coercion ceased crime revived, again to diminish as coercion was renewed. He asserted that there was a direct connection between the League and the Moonlighters. Wherever, he said, the Land League existed, Moonlighters were sure to be found. Mr. Crane was asked in cross examination, "Do you suggest that branches of the League and the Moonlighters are in co-operation?" He answered, "I do. I say that a majority of the Moonlighters are National Leaguers; but not a majority of the National Leaguers are Moonlighters. The resolutions of the League were invariably carried out by the Moonlighters." And to this opinion Mr. Crane adhered through all the vicissitudes of cross-examination. Mr. Wright, another police inspector, swore to the same thing. "I know," said he, "the Moonlighters carried out the League's behest." This evidence will of course be disputed by the defendants, but it is at least evidence, and very strong evidence, until overthrown.

Yesterday brought Mr. Hussey into the witness box, the famous land agent to Lord Kenmare and other great land owners. He, like Mr. Leonard last week, had the whole Irish question at his fingers' ends. He is an owner of land as well as a land agent. "We had no serious trouble," he said, "till the League appeared." He was on excellent terms with his own and his employers' tenants down to 1880; since then rents have been unpaid, evictions resisted and crimes frequent. He himself went about under police protection, and his house, with women and children inside, was blown down with dynamite. Sir Charles Russell's cross-examination of Mr. Hussey is one of the most interesting and instructive episodes of the trial. They were a fair match. Each knew his case thoroughly. Sir Charles' point was that Kerry before 1879 was by no means the Arcadia Mr. Hussey had painted. Then Mr. Biggar took Mr. Hussey in hand with this startling result:

Question—You say you were popular down to 1880?

Answer—I was fairly popular till you named me as a subject for murder in Castle Island, and promised if I was shot that the person charged with the murder should have the means of obtaining a fair trial.

"I suppose," remarked Sir James Hannen, blandly, "we shall have Mr. Biggar's speech?" and the Attorney-General cheerfully undertook that it should be forthcoming.

UNCLE SAM'S BANKS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The total amount of bonds purchased to date under the circular of April 17 is $97,101,550. The total cost of these bonds was $115,377,115.

The twenty-sixth annual report of the Comptroller of the Currency contains a summary of the condition of the national banks during the year. The number reporting on Oct. 4 was 3140, of which the capital stock exceeded $592,000,000, surplus funds $185,000,000, other undivided profits $70,000,000 and the outstanding circulation against bonds $151,702,000. The individual deposits amounted to $1,350,000,000 and government deposits to $56,000,000. The total number of new national banks organized during the year was 132. Forty-two banks went out of the system during the year, of which 34 went into voluntary liquidation and 8 failed. The net increase of capital in the year has been over $14,000,000 and the net decrease of circulation nearly $17,000,000. During the year 34 dividends have been paid to creditors of insolvent national banks, aggregating $3,523,955 and the affairs of five failed banks have been closed, in each case the creditors receiving payment in full.

MRS. FRENCH'S FATAL ERROR.

An Ottawa Butcher Accidentally Poisoned by His Wife.

OTTAWA, Dec. 2.—Charles French, butcher, was accidentally poisoned by his wife last night and died this evening. French, who was a total abstainer, closed his shop about 11 o'clock, and not feeling well got his wife to go to MacEachran's drug store and get him a black draught.

Mrs. French is very near-sighted and after ordering the draught turned away from the counter and spoke to MacEachran's brother about a pair of glasses. She had left her satchel on the counter and into this MacEachran put the bottle containing the draught. Mrs. French did not notice him, and seeing a bottle on the table took it home and gave it to her husband.

It was a liniment compound of chloral, iodine and camphor intended for another patient who was suffering from neuralgia. As soon as he had swallowed it French felt an intense burning pain and ran to the druggist's where the mistake was discovered. French was taken to Dr. Graham's and a stomach pump applied, but he soon became insensible and remained unconscious until this evening, when he died.

He was a young Englishman about 30 years of age who had just started for himself. He had been married about four years but had no children.

HAMILTON'S HOLIDAY.

An Enthusiastic Reception to the Vice Regal Party.

HAMILTON, Dec. 3.—His Excellency and party and several servants arrived from Toronto at 1.45 p.m. Saturday. Gen. Middleton and Lady Middleton came up on the same train. The crowd at the depot to receive their Excellencies was nearly 10,000. Many of the prominent men of the city were on the platform. Mayor Doran, who was the first to shake hands with His Excellency as he stepped from the tail end of the Cumberland, was surrounded by his council and the members of the reception committee. Over a carpeted way the vice-regal party was escorted to the ladies' parlor of the station. Here His Excellency listened to two addresses, one from Mayor Doran and one from Clerk Comsell on behalf of the County of Wentworth.

Then the party emerged from the waiting room and proceeded amid enthusiastic cheers to Senator Turner's residence where they will remain during their stay in town. Gen. and Lady Middleton are the guests of Mr. Ramsay.

The event of the night was the levee in the Court House at which nearly all the leading citizens, their wives and their daughters were presented to Their Excellencies. The city was beautifully illuminated, especially "The Gore," which was gorgeous with Chinese lanterns. The Court House square was jammed with people and the 13th Batt., headed by their fine band, turned out 300 strong. The men looked spick and span in their bright scarlet tunics, spotless belts and white helmets.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

CLEVELAND TO CONGRESS

GROVER'S LAST MESSAGE A VOLUMINOUS DOCUMENT.

The Fisheries, the Sackville Episode, the British Columbia-Alaska Boundary and Other International Matters.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Cleveland's annual message to Congress contains about 25,000 words. The home and local features which were omitted in the last annual features are treated very fully, but the tariff issue, which was the only one referred to a year ago, is not neglected, the President asserting that the citizens are inordinately burdened for the benefit of a favored few.

Of those matters relating particularly to questions in dispute between Great Britain and the United States the President writes:

The questions between Great Britain and the United States relating to the rights of American fishermen under treaty and international comity in the territorial waters of Canada and Newfoundland, I regret to say, are not yet satisfactorily adjusted. I merely repeat as applicable to the present time the statement which will be found in my message to the Senate of Sept. 12 last: That since March 3, 1887, no case has been reported to the Department of State wherein complaint has been made of unfriendly or unlawful treatment of American fishing vessels on the part of the Canadian authorities in which reparation was not promptly and satisfactorily obtained by the United States Consul-General at Halifax.

Having essayed in the discharge of my duty to procure by negotiation the settlement of a long-standing cause of dispute, and to remove a constant menace to the good relations of the two countries, and continuing to be of opinion that the treaty of February last, which failed to receive the approval of the Senate, did supply a satisfactory, practical and final adjustment, upon a basis honorable and just to both parties, of the difficult and vexed question to which it related, and having subsequently and unavailingly recommended other legislation to Congress which I hoped would suffice to meet the exigency created by the rejection of the treaty, I now again invoke the earnest and immediate attention of the Congress to the condition of this important question as it now stands before them and the country, and for the settlement of which I am deeply solicitous.

Near the close of the month of October last occurrences of a deeply regrettable nature were brought to my knowledge, which made it my painful but imperative duty to obtain, with as little delay as possible, a new personal channel of diplomatic intercourse in this country with the Government of Great Britain. The correspondence in relation to this incident will in due course be laid before you and will disclose the unpardonable conduct of the official referred to in his interference by advices and counsel with the suffrages of American citizens in the very crisis of the Presidential election then near at hand, and also in his subsequent public declarations to justify his action, superadding impugnment of the good faith and the Senate of the United States in connection with important questions now pending in controversy between the two Governments. The offence thus committed was most grave, involving disastrous possibilities to the good relations of the United States and Great Britain, constituting a gross breach of diplomatic privilege and an invasion of the purely domestic affairs and essential sovereignty of the Government to which the envoy was accredited. Having first fulfilled the just demand of international comity, by affording full opportunity for Her Majesty's Government to act in relief of the situation, I considered prolongation of the discussion to be unwarranted and thereupon declined to further recognize the diplomatic character of the person whose continuance in such function would destroy the mutual confidence which is essential to the good administration of the two Governments and was consistent with the welfare and self-respect of the Government of the United States. The usual interchange of communication has since continued through Her Majesty's legation in this city.

My endeavors to establish, by international co-operation, measures for the prevention of the extermination of fur seals in Behring Sea have not been relaxed, and I have hopes of being enabled shortly to submit an effective and satisfactory convectional project for the approval of the Senate. The coastal boundary between our Alaskan possessions and British Columbia, I regret to say, has not received the attention demanded by its importance, and which on several occasions heretofore I have had the honor to recommend to Congress. The admitted impracticability, if not impossibility, of making an accurate and precise survey and demarcation of the boundary line, as it is recited in the treaty with Russia under which Alaska was ceded to the United States, renders it absolutely requisite for the prevention of international jurisdictional complications, that adequate appropriation for a reconnoisance and survey to obtain proper knowledge of the locality and the geographical features of the boundary, should be authorized by Congress with as little delay as possible. The knowledge to be only thus obtained is an essential prerequisite for negotiations for ascertaining a common boundary or as preliminary to any other mode of settlement.

It is much to be desired that some agreement should be reached with Her Majesty's Government by which the damages to life and property on the great lakes may be obviated by removing or humanly regulating the obstacles to reciprocal assistance to wrecked or stranded vessels. The act of June 19, 1878 which offers to Canadian vessels free access to our inland waters in aid of wrecked or disabled vessels, has not yet become effective through concurrent action by Canada.

London Opinions.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Morning Post commenting on the President's message says: "If Americans are really inclined to resume negotiations on the subject of the fisheries they will find the English ministers animated only by a sincere desire to promote satisfactory and final adjustment which Mr. Cleveland mentions."

The Daily News says that it would express more regret over Mr. Cleveland's acrimonious reference to the dismissal of Lord Sackville if Lord Salisbury had not set the example. Mr. Cleveland, it thinks, evidently has Lord Salisbury's gift of a bitter tongue.

Whitby's Drill Shed.

WHITBY, Dec. 4.—Col. Otter was here yesterday afternoon inspecting the new fair grounds of the Ontario and Durham Exhibition Association, who want the drill shed moved to their grounds from the present situation where it is getting into bad repair. They offer to bear half the expense. Col. Otter will aid in furthering the proposition to a successful issue and likes the big exhibition as a site for next year's camp.

John Bright had a bad night and his condition is worse.

IMMIGRANTS FOR CANADA.

A LARGE INFLUX FROM FRANCE EXPECTED NEXT YEAR.

The Onderdonk Contracts Arbitration—An Important Case in the Exchequer Court—Public Works Contracts Let.

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—Chancellor Boyd, T.C. Keefer and G. C. Gregory, the arbitrators in the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway's claim against the Dominion Government arising out of the Onderdonk contracts on the British Columbia section, met in the Railway Committee's rooms yesterday. B. B. Osler, Q.C., and Christopher Robinson, Q.C., of Toronto and W. D. Hogg of Ottawa appeared for the Government, and Hon. Edward Blake, Q.C., Walter Cassels, Q.C., and G. T. Blackstock, Q.C., of Toronto for the Canadian Pacific Railway. The only evidence taken was that of H. P. Bell, civil engineer of Victoria, B.C., who made an examination of the road. His evidence was to the effect that the country was about the most difficult through which to construct a railway he had ever seen, and that taking into account the difficulties to be encountered the road was well built, the bridges substantial and the engineer in charge of the work has shown good judgment.

In the Exchequer Court yesterday Judge Fournier gave judgment in the case of McGreery v. the Queen, arising out of a contract on the Intercolonial Railway, and holding that a certificate of the engineer was valid and allowing the case to proceed on its merits. The amount involved is about $600,000.

An investigation has been ordered by the Customs Department in the case of Preventive Officer William Smith mentioned in Saturday's despatches from Winnipeg as having absconded from Killarney, Man. The amount of his defalcation is not known.

A considerable emigration from those rural districts in France from which the first settlers in Canada came is expected in the Province of Quebec next year. The cures in these districts are said to be interesting themselves in the movement and the people being dissatisfied under the present regime in France are disposed to emigrate.

The Public Works Department has recently let these contracts, all of which were to the lowest tenderers:

Henry & Macdonald, Ottawa—Extension of pier at New Carlisle, Que.

Adam Clark, Hamilton—Heating apparatus, public buildings, Cayuga.

A. & J. Henderson, Cobourg—Addition to public buildings, Cobourg.

Flood & Babcock, Chatham—Protection work, McGregor's Creek.

O'Connor & Donald, Moncton—Erection public building, Sydney, N.S.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau will go to Montreal to-morrow, and will sail from New York on Saturday for Havre by the steamer La Bretagne. He will be accompanied by Madame Chapleau. Mr. Chapleau is somewhat better, but his physicians strongly recommend another visit to Paris.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell will be Acting Secretary of State during Hon. Mr. Chapleau's absence.

It is understood that the Minister of Interior has under consideration a scheme for very materially enlarging the scope of the industrial schools in the Northwest.

J. Ross Robertson of Toronto had an interview with Sir John yesterday with reference to the Copyright Act, and a deputation on the same subject will shortly visit Ottawa.

It is understood that the Knights of Labor will send a deputation to Ottawa during the coming session to watch legislation. Mr. Lepine, the labor representative for Montreal East, will introduce measures for the regulation of female and child labor in factories, and also an act for the appointment of a board of official arbitration to adjudicate disputes between employers and employes.

The following decisions were rendered by the Board of Customs during October and November: Cotton seed bran, 20 per cent. Cocoanut oilcake, 20 per cent. Galvanized wrought iron tubing over 2 inches dia., 30 per cent. Letter copying books, 35 per cent. Parian busts of statuettes, 30 per cent. Paper boxes embellished with chromos, etc., but without any printed matter, 6 cents per lb. and 20 per cent. Pencil cases of all kinds, including gold, silver or plated, 25 per cent. Suspensory bandages, as trusses, 25 per cent. Scripture wall texts, not illustrated, 35 per cent.; do. illustrated, 6 cents per lb. and 20 per cent. Vases, glass, plain or fancy, 20 per cent.; do. china 30 per cent.; do earthenware, 35 per cent. Wool (no oils), dyed, 20 per cent. Note—The items "vases" are not intended to include articles that should be classed as "table ware."

FIRES OF A DAY.

Solomon Damude's Tannery at Flesherton Completely Destroyed

FLESHERTON, Dec. 4.—Solomon Damude's tannery was totally destroyed by fire between 1 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Loss, about $10,000; insurance, $3,600. Cause unknown.

A Blaze at Thorold

THOROLD, Dec. 4.—About 3 o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in a frame building on Ormand street, owned by Jarret Rogers, and occupied by Harry Bisgood. The building is almost a total loss. Not much furniture was saved. The building and furniture are covered by insurance. It is supposed that the fire originated from kindling wood left in the kitchen stove over night to dry.

The C. P. R. St. Boniface Station Burnt.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 4.—The St. Boniface station of the Canadian Pacific Railway was completely burned yesterday afternoon. The loss is light.

It Was a Canard.

HALIFAX, Dec. 4.—Two weeks ago a Digby paper published an alleged deathbed confession of Patrick Lyons, dated Cleveland, Ohio, to the effect that he had fired the steam saw mill of Raymond & Sons at Digby, eleven years ago, for which Charles Borden, an innocent man, had been convicted and sent to penitentiary. The alleged confession pretended to be witnessed by William Greenwood and James S. May, justices of the peace. The "confession" gave some details of the crime, which involved a loss of nerly $50,000, and said he (Lyons) had been paid $25 to set fire to the place and that Borden, the convict, was entirely innocent. There were some suspicious circumstances in connection with the "confession," and correspondence with the mayor of Cleveland reveals the fact that the confession was bogus, that there are no magistrates there named Greenwood and May, and never have been, and no person named Patrick Lyons has died in Cleveland within a year.

Borden was convicted upon strong circumstantial evidence. Raymond had twice convicted him of selling liquor, and Borden swore to be revenged. The outburst of sympathy for ex-convict Borden has given place to a feeling of disgust at the contemptible effort to gull the public.

A Portsmouth Man Drowned.

PORTSMOUTH, Dec. 4.—A bachelor named Wm. Ewart, who lived alone in a shanty at the rear of the Orange Hall, was found drowned on the shore of the bay Sunday morning about 9 o'clock. He had been to the city on Saturday and came home very much the worse of liquor, and it is supposed in the evening wandered to the beach, fell down, rolled in and was drowned.

ST. THOMAS TIDINGS.

A Burglary of the Traders' Bank Planned—Peculiar Death.

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 4.—The authorities have learned within the last 48 hours that two of the cleverest cracksmen in the country have been stopping in the city for the past few days, and have been plotting for a stupendous robbery. Their plot was given away by a third party, who is a fugitive from the United States, and who was approached by the two men and asked to become an accomplice in the robbery of the Traders' Bank. The plan sketched out was to secure ingress by the cellar, and thence to the bank, and force an entrance to the vault with gunpowder. The entrance to the bank through the cellar could easily have been accomplished, but inside the vault is a large burglar-proof safe, which in addition to the vault, would have to be forced open before the funds of the bank could be reached. The police believe that the attempt would undoubtedly have been made had not the plot been given away.

Emma Bennett, an inmate of the Elgin House of Industry, met with a peculiar death Sunday. On Friday morning last she was in good health, and at dinner ate inordinately of roast pork. Next morning she complained of being ill, and some cathartic medicine was administered without effect. Sunday she became comatose and a physician was called, but could not rouse her, and she died at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. Drs. Kains and Luton made a post-mortem examination and discovered a venous congestion of the brain, together with slight peritonitis, which combined, they believe, caused her death. The deceased was one of Miss Rye's proteges and was 22 years of age.

A lady named Mrs. Jenkins, ate a quantity of pink-colored lozenges on Sunday, and soon after was taken violently ill with unmistakable signs of poisoning. A physician was summoned and restoratives applied, and after a while she rallied sufficiently to be out of danger. The material used for coloring the candy is supposed to have contained some poisonous substance.

THE MERRITTON COLLISION.

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury—The Brakes Insufficient.

MERRITTON, Dec. 4.—The inquest on the bodies of Firemen Michael Sherry, Driver James Williams and Brakeman Allen was held to-day before Coroner Dr. Goodman. The jury returned this verdict: "That the deceased came to their death by a collision between trains No. 471 and No. 551 near Merritton about 11.30 a.m. on Dec. 3. The cause of the collision we believe to be from not having sufficient brakes on train 471 to control it, also that the engineer did not reverse or alarm, and that the rear brakeman was inexperienced. We further find that all freight trains should be brought to a standstill above the grade at Thorold, that an additional brakeman should be provided on all freight trains descending this grade and a special switchman be appointed to tend to the switch known as the Welland Railway switch."

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Charlton Case—The Guelph Agricultural Fire to be Investigated.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—The remains of the unfortunate victim of malpractice, Lillie Charlton, were interred yesterday in St. Michael's Cemetery. Pity and curiosity drew a crowd of several hundred spectators to the house of the dead girl and to St. Paul's Catholic Church, where the burial service was read.

At the Police Court yesterday the Italian Rugia, charged with the stabbing affair already reported, was remanded for a week. Charles Brennan and William Turner were acquitted on a charge of prize-fighting, the accused stating it was merely a friendly boxing-match. Frank Miller, for the larceny of a coat, was sent to jail for 60 days. For keeping a disorderly house in the rear of 37 Mission-quenue, Frank Polson was fined $40 or 40 days.

The Ontario Government have appointed Mr. J. Winchester, Inspector of Legal Offices, and Mr. Archibald Blue, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, to investigate into the recent fire at the Agricultural College, Guelph. There is a strong suspicion that the fire was the work of an incendiary, and the Government are determined to sift the matter to its foundation.

The firm of A. Ross & Co., late Ross, Hillyard & Co., wholesale dry goods, suspended yesterday.

Yesterday Detective Cuddy brought to Police Headquarters a young woman named Mrs. McGuire, who was supposed to know something about the Charlton mystery. She was closeted with Inspector Archabold and County Crown Attorney Badgerow for an hour and then locked up. She was a friend of the dead girl and was cognizant of the fact that she was desirous of having an operation performed. Two other persons, a young girl and a young man, were also examined at Headquarters but neither were held. Druggist John O. Wood still continues to elude the police.

James Henderson of Barrie was arrested at Union Station last night on a telegram from the Chief of Police of that town, who wants him on a charge of larceny.

LOVE KNOWS NO BARRIERS.

A Romantic Story from the Neighborhood of Montreal.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—Quite a romantic tale comes from the neighboring village of Chambly. Some months since, so the story goes, a son of Mr. Joseph Dewey, 16 years of age, fell desperately in love with Mlle. Letitia Lajeunesse, a first cousin of Albani, the world-renowned cantatrice, who will be remembered to have been a Miss Lajeunesse and likewise a native of Chambly. Although Miss Letitia was five years older than her youthful lover and a Roman Catholic, while Dewey is a Protestant, the boy's affections seemed to have been fully reciprocated by the handsome French-Canadian lady. There, however, the trouble came in, as the cure of Chambly refused to marry the young couple and advised them to go and see the Archbishop of Montreal, or the administrator of the diocese.

On the other hand the boy's parents failed to realize that anything so serious as matrimony was contemplated by their son, although it is alleged that Madame Lajeunesse encouraged the scheme to a certain extent. Mr. Dewey had, in the meantime, made arrangements to send the lad to the Methodist Institute in Montreal, and the other day the boy, having got a message delivered to his father purporting to be from Rev. Mr. Taylor, saying to send the youngster along, his trunks were packed and off he went to college.

The next morning, however, affairs assumed a serious turn, when it was discovered that Miss Lajeunesse had also left for paris unknown, and the same day a genuine despatch was received from the principal of the Montreal institution, which told at once that the first one had been a cleverly connected forgery.

Efforts were made to capture the runaway couple, but in vain. They reached Worcester, Mass., and were married, and the young man is clerking it while his wife is working in a dressmaking establishment.

The Tilbury Murder.

WINDSOR, Dec. 4.—Government Detectives Rodgers and McGee yesterday arrested and took to Chatham for examination two men, whose names are at present unknown, on suspicion of having committed the burglary at Tilbury Centre about two months ago, which resulted in the murder of the old man Holton.

A DRINK-CRAZED WOMAN

FIENDISH ATTEMPT TO MURDER A BABE AT MONTREAL.

The Infant's Face Blistered With a Hot Flat Iron—Cruel Finger Marks on Its Throat—Committed for Trial.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—At the Police Court yesterday during the preliminary enquete into the charges against Bridget Hogan of attempted child-murder these particulars were learned: Mrs. Michael Lightstone left her home on Saturday evening to make a call. The hired woman, Bridget Hogan, was left alone with Mr. Lightstone's infant boy. When Mrs. Lightstone came in she saw Bridget stooping over the cradle with her right hand deep in the child's throat. The blood was pouring out of the child's mouth. Mrs. Lightstone shrieked and fainted.

When people from the store came up they found the nurse trying to wipe the blood from her hand and arm. She was secured and a physician called, who found that the child had been throttled, as there were finger marks on its throat. Its little mouth and throat were all lacerated and a hot flat iron had been pressed on its face leaving one entire side with a blister over a quarter of an inch in height. There were also burns on the forehead. It is hoped the child may not die, but its recovery is doubtful.

The culprit, her hand still besmeared with blood, said at the enquetes that she did not know what she did on Saturday night, but she did not deny the charge. She was committed to stand her trial in the Court of Queen's Bench. All those present say that the woman was slightly under the influence of drink at the time of her cruel act.

HAMILTON'S ART SHOW

Formally Opened by His Excellency the Governor-General.

HAMILTON, Dec. 4.—Lord and Lady Stanley, accompanied by Capt. and Mrs. Bagot and Capt. McMahon, Senators Turner and Sanford, Adam Brown, M.P., Alex. McKay, M. P., Mayor Doran, Lieut.-Col. Gibson, M.P., George Roach, Major Moore and Ald. Thomas, started from Highfield at 9.30 yesterday morning on a tour through the city. Among the places visited were the Queen Victoria and Hess-street schools, Wesleyan Ladies' School and Loretto Convent, Canada Life Building and Meriden Britannia works, the city hospital and the fire stations. The round of visits was concluded at about 1.30 o'clock, and the Governor-General and party proceeded to Inglewood, the residence of Mr. John Stuart, for lunch.

When the Governor-General, Lady Stanley and suite arrived at the Art Exposition in the Drill Hall, they were greeted by a brilliant assemblage of ladies and gentlemen waiting to receive them. On the south balcony the Band of the 13th Battalion played the National Anthem as the Vice-Regal party entered. They were immediately conducted to seats on the dais erected in the centre of the aisle, where they were welcomed in a speech by Col. Gibson, M. P. P., President of the Art School. The Governor-General responded in a brief but appropriate speech declaring the exposition opened. Mrs. Gibson introduced to Mesdames Brown, Charlton and Crerar, the President and Vice-Presidents respectively of the Ladies' Committee. Mr. Adam Brown, M. P., followed with an address on behalf of the ladies. This ceremony being over, the Vice-Regal party was conducted through the art department and the various booths.

It is difficult to give anything like a bird's-eye view of the many pretty things on exhibition or of the fine works of art, but as far as this city is concerned, never in its history has such a showing been made of rare and valuable pictures, of the highest artistic merit. Larger collections may have been shown, but none so meritorious. In regard to the extent of the collection it may be mentioned that there are one hundred and twenty-one oils, fifty-two water colors, three pastels and sixteen engravings.

The Vice-Regal party left the city last evening on the 6.35 train en route for Ottawa where they will arrive this morning.

THE MARRIAGE ANNULLED.

A Matrimonial Alliance Obtained by Forgery Dissolved.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—Judge Gill gave judgment yesterday in the case of Mrs. Craig against Miss Artemise Chabot annulling the marriage of the latter with George Craig, a minor son of plaintiff. In May last young Craig and Miss Chabot, who is of age, went to Quebec, and there a false letter was presented to Cardinal Taschereau, purporting to be from Mrs. Craig, consenting to the union. The banns were thus obtained and the marriage ceremony was performed. After the marriage the couple returned to this city, but the mother separated them and they have since lived apart. The Archbishop of Montreal declared the marriage null and void and now this decision has been confirmed by the Civil Court.

Did the Trunk Contain a Corpse?

DESERONTO, Dec. 4.—On Saturday night two men alighted from the boat from Picton, and a trunk belonging to them was taken off the boat. The men bought tickets for Kingston and asked that the trunk be checked for that city. The station officials detected a disagreeable smell issuing from the trunk, and as the two men looked like medical students they refused to check the trunk. As the travelers were anxious to have their luggage go to Kingston they hired a team to carry it there. There is no doubt but what the trunk contained a corpse, as all the actions of the two men were of a suspicious character.

Burglary at Guelph.

GUELPH, Dec. 4.—While Mr. and Mrs. Scroggie were at church Sunday night thieves broke in their back door with an axe and ransacked the house, taking all the jewelry they could find and $38 in money. They also carried off a value of Mr. W. J. Williams, a son of Rev. William Williams of Lindsay, who was stopping over Sunday with Mr. Scroggie. The valise contained several mortgages and other valuable papers. Mr. Williams' loss is a serious one. Two suspected characters have been arrested, but no trace of the missing property has been found.

A Pastor Chosen.

PARIS, Ont., Dec. 4.—At a meeting of the Dumfries-street congregation held yesterday, presided over by Rev. Dr. Cochrane of Brantford, Rev. E. Cockburn, M.A., of Uxbridge, was unanimously chosen as pastor of the vacant charge.

We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—The St. Lawrence market was very flat yesterday. The supply and demand were almost nil.

Trade in the grain market was light and prices easier. One load of peas sold at 68 cents; 200 bushels of oats at 36½ and 37½ cents; 200 bushels of barley at 60 to 65 cents, and 450 bushels of wheat at $1 for white and red, $1 to $1.03 for spring and and 85 to 86 cents for goose.

On the Call Board 65 cents was bid for 5000 bushels of No. 1 barley, but none was offered.

AT THE WHEAT CENTRES.

The bears on the Chicago Board of Trade succeeded in making another raid on the wheat market yesterday. On Saturday December wheat stood at $1.04¾, and closed at $1.03¾. January options stood at $1.06 on Saturday, and yesterday prices touched $1.02 From $1.11 on Saturday, May wheat dropped to $1.08 yesterday. There was a drop of three cents on all leading options. At Detroit all futures declined two cents, and at Milwaukee cash wheat dropped to $1. The English markets are all tamer.

A ROYAL RECEPTION.

All Toronto Turns Out to Greet Champion Oarsman O'Connor.

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—Probably never in the history of Toronto has such an enormous, enthusiastic crowd turned out to welcome a conquering hero as met William J. O'Connor, champion oarsman of America, on his return to the city last evening. His appearance on the rear platform of the Hamilton train was the signal for a deafening cheer. Then the band of the Royal Grenadiers struck up "See the Conquering Hero Comes," O'Connor jumped in the boat that was on the Lombard street hook and ladder wagon, and the procession started up York-street en route to the Pavilion. Thousands of people lined the route and the champion was greeted with roars of cheers.

In the Pavilion 5000 people were waiting and when O'Connor entered they cheered and yelled for fully five minutes. Mayor Clarke then read the address from the citizens of Toronto and handed the oarsman a marked check for $1000. O'Connor replied as follows:

"YOUR WORSHIP, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: I do not know how to accurately express my feelings of kindness for this grand reception. When I learned that I was to be publicly received, I was more afraid of it than of my race with Teemer. I may be a fair sculler, but I am a mighty poor speaker; and if I could make as many strokes to the minute with my tongue as with my oars I would be satisfied. (Cheers and laughter). But I am glad to have brought back to Toronto the sculling championsip of America, and I must say that when I beat Teemer I beat the best man on the continent. More than this, I have hopes of bringing back from Australia the championship of the world. (Cheers). Let me say a good word for my old friend Ned Hanlan, who was always and is yet a friend to me, and also for Mr. Joe Rogers. If I win the world's championship I will always try to keep it in Canadian waters."

There were a number of other speeches and then Mr. A. F. Jury produced a surprise in the shape of a box containing $300 in gold, the gift of the boys who went to Washington to see the race. Rule Britannia and cheers for the Queen and the champion closed the proceedings.

CROCKERYWARE

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upof you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Threw Him Out.

An assault case was the only business calling for the Magistrate's consideration at the Police Court this morning. Wm. Beavis charged Mr. Frank Bell, Division Court Clerk, with having assaulted him yesterday morning by putting him out of his office. Mr. W. A. Stratton was present in Mr. Bell's interest, and Mr. W. F. Johnston handled the complainant's side of the case. From the evidence it appears that execution had been issued for the costs in a suit in which Beavis had been worsted, and he had gone into Mr. Bell's office to pay the said bill. He was willing to pay the court costs, but objected to the bailiff's. Some words passed between the complainant and Mr. Bell, and the former, it was said, accused the latter of defrauding and cheating people, and threatened to have him put out of office. After some delay and a little talk the bill was made out to the satisfaction of Beavis, and he paid the money over. Then Mr. Bell walked round the counter to the door and, opening it, told Beavis to get out and, after three repititions of the order, he took him by the collar and forced him out. The Magistrate said he had tried to persuade Mr. Beavis not to lay this charge, as he was of the opinion from the facts given had that there had been provocation. He though that by using such words as cheat and fraud, etc., in a man's office was almost sufficient to justify him in throwing him out, and he dismissed the case with costs.

SENDING DISTITUTE POOR TO PETERBOROUGH OBJECTED TO.

Appointment of Election Officers and Polling Places—Gas Lamps to Burn till Daylight—The Council and the School Board—Communications and Accounts.

A regular meeting of the town Council took place last evening, Mayor Stevenson in the Chair. There were present Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Moore, Kelly, E. H. D. Hall, Yelland, A. Hall, Langford and Hartley.

After the reading of the minutes Mayor Stevenson said he would like to call the attention of the Council to the practice of persons coming here asking for charity from outside places. He said that outside corporations were in the habit of shipping their poor and distitute to Peterborough and it would take all the taxes to pay the charity if this was not stopped. A woman had come to him yesterday asking for some assistance, and he had sent her to Mr. Hall. She said she had come here from Lindsay to which place she had been sent from Kinmount by Mr. Henry Graham. The woman, the Mayor said, had a child in her arms and was in a pitable condition. He objected to the town being compelled to support people shipped here from outside corporations. It was one of the meanest pieces of business that a corporation could be guilty of. He thought some legislation should be obtained on the subject.

Councillor HALL said he had written Mr. Graham stating that the woman had been sent to gaol and telling him that was the course the town intended to pursue.

COMMUNICATIONS AND PETITIONS.

The following communications and petitions were read:—

From the Mayor of Ottawa inclosing a petition to the Government asking that the exemption from taxation on churches, colleges, hospitals, salaries of ministers, etc., be struck out.—Finance Committee.

From the School Board asking the Council to hold the school elections for 1890 on the same date as the municipal elections.—Received.

A letter was received from Mr. A. P. Pousette, Q.C., on behalf of Thos. Howden claiming $500 damages for injuries received by his son who was thrown out of his buggy on George-st. on October 11th through the open condition of a drain, or otherwise he would bring a suit for damages.—Referred to the town solicitor.

Martin Conners asked what the license would be on five more billiard tables.—Referred to License Committee.

Thos. Gunn asked the town to pay the rent of a woman living in one of his houses.—Charity Committee.

Mr. T. W. Rubidge and thirteen others asked that the water pipes be extended on Rubidge-st., from Charlotte to Sherbrooke-st.—Fire, Water and Light.

Mr. R. P. Cook asked for a crossing on George-st. in front of his house.

Petitions in reference to taxes were read from Fred Mitchell and Jos. Brault, remission of statute labor taxes; John Paterson, James McCullough and J. E Sabine, re dog taxes; James Wright, Mrs. Barrie, Geo. Coon, C. Daly, Mrs. Anglyse, Harriet Malcolm, B. Turner, Melissa Thornton, Fred Lewis and E. Lock remission of taxes. Referred to Court of Revision except John Patterson's which was rectified.

INDUSTRIES AND BONUSES.

His Worship said he might state that since the last meeting the town debentures had been sold and the money paid over. The total loss was $800, which would make a rate of 4½ per cent. He might also say that, as they knew, the McCleary Manufacturing Company had written the town some time ago asking what bonus they would give to have them establish their stove works here. Since then he had noticed that this company's factory had been burned in London and he had, therefore, instructed the Clerk to write them to see what terms they wanted. Other companies had wanted to come here he said, and Port Hope were getting a large number of manufactories through bonusing.

Councillor MOORE said with Peterborough's facilities he thought they could induce manufacturers to establish here if our town was put before the public. He though $200 spent in advertising would be beneficial, and said he was not in favor of any large bonuses.

The Council went into Committee of the whole, when the appointments were as follows:—

No. 1 Ward.—Joseph Lundy, deputy returning officer; Angus Williams, poll clerk; place of election, the Mission Church House, north of Dalhousie-st., and west of George-st.

The by-law for the exemption of the Lythe Woollen Mills from taxation, was read a second and third time and carried.

THE COUNCIL AND SCHOOL BOARD.

Councillor MOORE said in order to make the Council right with the School Board he would move, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON, the following motion:—"That this Council declares its readiness to assist the School Board in the matter of the improvements required to be made in the schools by the Government Inspector, and that the only misunderstanding between the Council and the Board is as to the manner of raising the money, this Council being of the opinion that debentures should be issued to cover a term of years, instead of the amount being placed on the roll for one year."

OTHER MOTIONS.

Councillor MOORE moved, seconded by Councillor YELLAND,—That the Town Solicitor be requested to prepare a by-law governing cabs, hacks, horses, etc.—Carried.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL moved, seconded by Councillor KELLY,—That the Town Clerk be instructed to communicate with the McCleary Manufacturing Co., of London, and the Osborne, Holly Manufacturing Co., of Hamilton, calling their attention to the facilities this town offers as a manufacturing centre, and to ascertain on what terms they would remove their manufactories here.—Carried.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor LANGFORD,—That the taxes of Rev. G. H. Davis be remitted as they should be by law.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

GAS LAMPS.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL moved and Councillor MOORE seconded,—That the Peterborough Gas Co. be instructed to place their gas lamps at the following places, the same to be lighted at 12 p.m. and burn till day light, the police to turn them out:—One lamp at the corner of George and Brock-sts.; one at the corner of George and Charlotte-sts.; one at the corner of George and King; one at corner of Water and Hunter; one at corner of Charlotte and Aylmer; the lamps at corner George and Brock, and George and Charlotte to be the same as those now at Hunter and Simcoe and at the same price as ordinary lights.—Carried.

The Council adjourned till December 15th.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

The Convention of the Peterborough County Association.

The convention of the members of the Peterborough County Sunday School Association was opened in the George-st. church on Monday evening, the Rev. M. L. Pearson, Vice-President, in the chair. The convention was opened with devotional exercises, the Rev. Messrs. Johnston and Bennett leading in prayer.

The CHAIRMAN said he had received a letter from the President expressing regret that he was unable to be present that evening owing to illness in his family. He then extended a welcome to those present from the county. Those who belonged to other churches of the town knew, he said, that they were at home, because the churches worked together so pleasantly.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE.

On Motion of Rev. P. Clifton Parker, seconded by Rev. E. F. Torrance, a Nominating Committee was appointed, composed as follows:—Rev. Messrs. Johnston and Bennett and Messrs. Hall, Matthews and Rutherford.

CHURCH AND SCHOOL.

Mr. T. DIXON CRAIG, M.P.P., of Port Hope, gave an address on "The Claims of the Church upon and its Obligations to its Sunday School Department." He said he was glad to see the school recognized, in the topic given him, as a department of the church. The claims of the church upon the school he divided into five heads, as follows:—1. The church had a right to expect from the school that it should teach. Teaching implied study on the part of the teacher and study with a view to teaching. 2. The church had a right to expect that the school should teach the Bible. It should also teach the principal doctrines of the church. 3. That the school should see that all the children connected with the church and congregation attended the school. 4. That the school should do its work well. 5 That the teachers should labor for the conversion of the scholars and their union with the church. The obligations of the church to the school he also divided into five points. 1. The church should supply a suitable room for the school. 2. It should supply all books and periodicals for the school. 3. It should furnish the teachers. 4 It should give the school credit for the results of the work. 5. It should pray for the school. He suggested that the regular prayer meeting be devoted monthly or quarterly to praying for the school. Each head was enforced with illustrations and remarks, and the speaker closed by urging the importance of Sunday School work.

A discussion followed, participated in by Rev. Messrs. Johnston, Parker and Pearson, and Messrs. Griffin and Hall. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Craig for his admirable address.

The meeting closed with the doxology and the benediction by the chairman.

TUESDAY MORNING.

The convention reassembled at 9 o'clock, the President, Rev. John McEwen, of Lakefield, in the chair. The session opened with devotional exercises.

THE SOIL.

Rev. P. CLIFTON PARKER gave an address on "The Soil, its Origin and Vitality." He urged the great importance of the teaching of the Word of God as the seed of eternal life and dwelt on the indestructibility of the seed, pointing out that its vital force was eternal. The fullest results from the sowing the seed might be expected from work in the Sunday school. The best thing that they could do, he said, was to get converted men for the work, but he did not believe that the vital force of the seed could be destroyed by the sower being unconverted. The vital force grew silently. In the natural world the silent forces were the most powerful; the blood and brain were examples of this. And in spiritual work the success of the work could not be judged by the noise it made. The address was practical and the points elucidated by illustrations from the natural world.

Rev. J. B. HUFF said he agreed that the vital force of the seed was not destroyed by the character of the sower, but believed much depended upon careful and prayerful sowing.

Rev. M. L. PEARSON was pleased to see the emphasis placed upon sowing the Word.

The CHAIRMAN emphasized the importance of the imperishable truth—the truth used by the Holy Spirit in conversion, as distinguished from such knowledge as geographical information.

CHARACTER AND CONDITION OF THE SOIL.

Rev. JOHN MCEWEN spoke on "the Soil, its Condition and Character." Soil was used metaphorically for the mind and heart of the scholar. The characteristics of the soil were the sensibilities—the pupil could be interested; mental energy—he could be caused to think for himself; moral energy—a part of the soil only incidentally dealt with by the public schools, and they could not move the pupil till they reached his conscience; spiritual life—which went through and embraced the whole. That was the soil they had to work upon. Some of the kinds of soil were, virgin soil, in the younger pupils; shallow soil, represented by natures of no depth and where the sensibilities had to be worked upon; pre-occupied soil, where bad seed had taken root; good soil, a good and honest heart possessing reverence. The conditions of the soil included the hereditary elements, and historical elements, including home and church influences and company and books.

The discussion was continued by Rev. Messrs. Huff, Pearson, W. Johnston, Wilson, Bennett, Mr. Day and others.

CONDITIONS OF FRUITFULNESS.

Mr. A. Day led a conference on "Sowing and Conditions of Fruitfulness."

Mr. DAY believed that the question of the conversion of the teacher was important, and teachers should be converted people. Soil would not respond, he said, without ploughing and digging, and teaching implied work. The best time to sow seed in the human heart was in the morning of life. The seed to be sown was the Word of God, and the Bible itself should be used in the school. The teacher should make himself acquainted with the life and environment of the pupils, and sow in the mental, natural and spiritual soil. Teaching should be with a definite aim, the sowing should be done earnestly, prayerfully, giving the full measure and with confidence in the result.

A number took part in the discussion of this topic, the question of using lesson leaves being discussed for some time. The prevailing opinion seemed to be that lesson helps were useful, but should be studied at home and not taken to the school.

The convention adjourned until the afternoon.

Dr. A. G. Bissell, Detroit, Mich., says: "I have used it in a severe case of general nervous prostration, and am very much pleased with the result. I shall prescribe it hereafter in similar cases with a great deal of confidence."

Beavis vs. Bradburn.

The following is the correct report of this case, which came before the Chancery Court on Saturday:—It was an action brought by William Beavis against Thos. Bradburn, to have it declared that an offer of sale made by Beavis and registered against his hard by Bradburn was void on the ground that Beavis had told McLeod, who was acting as agent, that he would not sell to Bradburn and that the offer had been revoked by a sale to one James O'Brien before the offer was accepted on Bradburn's behalf. The chancellor held that the evidence showed the plaintiff's statement to be correct and that he was therefore entitled to judgment in his favor on both grounds. Pousette, Q. C., and W. F. Johnston for plaintiff; Watson (Toronto) and Edmison for defendant.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

CHAPTER IV.

MR. GORBY MAKES A START.

"Well," said Mr. Gorby, addressing his reflection in the looking glass, "I've been finding out things these last twenty years, but this is a puzzler, and no mistake."

Mr. Gorby was shaving, and as was his usual custom conversed with his reflection.

"Hang it," he said, thoughtfully stropping his razor, "a thing with an end must have a start, and if I don't get the start how am I to get the end?"

As the mirror did not answer this question, Mr. Gorby lathered his face, and started shaving in a somewhat mechanical fashion, for his thoughts were with the case, and ran on in this manner:

There are three things to be discovered—First, who is the dead man? Second, what was he killed for? And third, who did it? Once I get hold of the first the other two won't be very hard to find out, for one can tell pretty well from a man's life whether it's to any one's interest that he should be got off the books. The man that murdered that chap must have had some strong motive, and I must find out what that motive was. 'Love?' No, it wasn't that—men in love don't go to such lengths in real life—they do in novels and plays, but I've never seen it occurring in my experience. Robbery? No, there was plenty of money in his pocket. Revenge? Now, really it might be that; it's a kind of thing that carries on most people further than they want to go. There was no violence used, for his clothes weren't torn; so he must have been taken sudden and before he knew what the other chap was up to. By the way, I don't think I examined his clothes sufficiently. There might be something about them to give a clew; at any rate, it's worth looking after, so I'll start with his clothes."

So Mr. Gorby, after he had finished dressing and had his breakfast, walked quickly to the police station, where he asked for the clothes of the deceased to be shown to him. When he received them he went into a corner by himself and started to examine them. There was nothing remarkable about the coat, as it was merely a well cut and well made dress coat, so with a grunt of dissatisfaction Mr. Gorby threw it on one side and picked up the waistcoat.

Here he found something that interested him very much, and that was a pocket made on the left hand side of the waistcoat and on the inside.

"Now, what the deuce is this for?" said Mr. Gorby, scratching his head; "it ain't usual for a dress waistcoat to have a pocket on its inside, as I'm aware of; and," continued the detective, greatly excited, "this ain't tailors' work; he did it himself, and jolly badly he did it too. Now he must have taken the trouble to make this pocket himself, so that no one else would know anything about it, and it was made to carry something valuable—so valuable that he had to carry it with him even when he wore evening clothes. Ah! here's a tear on the side nearest the outside of the waistcoat; something has been pulled out roughly. I begin to see now. The dead man possessed something which the other man wanted, and which he knew the dead one carried about with him. He sees him drunk, gets into the cab with him and tries to get what he wants. The dead man resists, upon which the other kills him by means of the chloroform which he had with him, and being afraid that the cab will stop, and he will be found out, snatches what he wants out of the pocket so quickly that he tears the waistcoat and then makes off. That's clear enough, but the question is: What was it he wanted? A case with jewels? No! It could not have been anything so bulky, or the dead man would never have carried it about inside his waistcoat. It was something flat, which could easily lie in the pocket—a paper—some valuable paper which the assassin wanted, and for which he killed the other.

"This is all very well," said Mr. Gorby, throwing down the waistcoat, and rising, "I have found number two before number one. The first question is: Who is the murdered man? He's a stranger in Melbourne, that's pretty clear, or else some one would be sure to have recognized him before now by the description given in the reward. Now, I wonder if he has any relations here? Private lodgings more like, and a landlady who doesn't read the papers and doesn't gossip, or she'd have known all about it by this time. Now, if he did live, as I think, in private lodgings, and suddenly disappeared, his landlady wouldn't keep quiet. It's a whole week since the murder, and as the lodger has not been seen or heard of, the landlady will naturally make inquiries. He, however, as I surmise, the lodger is a stranger, she will not know where to inquire; therefore, under these circumstances, the most natural thing for her to do would be to advertise for him; so I'll have a look at the newspapers."

Mr. Gorby got a file of the different newspapers, and looked carefully in the columns where missing friends and people who will hear something to their advantage are generally advertised for.

"He was murdered," said Mr. Gorby to himself, "on a Friday morning, between 1 and 2 o'clock, so he might stay away till Monday without exciting any suspicion. On Monday, however, the landlady would begin to feel uneasy, and on Tuesday she would advertise for him. Therefore," said Mr. Gorby, running his fat finger down the column, "Wednesday it is."

It did not appear in Wednesday's paper, neither did it in Thursday's, but in Friday's issue, exactly one week after the murder, Mr. Gorby evidently came on the following advertisement:

"If Mr. Oliver Whyte does not return to Possum Villa, Grey street, St. Kilda, before the end of the week, his rooms will be let again.—Rubina Hableton."

"Oliver Whyte," repeated Mr. Gorby slowly, "and the initials on the pocket handkerchief which were proved to have belonged to the deceased were, 'O. W.' So his name is Oliver Whyte, is it? Now, I wonder if Mrs. Hableton knows anything about this Mr. Whyte? At any rate," said Mr. Gorby, putting on his hat, "as I'm fond of sea breezes, I think I'll go down and call at Possum Villa, Grey street, St. Kilda."

CHAPTER V.

MRS. HABLETON UNBOSOMS HERSELF.

Possum Villa was an unpretentious looking place with one bow window and a narrow veranda in front. It was surrounded with a small garden and a few sparse flowers in it which were Mrs. Hableton's delight. When not otherwise engaged she tied an old handkerchief round her head and went out into the garden, where she dug and watered her flowers until they all gave up attempting to grow from sheer desperation at not being left alone. She was engaged in her favorite occupation about a week after her lodger had disappeared, a shadow fell across the garden, and on looking up she saw a man leaning over the fence, looking at her.

He was a burly looking man, with a jovial red face, clean shaved, and sharp, shrewd looking gray eyes which kept twinkling like two stars. He was dressed in a suit of light clothes, and wore a stiffly starched white waistcoat, with a massive gold chain stretched across it. Altogether he gave Mrs. Hableton the impression of being a well to do tradesman, and she mentally wondered what he wanted.

"What d'y want?" she asked abruptly.

"Does Mr. Oliver Whyte live here?" asked the stranger.

"He do, an' he don't," answered Mrs. Hableton, epigrammatically. "I ain't seen 'im for over a week, so I s'pose 'e's gone on the drink, like the rest of 'em, but I've put sumthin' in the paper as 'll pull him up pretty sharp, and let 'im know I ain't a carpet to be trod on, an' if you're a friend of 'im, you can tell 'ith from me 'e's a brute, an' its no more but what I expected of 'im, 'e bein' a male."

"He do, an' he don't."

The stranger waited placidly during the outburst, and Mrs. Hableton, having stopped for want of breath, he interposed quietly:

"Can I speak to you for a few moments?"

"An' who's a stoppin' of you?" said Mrs. Hableton, defiantly.

"Well, really," said the other, looking up at the cloudless blue sky, and wiping his face with a gaudy red silk pocket handkerchief, "it is rather hot, you know, and"——

Mrs. Hableton did not give him time to finish, but walking to the gate, opened it with a jerk.

"Use your legs and walk in," she said, and, the stranger having done so, she led the way into the house, and into a small, neat sitting room, which seemed to overflow with antimacassars, wool mats and wax flowers. There was also a row of emu eggs on the mantelpiece, a cutlass on the wall, and a grimy line of hard looking little books, set in a stiff row on a shelf, presumably for ornament, as they looked too unpleasant to tempt any one to read them. The furniture was of horsehair, and everything was hard and shiny, so when the stranger sat down in the slippery looking armchair that Mrs. Hableton pushed toward him he could not help thinking it had been stuffed with stones, it felt so cold and hard. The lady herself sat opposite to him in another hard chair, and, having taken the handkerchief off her head, folded it carefully, laid it on her lap, and then looked straight at her unexpected visitor.

"Now, then," she said, letting her mouth fly open so rapidly that it gave one the impression that it was moved by strings like a marionette, "who are you? what are you? and what do you want?"

The stranger put his red silk handkerchief into his hat, placed it on the table and answered deliberately:

"My name is Gorby. I am a detective. I want Mr. Oliver Whyte."

"He ain't here," said Mrs. Hableton, thinking that Whyte had got into trouble and was going to be arrested.

"I know that," answered Mr. Gorby.

"Then where is 'e?"

Mr. Gorby answered abruptly, and watched the effect of his words;

"He is dead."

Mrs. Hableton got quite pale, and pushed back her chair. "No," she cried. "Where was he killed?"

"He was murdered in a hansom cab on the St. Kilda road."

"In the open street?" she asked, in a startled tone.

"Yes, in the open street."

"Mr. Gorby," she said at length, "I 'ave had a 'ard struggle all my life which it came along of a bad husband, who was a brute and a drunkard, so, God knows, I ain't got much inducement to think well of the lot of you, but—murder," she shivered slightly, though the room was quite warm, "I didn't think of that."

"In connection with whom?"

"Mr. Whyte, of course," she answered hurriedly.

"And who else?"

"I don't know."

"Then there is nobody else?"

"Well, I don't know—I'm not sure."

The detective was puzzled.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"I will tell you all I know," said Mrs. Hableton, "an' if 'e's innocent, God will 'elp 'im."

"If who is innocent?"

"I'll tell you everythin' from the start," said Mrs. Hableton, "an' you can judge for yourself."

Mr. Gorby assented, and she began:

"It's only two months ago since I decided to take in lodgers; but chorin's 'ard work, and sewin's tryin' for the eyes. So, bein' a lone woman, 'avin' been badly treated by a brute, who is now dead, which I was allays a good wife to 'im, I thought lodgers 'ud 'elp me a little, so I put a notice in the paper, an' Mr. Oliver Whyte took the rooms two months ago."

"What was he like?"

"Not very tall, dark face, no whiskers nor mustache, an' quite the gentleman."

"Anything peculiar about him?"

Mrs. Hableton thought for a moment.

"Well," she said at length, "he 'ad a mole on his left temple, but it was covered with 'is 'air an' few people 'ud 'ave seen it."

"The very man," said Gorby to himself; "I'm on the right path."

"Mr. Whyte said 'e 'ad just come from England," went on the woman.

"Which," murmured Mr. Gorby, "accounts for the corpse not being recognized by friends."

To be continued.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2 00, 2 50 and 3 00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's We carry a Big Stock, and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

GOVERNMENT AID ASKED FOR THE MONTREAL K. OF L. SCHEME.

The C. P. R. Arbitration Continued—The Ocean Mail Contract—Some Banking Questions—The Bell Farm.

OTTAWA, Dec. 5.—The Canadian Pacific Railway arbitration was continued yesterday, most of the time being occupied in cross-examination of Mr. Bell, C.E., who gave his evidence Monday.

It is understood that the sub-committee of the Council to which the matter of the ocean mail service contract was referred has made a report on the subject, but the nature of the report has not transpired.

Mr. J. M. Courtney, Deputy Minister of Finance, was yesterday shown an interview with Mr. H. W. Darling, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, published in The Budget, in which Mr. Darling advocated legislation at the coming session with reference to the renewal of bank charters expiring in 1891, suggested legislation to prevent frauds similar to those connected with the Central Bank, and discussed the question of appointing a Government bank inspector. Mr. Courtney did not think legislation next session necessary as the charters did not expire until July 1, 1891, and legislation in 1890 would give ample time to the banks. He, of course, condemned frauds such as those in the Central Bank, but thought it would be difficult to frame legislation so as to prevent them. On the subject of a bank inspector he declined to express an opinion until asked to do so by the Government.

Major Bell of the Bell Farm is here en route for England, where it is said he will reorganize a stock company to run the farm. Two thousand acres were under cultivation this year, the crop was abundant and rumor has it the profits of the farm were over $40,000.

Judge Doherty of the Superior Court of Quebec has been appointed Deputy Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench during the absence of Judge Baby.

The total number of lockages on the Rideau Canal at Ottawa during the past season was 1849, of which 679 were steamers and the balance barges, rafts, etc.

Mr. Keays of The Canadian Workman of Montreal has had several interviews with members of the Government with reference to obtaining Government assistance towards carrying out the scheme of the Knights of Labor, to purchase a tract of land outside Montreal and build 500 or 600 cottages so as to relieve congested districts.

Judge Fournier has, by consent of counsel, rendered judgment in the Intercolonial Railway case, McGreevy v. the Queen, awarding McGreevy $120,371.

Mr. Curran, M. P., and Mr. Hall, M. P. P., had an interview with Hon. Mackenzie Bowell yesterday with reference to the value at which dynamite should be entered for duty. The Minister promised to consider the matter.

The statement made in the correspondence of a Toronto paper that some officers in the permanent force have not qualified themselves for their positions is understood to be incorrect.

The claim of Rogers, one of the contractors for the Lachine Canal, for $80,000 will be heard before Mr. Page, chief engineer of the Railways and Canals Department, on Dec. 13.

Rufus Stevenson yesterday presented to the Minister of Finance a petition from western mill owners praying for the imposition of an export duty on elm logs.

The exhibition of the Eastern Ontario Poultry and Pet Stock Association will open here Feb. 6.

L. R. O'Brien, President of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, is here making arrangements for the annual meeting and exhibition of the association to be held here during the winter.

The Governor-General and Lady Stanley returned from Hamilton yesterday morning.

The Mulatto Confessed His Crime and Met Death Bravely.

SHELBY, N. C. Dec. 5.—Van Canady, a Mulatto, 22 years old, was taken from jail at this place about 12 o'clock last night by a crowd of masked men and lynched for the murder of James Philbeck, an old farmer, on Nov. 22. On Friday Canady said his brother Charley Armstrong committed the crime, but yesterday he said himself did the deed. As soon as his confession was known threats of lynching were made, and the Sheriff placed a guard in the jail. Just before midnight 200 horsemen, masked and armed, rode up to the jail, broke open the doors and demanded the keys. The jailer refused, and the locks of the cell in which the prisoner was confined were broken with sledge-hammers, and Canady was led to a clump of oak trees east of the town.

He then made a full confession and said he called the old man to the door, handed him a note and, being asked his name, replied "Death." Then he shot Philbeck and after getting money from his wife he shot her. He confessed to several robberies and an attempt to wreck a Carolina Central passenger train. Before he was hanged he admitted that his punishment was merited. His hands and feet were tied, the rope was thrown over a limb, he was placed on a horse and soon afterwards the horse was driven from under him. He died game, showing no fear. His body was cut down to-day, the Coroner's jury saying his death was caused by unknown parties. The sentiment in the county is divided, but generally sustains the lynching.

An Ovation to the Queen of Belgium.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 5.—The Queen attended the performance at the royal circus last night. Her majesty was given an ovation. She expressed herself as greatly gratified by the manifestations of attachment on the part of the people.

RANDY ON THE RAMPAGE.

BRITAIN'S POLICY IN EGYPT SHARPLY ATTACKED.

The Conservatives Surprised by the Onslaught—O'Brien Bitterly Assaults Secretary Balfour.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—In the House of Commons last evening Lord Randolph Churchill moved to adjourn the debate in order to discuss the sending of troops to Suakim. He said he believed that the Government was going against the advice of high and responsible military authorities. Within a few days a battle would be fought, and probably a desperate one, between British and Egyptian troops and Arab tribes. For what end were a mere handful of British soldiers exposed to the risk of an encounter with the Soudanese. They were in a totally inadequate force and the presence of 40000 utterly unreliable Egyptians did not remove the danger. Even if success attended the battle it would necessitate larger operations in the interior. He implored the House to prevent renewed slaughter in the Soudan and to save the lives of the soldiers who were being uselessly sacrificed.

Mr. Stanhope, Secretary for War, said that Lord Randolph spoke without knowledge regarding the position at Suakim, whereas the Government's action was based upon full information as to what troops were required. The black battalions at Suakim were most unjustly styled "unreliable." They had been tested as a force upon which thorough reliance could be placed. The natives comprising the battalions were of more than ordinary stamina and courage. The English troupes who are going to Egypt were, in the opinion of the military authorities there, adequate for the purpose. Their operation would be limited and of an easy nature and they would be certain of success. [Cheers.]

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt supported Lord Randolph Churchill, saying that the latter's motion was amply justified by the gravity of the situation.

The motion was rejected, 231 to 189.

All the Gladstonians and Parnellites and four Conservatives supported Lord Randolph Churchill's motion. Several Conservatives abstained from voting. Lord Hartington and 27 dissidents supported the Government.

Mr. O'Brien resuming the Irish debate made a long and vigorous attack upon Mr. Balfour for his treatment of John Mandeville. He accused Mr. Balfour of shooting poisoned arrows at his prisoners and then indulging in peals of laughter as a requiem over their graves. The hour of his condemnation would surely come for his levity and cowardice.

Mr. Balfour replying said he failed to understand how a gentleman having such flowers of rhetoric as those employed by Mr. O'Brien could accuse others of using coarse and brutal language.

After further discussion a vote was taken on Mr. Ellis' motion relative to a reduction of the Irish appropriations. It was rejected, 233 to 181.

A Surprise to the Conservatives.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Lord Randolph Churchill's challenge of the policy of the Government in Egypt in the House of Commons last night was a surprise to the Conservatives and nearly caused the Government a serious defeat. They had no intimation that Lord Randolph intended to move to adjourn the debate in order to ensure the Government for the Suakim expedition. During the debate messengers were sent in all directions to drum up absent Conservative members. At one time the Government whips, seeing that the Opposition was growing in force despaired of the result. The Liberals were alive to the numerical weakness of the Ministerial supporters and sought to cut short the discussion in order to have an early division. The Government, however, succeeded in postponing a division until their benches began to show a majority. The conduct of Lord Randolph Churchill was severely censured by the Conservatives.

The Conservative papers infer that Lord Randolph Churchill informed the Gladstonians of his intention to move an adjournment. The Conservatives were ignorant of his proposed action and when they learned of his intention summoned Lord Hartington from Devonshire House and sent urgent whips to the various clubs in order to rally the Liberal-Unionists.

"The Boys."

LONDON, Dec. 5.—On the reassembling of the Parnell Commission yesterday the authors of the placard made public last week convening a public meeting to hear addresses by Norah Fitzmaurice and a man named Mitchell, who had appeared as witnesses for The Times, presented themselves in court and made an apology which was accepted.

A witness named O'Connor testified that George Twiss and John Connell induced him to join the inner circle of the League, saying it was a fine thing to be a soldier of Parnell's and that he would get a little pay for doing almost nothing. The circle which he joined was known as "The Boys." Witness took part in moonlight expeditions of The Boys carrying guns and revolvers. Timothy Horan, Secretary of a branch of the League paid witness and nine others six shillings each on the occasion of one outrage. Timothy Harrington promised to pay the witness and others their own price if they could secure the election of a member of the league as poor law guardian. He instructed them not to kill voters but only to frighten them greatly and compel them to sign voting papers. Those who refused were coerced and compelled to sign. Mr. Harrington paid witness £7. All the members of the inner circles belonged to the league. Membership in the league was essential to membership in The Boys O'Connor said the day Culloty was shot his offence was discussed at a meeting of the league committee. Afterward Father O'Callaghan said he knew Culloty was an ugly man and would soon be uglier. The Curragh branch of the league applied to the Central league for aid for evicted tenants and received a reply refusing any relief, on the ground that the district was too greatly disturbed. By the same post, however, was received a private letter, signed Timothy Harrington, in which the reason given for the refusal was that the place was too small.

Defaulter Schrieber Restores His Plunder.

WINDSOR, Dec. 5.—W. J. Lucas, President of the First National Bank of Columbus, Ind., and "I. Corby," alleged to be a Chicago lawyer, arrived at Windsor early yesterday morning from Toronto. It was soon learned that Corby was none other than Schrieber, the bank's absconding teller, and also that a settlement had been effected. Schrieber returns to the bank $2000 and all the securities. At first the defaulting teller refused to give up anything but the securities, but being told by President Lucas that he would be prosecuted for bringing stolen money into Canada he weakened. He refuses to say where Miss Mills, the Chicago girl who, it is alleged helped him to do the stealing, is at present.

Coal Production Curtailed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It is reported that the sales agents of the coal roads who held a meeting yesterday find that the companies on their own responsibility have been curtailing production from 30 to 40 per cent, the Delaware and Hudson less than the others.

HE MET TWO WILY SHARPERS.

A Rich Old Gentleman in Baltimore Robbed of $3000.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5.—A prominent retired merchant was very neatly fleeced by confidence men yesterday. He could only be persuaded to lay the case before the police authorities late last night upon the understanding that his name should not be given out by them until the rascal who victimized him was caught. He was robbed in a room in a boarding house on Pearl-street, and is now suffering from nervous prostration, the result of a violent fistic encounter with one of the men who was in the gang.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning the old gentleman started to leave his residence when he was hailed by a young man who was driving a horse and buggy. A conversation followed, and the stranger said his name was Roberts and that he was a nephew of a well-known citizen and a son-in-law of another. He also said he was a clerk in a National Bank, and had recently arrived from Colorado, where he represented his father-in-law in certain mercantile transactions. He persuaded the old gentleman to get into the buggy and ride down as far as the bank. While in the carriage the young man told him that he had two copies of Bancroft's History of the United States to call for. One was his own and the other his father-in-law's. Further, he said his father-in-law already had one copy, and he would turn over the other to the old gentleman if he would go to the agent's office. The bait was a good one, and the pair went to 121 Pearl-street. Entering the parlor, they met man No. 2, who said that the books were not there, but would be sent to their address on Wednesday. The couple gave their names.

No. 2, addressing No. 1, then said that his book had drawn a prize of $51. No. 1 asked for the money and got $50. He asked for the remaining dollar, when No. 2 said that for this amount he was entitled to two more tickets in another drawing—nothing to lose and all to gain. No. 1 let the $1 go for the chances. The old gentleman sat by all the while and took it in. No. 2 then counted out eight cards, which when added up counted thirty-three. No. 2 said he had drawn $40. The other ticket he presented to the old gentleman and asked him to draw. He did so, and the cards counted thirty-nine. No. 2 then said it had drawn a prize of $5000, but he must have evidence that the men were responsible or else he could not pay them. They must have an equal amount to show before it could be paid over. The old gentleman said he could not draw a check, but would get it.

He sent a friend to his home, who got $6000 worth of bonds and then advanced $5000 on them. The money was turned over to the old gentleman in the presence of No. 1. They then went back to see No. 2. The money was tied up and placed on the table. No. 1 had the money. No. 2 said he must see if it was all right, and started to count it with his back turned. Suddenly he said the amount was as represented, and tying up the bundle replaced it on the table.

The old getleman did not tumble to the fact that a spurious roll had been shoved in front of him, but appeared jubilant over his drawing. No. 1 put the roll in his pocket, and was so elated that he began to thump the old gentleman on the chest and congratulate him on his success. Finally the old gentleman became exhausted, his high hat was knocked on the floor, and when he recovered the two men were gone. So were both his money and the spurious bundle of notes.

TWO RELIGIOUS CRANKS.

A Sensation Caused by Their Efforts to Eject the Devil.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., Dec. 5.—David and Jacob Dill have been preaching holiness or sanctification by fasting. The brothers have exemplified their faith on several occasions by shutting themselves up in a room and remaining without food for several days. A few days ago they began a fast, but this time departed from their usual rule and walked from place to place, exhorting and praying as they went. They walked to this place from Paulding, O., sixty miles, and since their arrival here have taken daily walks of varying length. Last night, after returning from a holiness meeting which they held near the Jacobs farm, they became possessed with the idea that the devil was in their room, and they endeavored to drive him out. The furniture flew in every direction. A rocking chair crashed through the window and landed in the middle of the street, followed by other articles of household use. The people of the house at which they are stopping rushed to the room and endeavored to quiet the fanatics, but were taken for emissaries of the evil one and driven into the street by a fusillade of all sorts of objects. The neighbors were aroused by the crash of breaking glass and furniture, and finally, after a desperate struggle, the brothers were overpowered and bound. They were placed in jail today, but no inducements will cause them to break their self-imposed fast. They will probably be legally examined as to their sanity and placed in a lunatic asylum. Both men are farmers, and have considerable property.

Lost $3000 at a Walking Match.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—W. R. English, a fruit dealer of Baldwinsville, Onondaga County, lost $3000 on the walk. He was standing in Madison-square garden watching the windup on Saturday night in a crowd of 10,000 persons when a roll of bills was extracted from a pocket of his trousers. The pocket had been ripped down the side by some sharp instrument. The $3000 was gone, and the police said there were no crooks, so far as they knew, in the garden. Mr. English had come from Philadelphia, and he thinks the pickpockets must have followed him from that city. At the station in Philadelphia he hadn't enough change to buy a ticket and brought out the roll of greenbacks. Some crooks, he thinks, very likely saw him and followed him here. Most of the money was in $100 bills, so that it made but a small roll. Mr. English was broken down by his loss and said that it would ruin his business. He reported the circumstance at Police Headquarters yesterday and then left for home.

HAD TO SIGN OR DIE.

Stabbing of a Rich Old Cuban Who Refused to be Robbed.

HAVANA, Dec. 5.—At the late conflagration at Sagua forty-two buildings were destroyed, rendering 110 families homeless, who are suffering from cold and hunger. The loss is considerable, with only $3000 insurance.

News of another barbarous crime comes from Ciego de Avila. As Manuel Beldarrain, a rich planter aged over 70 years, was crossing a street, he was called by a man he had known a long time, who invited him to enter his house and partake of coffee. At first the old gentleman refused, but finally accepted the invitation. He had just seated himself at the table when this man, Sanchez, presented him a paper, saying: "You will either sign that document or you will give me $5000 that I need." Beldarrain refused, when Sanchez, drawing an immense dirk, said: "I will make you sign that document," at the same time attempting to stab him. A struggle ensued, the old gentleman holding his would-be-murderer by the wrists until finally, his strength failing him, he embraced Sanchez, who quickly stabbed him several times in the back, after which he mounted a horse and escaped The victim is not expected to live, owing to his advanced age.

MONTREAL PYROTECHNICS

A BIG BLAZE IN LYMAN BROS. & CO.'S DRUG WAREHOUSE.

Explosion After Explosion of Blazing Chemicals — Firemen Narrowly Escape Death—The Loss $100,000.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—A fire broke out tonight in the warehouse of Lyman Sons & Co., wholesale druggists, and before it was extinguished $100,000 damage was done. The fire was confined to the fourth and fifth stories, but the stock in the flats below is damaged by water.

During the fire explosion after explosion of chemical substances took place and most fanciful colored flames shot into the air. Two firemen who were on one of the ladders had it burned beneath them, and had a very narrow escape from death. Two other firemen were injured by burning acids.

The stock and building are insured for $150,000. The London, Liverpool and Globe have $10,000 and several other companies are interested.

Benny McPherson & Co., hardware, had their stock damaged by smoke and water.

Fire at Paris, Ont.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—A fire broke out about 1 o'clock this morning in the needle factory owned by Dixon & Davidson. As soon as the fire alarm was touched the firemen were on the spot and applied the waterworks to good advantage. Only a portion of the building was destroyed. The principal loss was the machinery, which is costly. Loss about $800; no insurance.

Three Children Burnt to Death.

LEXINGTON, Ga., Dec. 4.—A negro woman yesterday locked her three children up in her house and went visiting. On her return she found the house burned to the ground. Her three children perished. This makes the third time such a fire has occurred in this county.

HAMILTON WORKINGMEN.

Formation of a Trades and Labor Council in the Ambitious City.

HAMILTON, Dec. 5.—A meeting of organized workingmen was held in Central Labor Hall to decide in the matter of the formation of a Trades and Labor Council for Hamilton. Mr. Wm. McAndrew of the Typographical Union was chairman. Sixteen organizations were represented. A resolution was put and carried unanimously that an organization be formed at once, to be known as the Hamilton Trades and Labor Council. The labor organizations are now asked to send permanent representatives to the next meeting, to be held on Monday evening, Dec. 16. A number of bylaws were adopted and others were referred to a special committee. The first two articles of the constitution explain the aims and objects of a Trades and Labor Council:

"The object of the council is to unite the various trades and labor organizations of the city, and to assist in the formation of organizations where none exist, so that they may form one brotherhood for the defense of the rights and the protection of the interests of the laboring classes; to discuss and examine all questions affecting the interests of labor which cannot be acted upon in special trade organizations, and to so concentrate labor as to enable it to successfully compete with concentrated capital in controlling the law-making power of the country."

The question of trade disputes came up during the reading of the bylaws, and it was unanimously decided that the settlement of such disputes should only be managed by those directly concerned, and that such was not the business of a council.

WILLING AWAY MILLIONS.

Capt. Ward's Widow Saved a Big Estate for Quarrelling Heirs.

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Alexander Cameron, wife of a well-known Toronto capitalist made her will in this city yesterday. She is the widow of the late Capt. Eber B. Ward of Detroit and niece of the late Senator Ben Wade of Ohio. Capt. Ward's will left property worth $1,000,000 to his widow and her two children. To his seven children by a previous marriage he left the remainder of his fortune, estimated at $4,300,000. Three of the children contested the will unsuccessfully. The panic had prostrated values of all kinds at that time, and the executors began to realize that the magnificent $5,000,000 estate would not pay its indebtedness. At this point Mrs. Ward's two brothers, John L. Lyon, the grain merchant of Chicago and New York, and Thomas R. Lyon, came to her assistance, and they first bought up the claims against the estate and then the property itself as it was sold piece by piece.

The liquidation of the estate, as a matter, of course, wiped out all the legacies, but Mrs. Ward resolved to carry out the intentions of her husband's will. The heirs had antagonized and abused her without stint at the trial, but she nevertheless paid $225,000 to Capt. Ward's relatives, and has fulfilled the conditions of the will. In Mrs. Cameron's will she has left a handsome bequest to the city of Detroit. Her possessions are estimated to be worth $4,000,000.

BAXTER'S LITTLE GAME.

It is Said He Intends to Have the Wandering Jew Arrested in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—It was learned on good authority last night that there is a probability that Barnett's visit to the Queen City will be delayed. A leading lawyer, and one generally supposed to have some knowledge of the facts, declared that when Inspector Stark of Toronto passed through here en route from Halifax with Barnett, the latter will be arrested at the instance of James Baxter, who will thus turn the tables on Barnett, who is his debtor to a large amount, and on the Toronto people also.

Baxter Will Come if Wanted.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—Inspector Stark of Toronto passed through here yesterday to take care of R. G. I. Barnett, who is expected to arrive at Halifax on Saturday on the Sarnia.

James Baxter yesterday stated that as soon as Barnett arrived in Toronto he would if notified go to Toronto of his own accord and without a warrant.

ACCIDENT AT LONDON.

Several Men Badly Injured by a Falling Wall at McClary & Co.'s Building.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 5.—Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock part of the southern wall of the McClary & Co.'s building, left standing after the recent fire, fell in upon a gang of men engaged removing the debris and machinery, burying three of them. When the poor fellows were extricated it was found that two of them, Harry Hussey and Joseph Holman, had probably received fatal injuries, the legs of both men being broken and in addition they are badly hurt internally. The third man, John Packham, received severe injuries about the head and face but will be all right in the course of a few days. The policemen who happened to be in the vicinity of the building at the time were badly cut by the falling bricks, as were also several of the men at work about the building at the time.

Fatal Accident at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Stoppleber, a woman over 60 years of age who had been ill for some time, was accidentally strangled in the shed of her son's house yesterday morning. She is supposed to have been standing on a board which slipped, and a rope which was hanging in the shed caught her under the chin and strangled her.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

A Shocking Certainty

stares the public in the face. Should they refuse to buy clothing, or dry goods or boots and shoes, the public must go uncad. This, from climatic considerations alone, is not desirable. Hence the public must buy. Why not buy well when buying at all. To buy well buy at gough's the carvers of modern prices. The great bankrupt sale at Sheppard's old stand is now on and goods are being forked out in perfect avalanches. At the upper stores clothing and boots and shoes are sweeping the field. THE BOARD AWAKENING

THE CONDITION OF THE SCHOOLS TALKED ABOUT.

The Standard of our Collegiate Institute—A Resolution for the Department—A new Collegiate Institute and North Ward School—A Statement of the School Debentures Asked for—A Number of Other Motions.

Thirteen members of the Board of Education made their way through the snow storm to the board room for the regular meeting last evening, Mr. James Stevenson, chairman, presided, and there were present Messrs. Dumble, Hill, Denne, Weir, McWilliams, A. Rutherford, Wrighton T. Rutherford, English, Dr. Burnham, Stratton.

An application was received from Sarah Hanuth for the first vacancy that might occur in the public school.—Committee on Appointments.

The monthly reports from the different schools were presented as follows:—

School.	On Roll.	Average.
Central School	552	000
Collegiate Institute		121
West Ward School	169	142
South Ward School	268	220

The report of fees for November showed them to be as follows:—Collegiate Institute, $131; Public School, $6.50.

Inspector Tilley presented his first report on the schools of the town. It was an exhaustive and detailed document and dealt in a most thorough manner with each school, each division and each teacher, and showed on the whole a rather unsatisfactory condition of the schools.

On motion the report was received and referred to the School Supervision Committee.

OUR STANDARD.

Mr. DUMBLE asked if the plans for the North Ward school had been prepared?

Mr. DENNE asked if any of the gentlemen had been present at the convention of trustees in Toronto?

Messrs. DUMBLE and STRATTON said they both had been unable to attend through business, and Mr. Stevenson also had an excuse.

Mr. A. RUTHERFORD thought the school should have been represented and he was sorry that some one of the trustees had not gone. He also asked what was their standard, a High School or Collegiate Institute?

Chairman STEVENSON—A Collegiate Institute.

Mr. RUTHERFORD—They have graded us to a High School the same as Norwood.

The CHAIRMAN—Only as regards the money grant.

Mr. RUTHERFORD continuing said it was very unfortunate that the Council did not assist the Board so that they could have kept up the standard. They had a good staff of teachers, but because the rooms, halls and ventilation were not quite up to the requirements, they had been degraded to a High School. He trusted that Mr. Stratton would see to the action of the Government in this matter, and said it was time that the Board took a stand of some kind. He was glad to see the step the Council had taken last evening, and he thought there would be no trouble in getting it back to the standard if the money was raised.

MR. STRATTON'S RESOLUTION.

Mr. STRATTON said that the Board should pass a resolution of want of confidence in itself for not having abided by the law of the Province with regard to Collegiate Institute buildings. Mr. Rutherford, he said, knew that they had never met the requirements of the Government since he had sat at the Board, and he said, the Government had had to take the Board by the nose and say you must comply with the law before the board took action. The Government had not treated the Board harshly, and the reports of the inspectors did not conflict one with another, but the reason for the apparent conflict was that when one inspector made his visit the Collegiate Institute was in one building and when the next one came it was in another. He wished to deny emphatically that he had had any connection with the matter until after the grant as a High School had been made, and then he had written the Minister of Education asking for the reports. He had prepared a resolution covering the matter and, if some one would second it, he would move the following:—

That whereas the following resolution was on Monday evening passed by the Town Council of Peterborough:—"That this Council declares its readiness to assist the School Board in the matter of the improvements required to be made in the schools by the Government Inspector; and that the only misunderstanding between the Council and Board is as to the raising of the money; this Council being of opinion that debentures should be issued to cover a term of years instead of the amount being placed on the roll for one year." Be it resolved, that the Secretary of this Board be instructed to forward the above resolution to the Honorable Minister of Education with the intimation that in the opinion of this Board the said resolution in conjunction with the action of the Board in endeavouring to comply with the requirements of the law respecting Collegiate Institutes would justify the department in reconsidering its action so far as to forward the full amount of the Collegiate Institute grant, and inasmuch as it is the desire and intention of the Board to endeavor to maintain the Institute in an effective condition in all respects.

Mr. A. RUTHERFORD seconded the resolution, and its discussion was dropped until later on.

A MOTION AND REPORT.

Mr. HILL presented a notice of motion standing from July last, that the salary of Mr. Jas. A. Fife be raised to $800, beginning with January 1st next.—Carried.

Dr. BURNHAM, Chairman of the Finance, Committee, reported that the Committee recommended the paymant of Mr. Turner's account for $22 42, but would not recommend the payment of W. Wallbrook's for two and a half day's salary when teaching for Mr. McCreary, who was absent attending his father's funeral. The report was adopted.

SCHOOL SUPERVISION.

To the Chairman and Gentlemen of the Board of Education:

GENTLEMEN,—The Committee on School Supervision beg to report and recommend that the Property Committee be authorized to at once put up in Principal Long's room hat and cloak racks for the better accommodation and comfort of pupils, also to re-cover the steam pipes leading from the boiler house to the main building and also to raise the smoke stack, if by so doing it will give better draught from boiler. Respectfully submitted.

A. RUTHERFORD,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE SEPARATING OF THE BOARDS.

Mr. DUMBLE said he was very much pleased with the School Inspector's report presented that evening. He was glad that a thorough inspection was going to be made of the schools. The disgraceful condition of the closets was something that should not be allowed in a Christian community, and he thought the janitor and head master of the schools where this existed should be severely censured. The report was not one that they could be proud of. There were many disadvantages pointed out in it, which had largely to do with the rather bad showing, and there was no doubt but that the teachers and pupils had not a fair opportunity of showing good results. That building in which the High School was, was common school property, for which they paid rent, and, he said, they had not a proper common school building, and no grammar school or collegiate institute. For a long time he had advocated the separation of the Boards, as he believed they would then have better results. They had never sent away a teacher for inefficiency, but they had hugged and nursed them, and as a result they had an array. In their common school they had an overcrowded state of rooms, and this was very bad. It forced premature promotion and, he said, if a child was put beyond his depth he was ruined, and lost his power of conquering. He said the money in this town was not well spent, for they had poor common schools, poor buildings and an inferior High School. They wanted more room and better accommodation. They should let the High School get out and allow the public school to have the whole building. They should separate the Boards and build a High School. They could borrow $30,000 and that would build a handsome High School, and fit up that building so that they might be proud of it. Let the North Ward school go. They were going to spend $8,000 for a four roomed building and, he said, the children would rather go to the Central School than any other. The sooner they woke up in regard to their whole school system the better.

Mr. STRATTON said Mr. Dumble's remarks would not interfere with his, and he would therefore ask for a vote on his motion, and it was carried.

Architect Blackwell submitted a set of plans for the proposed North Ward school, which were laid on the table.

MR. TILLEY'S OPINION.

Mr. STRATTON said he would like to hear Mr. Tilly's opinion in reference to the adaptation of that building for a High School and his views on the matter. He moved that Mr. Tilley be heard.

Mr. TILLEY said as far as his own views went he was of the opinion that the High School and common school should be separated, as there was sure always to be little differences arising as to school government and management. One or two rooms in the basement of the central school should be abandoned, as they were dark and injurious to the eyes. He could not give an opinion as to the necessity for the North Ward school as he was not familiar with the ground. They wanted one or two more divisions in the public school as some of the rooms were now overcrowded. He thought it would be better for the Public school to have the whole of that building.

THOSE SCHOOL DEBENTURES.

Mr. DENNE moved, seconded by Mr. DUMBLE,—That the secretary of this board is hereby instructed to communicate with the Town Council of the town and request them to furnish this Board with a statement of all school debentures issued and sold, the amount each debenture sold for, the length of time made for and when falling due. Also a detailed statement of all moneys paid and received on account of such debentures since first issued, and what amount is still due and owing on debentures and when the same will be paid off under the present rate of interest and sinking fund now collected by taxation from year to year.

The mover said he asked for this because he had seen that a Councillor had given a statement of the school debentures recently, but had not gone back far enough, and his object in making this motion was to find out for the information of some of the ratepayers a full statement of their debenture account.

Chairman STEVENSON said this resolution should be sent to the Town Trust as they should deal with debentures. The same information had been asked for some eight or nine years ago and the statement had been made out at a great deal of trouble and expense. He gave an account of the history of the school debentures that have been issued, and said that Mr. Pearce could give all information required in reference to these, as a statement was always attached to the annual report.

The resolution then carried.

A NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Mr. DUMBLE then moved, seconded by Mr. MCWILLIAMS,—That it be referred to a Special Committee to report on the expediency of erecting a suitable building for a Collegiate Institute, that such committee also report the probable cost of such a building, and as to the expediency of separating the High School and public school Board. That the following be the committee:—Messrs. Denne, Stratton, Hill, Burnham, Wrighton and the mover and A. Rutherford.

Mr. DENNE said he had never heard a blacker picture painted of the public schools than that of Mr. Dumble's, but he was of the opinion that the two Boards could still work together successfully. He was opposed to the motion, and said he did not think there was any growth in the schools that justified the separation of the two Boards. He spoke at some length and said that they were in honor bound to build the North Ward school, as they had bought the land and the people were bound to have it.

Mr. DUMBLE said the resolution was not as to building but simply to allow the members to deliberate and bring the result of their deliberations to the Board.

Mr. A. RUTHERFORD—Are there any evils which make this necessary?

Mr. DUMBLE—Yes: On this ground he said they had 700 or 800 children playing round the yard and the older pupils objected to coming here. The High School and Public School Board would do better work separate. He again dilated on the lack of accommodation and said that the schools had not been anything like what they should be. The resolution would not commit the Board but just allow accommodation. He also spoke of one of the High school teachers, who, he said, should not be retained.

Mr. WEIR thought they would require a ward school at all events, as it was too far to send children from the North Ward down to the Central school in severe weather.

Mr. DUMBLE—I think we are rich enough to build both schools.

Mr. WEIR said in that case he would favor the separation and he proceeded to speak warmly the claims of the people of the North Ward for a school. Peterborough he advocated, should have a proper Collegiate Institute as she was as wealthy as any other town.

A NUMBER OF MOTIONS.

Mr. DUMBLE moved, seconded by Mr. A. RUTHERFORD,—That Mr. Earle be requested to hand in his resignation at the end of the year.

This motion was, however, withdrawn, and Dr. Burnham moved, seconded by Mr. A. Rutherford,—That the charges against Mr. Earle be referred to a committee and that they report at the next meeting of this Board the committee to be composed of Messrs. Dumble, Wrighton, A. Rutherford and the mover.—Carried.

Mr. DENNE moved that the ratepayers of the West Ward be allowed the use of one room in the West Ward School to hold one meeting in when called on, and that the janitor be instructed to have the same ready.—Carried.

Mr. T. RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Mr. WM. ENGLISH,—That Messrs. Denne, Weir, A. Rutherford, Kendry and the mover be a committee to ask for tenders for the North Ward school building and report which one they accept to this Board.

Mr. A. RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Mr. DENNE,—That the polling places and returning officers for the same be and are hereby appointed for the taking of the next election of school trustees, viz:—Ward No. 1—Jos. Lundy; Ward No. 2—Chas. Cameron; Ward No. 3—John Irwin; Ward No. 4—Wm. Lees; and that the same polling places used for the municipal elections now approaching be used for the election and that the corporate seal be hereto attached to give this motion the effect of a by-law.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

Rev. A. C. Wilson and Mr. Day took part in the discussion that followed.

THE SUPERINTENDENT.

Dr. HARRISON, of Keene, spoke on the topic "The Superintendent as a Sower." The Superintendent, he said, had different fields to sow in. One was before the school opened, to see that everything was in order. Another was as director of the teachers' meeting, where he should not teach the lesson but point out the best way of teaching it. A third was with the congregation, and he should work in harmony with the pastor. The fourth field was among those who did not attend any school, and of those he should bring in as many as possible.

The remainder of the report is held over.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

"He took the rooms, said 'e'd stay with me for six months, an' paid a week's rent in advance, an' 'e allays paid up reg'lar like a respectable man, tho' I don't believe in 'em myself. He said 'e'd lots of friends, an' used to go out every night."

"Who were his friends?"

"That I can't tell you, for 'e were very close, an' when 'e went out of doors I never know'd where 'e went, which is jest like 'em; for they see they're goin' to work, an' you finds 'em in the beershop. Mr. Whyte told me 'e was a-goin' to marry a heiress, 'e was."

"Ah!" interjected Mr. Gorby, sapiently.

"E 'ad only one friend as I ever saw—a Mr. Moreland—who comed 'ere with 'im, an' was allays with 'im—brother like."

"What like is this Mr. Moreland?"

"Good lookin' enough," said Mr. Hableton sourly, "but 'is 'abits weren't as good as 'is face—'andsom is as 'andsom does, is what I see."

"I wonder if he knows anything about this affair," muttered Gorby to himself. "Where is Mr. Moreland to be found?" he asked aloud.

"Not knowin', can't tell," retorted the landlady; "'e used to be 'ere reg'lar, but I ain't seen 'im for over a week."

"Strange! very!" thought Gorby, shaking his head. "I should like to see this Mr. Moreland. I suppose it's probable he'll call again?" he remarked, aloud.

"'Abit bein' second nature I s'pose he will," answered the woman; "'e might call at any time, mostly 'avin' called at night."

"Ah! then I'll come down this evening on chance of seeing him," replied the detective.

"Coincidences happen in real life as well as in novels, and the gentleman in question may turn up in the nick of time. Now, what else about Mr. Whyte?"

"About two weeks ago, or three, I'm not cert'in which, a gentleman called to see Mr. Whyte; 'e was very tall, and wore a light coat."

"Ah! a morning coat?"

"No; 'e was in evenin' dress, and wore a light coat over it, an' a soft 'at."

"The very man," said the detective below his breath; "go on."

"He went into Mr. Whyte's room an' shut the door. I don't know how long they were talkin' together, but I was sittin' in this very room and heard their voices git angry, and they were a-swearin' at one another, which is the way with men, the brutes. I got up and went into the passage in order to ask 'em not to make such a noise, when Mr. Whyte's door opens, an' the gentleman in the light coat comes out and bangs along to the door. Mr. Whyte 'e comes to the door of 'is room, an' 'e yollers out: 'She is mine; you can't do anything;' an' the other turns, with 'is 'an' on the door, an' says: 'I can kill you, an' if you marry 'er I'll do it, even in the open street.' 'e

"'Ah!' said Mr. Gorby, drawing a long breath, "and then?"

"Then he bangs the door to, which it never shut easy since, an' I ain't got no money to get it put right, an' Mr. Whyte walks back his room laughing."

"Did he make any remark to you?"

"No, except he'd been worried by a loonatic."

"And what was the stranger's name?"

"That I can't tell you, as Mr. Whyte never told me. He was very tall, with a fair mustache, an' dressed as I told you."

Mr. Gorby was satisfied.

"That is the man," he said to himself, "who got into the hansom cab and murdered Whyte; there's no doubt of it. Whyte and he were rivals for the heiress."

"What 'ye think of it?" said Mrs. Hableton, curiously.

"I think," said Mr. Gorby slowly, with his eyes fixed on her, "I think that there is a woman at the bottom of this crime."

CHAPTER VI.

MR. GORBY MAKES FURTHER DISCOVERIES.

When Mr. Gorby left Possum Villa no doubt remained in his mind as to who had committed the murder. The gentleman in the light coat had threatened to murder Whyte, even in the open street—these last words being especially significant—and there was no doubt that he had carried out his threat. What the detective had now to do was to find who the gentleman in the light coat was, where he lived, and, having found out these facts, ascertain his doings on the night of the murder. Mrs. Hableton had described him, but was ignorant of his name, and her very vague description might apply to dozens of young men in Melbourne. There was only one person who, in Mr. Gorby's opinion, could tell the name of the gentleman in the light coat, and that was Moreland, the intimate friend of the dead man. What puzzled the detective was that Moreland should be ignorant of his friend's tragic death, seeing that the papers were full of the murder, and that the reward gave an excellent description of the personal appearance of the deceased. The only way in which Gorby could account for Moreland's extraordinary silence was that he was out of town, and had neither seen the papers nor heard any one talking about the murder. If this was the case he might either stay away for an indefinite time or might come back after a few days. At all events it was worth while going down to St. Kilda in the evening on the chance that Moreland might have returned to town and would call and see his friend. So, after his tea, Mr. Gorby put on his hat and went down to Possum Villa on what he could not help acknowledging to himself was a very slender possibility.

Mrs. Hableton opened the door for him, and in silence led the way into her own sitting room.

They were barely seated when a knock came at the front door, loud and decisive, on hearing which Mrs. Hableton sprang hastily to her feet. "That may be Mr. Moreland," she said. "I never 'ave visitors in the evenin', bein' a lone widder, and if it is 'im I'll bring 'im in 'ere."

She went out, and presently Gorby, who was listening intently, heard a man's voice ask if Mr. Whyte was at home. "No, sir, he ain't," answered the landlady, "but there's a gentleman in his room askin' after 'im. Won't you come in, sir?"

"For a rest, yes," returned the visitor, and immediately afterwards Mrs. Hableton appeared, ushering in the late Oliver Whyte's most intimate friend. He was a tall, slender man, with a pink and white complexion, curly fair hair, and a drooping straw colored mustache—altogether a strikingly aristocratic individual. He was well dressed in a fashionable suit of check, and had a cool, nonchalant air about him.

"And where is Mr. Whyte to-night?" he asked, sinking into a chair, and taking no more notice of the detective than if he had been an article of furniture.

"Haven't you seen him lately?" asked the detective, quickly. Mr. Moreland stared in an insolent manner at his questioner for a few moments, as if he were debating the advisability of answering or not. At last he apparently decided that he would, for slowly pulling off one glove he leaned back in his chair.

"No, I have not," he said, with a yawn. "I have been up the country for a few days, and only arrived back this evening, so I have not seen him for over a week. Why do you ask?"

The detective did not answer, but stood looking at the young man before him in a thoughtful manner.

"I hope," said Moreland, nonchalantly, "I hope you will know me again, my friend; but I didn't know Whyte had started a lunatic asylum during my absence. Who are you?"

Mr. Gorby came forward and stood under the gaslight. "My name is Gorby, sir, and I am a detective," he said quietly.

"Ah! indeed," said Moreland, coolly looking him up and down. "What has Whyte been doing, running away with some one's wife, eh? I know he has little weaknesses of that sort."

Gorby shook his head.

"Do you know where Mr. Whyte is to be found?" he asked cautiously.

Moreland laughed.

"Not I, my friend," said he lightly. "I presume he is somewhere about here, as these are his headquarters. What's he been doing? Nothing that can surprise me, I assure you—he was always an erratic individual, and"——

"He paid reg'lar," interrupted Mrs. Hableton, pursing up her lips.

"A most enviable reputation to possess," answered the other with a sneer, "and one I'm afraid I'll never enjoy. But why all this questioning about Whyte? What's the matter with him?"

"He's dead!" said Gorby, abruptly.

All Moreland's nonchalance vanished on hearing this, and he started up out of his chair.

"Dead," he repeated mechanically. "What do you mean?"

"I mean that Mr. Oliver Whyte was murdered in a hansom cab."

Moreland stared at the detective in a puzzled sort of way, and passed his hand across his forehead.

"Excuse me, my head is in a whirl," he said, as he sat down again. "Whyte murdered! He was all right when I left him nearly two weeks ago."

"Haven't you seen the papers?" asked Gorby.

"No; for the last two weeks," replied Moreland. "I have been up country, and it was only on arriving back in town to-night that I heard about the murder at all, as my landlady gave me a garbled account of it, but I never for a moment connected it with Whyte, and came down here to see him, as I had agreed to do when I left. Poor fellow! poor fellow! poor fellow!" and much overcome, he buried his face in his hands.

Mr. Gorby was touched by his evident distress, and even Mrs. Hableton permitted a small tear to roll down one hard cheek as a tribute of sorrow and sympathy. Presently Moreland raised his head, and spoke to Gorby in a husky tone.

"Tell me all about it," he said, leaning his cheek on his hand. "Everything you know."

He placed his elbows on the table, and buried his face in his hands again, while the detective sat down and related all that he knew about Whyte's murder. When it was done he lifted up his head, and looked sadly at the detective.

"If I had been in town," he said, "this would not have happened, for I was always beside Whyte."

"You knew him very well, sir?" said the detective, in a sympathetic tone.

"We were like brothers," replied Moreland, mournfully. "I came out from England in the same steamer with him, and used to visit him constantly here."

Mrs. Hableton nodded her head to imply that such was the case.

"In fact," said Mr. Moreland, after a moment's thought, "I believe I was with him the night he was murdered."

Mrs. Hableton gave a slight scream, and threw her apron over her face, but the detective sat unmoved, though Moreland's last remark had considerably startled him.

"What's the matter?" said Moreland, turning to Mrs. Hableton. "Don't be afraid; I didn't kill him; no, but I met him last Thursday week, and I left for the country on Friday morning at half-past 6."

"And what time did you meet Whyte on Thursday night?" asked Gorby.

"Let me see," said Moreland, crossing his legs and looking thoughtfully up to the ceiling, "it was about half-past 9 o'clock. I was in the Orient hotel, on Bourke street. We had a drink together and then went up the street to a hotel in Russell street, where we had another. In fact," said Moreland, coolly, "we had several other drinks."

"Yes," said Gorby, placidly. "Go on."

"Well of—it's hardly the thing to confess it," said Moreland, looking from one to the other with a pleasant smile, "but in a case like this, I feel it my duty to throw all social scruples aside. We both got very drunk."

"Ah! Whyte was, as we know, drunk when he got into the cab—and you—"

"Was not quite so bad as Whyte," answered the other. "I had my senses about me. I fancy he left the hotel some minutes before 1 o'clock on Friday morning."

"And what did you do?"

"I remained in the hotel. He left his overcoat behind him, and I picked it up and followed him shortly afterward to return it. I was too drunk to see what direction he had gone in, and stood leaning against the hotel door in Bourke street with the coat in my hand. Then some one came up, and, snatching the coat out of my hand, made off with it, and the last thing I remember was shouting out, 'Stop, thief!' Then I must have fallen down, for next morning I was in bed with all my clothes on, and they were very muddy. I got up and left town for the country by the 6:30 train, so I knew nothing about the matter until I came back to Melbourne to-night. That's all I know."

"And you had no impression that Whyte was watched that night?"

"No, I had not," answered Moreland, frankly. "He was in pretty good spirits, though he was put out at first."

"What was the cause of his being put out?"

To be continued.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Uisters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

CURRENT MISTAKE TOUCHING THE C. P. R. ARBITRATION CASE.

Report of the Grosse Isle Quarantine Station—Dominion Sinking Fund Agents Appointed.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.—The Canadian Pacific Railway arbitration case was continued yesterday, Mr. Bell, C.E., being re-examined by Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C., after which Frank Turner, C.E., of Toronto was examined and corroborated. Mr. Bell's evidence that the Onderdonk sections were built in a good and durable manner. It has not been decided yet whether Sir Charles Tupper will be summoned or not.

One statement with regard to the suit which has been made in several papers needs correction. It is that the Canadian Pacific Railway claim $5,000,000. This is not correct as no sum whatever is mentioned. The claim is simply that the British Columbia sections were not so well built as they should have been and the company is entitled to compensation to enable it to raise those sections to the proper standard. The amount to be allowed, if any, rests with the arbitrators.

The report of the season's work at Grosse Isle quarantine station shows that fifty cases of infectious diseases, including smallpox, yellow fever, diphtheria, etc., were taken off incoming vessels. There were two deaths, one of measles and one of enteric fever. Several thousand persons were vaccinated.

Mr. Lepine, M. P., accompanied by a deputation of printers employed in the Government office, waited upon Hon. Mr. Chapleau yesterday to enquire whether the positions now held by the printers were to be made permanent, how the bureau was to be conducted, what the rate of pay was to be and other matters. Hon. Mr. Chapleau said he could not give a definite reply as the arrangements regarding the new bureau were not completed.

A large number of Manitoba and Northwest farmers have taken advantage of the offer of Professor Saunders and sent samples of wheat, slightly touched by frost, to be tested at the Experimental Farm as to fertility.

It is stated that an appeal will be made to the Federal Government for aid for the fishermen on the western coast of Nova Scotia, who are in great want on account of failure of the inshore fisheries, but the matter has not yet come before Council.

Baring Bros. and Glynn, Mills, Carrie & Co. have been appointed agents of the Dominion sinking fund in place of the late Sir John Rose.

Rev. Father Prudhomme, parish priest of St. Annes, has taken a novel method of ridding his parish of houses of ill-fame. He has induced a wealthy parishioner to purchase a big row of houses near Anglesea square, mostly inhabited by disreputable women, all of whom have been served with notice to quit, the reverend gentleman guaranteeing to find respectable tenants for the houses.

Rev. W. C. Carson of the Dominion Methodist Church, who was severely injured by a fall some time ago, was yesterday presented by his congregation with a purse of $300 and advised to take a few weeks holidays to recuperate.

The immigrants arriving at Winnipeg last season numbered 16,883, being a large increase over previous years.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau accompanied by Madame Chapleau left for Montreal yesterday afternoon en route for France.

It is understood that Sir Hector Langevin will act as Secretary of State during Hon. Mr. Chapleau's absence, but that Hon. Mackenzie Bowell will have charge of the printing and stationery branch.

AMBITIOUS CITY NEWS.

Burglars Held for Trial—The Drill Instructor's Case—A Wayward Girl.

HAMILTON, Dec. 6.—David McAuliffe and William Smith were brought up for examination before Police Magistrate Cahill yesterday morning, charged with breaking into Mills' hat store on Nov. 25 and stealing ten Persian lamb caps. The magistrate held them for trial.

Yesterday morning Police Magistrate Cahill gave judgment in the case against Drill Instructor Athawes, charged with assaulting W. Champ, a school boy. The Magistrate considered that Athawes had not exceeded his authority and dismissed the case.

Mary Walker, a 16-year-old girl charged with vagrancy, was yesterday sentenced to 23 months in the Mercer Reformatory, her father testifying that she was beyond his control.

Tuesday afternoon some boys in Mount Hope village saw a man who was driving through the village fall off his load upon the ground. Assistance was immediately summoned, but the man only lived a few minutes after being picked up. His name was George Clark, jr., son of George Clark, dairyman, on the mountain. The deceased was about 40 years of age and leaves a widow and three children, who live in Caledonia. He was engaged in teaming groceries and general merchandise from Hamilton to Caledonia. Just before he fell, the boys say the deceased rose up as if to fix his load. There were few bruises on the body and it was impossible to tell from a superficial examination what the cause of death was. There will not be an inquest.

Ald. Kendrick and McLellan of the Markets, Fire and Police Committee, are going to Toronto to-day to take a look at the ambulances there, with a view to adopting the best style for the vehicle that is to be built here.

Burglars were at work Tuesday night at M. T. Evans' residence, 131 York-street, corner of Caroline. They tore a shutter off his front window and had it raised ready for business when Mr. Evans appeared with a light.

DEATH AT THE CROSSINGS

JOHN MARSHALL OF INGERSOLL KILLED BY AN ENGINE.

A Lake Shore Engine Collides With a Street Car at Detroit—Ten Persons Injured, Five Fatally—Another Fatality.

INGERSOLL, Dec. 6.—Yesterday afternoon as Teamster John Marshall was driving across the Grand Trank Railway track on Wingham-street his waaon was struck by the engine of the express and smashed to atoms. Marshall was thrown high into the air and fell into the ditch about 20 yards away. He received a severe blow over the right eye, and the frontal bone of the forehead over the bridge of the nose was badly crushed. He was removed to his home a mile out of town on Thamesford-road and died about an hour afterwards. One of the horses had his leg badly broken and had to be killed.

Ten Persons Hurt, Five Fatally.

DETROIT, Dec. 6.—Yesterday afternoon a Lake Shore and Michigan Southern switch engine on its way to the junction, collided with a street car of the Fort and Crogan-street line, at Crogan-street crossing, demolishing the street car and injuring ten persons, five of whom will probably die.

A Boy Killed in This Collision.

CADILLAC, Mich., Dec. 6.—Yesterday morning as the Cardillac and Northeastern passenger train was coming into Lake City, a team belonging to Samuel Olsen of Jennings became unmanageable and ran into the track. Olsen and his little boy were in the wagon. The boy was killed instantly and the father injured. One horse was killed and the other injured.

ANOTHER ROCKY MOUNTAIN LINE.

Projected Road to Run From Southern Alberta to British Columbia.

MCLEOD, N. W. T., Dec. 6.—The Canadian Pacific have a staff of men in Crow's Nest Pass exploring a line for a railway to run from Southern Alberta to British Columbia, through the Rocky Mountains, with the intention of making it their main line. The advantages of the pass are recorded as follows: It is a more direct route from the main line at Medicine Hat to Vancouver than the present one. In the Crow's Nest, and subsequent passes on the way to the Pacific, the grades are scarcely perceptible, while on the present route immense engines can only take four freight cars at a time up some of the grades. By way of the Crow's Nest, an ordinary freight engine could take a large freight train most of the way alone. A railway through the Crow's Nest Pass would traverse the rich Kootenay country, the choicest part of all British Columbia.

STUBBS' REVENGE.

Another Chapter in the Story of the Nomination Day Battle at Mono Mills.

ALTON, Dec. 6.—The fight between William Stubbs, the defeated candidate for Cardwell in the recent election, and Robert Evans at Mono Mills on nomination day, Sept. 26 last, culminated in a magistrates' court here yesterday before Justices McLaren, Patullo and Swinerton.

Stubbs charged Evans with aggravated assault and John Hazzard with aiding and abetting.

Evans and Hazzard were committed for trial, bail being accepted, $400 for Evans, $200 for Hazzard.

By a special provision of the election law a common assault on nomination day or election day becomes aggravated assault.

The Fire Losses at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—The loss by fire at Lyman Bros. & Co., wholesale druggists, last night, is now placed at $135,000. The value of the stock is estimated at $175,000, but it is thought that the actual loss on stock will be about $75,000. Buildings and stocks were insured as follows: Ætna, $7000; Caledonia, $3500; Citizens', $8000; Commercial Union, $5500; Glasgow and London, $6100; Guardian, $7600; Hartford, $16,600; Imperial, $10,300; Lancaster, $4800; Liverpool, London and Globe, $12,625; London Assurance, $10,000; North British and Mercantile, $7628.

The Liquor Question in the Territories.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 6.—The Northwest Assembly by a vote of 13 to 7 has expressed the opinion that a plebiscite should be taken on the liquor question, and if provision for taking a vote are not made at the next session of Parliament that powers similar to those held by the provinces should be given the Assembly.

HAMILTON, Dec. 6.—The shareholders of the Hamilton Baseball Club and lovers of the game held a meeting in the City Hall last evening. Secretary Dixon's report showed the club had lost $8000, but this was made up by subscriptions and the sale of players. No action was taken toward organizing a club for next season but the feeling of those present was in favor of Hamilton being represented. The present directors are unwilling to remain in office unless they are secured from any personal loss. After some further discussion the meeting adjourned until Dec. 14, when it is expected steps will be taken towards organizing a good team here.

GOVERNORS PUZZLED.

What Shall We Do With the White Caps is a Troublesome Question.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Mr. Eddison Vance, a well-known resident of Rutland, Vt., is visiting friends on Washington-boulevard. For nearly three weeks prior to his Chicago visit he had been staying at the home of his uncle, Aaron Vance, who lives near Sardinia, O., at present the scene of many White-Cap outrages. Mr. Vance says he had a thrilling experience with the ruffians, and was handled roughly by them. He says: "While riding with my uncle one day last month, we stopped at a roadside trough to water the horse. We had been speaking about the the White Caps, and my uncle said: 'I know two of them and have engaged spies to discover the rest. As soon as we can get evidence enough I will spend every dollar I possess, if necessary, to land the villains in the penitentiary.' Somebody belonging to the order must have heard him, because the next morning when I opened the front door I found transfixed to the handle by a sharp-pointed knife a rough drawing of a human heart, the weapon stuck through its centre. In the left hand upper corner were the skull and cross-bones, and in the opposite corner the picture of a coffin. Below was an inscription which read:

"'Aaron Vance, you'd better be careful as to what you say and do. This is a warning. If you try to do us harm you will get the worst of it. 'WHITE CAPS.'

"On the steps were a bundle of beech switches, and attached to the cord that held them together was a tag on which was written, 'Weapons of reform.' I awoke my uncle and showed him the warning and the bundle of whips. His first words were: 'The devils must have been in the woods last night when we watered the horse.' He bought some ammunition and waited for the raiders. They came, but he shot one and they went away. Then the house was surrounded by White Caps and we again drove them away with a volley. The third night after that the White Caps caught a hired man and me and tied us up in the barn. My uncle drove them away after shooting at them for a long time. It was broad daylight when my uncle opened the barn door and cut the ropes that bound us. Two days before I left, my uncle got a letter which said that the White Caps would have revenge if it took all winter. While I was at my uncle's some neighbors were whipped, though innocent of any disregard of public morals."

The White Caps, like their predecessors, the White Leaguers and the Knights of the White Camelia, wear white masks while on their raids. They have a line of march always selected in advance, and their victims are spotted and guarded by scouts. If the White Caps have it on their program to give a man or a woman a whipping it is almost impossible to escape from their wrath. They usually travel in squads of fifty or a hundred, large enough to prevent resistance, and yet not large enough to prevent their easy disbanding in case the authorities attempt their capture by troops. They usually select Saturday night or early Sunday morning for their depredations. This gives them ample time for disbanding on Sunday, and would make it pretty difficult for the State authorities to prove that they were not at home during those hours. Generally their victims offer but little resistance. Dragged from a warm bed, usually unarmed, confronted suddenly by half a hundred masked "knights" on horseback, the average man does not care about fighting. He prefers to bow to the inevitable. Some of the men and some of the horses are robed in black goods and some in white cloth, for effect, but all of the men are armed. Having accomplished their knightly errand of whipping or warning naughty men and women in their neighborhoods, they ride away. There are exceptional cases where the rule of the White Caps has been for the time being apparently productive of an increased morality on the part of the men and virtue on the part of the women. But in the vast majority of cases the counties where the White Caps survive and flourish will not begin to compare with the counties in the States not blessed with regulators, either in virtue and morality or intelligence and character. Gov. Foraker of Ohio and Gov. Gray of Indiana have an important political problem on their hands to solve. It is: "What shall we do with the White Caps?"

FOLLOWED HIM FROM SEA TO SEA.

A Pretty Chinese Maiden Travels Across the Continent in Male Attire.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—About two years ago Ye Doy lived in San Francisco. She was a pretty little Chinese woman, and though her life had been wayward her heart was warm and tender, and, like many of her Christian sisters, she fell in love. Ah Suey, a frequenter of the house she lived in, was the man to whom her Oriental soul went out. Ah Suey's finances became entangled and he was obliged to quit 'Frisco's Chinatown, but before leaving he swore eternal constancy to Ye Doy and promised faithfully to send for her when he had made a home on the other side of the continent. But Ah Suey was fickle, or else he found some difficulty in building a nest for his dove, for weeks, months and years flew by and no word came to the waiting Ye.

Last Tuesday there appeared in Mott-street a young and good-looking Chinaman, who was a stranger to the Oriental habitues. He arrived in a carriage, alighted in front of No. 5 and after some inquiry engaged a double room at No. 17, which he soon stocked with furniture from a neighboring store. He was a mystery to all, and some believed he was an ambassador charged with some important and secret mission. Saturday evening, however, the curious neighbors thought they distinguished sounds of a very commonplace growl going on in the stranger's apartments, and the soft voice of a woman was easily distinguished, though a trifle angry. Presently the door opened and out stepped a pretty, 18-year-old Chinese girl, followed by a man some years older. The neighbors knew the man as Ah Suey, and had they been familiar with the romance would have recognized in the girl Ye Doy.

The plucky little woman had made her way across the continent in male attire, having managed to save about $300, and almost by a miracle had succeeded in corralling her recreant lover. But Ah Suey is resigned, and early Monday morning the household effects were removed from No. 17 to some place unknown, where the Chinese lovers will build their nest.

A Passenger Rate War.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The war in railroad passenger rates to Missouri River points is being waged with vigor. At the opening of yesterday's business rates were quoted at $10.25 to Omaha, $10 to Council Bluffs, $9 to Kansas City, St. Joe and Atchison, and $8.50 to St. Paul. Scalpers sold at 50 cents below these rates. At noon the Burlington road made a further cut and quoted rates to Omaha at $9.25 and Council Bluffs $9.

Guelph Waterworks Bylaw.

GUELPH, Dec. 6.—At a special meeting of the Council for the purpose of considering a bylaw to be submitted to the people for granting the sum of $15,000 towards the extension and repair... waterworks, the bylaw was read and the blanks filled in without any discussion. The vote will be taken on Jan. 7. The indebtedness will run for thirty years.

LORD RANDOLPH'S ATTACK

CONTINUES TO BE THE TALK OF ALL BRITAIN.

Gen. Wolseley Denies That He Inspired Lord Randolph—Proceedings Yesterday in the House of Commons.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—In the House of Commons last night James Stuart, a Home Rule Radical, moved the rejection of the report on the vote for the Irish Secretary's office, his object being to discuss a statement by the Viceroy to the effect that 160 derelict farms from which tenants had been evicted were easily relet. Mr. Stuart contended that this statement was a gross error. Derelict farms were never relet, a fact that demonstrated the failure of the Government's policy in Ireland.

Mr. Balfour said he gathered from Mr. Stuart's remarks that the Gladstonians wanted to keep the derelict farms unlet [Hear! Hear!]. This implied approval of a system of intimidation to prevent farmers from exercising their industry unless with the approval of certain politicians. The Viceroy's report on the reletting of farms was based upon official returns and could not be questioned

The vote was approved without a division.

Gen. Wolseley's Denial.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Owing to a report that General Wolseley had been in communication with Lord Randolph Churchill and had inspired his attack upon the Suakim expedition on account of an inadequacy of the proposed forces, Mr. Stanhope, the War Secretary, wrote a letter to General Wolseley on the subject asking him upon what military authority he supported Lord Randolph's views.

General Wolseley in his reply says there has been no interchange of confidence between himself and Lord Randolph Churchill and that he is not responsible for the latter's statements.

The Conservatives' charge that Lord Randolph Churchill took the Government by surprise, while warning the Liberals to prepare for a division, is explained by Lord Randolph's friends. They assert that he informed the Government early yesterday that he intended to move an adjournment but that he did not put the motion on the notice paper, fearing it might be blocked. Lord Randolph denies that he communicated with the Liberal whips on the subject.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Upon the opening of the Parnell Commission yesterday Sergeant Moroney read the report of a speech by Mr. Tanner, M. P. for Cork, denouncing one Haggarty, who had been boycotted.

The commission decided to adjourn from Friday next until Jan. 15.

Other witnesses were called who swore that they knew of cases of boycotting and outrages.

Mr. Walsh, ex-Secretary of Kildemagh (County Mayo) branch of the league, testified that by order of the league several persons had been boycotted for refusing to join in the plan of campaign.

Sir Charles Russell objected to the introduction of evidence concerning the plan of campaign on the ground that that subject was not included in the allegations.

Attorney-General Webster contended that his object in introducing this evidence was to show connection between the league and the plan of campaign.

Justice Hannen admitted the evidence.

On cross-examination witness admitted that he had been charged with pilfering of funds and had been expelled from the League. He also admitted that he had been agent for a glass insurance company, and had been discharged by the company for making a fraudulent claim for damages. He had also attempted to defraud the Gresham Life Insurance Company. Replying to Mr. Davitt witness said the police had intimated to him that they did not know what would befall him in connection with these insurance matters if he refused to give evidence on behalf of The Times, and that he then consented to testify.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK

of $18,000 WORTH OF GOODS, new choice and fresh, and selling at 50c. on the dollar. We leave it to you to name the prices! We go further! We will absolutely give you goods at your own figures. Bearing in mind that 30 days finishes the sale in Sheppard's old premises, we offer

New named streets: White-st., Bay-st., Rolleston-st., Dublin-st., Fitzgerald-st., Prospect-st., Braden-st. and D'Encourt-st. The report was adopted. A memorial to the Ontario Government was passed praying that exemptions from municipal taxation of every description be abolished. The Debenture Committee submitted a report, which stated that they had accepted Mr. R. W. Smith's offer of $102 25 for the $10,000 of debentures and that the village solicitor was examining the little Mill Reserve No 1. It also stated that a hitch in the sale of the debentures had arisen on account of the by-law reading that a certain rate on the dollar was to be raised, as well as mentioning a specific sum, which Mr. Smith's solicitors had written could be overcome by the by-law being registered and remaining unquestioned for three months. The by-law had been registered. The report was adopted. The Fire Protection Committee reported, recommending the purchase of a Ronald fire engine to cost $3,650 and two hose carts at $100 each; also the purchase of 500 feet Maltese cross hose at $1.10 per foot and 100 feet of the Baker fabric hose at 90 cents per foot, and that the Council have the Peterborough thread on engine and couplings. The cost of the whole would be:—

Engine	$3,450 00
Two Hose Carts, $100 each	200 00
500 ft Maltese Cross hose	550 00
500 it Baker Fabric hose	450 00
	$4,650 00

The report was laid on the table until the next meeting. A by-law providing for holding the elections was passed. A by-law to close certain streets and to acquire and open others in lieu thereof, received its first two readings and will be finally passed on the 9th day of Jan. next. A by-law relating to the Fire department, also received its several readings. The Reeve stated to the Council that the agreement entered into by the Council with the Smith, Enismore and Lakefield Agricultural Society, was proved to be illegal, as this Council could not bind any succeeding Council to carry out the several promises.

A memorial to the Dominion Government was passed asking the Government to assume the wharf built by the village, paying therefor such sum as may be agreed upon. The Council then adjourned until Dec. 15th.

CROCKERYWARE

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with businessmen, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

W. J. MASON.

Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

Farewell Soldiers!

This has been a season of farewells in the Army here during the past two or three weeks. First Adjutant Bolton bade farewell to his many friends here, then Captain Howell made his farewell bow and again last night two more of the local corps gave their farewell address at the barracks. The latter were Lieut. Hague and Cadet Barth, who have been ordered to leave this station. They both expressed their regret at leaving, but were willing to work for the cause anywhere.

Another Trip for Nothing.

A few days ago word was received here that there was a man out in a lumber shanty near Minden who answered the description of the individual who is suspected of having committed the recent outrage. A description was sent here of the man in the shanties and it tallied pretty well with the person wanted and Constable Stewart went out to bring him here if he should be able to identify him. The constable returned home this morning, however, without the suspected raper as the fellow in the shanty proved not to be the right man.

The Trial Approaching.

There will be one case at the County Court of Sessions which opens here next Tuesday the verdict in which will be intently waited for by nearly everybody, and that is the trial of Greenfield or Ferguson on the charge of the attempted murder of Constable Stewart. Greenfield's will not be the only criminal case, as the old man Ritchie lies in gaol awaiting his trial for the stealing of a horse and buggy and Thomas Shouldice will appear on the docket charged with house breaking.

Legal.

In the Divisional Court at Toronto on Wednesday, Hilliard v. Beck.—Motion on behalf of defendant Stothart for leave to serve notice and set the case down for the present Divisional Court sittings. Action was brought to recover the value of buildings erected on leasehold property devised to plaintiff by the testator and churchwardens of St. John's Church, Peterborough, for a term of 21 years, renewable, with covenant to pay the value of the buildings if lease not renewed. After the making of the lease the lands were sold by the diocese of Toronto to defendant S., who entered in to possession after the expiry of the 21 years. Under the statutes the rector had no power to lease these lands by a renewable lease, and it is contended that the covenant to pay compensation was also ultra vires the rector, and the covenant not purporting to bind assigns that defendant S. did not take subject to that covenant, and particularly as he was the assignee of the diocese by title paramount. Watson supported the motion. Granted.

Ashburnham Council.

A regular meeting of the Ashburnham Council was held on Monday evening. In the absence of the Reeve Mr. Calcutt took the chair, and there were also present Councillors Craig, Wand and Anderson. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

J. R. Stratton	2 80
H. Nell	4 00
D. Law	75
R. Mitchell	2 50
J. Calvert	28 80

C. H. Mells	50
Pay sheet No. 33	48 32
Pay sheet No. 34	27 88
Pay sheet No. 35	9 19

On motion of Councillor Craig, seconded by Councillor Wand, the taxes of Mrs. Mitchell were remitted. A petition was received asking the Council not to allow any more dancing entertainments to be held in the town hall, as they disturbed the peace of law abiding citizens. The prayer of the petition was granted, and the Council adjourned.

Business Increasing.

Early in November the Mechanical and Milling News sent enquiries to the leading machinery building establishments asking as to the business of the year and the prospects. Among the answers received was the following from the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co., of Peterborough:—"Your favor of 1st to hand and noted. In reply would say, that our fiscal year does not extend from January to January, but from August to August, therefore we base our calculations upon that. We might say that business in and for year ending July 3rd, 1888 has been fairly satisfactory, we having done 16⅔ per cent. more business, or rather volume of business, than we did in the previous year. During the year 1887-8 the price of iron had advanced, also wages, hence we are compelled to raise the prices on some classes of work which had heretofore been cut very fine. During that year we made no improvements to speak of, as only the year previous we had expended about $10,000 in new additions to our works, as well as new tools. Since July, 1888, we have now almost completed another addition to our machine shop, being of brick, 166 feet long, 34 wide, two stories high, and are also getting in some more new tools, making the new improvements this year cost from $8,000 to $10,000. From the general outlook of business, we would think our business will increase this year at least the same percentage over last year as last year did over the year previous."

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

The Annual Convention of the Peterborough Association.

The following is the conclusion of the report of the Convention:—

THE TEACHER AS A SOWER.

Mr. H. S. GRIFFIN'S subject was "The Teacher as a Sower of Good Seed." The teacher's success, he said, depended upon the knowledge of the soil, acquaintance with the seed, sowing in season, and courage. 1st, knowledge of the soil.—The teacher's success as a sower depends on his knowledge of the soil—the ground into which he casts the seed. What a variety of soil in one class? The teacher should know as much as possible about the home life of each scholar, what care has been bestowed in the cultivation of the soil or the neglect that has resulted in the heart becoming a barren wilderness. A knowledge of the daily life with its associations—the difficulties and temptations that his scholars meet—will give him sympathy for the erring, tenderness for the weak and confidence in the strong. This knowledge of the soil cannot be obtained in a day. It requires study, prayer, patience, with love for the souls in his charge. 2nd. Acquaintance with the seed. The teachers success depends also on his acquaintance with the seed—which is the word of God. Take care what you sow. "Thy word shall not return unto me void" not your word. Man's word may be tares. God's word is the seed of life, profitable for doctrine, reproofe, correction, instruction in righteousness. God asks the teacher to possess the land, in other words join his class for Christ—Hear his directions to Joshua. "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth but thou shalt meditate thereon day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous and then thou shalt have good success." Jesus said "All power is given unto me in heaven and on earth." Go therefore and teach. Teach what? His commandments, and "Lo, I am with you always." How careful the teacher should be that he cast nothing into the soil but the living seed, God's words. Great wisdom is needed in selecting from God's rich store house so that the babes in Christ may be fed, and the hungry not sent empty away. A teacher may be very busy in his daily vocation with but little time for reading—most of the successful teachers are the busy people—yet his busy life must not prevent him from taking sufficient time to study God's word. His responsibility is too great, his calling two sacred to trifle or neglect. The busy teacher should guard against depending on helps. He must seek all the help at his disposal, but first of all he should become familiar with the work, and search it with dependence on the Holy Spirit. "He will guide into all truth." 3rd, sowing in season.—In the morning sow thy seed—in the morning of life, before the ground becomes a beaten pathway, or shallow from influences, or overgrown by the thorns planted by the evil one—then the soil is good, in early tender years, before evil has become like a second nature. "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not; for of such is the Kingdom of God." The teacher called to sow in this soil may expect the most success. More than ever the Church of God sees the need of faithful toil in this department. How important that the living seed should be planted in all early sowing! Who can tell the importance of young hearts! Who can tell the importance of early sowing? God through Moses constantly reminds Israel to teach the children His commandments. Their future greatness as a nation depended on it. Their enjoying promised blessings depended on it and as a result of their disobedience, the nation became corrupt, following other gods. Who can estimate the results that will follow if parents in their homes and teachers in their Sabbath schools are but faithful to their duty? What shall our future be as a nation and Dominion? Who shall guide this great land in all her public affairs? Men of God whose lives shall be built on the true foundation, the Word of God; men like Moses, Joshua, Daniel, Paul. Who shall sit in our court as judges and magistrates? Men such as fear God—men of truth, hating covetousness. Who shall be leaders in commerce? Men who have learned the golden rule, God speed the day. Sower of good seed look up and onward. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." Sow in the evening—"And in the evening withhold not thy hand, for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good." Sow on the beaten path, on the rocks and among the thorns. Break up the fallow ground. God can break the rocks. He can make the most unlikely soil ready for the seed. So beside all waters. 4th, courage—The sower will find many things to discourage in this work. "Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou discouraged; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Abraham was often discouraged, but God led him to look up and read the promises suited to the temptation. Moses, that great mower asks, "Who am I, that I should go." God leads him step by step, until he hides him in a cliff of a rock and displayed to him his glory. The discouraged teacher can look up. "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." Hide in the Rock of Ages and God shall cause his glory to be seen. How much our Lord and Master had to discourage Him as He went up and down scattering the seed of life. What had the earlier followers to endure? Just as the teacher tries to follow in the footsteps of the Master may he expect difficulties. Apparent failure discourages, forgetting that "one soweth and another reapeth." The teacher's work is to sow, God's to cause the increase. Success is with God. "And let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

TUESDAY EVENING.

The closing session of the convention was held on Tuesday evening and was opened with the usual exercises.

BUSINESS MATTERS.

Rev. A. C. Wilson presented the report of the Business Committee, which was adopted.

The report recommended that the Association raise the sum of $55, apportioned to the schools as follows:—Peterborough $25, Lakefield and Smith $15, Norwood $7, Keene $6, and Warsaw $3. The report also recommended that township conventions be organized at the following times and places:—For Otonabee, at Keene on Friday, March 1st; for Smith, at Bridgenorth on Monday, March 4th; for Asphodel, at Norwood on Saturday, March 2nd, and Dummer, at Warsaw on March 3rd. The Secretary of the County Convention was appointed to see that the conventions were held.

THE HARVEST.

Mr. DAY took up the next topic for discussion, "The Harvest, its Certainty." He said that God's promises were sure and that they assured success and should inspire hopefulness. A careless performance of duty, losing sight of these promises, would be unsuccessful. A faithful teacher might not see the results of his labor in his class, but he received benefit himself and reaped a harvest in his own experience. One result of effective teaching was to send the children as missionaries back to the homes, and the country was benefitted by the work of the teachers.

Rev. Messrs. Huff and Shorey continued the discussion, Mr. Shorey paying a warm tribute to faithful teachers in the school.

This concluded the business of the convention. Each session was interesting, eminently practical and well attended.

A discussion followed, in which Rev. Messrs. Huff, Parker, Pearson, McEwen and others took part. Mr. Griffin was, on motion, asked to prepare his address for publication.

COUNTY SCHOOLS.

The PRESIDENT reported that he had attended meetings at Keene, Norwood and Bridgenorth.

Representatives from these places said that the meetings had done much good.

The question of holding township conventions was referred to the Business Committee.

The report of the treasurer, Sheriff Hall, was read. A discussion followed as to business affairs, and the convention adjourned until evening.

The Brother Found.

Some time ago Chief Roszel received a letter from Walla Walla, W.T., asking for information regarding Charles Davis, a carpenter, whose supposed brother had been mysteriously murdered—the body being found beside the railway track with the throat cut. The REVIEW published an account of the letter and to-day Chief Roszel received a letter dated at Furnace Falls, Snowden township, Haliburton, and signed by Charles Davis, carpenter, in which the writer says:—"I saw in the REVIEW of last week the death of Thomas W. Davis, and as I believe it to be my brother I want to know all particulars about the matter, and send send me word. I had a brother who went to the States and I have not heard from him for some time and as I follow the carpenter trade I thought it must be my brother." The Chief sent the printed account of the murder and all that was known of the murdered man to Furnace Falls.

An Anniversary Celebration.

It was a year ago last night that the King William Lodge No. 43, of True Blues, was organized and the anniversary of the event was celebrated by an assembly in their hall on Simcoe-st. There were about thirty-five couple present and the light fantastic was tripped to the excellent music of the orchestra until an early hour this morning. Supper was served at Mr. J. Craig's, and was excellently prepared and did credit to the host. The gathering was a pleasing one in many respects and this will now probably be made an annual occurrence.

A Frightened Quartette.

Four young ladies living in the south part of the town were badly frightened by some brainless night-hawk last night. The ladies had been attending the Army meetings and were returning home about ten o'clock. They were just in the vicinity of the South Ward School when a man jumped out from behind a tree and grabbed one of the girls. To say that the four young ladies were frightened does not any more express their condition than saying that they yelled and screamed gives one any idea of the lung power that was exhibited by the quartette and which awoke the residents for a few blocks in the locality. The screaming had its effect all the same, for upon having had the fact that the young ladies' lungs were in a first-class condition most practically demonstrated the ruffian let go of the girl he had caught and took the tracks. The affair was immediately reported to the police, but as the girls could not tell whether the villian was white or black or anything else about him he was not found.

REVIEWS.

THE CENTURY.—Thoroughly of Christmas character is the December issue of the Century. A rare combination of fine literary matter and splendid art work in printing. The greatest interest attaches to the papers contributed by Mr. Kennan on "Siberia," and which are continued. Henry James' paper on "London," finely illustrated by Pennel, is a graphic description of first impressions of the great city. The stories of this number (besides "The Irish Aigle" and "Francoise") are the second instalment of Mrs. Catherwood's "Romance of Dollard"; "The Third of March," by Julian Hawthorne, and "'Mine'—A Plot," by H. S. Edwards, author of "Two Runaways,"—five in all, including the serials. A striking feature of this number is furnished by two articles on Henry Ward Beecher's memorable appearance in England in 1863, in advocacy of the cause of the American Union. The first of these articles is written by the Rev. J. M. Buckley, editor of "The Christian Advocate and Journal," who saw and heard "Beecher at Liverpool in '63"; the other is by Mr. Beecher himself,—a fragment written for The Century, just before his death, and is accompanied by a fac-simile page of his last manuscript. Other features are well attended to, making up a delightful book for home reading.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

Moreland arose, and, going to a side table, brought Whyte's album, which he laid on the table and opened in silence. The contents were very much the same as the photographs in the room, burlesque actresses and ladies of the ballet predominating; but Mr. Moreland turned over the pages till nearly the end, when he stopped at a large cabinet photograph, and pushed the album toward Mr. Gorby.

"That was the cause," he said.

It was the portrait of a charmingly pretty girl, dressed in white, with a sailor hat on her fair hair, and holding a lawn tennis racket. She was bending half forward, with a winning smile, and in the background was a mass of some tropical plants. Mrs. Hableton gave a cry of surprise at seeing this.

"Why, it's Miss Frettlby," she said. How did he know her?"

"Knew her father—letters of introduction, and all that sort of thing." said Mr. Moreland, glibly.

"Ah, indeed!" said Mr. Gorby slowly. "So Mr. Whyte knew Mark Frettlby, the millionaire; but how did he obtain a photograph of the daughter?"

"She gave it to him," said Moreland. "The fact is, Whyte was very much in love with Miss Frettlby."

"And she"——

"Was in love with some one else," finished Moreland.

"Exactly!"

"Yes, she loved a Mr. Brian Fitzgerald, to whom she is now engaged. He was mad on her, and Whyte and he used to quarrel over the young lady desperately."

"Indeed!" said Mr. Gorby. "And do you know this Mr. Fitzgerald?"

"Oh, dear, no!" answered the other, coolly. "Whyte's friends were not mine. He was a rich young man who had good introductions. I am only a poor devil on the outskirts of society, trying to push my way in the world."

"You know his personal appearance, of course?" observed Mr. Gorby.

"Oh, yes, I can tell you that," said Moreland. "In fact, he's not at all unlike me, which I take to be rather a compliment, as he is said to be good looking. He is tall, rather fair, talks in a bored sort of manner, and is altogether what one would call a heavy swell; but you must have seen him," he went on, turning to Mrs. Hableton; "he was here three or four weeks ago, Whyte told me."

"Oh, that was Mr. Fitzgerald, was it?" said Mrs. Hableton, in surprise. "Yes, he was rather like you; and so the lady they quarreled over must have been Miss Frettlby."

"Very likely," said Moreland, rising. "Well, I'm off. Here's my address," putting a card in Gorby's hand. "I'm glad to be of any use to you in this matter, as Whyte was my dearest friend, and I'll do all in my power to help you to find out the murderer."

"I don't think that is a very difficult matter," said Mr. Gorby, slowly.

"Oh, you have suspicions?" said Moreland, looking at him.

"I have."

"Then who do you think murdered Whyte?" Mr. Gorby paused a moment, and then said deliberately:

"I have an idea—but I am not certain—when I am certain, I'll speak."

"You think Fitzgerald killed my friend," said Moreland. "I see it in your face."

Mr. Gorby smiled. "Perhaps," he said, ambiguously. "Wait till I am certain."

CHAPTER VII.

A WOOL KING.

Mark Frettlby was one of those fortunate individuals who turned everything he touched into gold. His luck was proverbial throughout Australia. If there was any speculation for which Mark Frettlby went in, other men would be sure to follow, and in every case the result turned out as well, and in many cases even better than they expected. He had come out in the early days of the colony with comparatively little money, but his great perseverance and never failing luck had soon changed his hundreds into thousands, and now at the age of 55 he did not himself know the extent of his income. He had large stations scattered all over the colony of Victoria, which brought him in a splendid income; a charming country house, where at certain seasons of the year he dispensed hospitality to his friends, like the lord of an English manor, and a magnificent town house down in St. Kilda, which would not have been unworthy of Park lane.

Nor were his domestic relations less happy. He had a charming wife, who was one of the best known and most popular ladies of Melbourne, and an equally charming daughter, who, being both pretty and an heiress, naturally attracted crowds of suitors. But Madge Frettlby was capricious, and refused innumerable offers. Being an extremely independent young person, with a mind of her own, as she had not yet seen any one she could love, she decided to remain single, and with her mother continued to dispense the hospitality of the mansion at St. Kilda. But the fairy prince comes to every woman, even if she has to wait a hundred years like the Sleeping Beauty, and in this case he arrived at the appointed time. Ah! what a delightful prince he was, tall, handsome and fair haired, who came from Ireland, and answered to the name of Brian Fitzgerald. He had left behind him in the old country a ruined castle and a few acres of barren land, inhabited by discontented tenants who refused to pay the rent, and talked darkly about the Land league and other disagreeable things. Under these circumstances, with no rent coming in, and no prospect of doing anything in the future, Brian had left the castle of his forefathers to the rats and the family banshee, and came out to Australia to make his fortune. He brought letters of introduction to Mark Frettlby, and that gentleman, having taken a fancy to him, assisted him by every means in his power. Under Frettlby's advice Brian bought a station, and, to his astonishment, in a few years found himself growing rich. The Fitzgeralds had always been more famous for courtesy than for saving, and it was an agreeable surprise to their latest representative to find the money rolling in instead of out. He began to indulge in castles in the air concerning that other castle in Ireland, with the barren acres and discontented tenants. In his mind's eye he saw the old place rise up in all its pristine splendor out of its ruins; he saw the barren acres well cultivated, and the tenants happy and content—he was rather doubtful on this latter point, but, with the rash confidence of eight-and-twenty, determined to do his best to perform even the impossible. Having built and furnished his castle in the air, Brian naturally thought of giving it a mistress, and this time actual appearance took the place of vision. He fell in love with Madge Frettlby, and having decided in his own mind that she and none other was fitted to grace the visionary halls of his renovated castle, he watched his opportunity and declared himself. She, woman like, coquetted with him for some time, but at last, unable to withstand the impetuosity of her Irish lover, confessed in a low voice, with a pretty smile on her face, that she could not live without him. Whereupon—well—lovers being of a conservative turn of mind, and accustomed to observe the traditional forms of wooing, the result can easily be guessed. Brian hunted all over the jewelers' shops in Melbourne with love like assiduity, and having obtained a ring wherein were set some turquois stones as blue as his own eyes, he placed it on her slender finger, and at last felt that his engagement was an accomplished fact. This being satisfactorily arranged, he next proceeded to interview the father, and had just screwed his courage up to the awful ordeal, when something occurred which postponed the interview indefinitely. Mrs. Frettlby was out driving, when the horses took fright and bolted. The coachman and groom both escaped unhurt, but Mrs. Frettlby was thrown out and killed instantaneously. This was the first really great trouble which had fallen on Mark Frettlby, and he seemed to be stunned by it. Shutting himself up in his room he refused to see any one, even his daughter, and appeared at the funeral with a white and haggard face, which shocked every one. When everything was over, and the body of the late Mrs. Frettlby was consigned to the earth with all the pomp and ceremony which money could give, the bereaved husband rode home and resumed his old life. But he was never the same again. His face, which had always been so genial and bright, became stern and sad. He seldom smiled, and when he did it was a faint, wintry smile, which seemed mechanical. His whole heart seemed centered in his daughter. She became the sole mistress of the St. Kilda mansion, and her father idolized her. She seemed to be the one thing left to him which gave him an interest in life, and had it not been for her bright presence constantly near him, Mark Frettlby would have wished himself lying beside his dead wife in the quiet graveyard, where there is no trouble or care. After a time had elapsed Brian again resolved to ask Mr. Frettlby for the hand of his daughter when for the second time fate interposed. This time it was a rival suitor who made his appearance, and Brian's hot Irish temper rose when he saw another Richmond in the field. The gentleman in question was a Mr. Oliver Whyte, who had come out from England a few months previously, and brought a letter of introduction to Mr. Frettlby, who received him hospitably, as was his custom, and Whyte soon made himself perfectly at home in the St. Kilda mansion.

The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

PERIOD,	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in assurances.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$169,482 69	$1,149,743 00
1876 to 1880, four years	38,580 67	195,188 29	1,167,986 14
1880 to 1884, four years	136,976 84	361,264 31	2,962,924 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 89	475,907 24	4,022,373 65
Total in 1887	$495,531 54	$1,750,004 48	$10,572,777 69

It is worthy of note that the gains for the last three years only are 66 per cent. more than those of the preceeding four years.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Manties and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1888.

ON TO THE GREAT NORTH.

THE PROPOSED RAILWAY TO JAMES' BAY BEFORE THE GOVERNMENT.

Toronto Talking About the Jeffery Case Taking the Veil—A Terrible Death in the Ice—News of the Dominion.

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—The leading topic of conversation yesterday, in church circles at least, was the Jeffery case. There were really no new developments, but it is said that the pastor of the Western Methodist Church twice tendered his resignation. The first time it was refused and on the second occasion it was discussed and the decision thereon postponed.

The Attorney-General and four members of his cabinet—A. S. Hardy, C. F. Fraser, A. M. Ross and Charles Drury—were busy all of yesterday receiving deputations, an important one being President W. B. McMurrich and other directors of the Lake Nipissing and James Bay Railway. Hon. John B. Robertson and Edward Wragge of the Grand Trunk were also present. The object of the deputation was to urge upon the Government a grant in aid of the proposed road to James Bay. The Attorney-General did not intimate to the deputation what effect the conference had upon the Government.

The session of the Grand Division of Ontario, Sons of Temperance, was resumed yesterday. The forenoon was principally taken up by a review of the secret work of the order. In the afternoon the reports of the different committees were received. The finance report showed the receipts during the year ending June 30, 1888, to be $2017, with a balance on hand from the previous year of $88, making in all $2105. The expenditure during the year was $1,633, leaving a balance of $472.

Dr. John Valentine's troubles have seriously impaired his health. He was in a very feeble state when removed from his home to the jail, and the terrible developments in the Charlton murder case have not tended to improve his condition. He is now being treated in the jail hospital. Dr. Richardson thinks that he will be able to appear at the inquest on Monday night.

The grand jury yesterday returned a true bill against "Phip" Spohn for keeping a gambling house.

James Crawford, a farmer from the County of Grey, was robbed of a big roll of bills in a disreputable resort yesterday. The inmates were arrested and Crawford was held as a witness.

TAKING THE VEIL.

Impressive Ceremony at St. Joseph's Convent, Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Dec. 7.—At St. Joseph's Convent yesterday morning was witnessed one of the most interesting religious ceremonies of the Catholic Church—the reception and profession of nuns. Mass was celebrated by Very Reverend Vicar-General Heenan, and Rev. Father Plant, S. J., preached the sermon. The ceremony of reception was performed by Vicar-General Heenan, after which the names in religion were received as follows: Miss Kehoe of Kincardine, Sister Mary Clementina; Miss Padden of Hamilton, Sister Mary Hecla; Miss Keane of Alma, Sister Mary Benigna; Miss Foley of Morriston, Sister Mary Eucheria; Miss Long of Hamilton, Sister Martina. Sister Mary Angela (formerly Miss Cahill of Brantford) and Sister Joseph a (Miss Davis of Arthur), who had served the allotted term of novice, then advanced to the altar with lighted tapers in their hands, and in a clear and distinct voice made their final vow of poverty, chastity and obedience, and were professed as sisters of St. Joseph for life.

Laurence C. Dunn appeared in the dock at the Police Court yesterday forenoon charged with stealing $25 belonging to the E. & C. Gurney Co. He pleaded guilty and his counsel told the court that the young man was a stranger in Hamilton; he had just come from Dundas and had committed the offence while drunk. As he had made full restitution the Magistrate recorded the sentence of guilty and let him go, on promising to reform.

At the Police Court yesterday morning Joseph Waddington and Charles Reed of Brantford, were charged with clandestinely removing certain goods and chattels belonging to John Dunn, from 190 Hudson-street north, to prevent T. H. Stinson from distraining for arrears for rent. The Magistrate reserved his decision until Monday.

Last night Herbert Waddington was married to Edna Dell Judd at the residence of the bride's father, 4 Pine-street.

The County Council spent most of yesterday discussing the resolution to raise the tolls on all county roads, but no action was taken.

The Art Fair continues to be a success and to prevent overcrowding last night the doors were closed when 2500 had entered.

A Recreant Bridegroom.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Pedestrian Geo. Cartwright, the Englishman who was a contestant in the recent six-days walk in New York and who has made his headquarters here for some time, was to have been married yesterday to a young lady living here but when the time for the ceremony came he failed to show up. It had been reported a few days ago that he had a wife and children in England but he denied this and went on with arrangements for his marriage, even going so far as to furnish apartments for housekeeping.

This Thief Brought $107,000 to Toronto.

DAYTON, O., Dec. 7.—The most sensational developments are made at Grenville in connection with the trial of the Darke County treasurer. The testimony taken to-day shows that ex-Treasurer Simon, who is now serving a term in the penitentiary, at one time previous to the last robbery of the vaults had gone to Toronto, taking $107,000, but that he weakened within four days and returned with all the money. His friends or pals prevented exposure.

RUSSELL ELECTION CASE.

IT IS SAID THE PETITION HAS BEEN WITHDRAWN.

Two Hundred Varieties of Grain Harvested on the Central Farm—Petitions for Scott Act Repeal in Carleton.

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—It is understood that the Russell election case has been settled by the withdrawal of the petitions against Mr. Edwards, the sitting member, and Mr. C. H. Macintosh, who opposed him.

Professor Saunders at the Central Experimental Farm left for the west last night to examine the stock to be placed on the farm next spring. He says about 200 varieties of grain were harvested on the Central Farm and are now being threshed out.

Petitions for the repeal of the Scott Act are being circulated for signatures in the county of Carleton.

In the Canadian Pacific Railway arbitration case yesterday the examination of Frank Turner, C.E., was continued.

The Hull City Council has decided to issue $150,000 of 4 per cent. debentures with which to pay off the floating debt of $70,000 and provide for the extension of waterworks and other improvements. The Banque Ville Marie has been asked to make an offer for the debentures.

Senator Alexander has written to a friend here to say that ill health will prevent him attending the coming session.

Senator John Sherman, writing to the editor of The Free Press regarding the Congress of Nations at Washington in 1889, says: "I think there is no doubt that the presence of delegates from the Dominion of Canada at the proposed conference of American States would be very acceptable and very proper, but I do not see how it could be done, except with the consent or appointment of Great Britain. Our Government could not with due respect to Great Britain hold any formal political relation with the Dominion Government, a necessary result of the dependence of Canada upon Great Britain but which no doubt could be waived by the present Government."

TILBURY MURDER CASE.

Some Strong Evidence Given Against the Prisoner Todd Quick.

CHATHAM, Dec. 7.—The preliminary trial of Todd Quick of Colchester, for the murder of Wilson Holton in Tilbury on July 16, began before Police Magistrate Houston yesterday. The prisoner was defended by Mr. Pegley of Chatham, and Mr. McHugh of Windsor. Mr. Douglas, Q. C., conducted the prosecution. Dr. Ellis and Dr. Bell repeated the evidence given at the inquest, as did Thomas Morris, at whose house Holton died.

James Mulder, colored, swore that on the night of Sunday, July 15, Quick took a livery rig from the stable of James Drummond of Harrow. He brought it back on Tuesday morning, and was then dressed in a brown checked suit, with light felt hat, Prisoner had several interviews with witness, asking him to deny that prisoner had the rig away. He got him to go to Mr. Bell, J.P., to make an affidavit that prisoner never hired a rig from Drummond. For this he was promised $50. Prisoner said if it were known he would get into trouble and have to tell who murdered Holton. A rigid cross-examination failed to shake his testimony materially.

Alfred Hodgkins lived about a mile from Holton. About 4 o'clock on the day of the murder prisoner called and asked for oats and water for his horse. Hodgkins positively identified Quick as the man, and his description of the horse and rig tallied to a hair. He had identified the horse in Drummond's stable. Prisoner left between 5 and 6; did not see him again until Tuesday, when he recognized him at once.

Matthew Burden and John Hodgkins corroborated the evidence of the last witness, and identified the prisoner.

John and Jeremiah McMahon, who lived near Holton's, saw the rig pass between 7 and 8 o'clock on the evening of the murder. The former heard the shots and cries about nine, and ran towards Holton's. Saw a top buggy turn the corner and drive rapidly away.

Maggie Beno, a little girl, identified the prisoner as a man who asked her for a pail of water about 6 o'clock on the evening of the murder. There was another man in the buggy with him, who wore overalls. She described the buggy as a top one with red wheels.

At the request of the Crown a remand was granted till Monday, when a further remand for a week will take place.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE ACT.

The Amendment Passed at the Last Session to Have Effect.

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—It will be remembered that last session an act was passed further to amend the law respecting procedure in criminal cases. It is a brief measure, but has an important bearing on the class of cases mentioned in the title, prohibiting, as it does, an appeal to any court or authority in the United Kingdom in any criminal case. A good deal of interest was manifested in the bill by constitutional lawyers as it was going through Parliament, as its undoubted tendency was to deprive the Crown of one of its prerogatives, and some doubts were expressed as to the ultimate fate of the measure when it reached the Mother Country. These doubts have, however, been set at rest within the past few days by the receipt of a despatch from the Imperial authorities intimating that Her Majesty will not be advised to disallow the Act in question. The last great criminal appeal to England, it will be remembered, was that of Louis Riel. Should it unfortunately happen hereafter that any man finds himself with the capital sentence hanging over his head, and desires to appeal his case, he will have to be content with the Dominion courts, being now debarred by the Act referred to from carrying the case to England.

FIVE PERSONS BURNT TO DEATH.

Terrible Holocaust in a Morris Township Log Cabin—Died for Her Child.

BLYTH, Dec. 7.—Michael Dwyer's house in Morris Township was destroyed by fire at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. His wife and her daughter Mrs. Clennan, and the latter's three children were burned to death. Mr. Dwyer and one child escaped, but were badly burned. The fire started from an ash-barrel at the side of the house where the window was. Mrs. Clennan perished in attempting to rescue another child. Mr. Clunnan is in the States. The house was constructed of logs and was completely destroyed.

The G. T. R. Freight Shed at Guelph Burned.

GUELPH, Dec. 7.—The Grand Trunk freight shed was totally destroyed by fire at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. The building was a very large wooden one and contained a great quantity of freight nearly all of which was destroyed. Six cars loaded with general freight were also totally consumed.

Maggie's Big Jump.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Maggie Friedulm, a servant for Andrew Maier, of No. 163 West Seventy-first-street, while demented Tuesday night jumped off the embankment at Riverside Drive and Seventieth-street. She fell forty-five feet, but, wonderful to relate, was not hurt.

ITALY'S INTENTIONS.

Massowah Will Not be Abandoned—Relations With France Friendly.

ROME, Dec. 7.—In the Senate yesterday Gen. Corti asked what the intentions of the Government were regarding Massowah and for information as to the relations between Italy and France.

Signor Crispi, the Prime Minister, in reply said that the expedition to the Red Sea was undertaken when he was not in power. Still he did not think the Government would abandon Massowah. Should it do so the place would be immediately occupied by another power. Italy desired solely to exercise a civilizing mission and did not aspire to conquest. In regard to the relations between France and Italy Signor Crispi said:

"Our relations with France, which lately were not entirely satisfactory, are now not only good but cordial and friendly. Nothing justifies the supposition that a war with France is probable or near. Nevertheless, in view of the situation throughout Europe, Italy cannot dream of disarming. On the contrary, owing to her special position and her engagements, she must labor to perfect her armaments."

ANXIOUS BOULANGISTS.

The Ministers Drafting a Bill Believed to Be for Their Suppression.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—In the Chamber of Deputies last evening M. Laroze, who is a friend of M. Ferry's, and favors severe anti-Boulangist measures, having intimated his desire to move lack of confidence in the Cabinet, Premier Fioquet said the Government was quite ready to meet him. M. Laroze replied that he would introduce his motion at the proper time.

In the course of his speech the Premier announced that the ministry were engaged in drafting a bill of the highest importance, which would soon be introduced. This statement created anxiety in the Boulangist ranks. The Boulangists believe that the proposed bill is a measure for their suppression.

During the sitting M. Tusini and M. Casby had a personal encounter. The matter was afterwards settled by arbitration.

M. Dubarail, the head of Prince Victor's committee, has issued a manifesto in which he says that his party is willing that any alliance giving the popular voice should choose the Government but that a plebiscite should be taken before the election of members. As regards thei plebscite Dubarail differs with Boulanger.

A Lively Fusilade.

LANSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 7.—An effort was made last night to arrest Hanison Hogan, a wealthy farmer three miles above Seffersonville, Ind., on the warrant sworn out by his divorced wife. He took refuge on a flat boat in the river where he had barricaded well stocked with arms and ammunition and defied Deputy Sheriffs Link and Howell. A fight ensued, Hogan using a shot gun and firing through loopholes in his barricade, and the officers their revolvers from a drift pile on the bank. At night they went into the woods on the bank for consultation. Hogan got quietly ashore and surprised them with a shot into a clump of bushes where they were building a fire. They took refuge behind trees and the fight continued until Hogan got the drop on Howell when an armistice was agreed upon. The officers returned to Jeffersonville and a party of four were sent out to make the arrest. They had not succeeded at last accounts.

The Boy Murderer.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The boy Husband, who was arrested on a charge of killing another boy named Searle in the streets of Havant, near Portsmouth a few days ago, has been fully committed for trial for murder. Husband is only 11 years of age and his presumed victim was three years younger. The evidence against Husband is not very strong, but the fact that he was the first to notify the police that Searle was lying in the street with his throat cut was regarded as sufficient cause for committing him.

Servia's New Constitution.

BELGRADE, Dec. 7.—The new Servian constitution declares the kingdom hereditary with popular representation, and the religion Greek, with the Eastern Servian Church autocephalous. The tribunals are to be independent and the judges are to be irremovable. Military service is made compulsory.

Desperate Strikers.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 7. The strike movement is increasing and strikers are everywhere becoming reckless. An attempt was made yesterday to wreck a train on the Hallouvre Juste Railway, dynamite cartridges being placed on the track. Fortunately the cartridges were discovered in time to prevent a disaster. An attempt to blow up a manufactory at Morlanweiz with dynamite also failed.

LOQUACIOUS LABOUCHERE

IN 23 DAYS OF THE SESSION HE HAS MADE 43 SPEECHES.

Mr. Chaplain, M. P., Says the Block of Public Business in Parliament is Caused by Certain Members Talking Too Much.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—In the House of Commons last night, Edward Harrington asked Mr. Balfour whether there was any guarantee that persons collecting evidence in Ireland for the Parnell Commission would not be interfered with by the police.

Mr. Balfour replied that no one would be prevented from collecting evidence.

Mr. Labouchere moved an adjournment in order to discuss the bad state of public business. It was a disgrace, he maintained, that Parliament was still debating the estimates. He denied that it had been due to obstruction for there had been none by the Opposition.

Henry Chaplin said that it was not surprising that Mr. Labouchere felt it necessary to revert to the matter of blocking public business. The real cause of the block was the fact that certain members insisted upon talking to such an extent that if all availed themselves of the same right it would render business impossible. Five members of the Opposition had within 23 working days of the session made 183 speeches. Mr. Labouchere himself made 43 speeches and those illustrious members, Messrs. Conybeare and Tanner, made 30 and 38 respectively. ["Hear, Hear"].

Mr. Smith declared that the discussion on the estimates had exceeded all previous experience and that the Government would be compelled to make new arrangements in order to take up the estimates earlier in the session.

The motion was withdrawn.

When the vote for criminal prosecutions in Ireland came up for discussion Sir William Vernon Harcourt commented strongly on criminal procedure in Ireland, where he said the Queen's subjects might be slain almost with impunity. The Government in addition to failing to institute an enquiry placed every obstacle in the way of an inquiry being made. Refuting similar charges brought by Mr. Balfour against the Gladstonian Government, the speaker said that even if the charges were true it would only prove that the traditions of the Irish Government had always been evil.

Mr. Balfour adhered to his statement against the Gladstone Government. He contended that coroners' juries in Ireland were often nothing but a conspiracy to assassinate and that the Government would be party to that conspiracy if when they knew a jury to be corrupt they allowed the matter to go on. He concluded by vigorously denouncing agitators who incited the people to attack the police.

Mr. Dillon challenged Mr. Balfour to prove the latter assertion by a single instance.

The chairman here interposed, saying the gentlemen were digressing from the subject under consideration.

Mr. Shaw-Lefever (Lib.) moved to reduce the vote for criminal prosecutions. He criticised as unjust convictions for boycotting in cases where conspiracy had not been proved.

His motion was rejected 157 to 76.

The Ashbourne Bill Passed by the Peers

The Power of Sympathy.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—John Dillon, replying to an address presented by 155 Liberal members of the House of Commons, said the sympathy of the Liberals would do more than all the hangmen to abolish agrarian crime in Ireland.

Henry George's Fad.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The first annual meeting of the united committee on the taxation of ground rent and values was convened in the Westminster Palace Hotel last evening. Lord Hobhouse acted as chairman, and Earl Compt, one of the largest landowners of London, was asked to accept the permanent presidency. It was resolved that taxation was unjust unless it were based upon the true value imparted to the land by improvements. The convention was addressed by Mr. Henry George and other prominent exponents of the principle of single tax.

U. S. Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A resolution continuing the select committee on the relations with Canada was reported back in the Senate yesterday from committee and adopted. The Senate resumed consideration of the tariff bill and reached about the middle of Schedule C when an adjournment was taken till Monday.

Senator Blair (Rep., N.H.) introduced a bill providing that there shall be established by the President, on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Labor, throughout the United States in geographical sections which shall include a population of not less than 100,000 nor more than 2,000,000 inhabitants, bureaus of information relating to employment, occupations, wants, means of livelihood and homes. It is made the duty of these bureaus to gather complete and reliable information relative to the people, the wages, the homes, the oppotunities for employment, and in general everything relating to or that may be of interest to working people.

Jay Gould's Latest Gobble.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The impression in financial circles here is that the rumor that Jay Gould has secured control of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad is founded on facts. THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK

of $18,000 WORTH OF GOODS, new choice and fresh, and selling at 50c. on the dollar. We leave it to you to name the prices! We go further! We will absolutely give you goods at your own figures. Bearing in mind that 30 days finishes the sale in Sheppard's old premises, we offer

Victoria and Bridges.

The Victoria County Council adopted the following regarding the Bobcaygeon and other bridges:—"The judgments rendered by the court of appeal in the suit of this county against the County of Peterborough in the matter of the liability for joint maintenance of the bridges at Bobcaygeon, which judgments reverse the judgment given by Mr. Justice Robertson in favor of the County of Victoria, have been duly considered.

"Your committee recommend that the county solicitor be instructed to take the necessary steps to carry the case to the supreme court of Canada, and that he be authorized to retain the best counsel available to assist the present counsel in prosecuting the suit.

"Your committee recommend that a by-law be introduced to authorize the warden and treasurer to furnish the necessary security for costs in the name of the corporation of the County of Victoria, or in such form as may be required.

"Your committee recommend that the petition of Mr. J. C. Leary and others asking this council to grant such assistance to the town and county of Peterborough as will assure the immediate opening of the Pigeon Creek floating bridge be laid over until the January session.

"The warden has called the attention of your committee to the impaired condition of the Kinmount bridge, and has submitted a letter from the clerk of the County of Peterborough, stating that in the view of the warden of that county the County of Peterborough is not liable for the maintenance of said bridge.

"Your committee recommended that a by-law be introduced providing for the repair and maintenance of the bridge by the counties of Victoria, Peterborough and Haliburton jointly, and that the necessary notices be served on the proper officer of each of the two other counties."

Crushed Under a Ton's Weight.

The yard of the Central Bridge Works was the scene of a serious accident this afternoon, the victim of which, John Dormer, of Ashburnham, will probably be imcapacitated for work for the best part of the winter. Dormer along with another man was engaged in painting a number of purlins which are to be used in the roof of the C.P.R. station at Montreal, when by some unknown cause two of them became unbalanced and fell over on top of the unfortunate painter, who was unable to escape from under them. These purlins are very heavy, weighing about 1100 pounds each, and the two of them falling together made a weight of over a ton, so that it is a wonder that Dormer was not killed. However, he escaped with his left leg broken and his wrist fractured. The unfortunate man was conveyed to his home and medical assistance summoned.

All Buried in One Grave.

QUEBEC, Dec. 7.—Five men left Gaspe basin in a small flat boat for their homes on Dartmouth River. Two of them landed on the way, but the other three—Fourniers, father, son and nephew—more daring than wise, proceeded on. When night overtook them sharp floating ice cut the flat boat, which filled with water. Those on shore made efforts to rescue them; but without success, owing to the danger of the sharp ice cutting the boats. At daylight the three stalwart men were seen lying dead in the flat. The nephew of the elder man was to have been married shortly. All were buried in one grave.

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost, "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

A Successful Sale.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Luke's church held a very successful bazaar or sale last evening. Tea was served from six until eight o'clock, and a large number took advantage of the opportunity and enjoyed the excellent spread. During the evening the sale of the large collection of useful and ornamental articles and fancy work took place and the ladies' work was pretty well sold off and the Society's treasurer enriched accordingly. No programme had been prepared, but some instrumental music was given during the evening which enlivened the sellers and buyers.

Port Hope's Plan.

The Port Hope Times says:—"Mayor Stevenson, of Peterborough, complained at the last meeting of the Council that the rural municipalities were in the habit of sending their indigents into that town for the corporation to support, and stating that a recent case was from the township of Hope. We think His Worship must be laboring under a mistake in this instance, as the Council of Hope is quite able and willing to take care of its own poor. It is a favorite trick, however, of some municipalities to send their indigents into the towns, and we would recommend Peterborough to follow the course adopted here—have their police promptly return incoming indigents to the place they hail from."

A Sermon on Christmas Eating.

"Something a little extra" on the table is what the Christmas season calls for. This is right. The merry and joyous season brings home the scattered members of the family circle. Relatives and friends drop in and have the meal. The season sanctions a good spread, and the season has very little to complain of that people do not live up to the opportunity. In order that all demands may be well filled, Rush Bros., grocers, are making an extra preparation to meet it. Holiday goods are arriving and to-day the opening out is going on. The large windows will now at once display a capital index of the large and ample stock. Nothing has been forgotten. No care has been overlooked. They have ransacked the wholesale market for the finest of Christmas fruits, the most tempting jellies and sauces; standard brands of sugars in all grades; teas the strength and flavor of which are approved by the test of time and favor of customers; in short, every household requirement has been met. The Christmas buyer can get all he may want at their (Rush Bros) large store. The most exacting customer must be satisfied, for it is hardly possible that better things can be found elsewhere. A suggestion that the shop should be borne in mind will fix the place in your memory, Rush Bros, No. 355 George-st.

QUEER THINGS.

Rev. D. V. Lucas Lectures to a Good Audience on Australia.

The name of Rev. D. V. Lucas is now quite familiar to the Peterborough public as he has so frequently addressed audiences here on temperance subjects, but it was not a temperance lecture that he delivered to the good audience which gathered in the basement of the George-st. Church last evening to listen to him. His subject as already announced was "Some Queer Things in Australia" and the address which he gave was highly interesting and entertaining. Rev. Mr. Davis was called upon to fill the chair, and after the opening of the meeting at once introduced the lecturer.

Rev. D. V. Lucas, who passed two years as a missionary among the aborigines of Australia, was greeted with applause. After announcing the subject of his lecture, he said it was the queer things that they were going to notice and speak about, and he gave a good piece of advice to his auditors when he told them that when going into a strange country or among a strange people and upon seeing queer things that surprised them they should immediately make a note of it, as after a short time that which seemed queer at first becomes familiar and they would forget that it caused surprise to others or appeared strange. The rev. gentleman then went on to resources. They produced things there that Canada wanted and in turn required things that Canada could supply. They used wood from the Baltic and he had asked them why they they did not go to Canada where they could get lumber that was lumber. He was glad to have heard since that they were now getting lumber from Canada. They also used pitch forks, hoes, shovels, etc., bearing the American marks and he had told them they could get all these things in Canada, and he felt sure they would do so as soon as the Government put on a new line of steamers from Queensland to Victoria. He spoke of the country and its products and fruits, and went on at great length and in a very interesting and amusing manner to give an account of the natives, their language, customs and superstitions, and of the Australian birds, beasts and flowers. This latter part of his lecture he made entertaining by introducing several little anecdotes of an amusing character. At the conclusion of the address Mr. Lucas said he had a book with him which he had written on this subject which he offered for sale for one dollar, the profits from which sale went towards the temperance work.

When the rev. lecturer had resumed his seat, Rev. M. L. Pearson rose and in a few appropriate and flattering remarks moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, and this resolution was seconded by Mr. A. Rutherford and heartily carried. The doxology brought the meeting to a close.

A Thousand Dollar Competition.

There is excitement over the announcement of a reward of one thousand dollars by the publishers for the best letter of suggestions for a Christmas souvenir to excel the coming Christmas number of the Montreal Star. Last year the publishers paid four hundred dollars for the best childrens criticisms. This year's Christmas Star is wonderfully pretty, just the very pink of perfection for a Christmas souvenir or present to absent friends. The orders received for copies to send to friends in England, Scotland and Ireland is the largest on record. Those who cannot procure them at a newsdealer's may get them direct from the publisher, Montreal, by sending the small amount of 40 cents, the small price at which the Christmas Star is published. Postage stamps of one or three cents will be accepted.

Personal.

Mr. Percy J. A. Lear, of Boston, Mass., general agent, and Mr. W. B. Holcumbe, travelling agent for the Oddfellows' Fraternal Accident Association of America, paid a business visit to Peterborough Lodge, No. 111 last evening, and remained in town to-day.

Referring to Bishop Dowling's appointment to the See of Hamilton the Irish Canadian says:—"Hamilton will rejoice in welcoming back one whom she cradled in the Faith, and whom she was always proud to call her own. May Bishop Dowling be long spared to govern his mother Diocese, even as he has governed Peterborough, wisely and well."

Speaking of Dean O'Connor, Bishop Dowling's successor here, the Canadian says:—"It has been our privilege to have known Bishop O'Connor since his boyhood; and knowing him so long, our joy is exceeding great at his elevation to the episcopate. As a priest, he has always had the respect of his brothers in the ministry; and amongst none of his many friends Dean O'Connor's advancement hailed with more ardent pleasure than by the clergy of the Archdiocese. Our most respectful congratulations are joined with theirs, and our humble prayer is that his days in Peterborough may be long and happy."

The Choir's "At Home."

A happy and very pleasant two hours were spent in the lecture-room of the St. Andrew's church last evening, it being the occasion of the holding of an "At Home" by the choir of the church. The affair was a pronounced success in every particular—the attendance was large, the refreshments good and plentiful, the programme excellent and everybody seemed to feel as the name of the entertainment suggests "at home," and with this feeling, a social and enjoyable time was spent by all. The choir were elected to a good deal of work in order to make their gathering a success, but the financial result was most encouraging as about $50 worth of fifteen cents' were taken in at the door. Mr. John Carnegie was in the chair and the programme which was put in his hands was carried out, each number being given in good style and eliciting great applause. The programme was as follows:—

DAIRYMEN'S MEETING.

PROF. ROBERTSON'S LECTURE ON CHEESEMAKING.

Cheesemakers Pass a Resolution Regarding Factory Inspection—An Interesting and Practical Address.

There was not a crowd in the Council Chamber on Saturday afternoon, to listen to the lecture on cheese making, by Prof. James W. Robertson, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, but those who were present were cheese-makers or factory men, who could not fail to profit greatly from the instructive and practical address of the Professor.

Mr. J. W. Moore occupied the chair, and in opening said that he understood that some gentleman present had a motion he wished to submit.

MILK INSPECTION.

Mr. STEWART PAYNE then moved, seconded by Mr. Cribbis,—That while we approve of the principle of the inspection, believing it to be beneficial to the business, we hereby express our dissatisfaction with the management, believing it would be better under the control of the Dairy Department of Ontario.

Mr. PAYNE did not think the present Inspectors competent. He thought the testing of the milk had been all right, but he had not noticed the Inspector make any other investigations. He had found out after the visit that he did not know much about making cheese, and he (Mr. Payne) thought there should be a change.

Mr. CRIBBIS said he had seconded the motion because he had heard complaints of inspectors. He did not wish to condemn anyone personally. The general opinion was that the inspectors were not doing their duty, and the system should be changed. As it was at present, they had no boss or head.

Mr. ALEX. SMITH, of Warsaw, approved of a milk tester. The inspector had visited his factory, but he did not think it was attended with good results.

Mr. PILKIE, of Lakefield, spoke of the conduction of the present system, and said that if it had been carried out as first planned, and competent men appointed as inspectors, he thought it would have been all right. He censured the President of the Association for allowing inspectors to buy cheese for him, and for not appointing some man as a head, which he believed had been neglected for the president's own benefit. The day the inspector was at his factory he slept all day, and he knew that at another he had gone to bed for the day.

Mr. ALEX. SMITH said the system was in its infancy, and he believed that with experience it would be a success.

Another cheesemaker said he did not think the inspectors had bought any cheese for Mr. McCargar.

Mr. PILKIE said he was prepared to back up his assertion.

The discussion was dropped, and the chairman called upon

PROF. ROBERTSON.

The Professor is a very smooth speaker, and most lucid in his illustrations and explanations of the different points In opening he referred to the discussion which had taken place. It was complained that the inspectors had not worked properly, and he said he was of the opinion that this was true, as they had not visited the factories three times as promised. He read the resolution bearing on the adoption of the system by the Association, and said he had no voice in the appointments of the inspectors, and no power in controlling their actions. He was glad the resolution approved of the principle of inspection, and said that in the Western Association he had moved a similar resolution, and the system had proved a success and most thorough in its workings. There the inspector and buyer never came into collusion, for any inspector giving any information to a buyer was immediately discharged. There had not been one complaint in the West, and the East could be managed as successfully. The system of inspection and instruction was the only way in which they would be able to compete with the Scottish and other foreign manufacturers, and they could not afford to have the work done poorly. He referred to the great necessity of connecting theory with facts, and said that many cheese makers had a knowledge of many facts, but did not connect them with theory. The statements which he would make would all be based on facts, as he would show. No one could understand cheese making unless he understood

THE COMPOSITION OF MILK.

Milk was composed of a quantity of liquid and a certain portion of matter, when the cow gave it. The fat was the only solid portion of the milk when it came from the cow, and this was in very fine molecules, one thousand million of which were contained in one cubic inch of milk. Every cheese maker should retain all these. Then there was sugar in milk, four pounds of sugar to every hundred pounds of milk. Then came casseine. They all knew what albumen was, like the white of an egg. Well, there were little globules of albumen in the cow's blood, and in the process of milk-making, these became slightly changed, and that was called casseine. If a cow was not well, it did not change as much of this albumen into casseine, and therefore the milk would contain a much larger proportion of albumen, which rennet would not thicken. In milk there was also a small part of ash. Summing it all up, in 100 pounds of milk there were 87 pounds of water, 3½ pounds, on an average, were sugar, 3.70 pounds were caseine, 0.75 pounds are albumen, 0.75 pounds are ash. It was necessary to get the water out of the milk, so that they could get the nourishing parts in small bulk for shipping. Some might say you could do this by evaporating. Yes, but that would make condensed milk, which was not as healthy or palatable. The way he proposed was merely by trying to

and allow the liquid to run off. Rennet was used for this purpose, which thickened the caseine just where it stood, and made it like a very fine sponge. It had an adhesive power it did not have before, and held in its embrace the other solid substances that happened to be in the milk. They then had the caseine, or curd, clasping the fat; but there was water in it. If a sponge had water in it they would squeeze it, and so it was with the curd. They had no mechanical power for doing this, and the question was, how was it to be done? Cut the curd into small pieces, but not too small, or else there would be a great deal of waste. About five-eighths of an inch was the best size. There were two means to be employed, the mechanical or the chemical. The Professor said he would speak of both of these. Under the first head he spoke of the use of the knife to cut the curd into pieces. When it was cut, it left a surface which would join together easily, and they should cut it with the horizontal knife, and not with the perpendicular. When cut with the perpendicular the moisture or whey was allowed to run out, but by the horizontal cut the moisture or whey laid between them and allowed them to heal. This was important as the fat would come through and run off with the whey if the cut was not healed. Some thought the best means of getting separation was applying some heat. The heat contracted the pieces of curd and drove the water to the outside. He warned cheesemakers against heating too quickly as that would give too thick a skin, and they would have

A WHEY SOAKED CURD.

An even and gradual heat was proper, one degree every five minutes being quick enough to heat curd up. Then there was the method of stirring. The main object of stirring was to get sufficient motion to cause the moisture to fall out. Then there were the chemical means that were employed. The first was nitric acid. He explained to them how it was that milk became soured. It was known that the milk contained small creatures, thousands of which laid in line would cover about and inch in length, yet which possessed life. Each of these attacked a molecule of sugar and broke it into four pieces, and it immediately turned sour. These little creatures work with the heat and that was why milk should be kept cool. In the use of acid he said they should never use it on a wet cheese or else they would have a mealy cheese. The great danger was that of rupturing the cheese by allowing the acid to work before the cheese was dry and free from moisture. Then there was independent fermentation which did not effect the sugar in the milk but affected the caseine. Speaking of the salting of cheese he said salt would keep ferments that dissolved the cheese from acting, and, therefore, the more salt that was used the slower the fermentation. Many cheesemakers thought the quantity of rennet used had to do with the curing of cheese, but it was more the amount of moisture present when the acid worked on them. He told of an experment he had made proving this. There was great need, he said, for understanding that was not good for cheese-making. There were three kinds of taint to milk, the first caused by the presence of volatile oil, second caused or the presence of ferments by the decomposition of milk, and the third caused by the condition of the cow giving the milk. Milk badly tainted by volatile oil should be returned to the men who sent it. If only slightly tainted the taint could be removed by putting it in a can and turning steam on it until heated to about 130 degrees and putting in a tablespoonful of saltpetre to every 150 pounds of milk. The second taint was caused by the action of microbes which only began action by the absence of oxygen and the milk should, therefore, be well aired. The third class of tainted milk, caused by the condition of the animal, was unfit to make cheese firm. The only way to make passable cheese from tainted milk was to heat as high as 96 degrees and then use an unusual large quantity of rennet. This had been proved to be better than the old practice of low temperature and less rennet. He would speak a few words on a sheet which he had presented to them and he remarked on the following

THE HANDLING OF MILK,

POINTS OR LIMITS:

84 or 86 degrees Fahr. are satisfactory setting temperatures when the milk is in good condition.

Over-ripe or acidy milk may with advantage be set as high as 96 degrees, according to the degree of its ripeness.

Let the milk be well matured by the retention or application of heat before the rennet is added.

The addition of sour whey to hasten the maturing is most objectionable and should never be resorted to. Pure rennet extract of powder of known strength is indispensable. The first discernable action of rennet is to coagulate the milk into curd. When milk is over-ripe or acidy, a proportionately increased quantity or rennet should be used to effect a sufficient separation of the moisture from the curd (often termed "cooking" before the presence of lactic acid is perceptible to the taste or smell, or is discernible by the hot iron test. The results of late investigations recommend an allowing of the curd to become fairly firm before commencing to cut, except in the case of a quick curd. Pains should be taken to make the curd particles so dry, before the development of acid is perceptible, that after being pressed in the hand, and released they fall apart when slightly disturbed. The general opinion was that the inspectors were not doing their duty, and the system should be changed. As it was at present, they had no boss or head.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

The Professor than said he would give a few minutes to answering any questions that might be asked.

One gentleman asked what way would the Professor recommend for salting cows. The Professor said the best way was to have a trough and leave it in the field and to use common barrel salt.

Another asked whether the quantity of rennet used made any difference with regard to the quantity of cheese. He was answered that it did. The Professor said that using 3 ounces of rennet he had made 165½ pounds of cheese, and using 5 ounces to same quantity of milk he had made 169 pounds of cheese, and with 8 ounces of rennet he had produced for the same quantity of milk 170½ pounds.

The Professor answered a few other questions and the meeting adjourned.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

Brian took a dislike to the new comer the first time he saw him, for Mr. Fitzgerald was a student of Lavater, and prided himself on his reading of character. His opinion of Whyte was anything but flattering to that gentleman, for in spite of his handsome face and suave manners, both Brian and Madge felt the same repulsion toward him as they would have to a snake. Mr. Whyte, however, with true diplomacy, affected not to notice the cold way in which Madge received him, and began to pay marked attention to her, much to Brian's disgust. At last he asked her to be his wife, and notwithstanding her prompt refusal, spoke to Mr. Frettlby on the subject. Much to the daughter's astonishment, that gentleman consented to Whyte's paying his addresses to Madge, and told her that he wished her to consider the young man's proposal favorably. In spite of all Madge could say, he refused to alter his decision, and Whyte, feeling himself safe, began to treat Brian with an insolence which was highly galling to Fitzgerald's proud nature. He called on Whyte at his lodgings, and after a violent quarrel with him had left the house, vowing to kill Whyte should he marry Madge Frettlby. Fitzgerald went alone to Mr. Frettlby that same night, and had an interview with him. He confessed that he loved Madge, and that his love was returned. So, when Madge added her entreaties to Brian's, Mr. Frettlby found himself unable to withstand the combined forces, and gave his consent to their engagement. Whyte was absent in the country for the next few days after his stormy interview with Brian, and it was only on his return that he learnt that Madge was engaged to his rival. He saw Mr. Frettlby on the subject, and having learnt from his own lips that such was the case, he left the house at once, and swore that he would never enter it again. He little knew how prophetic his words were, for on that same night he met his death in a hansom cab. He had passed out of the life of both the lovers, and they, glad that he troubled them no more, never suspected for a moment that the body of the unknown man found in Royston's cab was that of Oliver Whyte.

About two weeks after Whyte's disappearance Mr. Frettlby gave a dinner party in honor of his daughter's birthday. It was a delightful evening, and the wide French windows which led on to the veranda were open, letting in a gentle breeze, blowing with a fresh, salt odor from the ocean. Outside there was a kind of screen of tropical plants, and through the tangle of the boughs the guests, seated at the table, could just see the waters of the bay glittering like silver in the pale moonlight. Brian was seated opposite to Madge, and every now and then he caught a glimpse of her bright face behind the great silver epergne, filled with fruit and flowers, which stood in the center of the table. Mark Frettlby was at the head of the table, and appeared in very good spirits, for his stern features were somewhat relaxed, and he drank more wine than usual. The soup had just been removed when some one who was late entered with apologies and took his seat. None one in this case was Mr. Felix Rolleston, one of the best known young men in Melbourne. He had an income of his own, scribbled a little for the papers, was to be seen at every house of any pretensions to fashion in Melbourne, and was always bright, happy and full of news. Whenever any scandal occurred Felix Rolleston was sure to know it first, and could tell more about it than any one else. He knew everything that was going on, both at home and abroad. His knowledge, if not very accurate, was at least extensive, and his conversation was piquant and witty. As Calton, one of the leading lawyers of the city, said, "Rolleston put him in mind of what Beaconfield said of one of his characters in 'Lothair,' 'He wasn't an intellectual Croesus, but his pockets were always full of sixpences.'" There was a good deal of truth in Calton's remark, and Felix always distributed his sixpences freely. The conversation had been dull for the last few minutes at the Frettlby dinner table; consequently when Felix arrived everybody brightened up, as they felt certain now that the conversation would be amusing.

"So awfully sorry, don't you know," said Felix, as he slipped into a seat by Madge; "but a fellow like me has got to be careful of his time—so many calls on it."

"So many calls in it, you mean," retorted Madge with a disbelieving smile. "Confess, now, you have been paying a round of visits."

"Well, yes," assented Mr. Rolleston; "that's the disadvantage of having a large circle of acquaintances. They give you weak tea and thin bread and butter, whereas—"

"You would rather have a B. and S. and some deviled kidneys," finished Brian.

There was a laugh at this, but Mr. Rolleston disdained to notice the interruption.

"The only advantage of 5 o'clock tea," he went on, "is that it brings people together, and one hears what's going on."

"Ah, yes, Rolleston," said Mr. Frettlby, who was looking at him with an amused smile. "What news have you?"

"Good news, bad news, and such news as you have never heard of," quoted Rolleston gravely. "Yes, I have a bit of news. Haven't you heard it?"

As no one knew what the news was they could not very well say that they had, so Rolleston was happy, having found out that he could make a sensation.

"Well, do you know," he said, gravely fixing in his eyeglass, "they found out the name of the fellow that was murdered in the hansom cab!"

"Never!" cried every one eagerly.

"Yes," went on Rolleston, "and what's more, you all know him."

"It's never Whyte!" said Brian, in a horrified tone.

"Hang it, how did you know?" said Rolleston, rather annoyed at being forestalled. "Why, I just heard it at the St. Kilda station."

"Oh, easily enough," said Brian, rather confused. "I used to see Whyte constantly, and as I had not set eyes on him for the last two weeks, I thought it might be him."

"How did they find out who it was?" asked Mr. Frettlby, idly toying with his wine glass.

"Oh, one of those detective fellows, you know," answered Felix. "They know everything."

"I am sorry to hear it," said Frettlby, referring to the fact that Whyte was murdered. "He had a letter of introduction to me, and seemed a clever, pushing young fellow."

"A confounded cad," muttered Felix, under his breath; and Brian, who overheard him, seemed inclined to assent.

For the rest of the meal nothing was talked about but the murder and the mystery in which it was shrouded. When the ladies retired they chatted about it in the drawing room, but finally dropped it for more agreeable subjects. The gentlemen, however, when the cloth had been removed, filled their glasses, and continued their discussion with unabated vigor. Brian alone did not take part in the conversation. He sat moodily staring at his untasted wine, and wrapped in a brown study.

CHAPTER VIII.

BRIAN TAKES A WALK AND A DRIVE.

When the gentlemen entered the drawing room a young lady was engaged in playing one of those detestable pieces of music called morceau de salon, in which an unoffending air is taken and variations embroidered on it till it becomes a perfect agony to distinguish the tune amid the perpetual rattle of quavers and demi-semi-quavers.

Brian quickly found his way to Madge's side. The talk drifted on to the subject of Whyte's death.

"I never did like him," she said, "but it was horrible to think of him dying like that."

"I don't know," answered Brian, gloomily; "from all I can hear, chloroform is a very easy death."

"Death can never be easy," replied Madge, "especially to a young man so full of health and spirits as Mr. Whyte was."

"I believe you are sorry he's dead," said Brian, jealously.

"Aren't you?" she asked in some surprise.

"De mortuis nil nisi bonum," quoted Fitzgerald; "but as I detested him when alive, you can't expect me to regret his end."

Madge did not answer him, but glanced quickly at his face, and for the first time it struck her that he looked ill.

"What is the matter with you, dear?" she asked, placing her hand on his arm. "You are not looking well."

"What is the matter with you, dear?"

"Nothing—nothing," he answered hurriedly. "I've been a little worried about business lately; but come," he said, rising, "let us go outside, for I see your father has got that girl with the steam whistle voice to sing."

The girl with the steam whistle voice was Julia Featherweight, the sister of Rolleston's inamorata, and Madge stifled a laugh as she went out on the veranda with Fitzgerald.

"What a shame of you," she said, bursting into a laugh when they were safely outside; "she's been taught by the best masters."

"How I pity them," retorted Brian, grimly, as Julia wailed out, "Meet me once again," with an ear piercing shrillness. "I'd much rather listen to our ancestral banshee, and as to meet her again, one interview would be more than enough."

To be Continued.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

Mantles and Mantle Cloths. Our Ready-made Mantles and Mantle Cloths are going rapidly. The prices and styles sell them. In our Children's Mantles, we are sold out of some sizes which we are sorry for, as we don't like to miss sales, but as we have already sold all we expected to sell in the whole season, we cannot complain. But we have a lot of ends of good CLOTHS, which we will sell at a sacrifice to fill up the gap, and our mantle cutter will cut an I fit these goods free of charge, and explain the best way to make them up. The size we have in stock to fit children from 6 to 12 years we will clear out very cheap. MANTLE PLUSHES are now much in vogue in the larger cities, but are not much looked for here yet. We think it cannot be possible the ladies have not heard about them but they cannot know how beautiful they make up or there would be a greater demand. We have the Black and Seal Brown in stock.

Dress Goods. We are showing Dress Goods at 10c. a yard, which would be good value at 20c. The way they are selling fairly astonishes us, which shows that the public appreciate genuine bargains. In Fine Goods everybody says we have the nicest stock in town, and what everybody says must be true. What we are going to tell you now is of great importance, and we want you to remember it. Our Dress Goods Remnants have been accumulating faster than we like them to, and we have made up our minds to clear them all out. We will offer everything in the shape of a Dress Goods remnant, plain and fancy, good and bad together, at 15c. a yard. Most of these Goods ranged from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are all laid out on the counter, so come along; first come, first served. And what can you buy more suitable for a Christmas present for your girls than a new Dress.

Canadian Tweeds. Among a lot of Goods just opened out, we have a line of Canadian Tweeds, bought job. We have marked them 45c. a yard. They are extra heavy weight and made of good wool.

Our Hosiery. Our Hosiery department is filled with the best Goods made in the Province; Many people tell us they find lines with us they cannot get elsewhere. See our heavy make with double knees and heels and another line called "Arctic," it handles as if fulled. There is no need for band knitting while these goods are to be had.

White Grey Cottons. The rate our White and Grey Cottons, Sheetings, etc., keep coming in and going out must be a sure indication they are extra good value. Those who have not bought some of the Goods should buy a trial parcel. We know we can says our customers money notwithstanding all the loud talk and flaring advertising which somebody has to pay for, until red flag business. Those wanting genuine bargains, will find the real article at

GENERAL MIDDLETON TALKS ABOUT MILITIA MATTERS.

The Mormon Colony at Lee's Creek—Candidates for the Ottawa Mayoralty—That Stolen Mail Bag.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—In conversation yesterday with reference to The Mail's attack on the militia, General Middleton said: "In regard to the granting of appointments it is altogether absurd to say that the French-Canadians are better treated than the English. Out of fifty-five government staff positions only eight are held by Frenchmen." With regard to clothing, he said it could be procured cheaper in England than here, but he advocated the protection of home industries and the giving our manufacturers a chance to learn how to make the kind of articles wanted.

The Railway Committee of the Privy Council will meet on Dec. 18, when the case of crossing the Canada Southern Railway by the Lake Erie, Essex, and Detroit River road will be taken up.

Collector Allen of McLeod, who is here, says that the Mormon colony at Lee's Creek which is forty miles south of McLeod, is flourishing. He says that he had an interview with Elder Card when the Mormons first came and warned him that polygamy would not be tolerated. Card promised that it would not be practiced. He was not aware that this promise had been broken.

The French-Canadian delegates appointed at Thursday night's meeting to select a candidate for the mayoralty met yesterday afternoon and selected Dr. F. X. Valade. It is probable the only other candidate will be Alderman Erratt, who has been acting Mayor for several months past.

On the night of Dec. 1 one bag of mail matter was stolen from a truck on the platform at Prescott station, and although the loss was discovered at once the bag was not found until Tuesday last, when it was found under the platform. It had been carefully gone through and all the letters opened, but whether any letters containing money had been abstracted is not of course known.

Dr. Allen, Collector of customs at McLeod, says that he has only heard of one instance, and that occurred years ago, of a settler being refused permission to homestead on a ranching lease, although the old leases do not contain the same homestead clause introduced in recent leases. All the leases are liable to termination on two years' notice, and the holders of old leases know that if they attempted to prevent homesteading they would be given notice of termination of their leases. He represented this as a most successful year for ranchmen and says the crops in that section have been wonderful.

Mr. Frank Arnoldi of Toronto is here in connection with the subscription of stock for the Ontario Trust Company. A large amount of the stock has been placed with leading capitalists here. It is rumored that Sir John Macdonald has subscribed for $10,000.

HARDWARE AND HORSES.

Two Ten Thousand Dollar Fires in Montreal on Saturday Night.

MONTREAL, Dec. 9.—A fire broke out in the wholesale hardware store of C. C. Snowdon & Co. on St. Paul-street last night and before it was extinguished some $8000 to $10,000 damage was done. The fire was confined to the third flat, in which was stored hollowware, etc., and the stairway.

Immediately afterwards a fire broke out in the stables of Dumaine & Halpin on Notre Dame-street. The stables were destroyed together with four horses. Loss about $10,000.

Barely Escaped with Their Lives.

MERRITTON, Dec. 9.—A frame house occupied by Mr. B. Darby, near the Lybster mills, was burned down about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The inmates barely escaped with their lives. There was only a small portion of the furniture saved, and the loss is placed at $1000, on which there is an insurance.

Five Firemen Injured.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—A slight fire in the Northwestern furniture factory yesterday morning resulted in an explosion of mill dust, by which five firemen were injured, two of them dangerously.

A Normal School in Ashes.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Dec. 9.—The Central State Normal School in this city was burned to-day.

Business Houses Consumed.

DURAND, Miss., Dec. 9.—A fire broke out in Pikins, a small town near here, yesterday, and five business places were destroyed.

The Wandering Jew.

MONCTON, N. B., Dec. 9.—Roland Gideon Israel Barnett, the alleged Central Bank wrecker, passed through here this afternoon en route for Toronto. He arrived at Halifax this morning by the steamship Sarnia, from Liverpool, in charge of Inspector Andrews of the Metropolitan Police.

They were met at Halifax by Inspector Stark of Toronto, who takes charge of the prisoner to that place, where they will arrive by the Grand Trunk on Tuesday morning.

Barnett is very reticent about his alleged crime, but stated to a correspondent that he has done nothing outside of the usual way of business, still the liquidators are trying to prolong the agony in order to get their fees, etc., from the shareholders; that he had done nothing to place himself in the power of the law.

He Played the Badger Game.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Henry Hermann of the quartet who tried to extort money out of Phil Daly in a Fourth-avenue flat, pleaded guilty at Jefferson-market Police Court yesterday, and was held without bail.

RUSSIA'S ROAD TO INDIA.

A LECTURE INHIBITED BY THE BRITISH WAR OFFICE.

Lord Randolph Churchill Explains—Mr Labouchere's Discovery—Dr. Mackenzie Boycotted.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The officers of the Woolwich garrison recently invited Charles Marvin to deliver a lecture on the cutting of Russia's road to India. Mr. Marvin accepted the invitation and made the necessary arrangements, but the War Office on learning his intention interfered and refused him permission to deliver the lecture.

Mr. Bright had a shivering fit to-day which left him in a very weak condition. Other grave symptoms were manifested.

Lord Randolph Churchill writes as follows with reference to the Suakim debate: "Had I wished to snatch a division in order to defeat the Government and aid the Opposition I should not have occupied 50 minutes with my own speech nor have selected a night when a five-line Conservative whip was out. The fact is that the present Government's Suakim policy is so irreconcilable with the Tories' attitude when in opposition that I felt very confident of receiving appreciable support in the ministerial rank."

The "Blackman" Question.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The Bombay Gazette, discussing the "blackman" question, says: "Lord Salisbury seems to have spoken in terms as impolite as they were discourteous."

The Times of India refuses to believe that Lord Salisbury used the words.

The Indian Mirror says the words are a libel upon the whole Indian race and a deliberate insult meriting the Queen's severest displeasure.

Other papers make equally strong comments in saying that Lord Salisbury is unworthy to retain his position.

A Serious Question.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Mr. Labouchere has made the discovery that the steamships of the Inman line are chiefly owned in America, and will question the Government in the House of Commons to-morrow regarding the use of these ships in the capacity of cruisers in the event of war. This serious question leads to the incidental statement that Lord Sackville will remain in London during the ensuing week.

Boycotting Sir Morell.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The boycotting of Dr. Mackenzie by the Edinburgh physicians is the result of something like an order from the London medical fraternity, which, as the sense of a largely attended meeting, requested the Scotch doctors not to notice him. As Mackenzie, however, has compelled not only the notice but the patronage of persons to whom the existence of the Scotch doctors is unknown, it is to be inferred that he is not heartbroken over their action.

To Wed a Dying Man.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The report that Prince van Pless would marry Miss Woodville of Maryland is declared untrue. Miss Woodville has long been engaged to Prince Sapieka. The mother's opposition has delayed the marriage, but as the Prince is now mortally ill the ceremony will probably be permitted.

London Money and Stock Markets.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Discount was firm during the past week at 4 and 3¼. The rates are rising to the level of the official quotations, with the prospect of increased stringency. On the Stock Exchange prices were weak. The dearness of money hampered business. Foreign securities were dull. English railway securities lost the recent advantages. American railway securities were unsettled.

The Panama Canal Co.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—A meeting was held at the Ministry of Finance to-day to consider the affairs of the Panama Canal Co. Leading jurists and financiers, Ministers Floquet and Peytral, several senators and other public officials were present. After a general discussion the meeting adjourned until Monday.

The conviction grows that liquidation of the Panama Canal Company is inevitable. The conference was without practical result.

Resignation of the Spanish Cabinet.

MADRID, Dec. 9.—The whole Spanish Ministry has resigned.

The Queen Regent has entrusted Senor Sagasta with the formation of a new cabinet. Senor Sagasta encounters much difficulty in fulfilling the trust.

Severe Fighting at Bagamoyo.

ZANZIBAR, Dec. 9.—The British steamer which was recently sent to Bagamoyo returned here to-day with several Indian traders and their families on board. They report that the town is wrecked. There was severe fighting on Thursday and Friday and the rebel loss was heavy. Two Germans and two native dependents were wounded. Bushiere subsequently retired five miles inland. It is reported that he looted an ivory caravan and brutally maltreated the Wanyamwezo porters who refused to join him.

Bushiere seized the ivory and either killed or cut off the hands of the porters who refused to join him. He left Bagamoyo abandoning his guns owing to a false report that the Germans stronghold was sown with torpedoes. The rebel loss was 100 killed. The insurgents at Lindi have seized all the gunpowder in the Indians' houses and the Sultan's stores.

Dynamiting Strikers Arrested.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 9.—Two battalions of the line have been ordered from Antwerp to Galonviere, the centre of the strikes and attempted dynamite outrages. A large number of strikers have been arrested.

Louis Riel's Citizenship.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—There has been some talk here over the resolution introduced in the United States Senate by Senator Blair to investigate the citizenship of Louis Riel. It is surmised that the purpose is to impugn the legality of his trial and execution. Messrs. Robinson and Osler, Q.C.'s, who were crown counsel at Regina, say the idea that Riel was improperly tried is ridiculous. He was indicted on six counts and was arraigned for high treason as a subject of Her Majesty, and also as one who, being a resident of Canada, owed temporary allegiance to Her Majesty.

The Scott Act in Wellington.

GUELPH, Dec. 9.—The County Council yesterday passed a resolution memorializing the Governor-General-in-Council for an order that a vote on the repeal of the Temperance Act be taken in the County in February—a time when the farmers are at leisure.

Sudden Death.

GUELPH, Dec. 9.—Mr. James Hamilton, who kept the hotel on the Brock Road about three miles out for a year or so after the death of his father, died very suddenly yesterday morning. He had not been well for some time back, but came down to breakfast. He complained of being sick then and went up to his room. His brother followed him in a few minutes to ask him to come down where it was warm. He found him sitting on a chair, seemingly gasping for breath and ran down stairs to get him something to drink. When he returned he found his brother dead. The deceased was unmarried.

THE VICTIMS ARE NUMEROUS.

How Amelia Sutton Swindled Windsor Oddfellows and Masons.

WINDSOR, Dec. 9.—About three weeks ago a woman giving the name of Amelia Sutton, applied to the Daughters of Rebekah Lodge in Windsor for aid. She said her husband at one time was one of the most prominent members of the Oddfellows Lodge of Sacramento, Cal. She told a most pitiful story and seemed to be well acquainted with the lodge workings. As is customary she was provided with money for a short time and took up her abode with Patrick Warren of Guyeau-street. As soon as her stock of money was exhausted she went to the Masonic lodge, told substantially the same story, but that her husband who was now deceased, was a member of Jappa Lodge of San Jose, Cal. They, too, came to her assistance, believing that the story was a true one, but at the same time wrote to the above lodge for corroborstion. During the past week Mr. Warren has been losing silverware and valuable trinkets. As there was no other stranger in the house she was accused, but stoutly denied. Warren told George Adams, a prominent mason of his suspicions, and last night, when she applied to Adams for aid, he accused her of the theft. Finally she admitted taking the things and said they were under the mattress at her rooms. Adams immediately went to Warren's, searched as she said and besides the stolen silverware found a valuable clock and lots of other stuff which is undoubtedly stolen. After this he went down to see if he could find her, and at the postoffice received a letter from the lodge at San Jose, giving a description of the woman, saying she had victimized many other lodges. Opposite the Manning House Adams met her and accused her just as the letter stated, and she made a clean breast of it, also admitting she had victimized a Detroit lodge. She lost no time in taking the first boat for Detroit.

PROF. WIGGINS THEORIZES.

A Possibility of the Earth's Destruction by Flood.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—Prof. Wiggins, the weather prophet, in an interview yesterday said he was greatly interested in the eclipse of the sun on Jan. 1 next. "If the scientists obtain good photographs," observed the Professor, "they will decide my theory of 24 years ago, that the photosphere of the sun is electricity, and that this photosphere repels and attracts the comets through space by the well-known law of like and unlike electricities. The coronal streamers, in my opinion, are meteors carried through space on the trail of comets. Should they be proved to consist of meteors, my theory will be established.

"The ridges and lines on Mars observed through the Lick telescope are genuine canals, which the people have excavated for navigation, but especially for irrigation purposes. Mars has more clouds and less rains than any other planet, on account of the smallness of its moons. The constant fear of the inhabitants is the dread that Encke's comet will become a satellite of their planet. This great comet is constantly shortening its orbit's eccentricity, and moving very slowly across Mars' orbit makes it peculiarly liable to be attracted and thrown into an orbit about that planet.

"The earth is the only other planet liable to this danger, which is less realized owing to the comet's greater motion in crossing the orbit of our planet. What would be the effect if the comet were to become another moon to us? The earth's oceans would rise in a few hours 20 feet or more above their ordinary level, overwhelming a large portion of both continents. Australia and the Gulf Stream would be no more. The chances are a thousand to one that this will happen and yet this one might contain the certainty. Mars, however, is on the line of the greatest danger. Encke's comet, it is certain, must in a few years become a primary or secondary planet. I have a theory that many floods and earthquakes are caused by dark or tailless comets, invisible even through telescopes, passing near the earth's surface."

THE LATIN LEAGUE'S PLOT.

Italy to be Detached from the Triple Alliance—The East African Situation.

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—The Reichstag adjourns on Dec. 15 and will re-assemble about the middle of January. The critical situation in East Africa, where the Arabs are effectually wiping out the German colonists and clearing the territory of every vestige of the German regime, will force more ample explanations of Germany's policy than the Chancellor intended. Until recently the Chancellor has not had any enthusiasm about the East African enterprise, and would rather have avoided national action tending toward something like the Tonquin expedition. He now feels the stimulus of the excitement that is spreading throughout Germany, and according to official information is determined to protect the commercial flag throughout the ceded territories. A white book tabled in the Reichstag to-day blames the company's administration as productive of disaster. Writing early in October to the German Consul at Zanzibar Prince Bismarck said: "The company ought to have better respected the national prejudices. The natives ought to have been treated judiciously. The Sultan is seeking to make both the natives and the officials serviceable." A consular report declares that the Arabian element has thrown off the Sultan's authority. With the waning of the influence of the Sultan the company has lost its most important support. The conclusion reached, after scanning the forty-four documents included in the white book, is that the Germans could not be in a worse plight. Emperor William is making a special study of events in East Africa, the conditions of warfare in that region, what force would be required and how far operations should extend. Last evening he had a conference on the subject with Count Herbert Bismarck and Count Von Waldersee.

The Latin League, which aims to detach Italy from the triple alliance, is now openly advocated by Spanish politicans both Monarchist and Republican. Senor Castelar goes to Rome to invite Moderate Republicans to join a coalition to oust Premier Crispi, accept the existing monarchy and avoid hostility to the church until a league of France, Spain, Italy and Belgium succeeds in overthrowing the Austro-Germanic alliance. Though somewhat visionary the efforts to form such a league are carefully watched here. Senor Armijo, the Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, privately approves of Senor Castelar's object, if he did not incite him to go to Rome.

Robbed in Broad Daylight.

FT. WAYNE, Ind., Dec. 9.—The neatest and most daring robbery ever recorded in Ft. Wayne was committed at high noon yesterday, right in the heart of the city, with hundreds of people passing back and forth every minute. On Calhoun-street, just after 12 o'clock, burglars entered Mr. Isaac Lauferty's private banking house in Avedne House block while Mr. Lauferty was at dinner and made off with some $2000 in cash and a number of valuable and not negotiable securities without leaving a trace that might lead to their identity.

Conspicuous by His Absence.

MASON CITY, Ia., Dec. 9.—R. Noisted, merchant at Ruddle, Ia., has skipped out. He was treasurer of the Creamery Association and is short about $1200 with that concern. The district school fund, of which he is treasurer, is short $1000. He was postmaster of the village and several registered letters are unaccounted for.

SHOT DOWN BY OFFICERS.

TERRIBLE OUTCOME OF AN ATTEMPTED LYNCHING.

Lawabiding Citizens Endeavoring to Disuade a Mob From Their Purpose Killed With the Rioters.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 9.—A crowd which had been collecting on the streets for several hours last night, at midnight advanced on the county jail with the intention of lynching R. R. Hawes, charged with the murder of his wife and child. Many of the best citizens tried to reason with the crowd and prevent trouble, and some lost their lives in the attempt. When the crowd was within a few feet of the jail door and had failed to heed numerous warnings, the officers opened fire on them, killing three men instantly, fatally wounding seven and wounding more or less seriously about 30 others. Following is a full list of the killed and wounded:

M. B. THROCKMORTON, postmaster and a very prominent and popular citizen. He was about 30 years of age and leaves a wife and one child.

AN UNKNOWN NEGRO was shot through the lungs and died this morning.

J. R. MCCOY was in the front of the crowd when the firing commenced and fell at the first volley.

A. B. TARRANT was shot in the back. After the first volley he lay down on the ground with the hope of avoiding the flying bullets, but a ball killed him as he lay on his face.

A. D. BRYANT was shot through the heart. He was standing near the front and was doing his best to restrain the crowd from going any nearer. He fell at the first volley and died instantly.

C. C. TATE was shot through the hip, thigh and loin. He is a painter and lived at East Lake.

Col. BERT. SMITH (colored), shot through the right lung, died this morning.

FRANK CHILDER.

CHARLES JENKINS was shot in the back of the head, the ball coming out in the centre of his forehead. He lingered until 10 o'clock this morning.

—BRANDEN was wounded in the thigh and abdomen and died about 10 o'clock this morning.

LAWRENCE FITZHUGH, a civil engineer, badly wounded. He was shot through the shoulder.

CHARLES BAILEY was shot through the head, it is thought fatally.

A. J. SCHEIDE, a mechanic, was shot in the left side. It is thought that he will die. He came recently from Kalamazoo, Mich. Several of his companions were wounded, but less seriously.

J. W. MONTGOMERY received a slight wound in the left jaw.

MR. BERKLEY was shot through both legs below the knee while sitting on the rear porch of the residence of Mr. W. Siddons.

CHARLES BAILEY, a brakesman on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, was shot in the right side. His wound is not necessarily fatal.

JOHN H. MERRITT was shot through the calf of the left leg.

MATT KENNEDY was shot in both legs below the knee, the right leg being badly shattered, the left a flesh wound. He is also shot in the left arm just below the elbow and the bone is broken.

J. W. OWEN was shot entirely through the right thigh.

J. W. GILMORE, it is thought, is fatally wounded through the bowels.

ALBERT SMITH (colored) was shot in the back and seriously wounded.

W. A. BIRD was shot in the right shoulder, the ball passing entirely through him and coming out near the spinal chord.

Most of the wounded are in the hospital.

Sheriff Smith in an interview to-day said he deeply regretted the occurrences of last night, but he felt that he had simply done his duty in upholding the majesty of the law. He said he gave the mob ample warning and did not give the order to fire until after the mob had begun to fire upon the jail. The sheriff has been arrested on the charge of murder.

Mayor Thompson, who was only inducted into office last Wednesday, issued a proclamation this morning expressing sympathy for the families of the victims of last night's tragedy and deeply regretting the occurrence but favoring the maintenance of law and order, and appealing to all who love peace and good order to refrain from public assemblage and remain in the quiet of their homes.

Col. Thomas G. Jones of the Second Regiment of Alabama state troops arrived here this morning with five companies, and is confident of his ability to prevent any further attempt at mob violence. There was much excitement for a while last night but it has subsided somewhat to-day.

CRUELTY OF A SCHOOLMASTER.

A Crippled Indian Girl Brutally Punished for a Trifling Fault.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 9.—A terrible story of brutal treatment of a crippled Indian girl by one of the teachers in the government boarding schools at White Earth, has just reached here. Two weeks ago, Lizzie Seal, with a couple of girl companions, after school hours visited some friends who lived near the school. In a short time the janitor came and roughly informed them that they were wanted at the school immediately. On their arrival there they were met by the principal, who was very angry. He carried a walking stick, and at once began to use it on the back and shoulders of the Seal girl. Her clothing was very thin and was poor protection against the blows of the enraged teacher, who broke his cane to pieces on her shoulders. After the beating she crawled away to a friend's house, where she passed the night, and was later taken to her home, where she has been confined to bed ever since. Her father is dying of consumption and her mother is just recovering from a spell of sickness, while the girl is now in a critical condition. A gentleman who investigated the story found her on a blanket spread on the floor, her body a mass of sores. In many places the skin was still raw from the effects of the beating. The injured girl will probably be unable to survive the assault and her friends are very indignant and propose to bring the case before the proper authorities.

Struthers' Narrow Escape.

WINDSOR, Dec. 9.—John Struthers, a resident of Tilbury Centre, had a narrow escape from death yesterday. He was on his way to Stony Point, and had just driven on the Great Western Railway track when the noon express came along. In spite of his efforts the horses would not budge off the track and in a second they were both struck by the locomotive and thrown into adjoining fields. Struthers escaped with a few bruises.

The Welland Canal Closed.

PORT COLBORNE, Dec. 9.—The Welland Canal officially closed at midnight on Saturday.

A Blenheim Brute Breaks Jail.

BLENHEIM, Dec. 9.—Yesterday afternoon Hugh Finlayson, painter of this town, enticed two young girls, daughters of George Breeze and Thomas Holland, aged six and seven, into a stable and attempted to assault them, handling them severely. He was arrested and placed in the lockup, but broke out during the night by making a hole through the stone wall and made good his escape. Finlayson is a married man with a family.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

of $18,000 WORTH OF GOODS, new choice and fresh, and selling at 50c. on the dollar. We leave it to you to name the prices! We go further! We will absolutely give you goods at your own figures. Bearing in mind that 30 days finishes the sale in Sheppard's old premises, we offer

A Good Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—About this time of the year people are racking their brains on the question—What shall I give * * * for a Christmas present?

I would suggest one that would be acceptable to most persons, that is, a ticked for the Mechanics' Institute. It costs but a moderate amount, and with it, old and young, grave and gay, may obtain reading suited to their respective tastes; and the enjoyment is not confined to the holiday season, but lasts throughout the year.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Bucket Shop Conviction Quashed—The Minister of Education on Temperance.

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The Common Pleas Division (Chief Justice Sir Thomas Galt and Justices Rose and McMahon) gave judgment on Saturday in the bucket shop case Queen v. Murphy. The prisoner was charged with being a frequenter of Hanrahan's bucket shop and convicted by the Police Magistrate and fined $50 and costs. The conviction was quashed on technical grounds.

At the Pavilion yesterday, under the auspices of the Young Men's Prohibition Club, Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, spoke on temperance. The address was full of interesting statistics relating to Toronto and the province, the speaker's object being to show how the use of intoxicants had filled our prisons and charitable institutions.

There was a lamentable falling off in the attendance at the Western Methodist Church yesterday morning. Sympathy with Mr. Jeffery, the deposed pastor, is being shown by absence from the place where he was wont to minister.

Two little girls, daughters of G. E. Childs, were thrown out of a wagon and seriously injured in a runaway accident on Saturday.

Ex-Mail Carrier James H. Spence was convicted in the General Sessions on Saturday on the charge of stealing a letter containing $3.

The following Associated Press dispatch was received here yesterday:

"WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 8.—The police to-day received notice and a description from Toronto of John O. Wood, who is wanted there for murder. A man answering the description was arrested here this afternoon and locked up."

Wilkesbarre is a city of some 30,000 in the mining region of Pennsylvania. It is a great sporting place. When Sergeant Detective Reburn was shown the despatch late in the day, he professed entire ignorance of Wood having been captured and expressed surprise that the Wilkesbarre authorities had not communicated with him.

He Whipped Convicts to Death.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 9.—J. A. Gifford, the warden who whipped convicts to death at Coal Hill, was convicted of murder in the second degree at Clarksville yesterday and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

BRAKEMAN ALLEN'S BOY.

A Hamilton Clergyman Charged with Unlawfully Detaining a Child.

HAMILTON, Dec. 8.—At this morning's session of the Police Court Rev. Thomas Geoghegan, rector of the Church of St. Matthew, was charged by John Burlinghoff with having on Dec. 7 "unlawfully and by force detained one Walter Allen, a child under the age of 14 years, with intent to defraud John Burlinghoff, the person having lawful care of the said Walter Allen." Walter Allen is the son of Crakeman Robert Allen who was killed at Merritton in the collision on the Grand Trunk Railway last Monday. Burlinghoff testified that the Allens boarded at his hotel and that the father had asked him to take care of his boy in case anything happened to him. Mr. Geoghegan took charge of the boy at the funeral and refused to surrender him. County Crown-Attorney Crerar was directed by the magistrate to take charge of the case and after consultation he said that as Allen's father had been killed on the railroad, it might be possible that the railroad company would be responsible to the boy, and, as the boy had said that Rev. Mr. Geoghegan had said something about putting him in a home, it might be possible that the boy would be made away with so that action could not be brought against the railway company. However, Mr. Burlinghoff was willing that Rev. Mr. Geoghegan should have the boy until a proper guardian should be appointed, if he and Mr. Armstrong, Grand Trunk station master, would give an undertaking to produce him whenever wanted. This was done and Allen, who has not a relative in this country, remains with the clergyman.

Joseph Holdsworth, a dealer in new and second hand goods, doing business on James-street north, was arrested at his place of business this morning, on the charge of cattle stealing. About three weeks ago James Murray, a farmer residing in Esquesing, had six heifers and a calf stolen from his his place. He went to Milton, reported to High Constable Chapman and gave the matter into his hands. Chapman at last traced the animals to this city, and discovered that they were in the possession of Mr. Alfred Stroud, at his farm on the Dundas-road, just west of this city. It was there ascertained that the cattle had been sold by Mr. Holdsworth. The prisoner was taken to the Police Court this morning and High Constable Chapman returned to Milton to get the necessary documents for the removal of the prisoner to Milton for trial.

Thomas Cusack, a Dundas young man, was before the Police Magistrate this morning on a charge of escaping from the custody of a police officer and also on a charge of felony. The alleged offences were committed seven years ago. He was committed for trial at the next assizes. He and three others of the same name have already been committed on another charge.

The art exhibition will be continued on Monday and Tuesday. Over $1100 was the amount taken in yesterday, making the receipts to last night $5100.

Drink and "Seven Up."

BUFFALO, Dec. 9.—Alexander McPherson, general bookkeeper of the Merchants' Bank here, has disappeared, and is supposed to be either in Canada or California. He leaves a wife and two children behind him as well as numerous unpaid election bets. His accounts were in bad shape, but, when straightened out, no shortage or crookedness was discovered. Games of $10 "seven up" and drink are said to be the cause of his ruin.

Digging for Hidden Treasure.

PORT COLBORNE, Dec. 8.—Gold-seekers are delving into the big sandbank three or four miles east of here near the Lutheran Church burying ground, in search of treasure said to have been hidden there in the good old days of Captain Kidd. For years this spot has been an eye-sore to many speculative minds, and this is not the first attempt to unearth the gold. The treasure is valued at $90,000.

A New York Thief Run Down in Chili.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—William A. Bushnell, who ten years ago was bookkeeper for the law firm of Butler, Stillman & Hubbard of this city, has been arrested in Santiago, Chili, and will be brought to New York for trial on a charge of stealing and hypothecating securities which the firm paid $35,000 to recover when the theft was discovered.

Cheap Refreshment in Paris.

Paris is trying an experiment which has long ago been found to answer in Italy. On one of the boulevards a new establishment has been opened for the personal comfort of Parisians. You can wash your hands, have your clothes brushed, your boots cleaned. You can write your letters. Paper, pens, ink, etc., are at your disposal. In one room are all the newspapers not merely of Paris and the provinces, but of all the great continental capitals. A third room is devoted to works of reference, encyclopedias, dictionaries and directories. There are a telephone and a postoffice, and all this is open to any passerby who pays half a franc admission.

The Italian idea did not go quite so far, but in some respects it was more useful. It was not a private speculation, but a government concern. In fact, it was part of the working of the postal system of the country. You paid a penny entrance fee and found all the means of writing and all the information you might need at hand. You buy paper at cost price and have the use of writing materials gratuitously. The French institution is a speculation, and if the building just opened on the Boulevard Montmartre succeed no doubt we shall see others established all over the capital.—Pall Mall Gazette.

CROCKERYWARE

LADIES:—

Among other wants which will be discovered at this season of the year, when house cleaning is going on, the important one of new or additional CROCKERYWARE will no doubt be forced upon you.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with business men, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &c.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

W. J. MASON,

Family Grocer, and Crockery Merchant, George-st., Peterborough.

They Must Go.

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

His Lordship's Departure.

The many inquiries as to when he was to leave Peterborough caused His Lordship Bishop Dowling to speak a few words in reference to the matter at the evening service at St. Peter's yesterday. His Lordship said that with regard to the current report that he was about to leave Peterborough it was so far only a newspaper report and that he had received no official information whatever. He was happy here, he said, had no desire to change, and had no intension of leaving unless directed to do so by the Holy See.

A Criminal Offence.

Since the midnight assault on Wm. Boates on Charlotte-st, a couple of weeks ago the police have had a warrant for the arrest of Charles Beavis, who was suspected of having been the perpetrator of the assault. Beavis has, however, managed to keep out of the way of the police until this morning when he walked into the police station of his own accord. He accordingly appeared at the police court and was charged with having committed an aggravated assault on Wm. Boates. He pleaded not guilty and Boates failing to appear to prosecute, Beavis was discharged.

The Saturday Night At Home.

There was a good attendance at the weekly "At Home" given by the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union on Saturday evening and a very pleasant couple of hours was spent by those present. This meeting was known as "Editor's Night," and several features of the programme were regarding newspaper work. Coffee and cake were served during the evening by the young ladies and a good programme was carried out. Mr. J. R. Stratton gave an address on "the Ecstacies and Agonies of an Editor's Position." Miss L. Sanderson gave a reading on the influence of a newspaper; Mr. W. J. Herbison read Will Carleton's poem "The Editor's Guests"; instrumental solos were given by Miss Annesley and Miss Fortherup; vocal music by the Business College Glee Club and Mr. F. Annesly; a piano and violin duet by Masters Duff and McKee, and music by the Y.M.C.A. orchestra. The evening was very enjoyable and such as should attract a still larger attendance to these At Homes.

SUFFOCATED BY GAS.

A Former Resident of Peterborough Dies in Toronto from Gas.

Miss Katie Dowding, daughter of Mrs. J. M. Dowding, of Port Perry, and a former resident of Peterborough, died in Toronto on Sunday morning under sad circumstances, the particulars of which are thus given by the Empire:—"Miss Kate Dowding, of Port Perry, a young lady 19 years of age, has been staying with her uncle, Mr. J. H. Wickham, of this city. On Saturday evening she went to visit her cousin, Mrs. J. F. Boyd, of 22 Bellevue avenue. The family retired to rest after midnight, and Mrs. Boyd asked Miss Dowding if she understood how to turn the gas out. Miss Dowding laughingly replied that of course she did. Yesterday morning it was thought she was sleeping rather late and Miss Boyd went to her room to call her at about a quarter to eleven o'clock. She was horrified to find her lifeless, with her head buried in a pillow. The room was filled with gas and the jet was partially open. It is thought that when finding herself being suffocated she attempted to rise and was so weak that she fell face downwards on the pillow. Dr. Machell was immediately sent for, but his services were of no avail, as death had occurred some hours before his arrival. There is no doubt that Miss Dowding did turn off the gas, but her sleeve must have caught the 'turn off' and opened it partially. Her relatives were notified yesterday by telephone and Mrs. Dowding is on her way to Toronto."

The funeral will take place from the C. P. R. station, Peterborough, to-morrow on the arrival of the 11.40 train from Toronto.

A Row on Simcoe-st.

On Saturday evening Mr. J. Condon, of the Temperance House on Simcoe-st., got into a controversy with John Shea, a man from Nassau, which resulted in blows. The two men used each other pretty hard, Shea getting the worst of it, his head being cut from blows received from a stick or poker. No complaint has been made to the police to-day.

A Costly Blow.

On Saturday evening about six o'clock a young man from Otonabee was arrested on George-st. for assaulting Mr. H. W. Watson, painter. The man was taken to the police station, but was allowed to go on his own recognizance that he would appear on Monday morning. Accordingly he was at the court this morning, and was fined $10 and costs, which he paid.

The Municipal Honors.

There is yet no definite assurance that that there will be a fight for the Mayor's seat for 1889. Mr. Henry Denne has signified his willingness to be a candidate and will probably receive the nomination at the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council to-night. Mayor Stevenson has not yet signified whether he will be a candidate for re-election or not. The meeting of the labor men in their hall on Water-st. to-night announced on Saturday, will be held as announced, and will be well attended undoubtedly. The result will be the nomination of a full ticket, it is expected.

George-st. Services.

The pulpit of the George-st. Methodist Church was occupied on Sunday by the Rev. Geo. W. Dewey, of Lindsay East, who was associated with the Rev. D. O. Crossley as an evangelist last year. There was a large congregation in the morning, and Mr. Dewey delivered an interesting discourse from the text, "Fear not, Abram; I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward," Genesis, xv., 1. In the evening he faced another crowded house and took for his text the words, "Behold the Man," from John, 19. 5, and upon them based a very practical and interesting sermon to boys and young men. He sang twice during the service, the last hymn, "Oh, Save the Boys," being especially pretty and appropriate.

Literary Notes.

"The Mystery of Martha Warne," a book just issued by J. Theo. Robinson, publisher, Montreal, is a tale of the supernatural, having no connection whatever with any religion. It relates the actual experiences of a prominent Montreal physician (now deceased)—experiences of a most startling character—which will puzzle the sceptical reader to account for. It has been published in the popular cheap form, and everyone so disposed can read it and form their own conclusions. Those who do not accept it as fact will relish it as fiction.

GRIP'S COMIC ALMANAC.—This well-known annual, for 1888, is now in the bookstores. For ten years Canada's "own and only" Comic Almanac has delighted her people, and the new number is decidedly the best of the lot. The calendar pages are unique and ingenious; the double page cartoon, "Irrepressible Tug of War," is first-class, while there are several full-page cartoons of no less merit, and any number of side-splitting illustrations. The letter-press is capital reading. Ten cents will secure the book at any newsdealer's—a modest tax for so enjoyable a melange, surely.

A Framed Vote of Thanks.

Mayor Stevenson received this morning from Philadelphia, Pa., a vote of thanks, engrossed and framed, from the friends of James F. Farley, whose sentence of death was commuted. The frame is a very handsome heavy gilt one and the artistic penwork on the resolution is beautiful. Upon the upper corners of the pen-picture there is a United States and a Canadian coat of arms and the whole work is executed with an excellent artistic finish. The "picture" reads as follows:—"To His Honor Mayor Stevenson, M.P., the Town Council and the citizens of Peterborough, Ontario. At a meeting of the friends of James F. Farley held at Randall Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., October twenty-ninth, 1888, the following vote of thanks was unanimously passed:—'Whereas, having learned of the deep interest taken by you all in the case of Jas. F. Farley, in securing for him a commutation of sentence, from death to that of imprisonment, Resolved, that a vote of thanks be tendered to you and the following named gentlemen who so ably assisted you in the various delegations which went to the Hon. Sir John S. D. Thompson, Minister of Justice at Ottawa, in his behalf—Town Council: Hon. James Stevenson, M.P., and Thos. Kelly; Workingmen's Club: Henry Denne, George Ball and Frank Farey; Citizen's Committee: Thomas Dolan, Thomas B. McGrath, Dr. E. C. Crevier, E. Phelan, Robt. McGregor; also the following newspapers: Peterborough Morning Times, DAILY EVENING REVIEW and Evening Examiner, and the citizens of Peterborough in general." The following names are signed to the document:—Louis J. Burns, Chairman; John F. McGinley, Secretary; James McHugh, Samuel Hall, John Donahue, Michael McGeehan, Andrew Campbell, P. J. Tierney, Wm. B. Irvine, Michael Lynch, and Samuel Kelley, Committee.

MISSIONARY SERVICES.

Rev. Mr. Farncomb Preaches at Both Services at St. Luke's.

Missionary services were held in St. Luke's church yesterday. At the 11 o'clock service the Rev. Mr. Farncomb, of Lakefield, conducted the service, and as usual, the church was filled and the service and singing joined in heartily by the congregation. The rev. gentleman said it was a good custom in preaching a sermon to take a text to speak from, but for a missionary sermon he did not think one was necessary, as he thought the whole Bible was a missionary sermon. The Bible might be divided into two parts, (1) God's mission to man; His love to him; the mission of His son Jesus to save mankind, and (2) man's mission to his fellow-man. "He that loveth God loveth his brother also." "Freely ye hath received, freely give." He referred to the many direct commands in the Bible to the followers of Christ that they should engage in missionary work, and to the prophecies in the Old Testament referring to the extension of Christ's kingdom. He referred also to the first devoted missionaries of the church, who after they had their prejudices removed, and being shown that all might enter the church, and that none were common or unclean, in many cases, in their missionary zeal, sealing their witness with their blood. But, as is always the case, the blood of the martyrs proved to be

THE SEED OF THE CHURCH.

Would God that missionary spirit had continued till the present! Had it been so the kingdoms of the world would have become the kingdoms of the Lord and of His Christ. But the church had grown careless, and was divided into sects fighting against one another, and the whole world lying in darkness. Still the church had not been left without faithful witnesses through all the centuries, but they were like stars shining out in the surrounding darkness. He said there were some in the Church now days who did not care if the whole world was lost if their own souls were saved. An eminent missionary had said that missionary zeal at home was felt to the outmost circles of the mission field, and reacted beneficially on the Church at home. Missionary stagnation, on the other hand, like stagnation of the blood around the heart, would react on the life of the church at home and in time destroy it. This was seen in the case of the North African Church, which was very prosperous at home, but neglected her missionary duty and now she is not to be found and we are sending missionaries to the Dark Continent, which might have been evangelizing us. He said the need of to-day was men. Good men; not those who were dissatisfied with their conditions, but men of faith and love. He urged his hearers to pray for more men to be sent into the work.

The rev. gentleman conducted the services again in the evening and gave another missionary discourse.

Peterborough is Booming.

The above is the heading the Toronto Empire places over a two column article about this town. "With the exception of the city of Toronto there is, perhaps, no place in Ontario whose progress has been so marvellous as the town of Peterborough," says the Empire. It quotes the amount of money expended in building operations this year, $315,000, as given by the REVIEW, and says:—"The principal building erected was the Nicholls Hospital, a three-storey brick edifice overlooking the river Otonabee, and designed according to the most modern style of architecture. It was erected at a cost of $25,000. This sum has been generously donated by a wealthy widow lady, Mrs. Robt. Nicholls, whose series of unostentatious benefactions to charities and other deserving objects are striking instances of the blessed value of consecrated wealth dispensed by the hand of a noble woman." After giving some historical facts, the Toronto paper continues:—"The Otonabee is a fine river, noted for its extensive water privileges, which are not excelled by even the Trent; indeed, it is claimed by manufacturers here that they are unequalled by those of the Ottawa. The chain of small lakes to the north, of which it is the outlet, feed it abundantly the year round, and there is no danger that the supply will ever become exhausted. For a distance of about a mile and a half mill after mill line its banks, turning out thousands of dollars' worth of goods every month * * * It is estimated that not less than two thousand mechanics and laborers obtain constant employment in and about these industries, and if each one on an average receives $1 per day the total amount of money paid out in a year for wages reaches the enormous sum of $600,000. One gentleman estimates it at $750,000. No wonder that Peterborough is expertencing an astonishing and substantial boom!" The advantages of this expenditure in wages to the town and surrounding country are referred to, and the educational and other institutions of the town are mentioned, followed by a description of some of the leading manufacturing establishments.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

"Ah!" said the detective to himself, as he stood in the shadow on the opposite side of the street. "You're going to have a look at it, are you? I wouldn't, if I were you—it's dangerous."

Fitzgerald stood for a few minutes at the corner and then walked up Collins street. When he got to the cab stand, opposite the Melbourne club, still suspecting he was followed, he hailed a hansom and drove away in the direction of Spring street. Gorby was rather perplexed at this sudden move, but without delay he hailed another cab and told the driver to follow the first till it stopped.

"Two can play at that game," he said, settling himself back in the cab, "and I'll get the better of you, clever as you are—and you are clever," he went on in a tone of admiration, as he looked round the luxurious hansom, "to choose such a convenient place for a murder; no disturbance and plenty of time for escape after you had finished; it's a pleasure going after a chap like you instead of men who tumble down like ripe fruit, and ain't got any brains to keep their crime quiet."

While the detective thus soliloquized his cab, following on the trail of the other, had turned down Spring street and was being driven rapidly along the Wellington parade in the direction of East Melbourne. It then turned up Powlett street, at which Mr. Gorby exulted.

"Ain't so clever as I thought," he said to himself. "Shows his nest right off, without any attempt to hide it."

The detective, however, had reckoned without his host, for the cab in front kept driving on, through an interminable maze of streets, until it seemed as if Brian were determined never to stop the whole night.

"Look 'ere, sir!" cried Gorby's cabman looking through his trapdoor in the roof of the hansom, "how long's this 'ere game a-goin' to larst? My 'oss is knocked up, 'e is, and 'is blessed old legs a-givin' away under 'im!"

"Go on! go on!" answered the detective, impatiently; "I'll pay you well."

The cabman's spirits were raised by this, and by dint of coaxing and a liberal use of the silk, he managed to get his jaded horse up to a pretty good pace. They were in Fitzroy by this time, and then both cabs turned out of Gertrude street into Nicholson street, thence passed on to Evelyn street and along Spring street, until Brian's cab stopped at the corner of Collins street, and Gorby saw him alight and dismiss his cabman. He then walked down the street and disappeared into the Treasury gardens.

"Confound it," said the detective, as he got out and paid his fare, which was not by any means a light one, but over which he had no time to argue, "we've come in a circle, and I do believe he lives in Powlett street, after all."

He went into the gardens, and saw Brian some distance ahead of him, walking rapidly. It was bright moonlight, and he could easily distinguish Fitzgerald by his light coat. He left the gardens by the end gate. Then he went along the Wellington parade, and turned up Powlett street, where he stopped at a house near Cairns' Memorial church, much to Mr. Gorby's relief, who, being, like Hamlet, "fat and scant of breath," found himself rather exhausted. He kept well in the shadow, however, and saw Fitzgerald give one final look around before he disappeared into the house. Then Mr. Gorby, like the Robber Captain in "Ali Baba," took careful stock of the house, and fixed its locality and appearance well in his mind, as he intended to call at it on the morrow.

"What I'm going to do," he said, as he walked slowly back to Melbourne, "is to see his landlady when he's out, and find out what time he came in on the night of the murder. If it fits into the time he got out of Rankin's cab I'll get out a warrant, and arrest him straight off."

CHAPTER IX.

MR. GORBY IS SATISFIED AT LAST.

In spite of his long walk and still longer drive Brian did not sleep well that night. He kept tossing and turning, or else lying on his back wide awake, looking into the darkness and thinking of Whyte. Toward dawn, when the first faint glimmer of morning came through the Venetian blinds, he fell into a sort of uneasy doze, haunted by horrible dreams. He thought he was driving in a hansom, when suddenly he found Whyte by his side, clad in white cerements, grinning and gibbering at him with ghastly merriment. Then the cab went over a precipice, and he fell from a great height down, down, with the mocking laughter still sounding in his ears, until he woke with a loud cry and found it was broad daylight, and that drops of perspiration were standing on his brow. It was no good trying to sleep any longer, so, with a weary sigh, he arose and went for his tub, feeling jaded and worn out by worry and want of sleep. His bath did him some good, as the cold water brightened him up and pulled him together. Still he could not help giving a start of surprise when he saw his face looking at him from the mirror, old and haggard looking, with dark circles round the eyes.

"A pleasant life I'm going to have of it if this sort of thing goes on," he said bitterly; "I wish to G— I had never seen or heard of Whyte."

He dressed himself carefully, however, for Brian was a man who never neglected his toilet, however worried and out of sorts he might feel. Yet, notwithstanding his efforts to throw off his gloom and feel cheerful, his landlady was startled when she saw how haggard and wan his handsome face looked in the searching morning light.

She was a small, dried up little woman, with a wrinkled, yellow face, and looked so parched and brittle that strangers could not help thinking it would do her good if she were soaked in water for a year, in order to soften her a little. Whenever she moved she crackled, and one was in constant dread of seeing one of her wizen looking limbs break off short, like the branch of a dead tree. When she spoke it was in a hard, shrill voice, like a cricket; and being dressed in a faded brown silk, what with her voice and attenuated body, she was not unlike that noisy insect. She crackled into Brian's sitting room with The Argus and coffee, and a look of dismay came over her stony face as she saw his altered looks.

"Dear me, sir," she chirped out in her shrill voice, as she placed her burden on the table, "are you took bad?"

Brian shook his head.

"Want of sleep, that's all, Mrs. Sampson," he answered, unfolding The Argus.

"Ah! that's because yo ain't got enough blood in yer 'ead," said Mrs. Sampson, wisely, for she had her own ideas on the subject of health. "If you ain't got blood you ain't got sleep."

Brian looked at her as she said this, for there seemed such an obvious want of blood in her veins that he wondered if she had ever slept in all her life.

However, he said nothing, but merely intimated that if she would leave the room he would take his breakfast.

"An' if you wants anythin' else, Mr. Fitzgerald," she said, going to the door, "you knows your way to the bell as easily as I do to the kitchen," and, with a final chirrup, she crackled out of the room.

Brian drank his coffee, but pushed away the food which was before him, and then looked through The Argus to see the latest reports about the murder case. What he read made his cheek turn even paler than it was, and he could feel his heart beating loudly.

"They've found a clew, have they?" he muttered, rising and pacing restlessly up and down. "I wonder what it can be! I threw that man off the scent last night, but if he suspects me there will be no difficulty in him finding out where I live. Bah! What nonsense I am talking. I am the victim of my own morbid imagination. There is nothing to connect me with the crime, so I need not be afraid of my shadow. I've a good mind to leave town for a time, but if I am suspected that would excite suspicion. Oh, Madge! my darling," he cried, passionately, "if you only knew what I suffer, I know that you would pity me—but you must never know the truth —'Never! Never!" and, sinking into a chair by the window, he covered his face with his hands. After remaining in this position for some minutes, occupied with his own gloomy thoughts, he arose and rang the bell. A faint crackle in the distance announced that Mrs. Sampson had heard, and she soon came into the room, looking more like a cricket than ever. Brian had gone into his bedroom and called out to her from there:

"I am going down to St. Kilda, Mrs. Sampson," he said, "and, probably, will not be back all day."

"Which I 'opes it 'ull do you good," answered the cricket, "for'you've eaten nothin', an' the sea breezes is miraculous for makin' you take to your victuals. My mother's brother, bein' a sailor, an' wonderful for 'is stomach, which, when 'e 'ad done a meal, the table looked as if a low cuss 'ad gone over it."

"A what?" asked Fitzgerald, buttoning his gloves.

To be Continued.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

THE C. P. R. ARBITRATION

TO ADJOURN TO-MORROW FOR THE CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.

Another Stolen Mail-Bag—Vicar-General Routhier Dunn Members of His Congregation From the Pulpit.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—A great deal of pain has been inflicted on Sir John and Lady Macdonald by a number of ill-informed but sympathetic friends who have been writing them letters of condolence on the supposed death of their daughter, Miss Macdonald. The member of Sir John's family who recently died at Kingston was his sister, Miss Louisa Macdonald, and as almost every daily paper in the Dominion contained an obituary notice of the deceased lady and mentioned her relationship to the Premier, it is surprising that so many friends should have made the mistake they have.

In the Canadian Pacific Railway arbitration case yesterday General Anderson, formerly of the United States army and now chief engineer of the Northern Pacific Railway, was examined on behalf of the Government and gave strong testimony as to the durable construction of the British Columbia sections. It was decided yesterday that the arbitrators would sit until Dec. 12 and then adjourn over Christmas holidays. After these the arbitrators will meet for about a week, when all the evidence on behalf of the Government will be concluded except that of Sir Charles Tupper, Sir David Macpherson and Mr. Hamlin, C.E. The case for the Canadian Pacific Railway will be commenced on Jan. 22, and will probably last about three weeks, when the court will adjourn until June 20 to examine Sir Charles Tupper, Sir David Macpherson and Mr. Hamlin. Sir Charles will be called to know when it will be most convenient for him to come over.

In the Exchequer Court yesterday Judge Burbidge rendered judgment in favor of the Crown in several local cases of persons occupying ordnance lands and not paying for the same. The court will sit at Sarnia on Dec. 18.

The Deputy Postmaster-General, while saying the story telegraphed from Sault Ste. Marie about the loss of a mail-bag on Nov. 3 is correct, states that no blame can be attached to the Canadian officials, as the bag was under the care and control of the United States Postoffice. No trace of the bag or clue to the robbers has been found.

Boring for natural gas will shortly be commenced in the vicinity of Billings' Bridge, the machinery now being placed in position.

Some dissatisfaction is said to exist amongst the men working on the Lake Temiscaming Colonization Railway on account of a reduction of wages from $1.25 per day to $1.12½. Some have struck work and a general strike is anticipated.

Vicar-General Routhier created a sensation in the Basilica Sunday morning by calling on those who have been in the habit of borrowing small sums from him on various pleas of sickness in their families, etc., to pay up, as he wanted the money for educational purposes. He said he was aware that some of his debtors had spent the money borrowed from him in drinking, playing cards and living in a manner they could not afford, and he thought it a shame that men receiving salaries of from $700 to $1000 or more should come to borrow from a man who had only $220 a year salary. It is understood that his debtors are mostly members of the civil service.

The Haytian Troubles.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Despatches from the United States Consul-General at Port-au-Prince were received at the State Department yesterday, stating that the Haytian Archbishop, the French Minister and the British Consul-General had made a visit to Cape Haytien in the French ship Brisson for the purpose of conferring with representatives of the revolutionary party at that city as to the best methods of securing peace on the island. The negotiations were altogether ineffectual however as it was impossible to bring the two bodies together, the authorities at Cape Haytien refusing to go on board the French vessel and the committee on that vessel declining to go ashore to confer with the authorities, each showing a decided lack of confidence in the other. The Consul-General also forwarded letters from masters of American vessels at Port-au-Prince protesting against the action of the authorities there in refusing their clearance papers to other ports on the island said to be under blockade.

The Dynamited Chicago Distillery.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—J. D. Lynch, manager of the Shufeldt Co., offers a reward of $25,000 to the person who threw the dynamite in the distillery building for the name of the man who employed him to do the work or such information as will lead to the detection and arrest of the parties responsible for the outrage. The members of the whisky trust ridicule the idea that the attempt to destroy the property was the work, directly or indirectly, of their organization.

Husband and Wife Murdered.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Dec. 11.—Sunday afternoon Jacob Mottweiler was found murdered about a quarter of a mile from his farmhouse and his wife lying unconscious in the stable yard. Mottweiler had been shot and his wife had been hit with an axe. Mrs. Mottweiler is still alive but as yet no statement has been obtained from her. With the Mottweilers lived Wm. Benson, a laborer, and Sallie Snyder, a servant girl. They were arrested and Benson confessed. He said he was engaged to marry Miss Snyder. She was found to be in a delicate condition and this gave rise to a quarrel between himself and the Mottweilers. As he returned from hunting he met Mottweiler and shot him. Coming to the house he found Mrs. Mottweiler milking and slew her on the head with an axe.

THIS COLUMN

Tells about the BARGAINS being Offered at

TURNBULL'S

Mantles and Mantle Cloths. Our Ready-made Mantles and Mantle Cloths are going rapidly. The prices and styles sell them. In our Children's Mantles, we are sold out of some sizes which we are sorry for, as we don't like to miss sales, but as we have already sold all we expected to sell in the whole season, we cannot complain. But we have a lot of ends of good CLOTHS, which we will sell at a sacrifice to fill up the gap, and our mantle cutter will cut and fit these goods free of charge, and explain the best way to make them up. The size s we have in stock to fit children from 6 to 12 years we will clear out very cheap. MANTLE PLUSHES are now much in vogue in the larger cities, but are not much looked for here yet. We think it cannot be possible the ladies have not heard about them but they cannot know how beautiful they make up or there would be a greater demand. We have the Black and Seal Brown in stock.

Dress Goods. We are showing Dress Goods at 10c. a yard, which would be good value at 20c. The way they are selling fairly astonishes us, which shows that the public appreciate genuine bargains. In Fine Goods everybody says we have the nicest stock in town, and what everybody says must be true. What we are going to tell you now is of great importance, and we want you to remember it. Our Dress Goods Remnants have been accumulating faster than we like them to, and we have made up our minds to clear them all out. We will offer everything in the shape of a Dress Goods remnant, plain and fancy, good and bad together, at 15c. a yard. Most of those Goods ranged from 25c to 50c. a yard. They are all laid out on the counter, so come along; first come, first served. And what can you buy more suitable for a Christmas Present for your girls than a new Dress.

Canadian Tweeds. Among a lot of Goods just opened out, we have a line of Canadian Tweeds, bought job. We have marked them 45c. a yard. They are extra heavy weight and made of good wool.

Our Hosiery. Our Hosiery department is filled with the best Goods made in the Province. Many people tell us they find lines with us they cannot get elsewhere. See our heavy make with double knees and heels and another line called "Arctic," it handles as if fulled. There is no need for hand-knitting while these goods are to be had.

White Grey Cottons. The rate our White and Grey Cottons, Sheetings, etc., keep coming in and going out must be a sure indication they are extra good value. Those who have not bought some of the Goods should buy a trial parcel. We know we can save our customers money notwithstanding all the loud talk and flaring advertising which somebody has to pay for, and red flag business. Those wanting genuine bargains, will find the real article at

PRAISED BY MR. BALFOUR.

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID TO THE IRISH CONSTABULARY.

A Motion in the House to Reduce the Irish Police Estimates Negatived—Reinforcements to be Sent to Suakim.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Parliament will be prorogued on Dec. 24.

In the House of Commons last evening Mr. Stanhope, Secretary for War, read a telegram from General Dormer at Cairo to the effect that General Grenfel, commander at Suakim, continued confident of his ability to cope with the Arabs but in the face of repeated offers of reinforcements he would not refuse them. A steamer therefore would leave Suez on Wednesday to convey to Suakim a squadron of the 20th Hussars and 300 men of the Welsh infantry. This would make a total force at Suakim of 6500 men, composed mostly of Egyptians, against 24,000 of the enemy.

Mr. Labouchere asked whether it was true that over 90 per cent. of the Inman line shares were held by Americans, also whether the company received a subsidy for placing its books on the admiralty list of fast cruisers available for operations in time of war.

Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, replied that the Government was aware that a great proportion of the Inman shares were in the hands of American citizens. The contract with the Inman line had been drawn accordingly and differed with those made with other companies, regarding the period during which payment is to be made.

In the debate on the Irish estimates, John Ellis, M. P., for Nottinghamshire, moved to reduce the vote for the Irish police by £10,000. He protested against the Irish constables procuring evidence for The Times and forcing witnesses by threats to appear.

Mr. Dillon stated that in 1843, when the population was over 8,000,000, the cost of the Irish police was only £430,000 yearly; now, when the country was much less disturbed and the population 4,760,000, the police estimates amounted to £1,450,000.

Mr. Balfour denied that the police intimidated any persons to give evidence for The Times. The Government depends upon the use of the constables in effecting legal processes necessary to procure witnesses. He hoped and aimed to restore the relations between the people and the police to the condition of friendly aspect which had existed before it had been perverted by the Parnellites under the pretence of working for the interests of the country. He gladly paid tribute to the discipline and excellence of the Irish constabulary, a body of men to whom the property and civilization of Ireland owe much. (Cheers).

Mr. O'Brien said it was false to say that Irish members of Parliament had ever used their power against the police.

Mr. Shaw-Lefevre (Lib.) deprecated employing the police to depopulate a district by wholesale evictions.

Mr. Balfour contended that it was paradoxical to draw a distinction between individual and wholesale evictions. He moved that the rule be applied.

On a division being taken, Mr. Ellis' motion was rejected, 169 to 100.

Lord Randolph's Vindication.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Lord Randolph Churchill has written a letter in which he refers to the statement made by Mr. Stanhope in the House of Commons, to the effect that Gen. Grenfel would not refuse reinforcements if offered him, as a complete vindication of his recent disclosure of the inadequacy of the present military force at Suakim.

Mr. Gladstone will go to Naples on Dec. 19 to reside in the Villa Rocabelle near Possipollo until the end of February, when he will return at the opening of the season of Parliament.

Lord Sackville is staying with the Earl of Derby at London House.

Mr. Bright passed a fairly good day. He has gained a little strength and his lungs are slightly better.

Evictions Abandoned.

DUBLIN, Dec. 11.—The proposed evictions on the Clanricarde estate have been abandoned.

The Spanish Cabinet.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—The new Cabinet is announced as follows:

Premier—Senor Sagasta.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—Senor Armijo.
Minister of Finance—Senor Gonzalez.
Minister of the Interior—Senor Calderon.
Minister of Justice—Senor Canalejas.
Minister of Commerce—Senor Xiquena.
Minister of War—Gen. Cinchilla.
Minister of Marine—Admiral Arias.
Minister of the Colonies—Senor Becerra.

The Fire Record.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 11.—The Roger elevator at Clearwater was burned Sunday with nearly all its contents—13,000 bushels of grain. Some grain was saved by chopping holes in the sides of the building and letting it run out. Loss, $15,000; insurance, $8000.

BERLIN, Ont., Dec. 11.—Sunday afternoon an incipient fire occurred in a small frame dwelling house on Frederick street occupied by a widow named Smith. It originated from the chimney. The fire was soon extinguished, the most damage being done by water. Loss estimated at $400. The new water system is proving a boon to Berlin.

Jacobs Withering Away.

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—Mr. C. Corneiller, Q.C., paid a visit to Angus Jacobs, the Indian wife murderer, in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary. He found him in a very critical condition and believes that he will die before the appeal to the Supreme Court is adjudicated upon. Mr. Corneiller says that, like every Indian kept in captivity, he is simply withering away, as did those who were incarcerated during the North-West rebellion. Jacobs is employed in the carpenter shop.

Fined for Assault.

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 11.—Patrick Donnell was up before the Police Magistrate yesterday morning charged with having, on Nov. 16 last, assaulted Margaret Ryan at her residence on North-street. He was fined $20 or two months in the Central Prison. A second charge of assault, preferred by John Ryan, husband of the first complainant, resulted in a fine of $5 or two months in the Central Prison. The prisoner pleaded guilty to both charges.

Sent to the Penitentiary.

BERLIN, Ont., Dec. 11.—The young man John Kleeberger, who was arrested last week by Detective Klippert charged with stealing two overcoats and other articles, pleaded guilty yesterday morning before Judge Lacourse, and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary at Kingston.

An Alleged Fire Bug.

SARNIA, Dec. 11.—Wm. Greer, provincial detective, arrived here yesterday and placed in jail Matthew Jones, who is charged with arson in burning a couple of buildings in the Township of Sombra, this county. Jones is said to have done time before.

Burglars at Guelph.

GUELPH, Dec. 11.—Sunday night while the family of Mr. George Butchart, residing on the Waterloo-road, near the Pond Creek, were at church, the house was entered and over $40 in cash taken.

Seized for Debt.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—The Protestant Old Men's Home here has been seized for debt on the building by a [illegible] holder.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Charlton Inquest Again Adjourned—Central Bank Liquidators' Fees.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—It had been expected that the adjourned inquest into the death of Lillie Charlton would have made some substantial progress last night, but the illness of Mrs. Charlton, mother of the unfortunate young woman, and the fact that the report of the post-mortem had not been received in time to permit furnishing the defence with copies caused an adjournment until Dec. 18.

In the Police Court yesterday Joseph Ford was fined $40 and costs for driving off R. P. Gillmore's buggy and smashing it. Ford was drunk at the time. Jim Daly was sent for trial for assaulting Lilly Kelly. Pasquin Rugia, the St. John's Ward stabber, was remanded for a week. His victim, Wm. Young, is unable to leave the hospital. Robert Reinholt, steward of the Turn Verein, was fined $20 and costs for keeping liquor for sale. Wm. White and Ed. Munshaw were each fined $1 and costs for disturbing the Salvation Army at their barracks.

The application of the liquidators of the Central Bank to the Master-in-Ordinary to fix the amount of the remuneration occupied his attention yesterday and was not concluded when the court arose. An extensive affidavit of Mr. W. H. Howland was put in as evidence as to what the liquidators should receive. The affidavit showed that claims to the value of $79,000 had not yet been proved; that there was at the present time $602,719 lying in the Bank of Commerce to the credit of the liquidators; that a million and a half of the claims had been allowed by the Master. Notes of the bank to the extent of $27,322 were yet to be redeemed. Also that half a million dollars of the double liability was still outstanding; a further dividend of 33⅓ per cent. was also suggested. Mr. Goodeham repudiated the suggestion that he had ever intimated his willingness to serve without emolument. The $300 per month allowed each liquidator will be deducted from whatever amount is decided upon.

Lady Macdonald and Mrs. Dewdney were visitors to the city yesterday.

Yesterday, almost opposite St. Lawrence Market, on King-street, a little boy named Fred Nagel was run over by a horse and buggy driven by two ladies. The little fellow sustained a fracture of the left leg.

Hansdorff and Kearney, the two men who were so terribly burned with molten resin at Booth's copper factory on Friday last, are doing nicely at the hospital.

The census of the city will be taken to-morrow.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

An Old Man Killed by a Falling Tree—A Hamilton Lad Loses His Life.

HAMILTON, Dec. 11.—In chambers yesterday morning Judge Sinclair appointed George B. Abrey engineer to examine the Barton toll roads in place of Thomas Munro, the St. Catharines engineer, who was unable to attend owing to sickness.

On Saturday morning an old man named Robert McArthur was struck by a falling tree in the bush near Burlington and had his back broken. He died from the injuries yesterday morning.

On Dec. 1 Frederick Plumridge, a 14-year-old lad who lived with a Mrs. Drysdale at 182 Napier-street, was severely injured by the explosion of a toy cannon, a piece of the iron entering his leg. The boy was taken to the hospital and blood poisoning set in. He died on Saturday.

At the annual meeting of the Hamilton Typographical Union No. 129 on Saturday night Wm. McAndrew was re-elected president, B. Obermeyer secretary and Fred Aldridge treasurer. The reports presented showed the union to be prosperous.

At the Police Court yesterday morning Ezekiel Morton, married, was fined $3 for making a desperate effort to escort Miss Matilda Stevens home from church against her will on the night of Sept. 9.

THE STANLEY.

Arrival at Pictou, N. S., of the New Government Steamer.

HALIFAX, Dec. 10.—The new Government steamer Stanley, for the winter service between Pictou and Prince Edward Island, arrived at Pictou yesterday afternoon, having made the run from Glasgow in 10½ days.

Captain McElhenny reports a rough passage and he found the new ship an excellent sea boat.

Incendiarism at Lapraire.

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—La Prairie has evidently been made the rendezvous of some scoundrel who should spend the rest of his life at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary. Some time last fall anonymous letters were received by different parties in the town, stating that before New Year's the whole village would be devastated by fire, and that the recipients of these reassuring communications had better govern themselves accordingly. Nothing, however, was thought of the matter, people thinking the letters were the work of some crank seeking notoriety, until the serious fire which caused so much damage to Lieut.-Col. Brosseau's property a week or two ago. Another criminal attempt was made on Saturday evening, when the torch of an incendiary was applied to the stable belonging to Mr. McNeil, hotelkeeper. The fiend who had set the fire was scarcely quick enough at his work, and was seized upon as he was leaving the stables, from which the flames were then bursting forth. The author of the crime was, however, a powerful man and, without opening his mouth or uttering a sound, fought like a tiger and succeeded, unfortunately, in getting away, and has not since been seen. This is not the first time that Laprairie has been visited by rascally firebugs. Some years ago a man named Mailloux was arrested in the act of setting fire to a building and condemned to pass several years in the penitentiary. He is now residing in Montreal, and is believed to have had nothing to do with the latest attempts to destroy property.

Agitation Against Canadian Cattle.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Agricultural journals are again agitating against the admission of Canadian cattle, as a counterblast to the American agitation for the admission of United States cattle. It is argued that the admission of Canadian cattle is ruinous to British live stock interests, and the Government is urged to withdraw the concession to Canada, thus placing Canada on an equality with the States. The Live Stock Journal says that the Canadian concession was never intended to refer to fat cattle, the importation of which has now grown into a regular trade. Unless the cattle are slaughtered when debarked the present trade must bring disease and disaster. The friends of Canada point, however, to Canada's freedom from disease and the absence of all proof of Canadian fat or spare cattle bringing disease here.

Justification for Quitting Rome.

ROME, Dec. 11.—The Osservatore Romano declares that the new penal code and other laws would justify the Pope in quitting Rome.

Assaulted at His Own Door.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—Mr. Harvey, flour merchant, King-street, was summoned to his door at 2 a.m. on Sunday and assaulted by three men. Their object was robbery. Mr. Harvey resisted, but received serious injuries and is in a serious condition. No arrests so far. Mr. Harvey had a large sum of money in the house.

PART OF IT IS IN CANADA

REPORT TO THE U. S. SENATE ON THE ST. CLAIR FLATS CANAL.

The United States Chief of Engineers Says a Portion of the Channel Is in the Dominion.

The report of the Chief of Engineers in response to the resolution of inquiry concerning the jurisdiction over the St. Clair Canal was transmitted to the Senate yesterday by Secretary Endicott. The report states that the question of jurisdiction is determined by the position of the boundary line between the United States and Canada. The exercise of jurisdiction by Canada over the exceedingly small portion of the canal to the east of the boundary line could not in any way affect the use or control of the canal by the United States, and it was apparently the recognition of the fact and the desire to benefit the citizens of both countries that prompted the adoption of Article 27 of the treaty of May 8, 1871, between the United States and Great Britain.

The River and Harbor Bill has been completed by the River and Harbor Committee and will be reported to the House early this week. It appropriates in round numbers $11,500,000.

A HAPPY WIFE IN A HAPPY HOME.

The Stories of Matrimonial Infelicity in the White House Denied.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Ever since the Presidential election of Nov. 6 last there have been hints in the American newspapers of disgraceful stories that were widely circulated from mouth to mouth relating to Cleveland's home relations, and which it is now asserted exercised no inconsiderable influence as regards Cleveland's chances for re-election. The newspapers, though they took no notice of them before the election, are now taking up the question and the stories are being promptly denied in every case.

Mrs. Whitney, the wife of one of the most prominent members of Cleveland's cabinet, has permitted an interview with her to be published, and in the course of this says that she is utterly at a loss to understand how such stories as these could possibly gain ground, or even could arise, and she is extremely indignant over the whole matter. As an intimate friend of Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Whitney declares most emphatically that all stories in regard to the alleged matrimonial infelicity at the White House are scandalously false, while on the contrary the President's conjugal relations are now and have always been of the most lovable and affectionate character. Mrs. Cleveland she speaks of as a winsome lady, and a devoted wife, and "Grover Cleveland," she says, "is a perfect gentleman in every respect. The stories about the President getting drunk are false like all the rest. He's not a drinking man and I don't believe he was ever intoxicated in his life, nor is he given to overeating and other bad habits. The President is gentle, considerate, even-tempered and kind to everyone about him, and since he has been in the White House he has never spoken an unkind word to anyone there, much less to the sweet girl he wasso fortunate as to win as his wife."

Mrs. Whitney in hoping that this will be the last of such stories says that since her marriage Mrs. Cleveland has lived an exceedingly open and accessible life and though much in company and every day receiving so many callers and guests, no one has ever yet found her otherwise than a happy wife in a happy home.

Chauncey M. Depew, who is charged by Mrs. Whitney with having at a private dinner told the story of Mrs. Cleveland's going to the theatre one night with Mr. Watterson of Kentucky and that on her return her husband vilely abused her and called her wicked names and finally slapped her face, states that though he told the story he personally did not vouch for it, in fact declared that it was not true. He says in effect that after the dinner, in conversation with some five or six friends, he repeated the story as one he had been told, and said then as he says now that he did not credit it.

SHOT IN THE BACK.

The Birmingham Crowd Had Turned Away When the Deadly Volley Began.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 11.—The coroner's inquest yesterday endeavored to get at the bottom of the facts in Saturday night's massacre. Excitement still runs high and the people are divided over the action of the officers. One remarkable feature is that nearly every man killed was shot in the back, showing that the crowd had turned away when the firing was begun. Postmaster Throckmorton was shot in the lower back through and through. A. D. Bryant was shot through the heart from the rear. Many point to this as very damaging to the officers.

Several funerals took place yesterday afternoon; the postmaster's, Mrs. Hawes', the murdered woman, and little May's. Throckmorton's was the largest and most imposing ever held here.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which Hawes was a member, have telegraphed that they have engaged a detective to work up the case. They believe that Hawes is innocent and that the colored woman, Fanny Bryant, and Albert Patterson murdered and robbed Mrs. Hawes and then killed the children.

Business is going on as usual except that all saloons are closed by order of Col. Jones, commanding the troops, and the only evidence of the trouble remaining is the line of troops and the cannon guarding every approch to the jail. There is still much feeling but it is subdued. No matter who was right or who was wrong in the tragedy of Saturday, that terrible volley has settled all desire of the mob to break down the jail. They will not try it again.

Sheriff Smith is still in jail under arrest and Chief of Police Picard was released on a $10,000 bond yesterday morning.

The French Budget Adopted.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—The Panama Canal Commission held another meeting yesterday. It reported measures which were adopted permitting the company to prolong the period for meeting its obligations. The Commissioners will meet again to-day.

The Chamber of Deputies yesterday adopted the Budget by a vote of 383 to 115. The amount of the sinking fund is fixed at 27,000,000 francs. The members of the Right contended that the estimates were not genuine, alleging that the amount of the expenditures was falsified.

The G. Switchmen's Strike Off.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—At a meeting of the striking switchmen yesterday the strike on the C., B. and Q., so far as the switchmen are concerned, was declared off at this point by a majority vote.

A Valuable Steamer Wrecked.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—The steamer Canquina ran aground in Canquina Bay on the Oregon coast last night and is a total wreck. She was valued at $200,000.

Tamasese Still Shut Up.

AUCKLAND, Dec. 11.—Despatches from Samoa state that the adherents of Mataafas continue to besiege Tamasese, King of Samoa, at Atna. The German counsel has ordered Mataafas to withdraw. A conference of the consuls on the situation has been without any result.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK

of $18,000 WORTH OF GOODS, new choice and fresh, and selling at 50c. on the dollar. We leave it to you to name the prices! We go further! We will absolutely give you goods at your own figures. Bearing in mind that 30 days finishes the sale in Sheppard's old premises, we offer

Kidd foots the Bills.

That is Kidd's privilege and his business. He foots the Jims as well as the Bills. Likewise the Marys and Susans. Kidd's great specialty is footing the feet, in which the feature of low prices stands out prominently. He never denies a No. 7 man a No. 10 boot. Just now he is a sworn enemy of the doctor, for he aims to keep the feet dry and bounce the bills. Give Kidd the shoe man a call. d136

The Municipal Candidates.

It is pretty well settled that the municipal fight will be Denne vs. Stevenson. It is generally conceded that it is the makings of a very pretty contest. Mr. Denne has the backing of the working men of the town, and other support, Mr. Stevenson has the prestige that is gained by long and faithful as well as efficient service. How it will go cannot be foretold. If it could the fun of the contest would be robbed of its interest. Though doubt may exist as to the ultimate result no uncertainty whatever can intervene as to the tremendous bargains given at the great Sheppard bankrupt sale of dry goods and clothing now going on at the old stand. Give gough brothers your votes as the destroyers of high prices.

The Most Enjoyable Yet.

One of the most enjoyable meetings in the history of the Endeavor Society was held last night. A budget of business of a local nature was dispensed with, after which Sergt-Major Rundle gave a reading entitled "The New Church Organ," and was compelled to give as an encore "The Madman." A song entitled "The old doorstep" was rendered by Mr. J. Crane, after which Mr. Rowse gave a recitation and Messrs. Rundle and Crane a vocal duet. The house then divided for an open debate on the subject "Resolved, that Anticipation is preferable to Participation." Mr. Barry and Miss Ivison took the leadership of the affirmative, while Mr. Rowse and Miss Price captained the negative. A spirited debate followed in which some good points were brought to bear on the subject, the ladies doing a lion's share. At the close of the debate the chairman announced his decision in favor of the affirmative by three points majority. The subject for debate Monday, 24th December, was discussed and Money vs. Brains was decided on for that date.

Officers of the National League.

The Peterborough branch of the Irish National League met in the Murray-st. school last evening, when the officers for the coming year were elected as follows:—

HON. PRESIDENT.—Mr. J. W. Fitzgeraid.
PRESIDENT.—Mr. Thos. Cahill.
1st VICE PRESIDENT.—Mr. C. J. Leonard.
2nd VICE PRESIDENT.—Mr. John P. Hurley.
3rd VICE PRESIDENT.—Mr. C. Halpin.
TREASURER.—Mr. C. Corkery.
SECRETARY.—Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle.

The President, Mr. Cahill, in taking the chair made a stirring address on behalf of the cause. He said that, so far he was concerned, he was determined to give every Irishman in the town and county, and every Irishwoman too, an opportunity of subscribing their mite so that when the time came, as he hoped it soon would, that they enjoyed the same privileges in Ireland as are enjoyed in Canada, they could say that they had assisted to bring that desirable state of affairs about. He assured his hearers that they need not be afraid of their loyalty being called in question because they were home rulers. If there was any disloyalty in it he would not be present, as he was thoroughly loyal Canadian, and if this fair Canada of ours was invaded he would not stop to enquire who they were or where they came from, but would go to the front at once to oppose them. Some of them might not think he would make a good soldier, but he thought he could stop a bullet as well as the most of them Addresses were made also by Messrs. Fitzgeraid, Dolan, O'Meara and others and some general business was gone through with. The resolutions which were sent with the donations to the Parnell defence fund will be published with the list of the subscribers.

CONFESSION OF A YOUNG CRIMINAL

A 15-year-old Boy Committed Murder to Conceal His Crime of Robbery.

LAREDO, Tex., Dec. 11.—The last chapter in a remarkable story of crime was made public here last night. On Wednesday morning Pablo Ornelas, a 15-year-old boy in the employ of L. P. Bryant, shot and killed a Mexican named Nicholas Tirjas in Mr. Bryant's house. The Bryant family was absent at the time, and the boy said that Tirjas and a companion had entered the house and were robbing it, when he discovered them and fired. One of the robbers escaped. The Bryant family had been absent for several weeks, and the plucky action of the boy made him a hero. Tirjas had been shot three times, but lived until the police arrived, and with his dying breath accused the boy of murder.

Only one policeman believed the story and he made an investigation that culminated in a tremendous sensation. After securing the most complete evidence he arrested the boy last night, and two hours after the arrest the lad made a confession to the police and a number of city officials.

He said that during the absence of his employer he had robbed the house of a large sum of money and jewelry. He realized that the robbery would be discovered at once on the return of the family. He determined to execute a horrible crime to free himself from the charge of robbery. He invited Tirjas to the house and while the unsuspecting victim was sitting in a room Ornelas walked behind him and shot him through the head. Then he fired two more bullets through his body, broke open a window to give color to his story of robbery and gave the alarm. He did not believe the Mexican would live until the arrival of the police, and the escape of the imaginary robber would account for the disappearance of the property. All the stuff was recovered to-day, where Ornelas had pledged or lost it.

"Stock-taking time" among the Ladies comes around as regularly as it does with businessmen, for it is quite as necessary that their shelves should be overhauled and replenished as those of the shop-keepers.

We, therefore, commend to your considerations, our present compact and carefully selected stock of CROCKERYWARE consisting of

TEA SETS, DINNER SETS, TOILET SETS &C.

All these Goods we can sell at the closest margin upon original cost. The Stock this season is very complete, and embraces

The Prettiest Patterns, Newest Shapes and Finest Ware.

If you are in need of anything in this line we respectfully solicit your orders.

They Must Go.!

Experience in past years has taught us that it is a big blunder to keep goods from one season to another even if the goods are sold at less than cost. "Turn the money over" we think is the correct idea. We began the season with a fresh new stock of imported mantles marked at close cash prices. We bought largely and have a large stock. Still they must go, let the price be what it may. You will get the benefit and we shall be glad to give you a bargain in a mantle for yourself or your friend.

It is our earnest prayer that he may be the means in God's hands of saving many boys." A social was arranged for, to be held in the W.C.T.U. Under a Horse's Feet.

Last evening about half past seven Herbert Kendry and a friend were driving slowly up George-st., the horse being at a walk almost, and had just reached the north crossing over George-st., at Simcoe-st., when John Wylie, who was crossing the street and looking the opposite direction from that in which the horse was coming, was knocked down by the horse. When Wylie fell young Kendry stopped his horse immediately, and if Wylie had exerted himself he could easily have rolled out from in under the horse's feet and escape injuries. As it was, however, he lay under the horse's feet and the animal tramped on him several times. He was picked up and carried into Ormond & Walsh's drug store, and Dr. Kincaid summoned to attend to his wounds. The calf of his leg was badly bruised by the horse's hoof and his fingers were crushed, but no bones were broken and Wylie may consider himself lucky.

THE FIRST MUNICIPAL ELECTION MEETING HELD.

The Labor Men Discuss Matters Generally—The Collegiate Institute and School Board—No Objections to Mr. Stevenson—A new School Board as well as Council—The Councillors' Nomination next Week.

The workingmen turned out in good numbers to the meeting called last night for the purpose of nominating a labor ticket for municipal honors. The gathering was not as large as some expected, but it was nevertheless representative of the labor party. It was shortly after eight when President Rose, of the Trades and Labor Council, called the meeting to order.

MR. ROSE said he would explain why the meeting had been called, and that was for the purpose of making a few changes in their representatives, not only in the council, but in the school board. It was not known definitely, he said, whether Mayor Stevenson was going to offer himself for re-election or not, but he hoped not. Mr. Stevenson had been in the Mayor's chair for three years and he thought he should now step down and out. It was his opinion that Mr. Stevenson's friends had an object in placing him in that chair. There was that institution on the hill, the Collegiate Institute, and as chairman of the School Board he objected to Mr. Stevenson. There were not, the chairman said, many workingmen who wanted the institution at all, as none of them could send their children there. There was some wiggling about it now, and they should give it a few good kicks and out it would go. The workingmen should in every ward. There were four elected and two appointed by the council, and if they sent six new men to the board next year that would change its complexion considerably. He referred to the appointment of Sergt-Major Rundle last year, who he said was paid $300 a year—more than most working made—for playing soldier with the boys and girls. This was for exercise, but if they would take them out to a wood pile in the morning they would get good exercise. (Laughter.) If the workingmen went at it the right way they could change the complexion of the Board. Mr. Dumble had said at the last meeting that it was above the dignity of the pupils of the Collegiate Institute to pass through the common school children. He thought for a little man this was a very big piece of impudence. He said he had just given his views, and he would give any one else present an opportunity to make any remarks.

MR. HENRY DENNE upon rising to come forward was greeted with applause. Mr. Denne said he came before them not as a public speaker but as brother ratepayer. He agreed with much the previous speakers had said with reference to school board and said the statement that had been credited to Mr. Dumble was true. He was sorry that there were not more there so that they could put their heads together to elect the right men to the council.

MR. GEO. BALL said as a member of the Trades and Labor Council he could give his opinion bearing on the object for which the meeting had been called. He said that it was a custom to work many things usually by caucus meetings. He said he was opposed to and that was the object of the meeting that evening. In speaking of Mayor Stevenson he said he had nothing to say but words of praise. Mr. Stevenson was a gentleman and they did not intend to fight him. He (Mr. Stevenson) did not for the past four or five months intend to run for the chair, but a certain clique had found that Mr. Denne was going to run they wanted to bring out their strongest man to defeat him if possible. There was one thing in which he considered the representatives of the town of Peterborough had never missed an opportunity to insult them in, and that was the importing of men to fill positions which local men could fill. He had asked why this was, and had been told that they wanted men of experience. He had been away and had often found Peterborough men occupying good positions. They could point with pride to a Peterborough man who was one of the best detectives on the Toronto force. The town would not attempt to see what was in their own material. He would not speak of the School Board, as he had not studied the matter, but he had noticed that they had to go outside of the county to get an inspector, and he expected if they wanted a pound-keeper they would go somewhere else for him. It was not the heavy propecty owners who paid the taxes, for if he had a house he would see that his tenant paid the taxes, and if he had a store he would see that the customer paid the taxes in the price of the goods he they great or small. It was the consumer who had to pay for it. The workingmen, he said, proposed to nominate men for office who would take their rights into consideration. He had nothing against Mr. Stevenson, but he thought one honor sat heavy enough on one man. He believed he would support Mr. Stevenson for Parliament, but could not for Mayor. They proposed to nominate a mayor, and councillors for each ward, and as the town council had the appointment of two of the school representatives, if they got a majority in the council, they could get a School Board of their own mind as well.

A COUNCILLOR SPEAKS.

MR. W. H. MOORE, in response to calls of "Moore, Moore," came forward and made his bow. He said he was pleased to see such a meeting called to discuss the public matters of the town, and it was exactly his opinion that they should be so discussed. He had moved in the Council that the nominations be held in the evening, as he thought it a matter of paramount interest that the workingmen and ratepayers should hear how their representatives had done their duty. He had no desire to represent the town if the ratepayers said they had a better man, and he would step down and out. He had always endeavored to do his duty as a Councillor, and said he was glad to see the workingmen taking an interest in the election, as it was only right that they should be represented, not only in the Council, but in the legislative halls, for the labor question was the most important in this and every other country. Mr. Moore explained the action the Council had taken in reference to the Collegiate Institute, and said the Council had only objected to placing on the roll for one year an expenditure which was to benefit future generations. He said that the School Board had absolute control of certain expenditure. It demanded, and the Council had to comply with that demand. One-third of the taxes was paid to the School Board, which was an uncontrollable expenditure to the Council. He concluded by again stating that he was pleased at the meeting and the interest evinced in public affairs.

MR. ADAM DAWSON inquired if Mr. Moore could tell the meeting why no attention was paid to a petition signed by 600 ratepayers asking the appointment of a local man to a certain office.

MR. MOORE said he did not object to this inquiry. The ratepayers were supposed to repose a certain amount of confidence in their councillors and to allow them to act according to the best of their judgment. He then explained how it was that an outside man had been appointed as Chief of Police.

MR. JAMES BOGUE asked if the Council intended to consult the ratepayers before granting bonuses.

MR. MOORE in reply said he was not in sympathy with granting bonuses at all and had voted against every bonus since he had been in the Council. The only bonus he would favor would be the exclusion from taxation of the working machinery, for he thought any manufacturing concern that wanted a large money bonus must be a poor one.

MR. JOHN MCNAUGHTON stepped forward amid some applause and said he would reply to Mr. Moore. He referred to the way he had been treated at the labor picnic, where the chairman left the platform after the Mayor, M. P's. and city fathers had spoken. "God had given them the dictionary and grammar," he said, "and me the common sense." (Laughter.) If the workingmen didn't who would? Not Mr. Moore. (More laughter.) He wanted workingmen to speak and find out about matters, and said they were too much led by men like his friend Mr. Moore. He thanked the Lord he didn't care for any man as long as he paid 100 cents on the dollar. He then referred to the appointment of the Chief of Police and concluded by stating that he was going to have a meeting of his own in the Opera House to discuss matters.

Councillor LANGFORD was called forth from a corner by cries of his name. He said he did not come there for the purpose of speaking. What he had done in the council they all knew and he was prepared if re-elected to do the same. If the people of the fourth ward did not approve of his course they could say so.

MR. E. C. HILL was the next speaker. He said he was perhaps the oldest resident of Peterborough in the hall as he had lived here about 38 years. He said he was much given to speaking about the steam machine for manufacturing dudes and know-nothings at the expense of the workingmen. A workingman could not send his children there, and, therefore, they should not assess the laboring people to allow a few favored people to send their children to the Institute. He also referred to the appointment of a Chief of Police and also to the Board of Health, which he held was of no use to the town whatever.

MR. J. D. BAPTIE was called upon but said he should not be called upon as he had no record to give an account of as he was not a member of the council.

A VOICE—But you will be.

MR. BAPTIE—If I am I will endeavour to discharge my duties well.

MR. ADAM DAWSON said he objected to what Mr. Hill had said. He thought the COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE WAS A BENEFIT

to every poor man, and said he would be sorry to see it go. The rich man could do without it and be glad to get rid of it, as he could send his children away to a college and pay no taxes. There were many young men who owed the positions they held to the education they had secured at the Institute.

MR. HILL repeated some of his arguments and said he did not think it benefitted any man's son to go their to learn Latin, euclid, Constantinople—(laughter)—and the rest of it. A druggist had told him that a fourth book boy was eligible for a drug clerk, and that was a business in which education was most essential.

CHAIRMAN ROSE said he must disagree with Mr. Dawson, although he was a working man. It was Mr. Dumble's intention to take the Institute away from the rest of the schools to some nice park where the pupils would be by themselves. The Government grant, he said, was a paltry sum and was getting less every year, so that they would soon have to support the Institute unaided. It was their duty to give their children an education and they could do so without this. He said that if they gave a boy a good, sound, English education, and if there was anything in him he would show it. There was not one in a hundred workingmen got a benefit, and that was one reason why they should not put their hands in their pockets to support that Institute.

THE NOMINATION.

MR. GEO. BALL said there was no one who felt the want of an education more than he did and no one who would go further to give a laboring man an education. The standard in the public schools was now so high that if a boy passed through it, if there was anything in him he could study himself. The field was open to him. He made a few more remarks on this line, and said he would like to see the nominations proceeded with, and he moved that Mr. Henry Denne be the workingmen's candidate for Mayoralty for the coming year.

MR. ADAM DAWSON seconded the nomination.

MR. W. J. MINORE said before the motion was put he would like to say a few words. He said, as he understood it, if the workingmen favored this resolution it would certainly be very inconsistent. He asked them if any employer of labor, having a skillful, faithful workman in his employ for thirteen years, would be justified in discharging that man just because he had been thirteen years in his employment? He had listened to all the speakers and had not heard one complaint except that he had been Mayor for thirteen years. Was that any reason for not supporting him? He did not know whether Mr. Stevenson was going to run or not but if he did he was going to have his vote and hardest work. If he was not going to run again, then have Mr. Denne. "If Mr. Stevenson does stand" said Mr. Minore, "let us vote for the man who is the true workingmen's friend and who is working for the interest of the town."

CHAIRMAN ROSE said there was a decided objection to Mr. Stevenson because he was chairman of the school board. Mr. Stevenson had said last year he would not run this year, and if it was on honor he thought it should be distributed. He had but he objected on account of his other positions.

MR. JOHN IRWIN said he had nothing to say against Mr. Deene or Mr. Stevenson. He had been a workingman all his life and had often felt that they had not taken a proper interest in these matters. If they were going to nominate a candidate why not have a representative workingman, run one and put him in? Mr. Denne or Mr. Stevenson were not workingmen and surely there was a workingman in town who was capable of representing them.

MR. JAS. BOGUE said he had no objection to Mr. Stevenson. That gentleman said he would not run again, and when Mr. Denne was proposed, a certain ring thought this would spoil a ring in a certain store and they were now trying to bring Mr. Stevenson out. Mr. Denne was a man against whom nothing could be said and he thought Mr. Stevenson had positions enough.

MR. MCNAUGHTON said he had sat with Mr. Denne in the Council and said he never did any wire pulling, but was a sort of Jack Blunt. The speaker said he was going to support Mr. Deene, and said he opposed Mr. Stevenson because he was chairman of the School Board and Town Trust and had an interest in the gas company and water works.

MR. WESLEY MILLAR did not wish an impression that it was for any mean work that Mr. Stevenson was being opposed, but just because they thought it better for a change.

MR. HILL and the Chairman said no such impression should go out.

MR. BALL said that the workingmen were not in opposition to Mr. Stevenson. That gentleman did not wish to stand, and if he did it was for the good of a clique. He did not think, however, that Mr. Stevenson would run after that meeting.

MR. DENNE said that when a delegation had waited on him he had gone and seen Mr. Stevenson, who said if a largely signed petition was sent to him he might run, and would let him (Mr. D.) know on Monday. He had not done this and had never seen him. Three months ago Mr. Stevenson, he said, had come to him and begged him to take the chair from him, but he (Mr. D.) refused, as the business of the year was over. They were the best of friends and he hoped always would be.

MR. THOS. MCGRATH favored asking Mr. Stevenson, who had been their friend so long, to present their grievances and if he refused then select his next best man. He also favored, if they brought out an opposition candidate to Mr. Stevenson, the bringing out of a workingman.

The Chairman then put the motion and it was carried amid applause.

The meeting then adjourned until next Monday night, when the councillors will be nominated.

THE DEBATE Canada vs. United States will come off in the George-st. Methodist school room on Monday evening, Dec. 17th. Full programme in addition. An enjoyable evening promised. Silver collection.

Independence Triumphs.

The open meeting of the St. Peter's Literary Society which was held in the library of the Murray-st. school last evening was attended by a large number, several members from other literary and debating societies being present and apparently enjoyed the debate. Dr. Brennan, President, was in the chair. The debate on the desirability and merits of Imperial Federation, Annexation and Independence proved to be a good one and was interesting. The exponents of the three heads were: Imperial Federation, Messrs. J. Sheehy and R. Henry, annexation, Mr. John O'Meara, Independence, Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle. The president would not give a decision on the debate, but left it for the audience to decide, with the result that Imperial Federationists were in the slim minority and Independence carried the day. A short musical programme was then rendered, Miss Annie Dunn gave a delightful vocal solo and was followed by Mr. M. Tierney with a song in fine voice. Miss O'Brien also gave a vocal solo and Misses Dunn and McCabe gave a pleasing duet. Miss Ealand presided at the piano during the evening. This will be the last open meting of this society this season.

THE MAYORALTY.

A largely signed requisition was presented to Mr. James Stevenson to-day asking to again be a candidate for Mayor. Mr. Stevenson, though reluctant to spare the necessary time, consented to do so. His formal reply to the requisition will be published.

THE COURT OF SESSIONS

Opened by Judge Weller—The Grand Jurymen's Charge.

The County Court of Sessions opened at the court house at one p.m. this afternoon before Judge Weller. There was a good attendance in the gallery, a great many being under the impression that the Greenfield case would come up this afternoon. Mr. G. W. Holmes, of Toronto, was the only lawyer present from a distance.

At one o'clock sharp the grand jurymen were sworn in as follows:—Wm. Brownscombe, Philip Crowe, Richard Cosgrove, James Clatworthy, Johnston Carey, Jeremiah Chase, Sylvester Fife, Alex. Gillespie, Patrick Hogan, R. J. Kidd, Richard Lillico, Wm. Lumsden, Geo. Lancaster, H. S. McDonald, Matthew Nicholl, Robt. James, James Stothart and Geo. Varty. Mr. H. S. McDonald was elected foreman.

THE JUDGE'S ADDRESS TO THE JURY.

Judge WELLER then proceeded to charge the jury. He said the list of cases handed him by the sheriff was rather more than was customary. There were four persons imprisoned in gaol awaiting trial. One was on a charge of forgery, but, he said, in that case there would be no bill, as the County Attorney was of the opinion that it should not be tried in this court. He enumerated the other three cases which would require their consideration—one of a man for larceny, another of John Greenfield for assaulting a constable with intent to kill, and the third for larceny. He explained to them the nature of a larceny, and dwelt on their duties as grand jurymen in considering them. He referred to confinement of lunatics in our gaol and said, as he had often said before, that the gaol was not a proper place for a person of unsound mind.

After receiving his honor's charge the jury retired.

Besides the three criminal cases there are there civil actions to be tried by a jury and one non-jury case.

An appeal from a police court conviction at Bridgenorth was the first business taken up, and was held over.

Richardson vs. Farquhar was the first case called.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

"A low cuss!" replied the landlady, in surprise at his ignorance, "as I've read in 'Oly Writ, as 'ow John the Baptist was partial to 'em, not that I think they'd be very fillin', tho', to be sure, 'e 'ad a sweet tooth, and ate 'oney with 'em."

"Oh! you mean locusts," said Brian, now enlightened.

"An' what else?" asked Mrs. Sampson, indignantly; "which, tho' not bein' a scholard, I speaks English I 'opes, my mother's second cousin avin' 'ad first prize at a spellin' bee, tho' 'e died early through brain fever, 'avin' crowded 'is 'ead over much with the dictionary."

"Dear me!" answered Brian mechanically. "How unfortunate." He was not listening to Mrs. Sampson's remarks, but was thinking of an arrangement which Madge had made, and which he had forgotten till now.

"Mrs. Sampson," he said, turning round at the door, "I am going to bring Mr. Frettiby and his daughter to have a cup of afternoon tea here, so you might have some ready."

"You 'ave only to ask and to 'ave," answered Mrs. Sampson, hospitably, with a crackle of all her joints. "I'll make the tea, sir, an' also some of my own pertickler cakes, bein' a special kind I 'ave, which my mother showed me 'ow to make, 'avin' been taught by a lady as she nussed thro' the scarlet fever, tho' bein' of a weak constitootion, she died soon arter, bein' in the 'abit of contractin' any disease she might chance on."

As soon as Fitzgerald had gone Mrs. S. went over to the window and watched him as he walked slowly down the street—a tall, handsome man, of whom any woman would be proud.

"What an awful thing it are to think 'e'll be a corpse some day," she chirped cheerily to herself, "tho' of course bein' a great swell in 'is own place, 'e'll 'ave a nice airy vault, which ud be far more comfortable than a close, stuffy grave, even tho' it 'as a tombstone an' v'lets over it. Ah, now! Who are you, impertinence?" she broke off, as a stout man in a light suit of clothes crossed the road and rang the bell, "a pullin' at the bell as if it were a pump 'andle."

As the gentleman at the door, who was none other than Mr. Gorby, did not hear her, he, of course, did not reply, so she hurried down the stairs, crackling with anger at the rough usage her bell had received.

Mr. Gorby had seen Brian go out, and deeming it a good opportunity to prosecute inquiries, had lost no time in making a start.

"You nearly tored the bell down," said the fiery cricket, as she presented her thin body and wrinkled face to the view of the detective.

"You nearly tored the bell down."

"I'm very sorry," answered Gorby, meekly. "I'll knock next time."

"Oh, no you won't," said the landlady, tossing her head, "me not 'avin' a knocker, an' your 'and a-scratchin' the paint off the door, which it hain't been done over six months by my sister-in-law's cousin, which 'e is a painter, with a shop in Fitzroy, an' a wonderful heye to color."

"Does Mr. Fitzgerald live here?" asked Mr. Gorby quietly.

"He do," replied Mrs. Sampson, "but 'e's gone out, an' won't be back till the arternoon, which any messidge 'ull be delivered to 'im punctual on 'is arrival."

"I'm glad he's not in," said Mr. Gorby. "Would you allow me to have a few moments' conversation?"

"What is it?" asked the cricket, her curiosity being roused.

"I'll tell you when we get inside," answered Mr. Gorby.

The cricket looked at him with her sharp little eyes, and seeing nothing disreputable in him, led the way upstairs, crackling loudly the whole time. This so astonished Mr. Gorby that he cast about in his own mind for an explanation of the phenomena.

"Wants oiling about the joints," was his conclusion, "but I never heard anything like it, and she looks as if she'd snap in two, she's that brittle."

Mrs. Sampson took Gorby into Brian's sitting, and, having closed the door, sat down and prepared to hear what he had to say for himself.

"I 'ope it ain't bills," she said. "Mr. Fitzgerald 'avin' money in the bank, and everythin' respectable like a gentleman as 'e is, tho', to be sure, your bill might come down on him unbeknown, 'e not 'avin' kept it in mind, which it ain't everybody as 'ave sich a good memory as my aunt on my mother's side, she 'avin' bin famous for 'er dates like a 'istory, not to speak of 'er multiplication tables and the numbers of people's 'ouses."

"I am an insurance agent," he said rapidly, so as to prevent any interruption by the cricket; "and Mr. Fitzgerald wants to insure his life in our company. Before doing so I want to find out if he is a good life to insure; does he live temperately? keep early hours? and, in fact, all about him."

"I shall be 'appy to answer any inquiries which may be of use to you, sir," replied Mrs. Sampson; "knowin', as I do 'ow good a insurance is to a family should the 'ead of 'it be taken off unexpected, leavin' a widder, which, as I know, Mr. Fitzgerald is a goin' to be married soon, an' I 'opes 'e'll be 'appy, tho' thro' it I lose a lodger as 'as allays paid regler, an' be'aved like a gentleman."

"Does he keep good hours?" said Mr. Gorby.

"Allays in afore the clock strikes twelve," answered the landlady; "tho' to be sure, I uses it as a figger of speech, none of the clocks in the 'ouse strikin' but one, which is bein'-mended, 'avin' broke through overwindin'."

"Is he always in before 12?" asked Mr. Gorby, keenly disappointed at this answer.

Mrs Sampson eyed him waggishly, and a smile crept over her wrinkled little face.

"Young men, not bein' old men," she replied, cautiously, "and sinners not bein' saints, it's not nattral as latch keys should be made for ornament instead of use, and Mr. Fitzgerald bein' one of the 'andsomest men in Melbourne, it ain't to be expected as 'e should let 's latch key git rusty, tho', 'avin' a good moral character, 'e uses it with moderation."

"But I suppose you are generally asleep when he comes in late?" said the detective; "so you can't tell what hour he comes home?"

"Not as a rule," assented Mrs. Sampson; "bein' a 'eavy sleeper, and much disposed for bed, but I 'ave 'eard 'im come in arter 12, the last time bein' Thursday week."

"Ah!" Mr. Gorby drew a long breath, for Thursday week was the night when the murder was committed.

"Bein' troubled with my 'ead," said Mrs. Sampson, "thro' 'avin' been out in the sun all day a-washin', I did not feel so partial to my bed that night as in general, so went down to the kitchen with the intent of getting a unseen poultice to put at the back of my 'ead, it being calculated to remove pain, as was told to me, when a nuss, by a doctor in the horspital, 'e now being in business for hisself, at Geelong, with a large family, 'avin' married early. Just as I was leavin' the kitchen I 'eard Mr. Fitzgerald a-comin' in, and, turnin' round, looked at the clock, that 'avin' been my custom when my late 'usband came in the early mornin', I bein' a preparin' 'is meal."

"And the time was?" asked Mr. Gorby, breathlessly.

"Five minutes to 2 o'clock," replied Mrs. Sampson.

Mr. Gorby thought for a moment.

Cab was hailed at 1 o'clock—started for St. Kilda about ten minutes past—reached grammar school, say at twenty-five minutes past—Fitzgerald talks five minutes to cabman, making it half-past—say, he waited ten minutes for other cab to turn up, makes it twenty minutes to 2—it would take another twenty minutes to get to East Melbourne—and five minutes to walk up here—that makes it five minutes past 2 instead of before—confound it! "Was your clock in the kitchen right?" he asked, aloud.

To be Continued.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

Mantles and Mantle Cloths are going rapidly. The prices and styles sell them. In our Children's Mantles, we are sold out of some sizes which we are sorry for, as we don't like to miss sales, but as we have already sold all we expected to sell in the whole season, we cannot complain. But we have a lot of ends of cloth CLOTHS, which we will sell at a sacrifice to fill up the gap, and our mantle cutter will cut and fit these goods free of charge, and explain the best way to make them up. The size we have in stock to fit children from 6 to 12 years we will clear out very cheap. MANTLE PLUSHES are now much in vogue in the larger cities, but are not much looked for here yet. We think it cannot be possible the ladies have not heard about them but they cannot know how beautiful they make up or there would be a greater demand. We have the Black and Seal Brown in stock.

Dress Goods. We are showing Dress Goods at 10c. a yard, which would be good value at 20c. The way they are selling fairly astonishes us, which shows that the public appreciate genuine bargains. In Fine Goods everybody says we have the nicest stock in town, and what everybody says must be true. What we are going to tell you now is of great importance, and we want you to remember it. Our Dress Goods Remnants have been accumulating faster than we like them to, and we have made up our minds to clear them all out. We will offer everything in the shape of a Dress Goods remnant, plain and fancy, good and bad together, at 15c. a yard. Most of these Goods ranged from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are all laid out on the counter, so come along; first come, first served. And what can you buy more suitable for a Christmas present for your girls than a new Dress.

Canadian Tweeds. Among a lot of Goods just opened out, we have a line of Canadian Tweeds, bought job. We have marked them 45c. a yard. They are extra heavy weight and made of good wool.

Our Hosiery. Our Hosiery department is filled with the best Goods made in the Province; Many people tell us they find lines with us they cannot get elsewhere. See our heavy make with double knees and heels and another line called "Arctic," it handles as if tulled. There is no need for hand knitting while these goods are to be had.

White Grey Cottons. The rate our White and Grey Cottons, Sheetings, etc., keep coming in and going out must be a sure indication they are extra good value. Those who have not bought some of the Goods should buy a trial parcel. We know we can save our customers money notwithstanding all the loud talk and flaring advertising which somebody has to pay for, and red flag business. Those wanting genuine bargains, will find the real article at

MANITOBA CROSSING CASE

THE SUPREME COURT'S DECISION LOOKED FOR ON FRIDAY.

Two Wrecks on the Cape Breton Coast Reported to the Marine Department—Application for a Land Grant.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—In the Canadian Pacific Railway arbitration case yesterday Major Wilton, late of the Confederate army and now Chief Engineer on the Tennessee Railway, and Captain McBee, Superintendent of the South Carolina Railway, were examined and gave evidence in favor of the Government's contention that the British Columbia sections were well built.

The Marine Department was advised yesterday of the wreck of the schooner Blanchet of Newfoundland at Schooner Point Head, C. B., and of the brigantine Vista of Newfoundland at Cranberry Head, C. B. The collector of Customs at North Sydney has been authorized to assist the crew of the latter to reach home.

The Supreme Court will meet for the delivery of judgments on Friday, when it is expected a decision will be given in the Manitoba railway crossing case.

Rev. Dr. Sutherland of Toronto yesterday made application to the Minister of the Interior for a land grant in aid of the Methodist mission at Qu'Appelle.

Fourteen tenders were received for the dredging work at the Sault Ste. Marie Canal, but no award has yet been made.

The Minister of Justice has informed the Attorney-General of Québec that the Federal Executive will not grant immunity from punishment to Maguire, Landry, or any of the other witnesses who refused to answer certain questions put to them while under examination before the Quebec boodle commission.

CONFISCATING BARBED WIRE.

Farmers on the St. Lawrence not so Sharp as They Thought They Were.

GANANOQUE, Dec. 12.—The farmers living near the St. Lawrence River seems to have discovered that owing to the "combine" among Canadian manufacturers, barb wire for fencing is somewhat cheaper in New York State than in Ontario, and the temptation to invest hard-earned wealth in the American article across the border has proved irresistible. Saving 1½ cents a pound, which amounts to $7 on a 4-wire fence 100 rods long, was quite an item and with 12½ cents per rod bonus paid by the township, helped materially to build the fence. But it was too good a thing to keep, and some one went in for the bonus on information and gave the thing away.

The result is that if all stories be true the Gananoque Customs Collector has scooped in over $700 from the luckless farmers and is netting his net for others.

WINNIPEG'S MAYORALTY.

Ryan Elected by a Majority of 235 Over Mulvey—The Vote.

WINNIPEG, Dec 12.—The vote for Mayor yesterday resulted as follows:

Ryan	1551
Mulvey	1316
Majority for Ryan	235

These aldermen were elected;
Ward 1—Ross, Lewis.
Ward 2—Mackenzie, Hargrave.
The other aldermen were elected by acclamation.

Judge Sinclair on British Connection.

HAMILTON, Dec. 12.—In addressing the grand jury at the opening of the Wentworth County Court yesterday Judge Sinclair referred to the Governor-General's recent visit and said that he hoped the relations which existed between Canada and the mother country might long continue as at present; and, unless some such difficulty shall arise as that which severed the American colonies from the British crown, he was sure that such relations would continue to exist. If Canada is treated in the same way in the future as it has been during the benign reign of Queen Victoria there is no danger that any rupture of the existing relations shall take place. In absence of any such injustice on the part of the mother country as that which caused the separation of the American colonies, it should be a long day before Canadians shall detach themselves from the mother country which has treated them so well in the past, and will, he hoped, treat them as well in the future.

Fatal Fire in a New Brunswick Prison.

DORCHESTER, N. B., Dec. 12.—Fire was discovered Monday night in the quarters occupied by Deputy Warden Keefe, who, with his wife, was in bed at the time. Both reached the bedroom door when they fell, overcome by smoke. Dr. Church was promptly called, but Mr. Keefe was too far gone and he died soon after. Mrs. Keefe lies in a critical condition. The fire was prevented from spreading to the prison wings by the prompt and energetic action of the prison officers.

Scott Act Fines at Oshawa.

OSHAWA, Dec. 12.—Police Magistrate Grierson has fined J. W. Ray of the Queen's and Pat Creighton of the Central Hotel $50 each. License Inspector John Ferguson prosecuted.

Thorold Strikes Gas.

THOROLD, Dec. 12.—A strong vein of gas was struck at the gas well here yesterday at a depth of about 2400 feet.

Natural Gas at St. Kitts.

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 12.—While drilling at the experimental gas well on John H. Broderick's farm a short distance west of this city last night a pocket of natural gas was struck at a depth of 312 feet. The find has caused a sensation. The vein will be immediately piped but the drillers have decided to bore deeper as they feel confident a large vein will be found.

THE EAST AFRICA PUZZLE.

COUNT BISMARCK'S EXPOSITION OF HIS PAPA'S POLICY.

The International Conference on the Slave Trade Dropped—The Pope's Rebuke—Other Transatlantic Advices.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—Count Herbert Bismarck's exposition of the Government's policy in East Africa was made to the Foreign Committee of the Reichstag yesterday. On request of Count Herbert the committee will maintain secrecy regarding his statement and the subsequent debate. Despite the attempt at secrecy, however, it has transpired that Count Herbert declared that the Government would take measures for the permanent security of the German possessions in East Africa, but it was not in a position to submit a positive plan demanding the attention of the committee. He trusted that the Reichstag would also show sympathy with commercial enterprises in East Africa, an expression which was taken to mean that the Government would incline to support the East African Company's volunteer land force project. Count Herbert further states that the number of the insurgents was nothing like so large as supposed. He advocated Lieut. Wissman's going to the relief of Emin Bey, saying that the funds required for the expedition bore no proportion to the immense amounts lavished by other nations upon similar enterprises. The impression left by his statement is that the Government plans are not matured and that Prince Bismarck is still corresponding with Lord Salisbury regarding the land operations. Lieut. Wissman's preparations will be completed in a week. He proposes to start for Zanzibar in a fortnight and has presented a report to the Emperor on the route and prospects of the expedition.

The international conference on the slave trade has been dropped mainly because of the efforts on the part of the Catholic leaders to dominate the Congress. They insisted that the Pope should nominally preside. The majority of the Powers were opposed to giving the conference the aspect of initiating a crusade, and some were also jealous of recognizing the Vatican as a political power which would be entitled to an equal vote with the temporal powers.

They Feared Violence

LONDON, Dec. 12.—At the session of the Parnell Commission yesterday several landlords testified that tenants had asked them to keep secret the fact that they had paid their rents owing to fear of violence from the league. In some cases they had asked for two receipts, one for the full amount paid and the other for a lesser amount. The latter they wanted to show to the league. The witnesses also testified that persons evicted generally had the option of remaining on the holdings as caretakers, but they dared not remain in this capacity because they were afraid of offending the league.

Mrs. Thomson testified in detail concerning outrages committed upon men in her employ on the Hurley estate.

Sir Henry James, counsel for The Times here, read an article from The Kerry Sentinel which denounced Miss Thomson for showing the cloven hoof, and accused her of being an exterminator. On cross-examination witness admitted that she had increased rentals with a view to improvements which were to have been made. One increase amounted to 36 per cent. and the lowest increase was 10 per cent.

The Irish Rebuked by the Pope.

ROME, Dec. 12.—A sensation has been caused by the Pope's refusal to bless medals and reliquaries sent to Rome by an Irish priest, who intended them for distribution in Ireland. The Pope sternly said: "I cannot bless them. The people of Ireland are disobedient. They seem to prefer the gospel of Dillon and O'Brien to the Gospel of Jesus Christ."

Reductions of Working Time.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The working time of the cotton spinners in the Boston district has been reduced to three days weekly in consequence of disputes between masters and operatives.

Tendered His Resignation.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Lord Harrington has tendered his resignation as a member of the National Liberal Club.

Spanish Officials in Trouble.

MADRID, Dec. 12.—All the treasury officials have been imprisoned pending an inquiry into the robbery of $2,000,000 from the Government's deposit bank in this city.

The Austrian Military Bill.

VIENNA, Dec. 12.—The Military Bill has passed the Reichsrath by an almost unanimous vote.

Breakfasted With the Emperor.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—Herr von Bennigsen, the leader of the National Liberals, took breakfast yesterday with Emperor William.

An Italian Railway Project.

BERNE, Dec. 12.—Italy will construct a railway on the Italian side of the Simplon tunnel and grant a subvention of several million francs in connection with the work.

Thawing Dynamite.

BROCKVILLE, Dec. 12.—The sewerage operations now going on here require excavations to be made with dynamite or other explosive. Some workmen were on Monday thawing out frosted packages of this article in a temporary blacksmith shop when the fuse became in some manner ignited and so violent an explosion resulted that scarcely two boards were left together. No one was injured.

Foul Play Suspected.

AYLMER, Dec. 12.—Yesterday afternoon Detective J. G. Clayton received a warrant from Dr. P. W. McLay, coroner, to exhume the body of Richard J. Brown for an inquest at Dunboyne at 3 p. m. to-day. The deceased, who lived at Copenhagen, having died under suspicious circumstances foul play is suspected.

THE DYSTERMEN'S WAR.

A Serious Fight With State Vessels at the Mouth of the Chester River.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 12.—A fight took place at Hell Point at the mouth of the Chester River Monday night between oyster dredgers and the steamer McLane. To the surprise of the dredgers the captain of the McLane used his cannon as well as his rifles. The Secretary of State of Maryland has been notified from Washington that six more cannon will be sent immediately. Deputy Postmaster Ford at Winchester says he counted thirty-nine reports of cannon besides a hundred or more rifle shots. Yesterday morning the steamers B. S. Ford and Gratitude, from Chester River, met the steamer McLane and the schooner Baughman conveying a captured dredge, the Maggie Corbett, to Centreville for trial. Just off Hell Point two sunken dredges were passed. The schooner's sails were still up and were riddled with shot. A man dressed in blue uniform was seen on the McLane's deck, leading to the supposition that an expert gunner had been borrowed from the Naval Academy. A schooner was seen ashore on Carpenter's Island, another on Walnut Tree Bar, another on Durden Creek and a fourth on Kent Island.

Details of the Fight.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—Monday night's fight at the mouth of the Chester River may have resulted in considerable loss of life as Peter Mullen, cook on board the schooner Julia A. Jones, says he was the only man out of a crew of 11 to escape. The state vessels were hotly attacked by the dredgers, who were heavily armed with repeating rifles and did not return the fire until compelled to. The steamer McLane was thoroughly riddled with bullets and Capt. Howard determined to resort to extreme measures. Backing the steamer off from a fleet of seven and subordinate, refused to together he singled out the Julia A. Jones, and putting on a full head of steam made directly for her stern, striking fairly, the bow of the McLane penetrating clear to the schooner's companion way and the latter sank almost instantly. Mullen escaped by climbing up the steamer's anchor chain, but says the rest of the crew were in the fore part and could not have gotten out. As soon as the McLane got cleared from the wreck she was again backed off and again headed for the fleet, striking the J. C. Maloney squarely on the stern. She at once began to sink, and the rest got away as fast as possible. Some of the crew of the Maloney escaped by climbing on board and as each one came on he was put in the hold. A white man named Coleman and a negro named Bramble of the crew of the Maloney are believed to have been drowned as they were not seen after the vessels were struck. A large fleet of dredgers are reported to be on unlawful ground, and it is not unlikely that there will be another fight. Around Canton where oystermen congregate there is considerable warlike talk and a bloody fight is feared.

$36,000,000 PER ANNUN.

The U. S. Steel Manufacturers Send Canada Products to That Amount.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Discussing the Senate tariff bill, the specific item being the duty on steel beams, Mr. Vest (Dem., Mo.) quoted from a trade journal to show that American manufacturers sent their products to Canada to the amount of $36,000,000 a year and were then able to compete with the products of British manufacturers (paying the same rates of duty), and he asked why if they could do that they needed such enormous protection at home. He would be obliged to any Senator who would answer that simple question.

Duty on Dredge Machinery.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Assistant Secretary Maynard has informed the Collector of Customs at Cleveland, O., that in case of importations at that port of Canadian dredges containing machinery of domestic manufacture the dredge as well as the machinery are subject to duty, the machinery not having been imported on the same condition as exported but constituting parts of the dredges.

The Haytien Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—United States Consul Goutier at Cape Haytien in a despatch to the Secretary of State dated Nov. 18 says there has been no effective blockade at that port as no vessel has been stationed off there. A vessel has however, he says, been cruising between there and Fort Liberty. He says that six barks and eight schooners have entered Cape Haytien since Oct. 16, when the alleged blockade was established, which is ample proof that no effective blockade ever existed. This illegal state of affairs, he says, is becoming detrimental to American interests. He adds that he has not heard from Port-au-Prince for five weeks.

MURDERED HIS MOTHER.

Because She Opposed His Marriage to the Hired Girl.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Dec. 12.—Francis Hawkins, the matricide, was hanged here yesterday morning. The drop fell at 8.23, and within half an hour the body was cut down and turned over to relatives. Hawkins took his fate coolly.

[Hawkins killed his mother on Oct. 1, 1887. He was 22 years of age. His mother was opposed to his marriage with a pretty servant girl, Hattie Schrenck. Hawkins took his mother out in a wagon at 9 o'clock in the evening to talk over the matter with her, as he wished to marry the girl the following day, Sunday. Finding Mrs. Hawkins obdurate in her opposition to his wedding he drew a revolver and shot her three times in the head. He then dragged her body to some bushes at the side of the lonely sand road between Hislip, L. I., where he lived, and Brentwood Cemetery. He confessed fully, and said he killed his mother because she would not consent to his marriage.

Socialists Want the Earth.

ROCHESTER, Dec. 12.—Prof. T. H. Garside, the Socialist organizer, in addressing a meeting here said: "We ask for the land. If it is not given us the whole universe will cry with one great shout for liberty. It is ours and we will have it, and no man shall stand between us. We want the machinery and all property we have made. It belongs to us. We want no compromise. We do not want a portion, we do not want a half of it. We want the whole of it and demand it without any conditions whatever. Henry George is one of us. He sees before him as we do a great big '8' with two strokes dashed downwards through it" [8]

ORTHODOX OR HETERODOX

THE "SINLESS PERFECTION" CONTROVERSY AT GALT.

History of the Alleged Heresy — Special Meeting of Guelph Presbytery — The Case Sent Back to the Kirk Session.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—A special to The World from Guelph says: The special meeting of the Guelph Presbytery in Chalmer's Church, to receive the report of the session of Knox Church, Galt, in the matter of William Henry, David Caldwell, John D. Cranston, Lizzie Morton, Mrs. Alexander Kay, James K. Cranston and Alexander B. Cranston, charged by the session with holding and teaching doctrines not in accordance with the standards of the Presbyterian Church and with pursuing a divisive course in respect to the said Knox Church, was numerously attended yesterday morning. Above 100 persons were present, one-fifth being females. Methodists, Salvationists and other denominations were represented and there was much excitement manifested. Ultimately this resolution of Rev. J. E. Smith and Rev. Dr. Wardrope carried:

"(1) That the answers given by the five persons first named above to the questions proposed by the session with a view of finding out their attitude to the standards of the church, clearly prove that the views held by them on the subject of personal sanctification in this life are directly opposed to the teachings of the Scriptures as exhibited in the Westminster Confession of Faith (p. 6, sec. 5), in the Church Catechism, question 149, and in the Shorter Catechism, question 82.

"(2). That James K. Cranston and Alexander B. Cranston, when the same questions were put to them by the session testing their conformity or non-conformity with the standards supreme and subordinate, refused to give any other than evasive and irrelevant answers, manifesting thereby a spirit of insubordination to sessional authority.

"(3) That in disseminating their particular views, and in some instances holding religious meetings which conflicted with sessional appointments, the conduct of all the above named persons has been for some time calculated to disturb the harmony and hinder the well-being of the congregation concerned.

"Be it therefore resolved, That the Presbytery instruct the session of Knox Church, Galt, to deal with the accused in the respective premises according to the rules and discipline applicable to such cases in the Presbyterian Church in Canada; that the Presbytery authorize the said session to deal with James K. Cranston and Alexander B. Cranston on the grounds of contumacy; and, in the event of this being persisted in, to remove in the interests of truth and righteousness their names from the communion roll, declaring them to be no longer members of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and not to be restored to membership without leave granted by the Presbytery; and furthermore that the Presbytery fre-appoint the assessors to co-operate with the session in finally issuing the case."

Mr. J. K. Cranston: "I will appeal to the Synod from this decision."

Voices: "You have no locus standi here."

Dr. Wardrope: "There is nothing to appeal."

The Moderator: "The Presbytery gives no decision in the matter. The functions we are exercising to-day are those of parental counsellors. There is no disposition on the part of the Presbytery to act arbitrarily. When the kirk session gives its decision that will be the time for the notice of appeal contemplated. The appeal would be to the Synod and thence to the General Assembly."

The trouble in Knox Church is a result of the following facts: Some five years ago David Cardwell, a member of Knox Church, Galt, embraced the doctrine of Christian perfection and forthwith disseminated it in the church. For this he was twice called to book, but nothing daunted retracted nothing. A year ago last August some members of the Cranston family, associated with the same church, attended the international Holiness convention at Wesley's Park at Niagara, and there they profess to have entered into the experience of a "clean heart" and walking in the power of the Holy Ghost. James Cranston, on returning home, gave his "testimony" in Knox Church and instituted "Holiness" meetings in private houses because the use of the church was refused him.

Seven of the most pronounced advocates of the alleged heresy, James K. Cranston, John D. Cranston, David Caldwell, Alexander B. Cranston, William Henry, Lizzie Morton, Mrs. Alexander Kay, were cited before the session, charged with "holding and teaching doctrines not in accordance with the Scriptures and the Presbyterian standards." Those cited objected that there was no specific charge as Presbyterian procedure requires. This objection was sustained by the Moderator and more specific charges made. On May 14 their names were struck off the membership roll.

The session afterwards decided to commence the proceedings anew and yesterday's meeting was the outcome.

The Passenger Rate War Spreading.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—The passenger rate war between the Northwestern roads, which began at St. Paul on Monday, was taken up here yesterday by the Milwaukee and St. Paul road. The Wisconsin Central followed and the rate to St. Paul was cut from $8.50 to $6 for second-class tickets. The first-class over the Burlington also dropped from $10.50 to $8.50. Further cutting is anticipated. A prominent ticket agent says that if the two Interstate Commissioners were not in town people would be riding to St. Paul for 5 cents.

More Smallpox Cases at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Dec. 12.—Five new cases of smallpox are reported here, two of the patients being inmates of the Almshouse and one a convict in the penitentiary. One of the victims is Richard Norman, the well-known semi-professional baseball player, who was with the St. Thomas Atlantics a couple of years ago. There was one death from the disease here last week.

Emma's Deadly Aim.

DAYTON, O., Dec. 12.—Emma Day yesterday morning shot and killed Herman F. Ruthmeir, a young man from Cincinnati, who was trying to get into her house. She says she shot him in self defence, that Monday he had tried to kill her with a pocket knife, for which she had him arrested. He gave bail and returned yesterday morning still threatening to kill her.

Martin Walker and Jeff. Brown, colored, have been arrested as supposed accomplices in the Hawes murder.

The assembly was prorogued yesterday afternoon.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK

of $18,000 WORTH OF GOODS, new choice and fresh, and selling at 50c. on the dollar. We leave it to you to name the prices! We go further! We will absolutely give you goods at your own figures. Bearing in mind that 30 days finishes the sale in Sheppard's old premises, we offer

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1888.

THE MAYORALTY.

As will be seen by the requisition to Mr. James Stevenson, and his reply thereto, Mr. Stevenson is a candidate for the office of Mayor for 1889. The names signed to the requisition show the high and general esteem in which he is held, and that he has discharged his duties in the office in a manner that has won approval from all classes.

As is briefly pointed out by Mr. Stevenson in his reply to the requisition, it is greatly to his own interest to use his influence in the office to have careful and economical municipal government, because, as a large property owner, he pays a large amount of taxes, and for the same reason he would naturally do all he could to further the prosperity of the town. In addition to that, he is justified in pointing to his record in office as showing faithful service and as proof that the interests of the ratepayers would be safe in his hands.

It is not surprising that Mr. Stevenson should feel a desire to be relieved of the duties of the office, as is shown by his reply, but the call given to him by the requisition is one that it would be difficult not to accede to. It must be gratifying to him to receive this endorsation of the course he has pursued while in office—from many, too, who on political and other questions are opposed to him, but who have recognized in him a faithful Chief Magistrate—and there is no room for doubt that he will, if the ratepayers desire, continue to serve them as faithfully as in the past.

Mr. Henry Denne is also a candidate for the office of Mayor, having been nominated at a meeting held on Monday night. Mr. Denne has not as yet issued an address, but he will, no doubt, put the ratepayers in possession of his views.

That is Kidd's privilege and his business. He foots the Jims as well as the Bills. Likewise the Marys and Susans. Kidd's great specialty is footing the feet, in which the feature of low prices stands out prominently. He never denies a No. 7 man a No. 10 boot. Just now he is a sworn enemy of the doctor, for he aims to keep the feet dry and bounce the bills. Give Kidd the shoe man a call. d136

TORONTO TOPICS.

Triplet Initialled Barnett in the Police Court—The "Move on" Case.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—Roland Gideon Israel Barnett arrived by the Canadian Pacific express from the east yesterday morning and was at once driven to police headquarters. He stood up before the wicket railing in the office while the following entry was made on the slate: 8.15 a.m., Roland G. Barnett, single, 40, English theatrical manager, Inspector Stark. Though clothed in costly raiment, he did not have a cent in his pockets. He was placed in the cage reserved for female prisoners on the ground floor, so as to avoid the eyes of the curious. Barnett was in charge of Inspector W. S. Andrews of Scotland Yard and Inspector Stark of Toronto. Andrews might walk out on the stage of either of the Toronto theatres just as he is and would fit admirably as a true Londoner. He talked freely of his prisoner. "It was most interesting," the inspector said, "to hear him tell of his theatrical ventures. He is deep and knows men and their motives. He told us several accounts of how he had made people serviceable to him without their expecting it. He showed no uneasiness except at Montreal. He had got hold of some of the papers and saw the rumored intentions of his Montreal friends. We did not go into the city, of course, but he was restless until we were past Mile End." At 10 o'clock Barnett was arraigned before Police Magistrate Denison on a charge of embezzling two negotiable securities, the property of the Central Bank of the value of $5250 each, and also for defrauding one C. F. Bunbury of a promissory note for $285. Barnett nonchalantly remarked that he had just arrived from the old country, had no friends or counsel, and begged that he would be favored with a postponement so that he could prepare a defence, which would soon settle any charges that might be brought against him. The Magistrate accedeed, of course, and on Monday Mr. Barnett will again grace the dock. In the meantime bail was refused.

The appeal case of Rev. W. F. Wilson against the Police Magistrate's decision sustaining the action of Policeman Jarvis, who had arrested the minister for not moving on when ordered, was tried before the Court of General Sessions yesterday afternoon, and attracted many interested listeners. There is a crowd of witnesses for either side and the case was not concluded when the court rose.

There was a timber limit sale yesterday afternoon at the Parliament Buildings. The only berth offered was No. 2, Ballantyne, composed of 14 square miles. The purchaser at the late sale had failed to carry out his purpose. Donald McMaster, Alexandria, bought it at $27.50 per square mile.

At a special meeting of the Civic Executive Committee yesterday it was decided to accept the Bank of Commerce's tender for the new civic loan of $1,000,000 for 6 months at 4½.

The Central District Congregational Association met in the new Western Congregational Church yesterday. Twenty members were present. Rev. John Burton delivered an interesting address on "Church Extension."

Imperial Federation at Lindsay.

LINDSAY, Dec. 12.—Two meetings in the interest of Imperial Federation were held here yesterday afternoon and evening. Speeches were made by John Dobson, Lindsay; John McSweyn, Thomas Broad, ex-Reeve of Mariposa; John Foll, John Cruise, M. P. P.; William Jordan of Fenelon Falls; Sam Hughes, Adam Hudspeth, M.P.; James L. Hughes and Col. Denison.

The County of Victoria Imperial Federation League in Canada was organized and these officers elected: President, John Dobson of Lindsay; Vice-President, S. D. Webster of Mariposa; Secretary-Treasurer, Sam Hughes of Lindsay. Vice-Presidents and committees were appointed from each municipality.

KIDNAPPED IN CANADA.

DETROIT, Dec. 12.—William H. Brown, convicted several weeks ago of stealing shoes, while in the custody of the United States Marshal skipped to Canada before being sentenced. James T. Brady, his bondsman, captured him near Peche Island Monday, and lodged him in jail. Yesterday morning Brown was brought before Judge Brown for sentence. Brown said: "I was working at the fishing grounds near Peche Isle in Canada when Brady, my bondsman, disguised and four other fellows rushed on me with revolvers and shot guns. 'Get into this boat,' yelled Brady, and before I knew it I was in jail here." Brown was sentenced to one year in prison and fined $200.

Gas Explosion at Quebec.

QUEBEC, Dec. 12.—At 5.40 yesterday morning an explosion of gas took place in the cellar of a house occupied by Mr. Lafrance, and adjoining the office of The Morning Chronicle. The shock was very severe, completely wrecking the inside of the building. The windows on the first flat were blown across the street and the upper windows were completely shattered, as well as those of the building opposite. There was no person in the building at the time.

GREENFIELD ON TRIAL

AT THE COUNTY COURT OF SESSIONS BEFORE JUDGE WELLER.

Other Civil Business Disposed of—True Bills Against Greenfield, Shouldice and Ritchie—Greenfield Defended by Mr. W. H. Moore—His Complains of His Correspondence Being Stopped —Some of the Evidence.

RICHARDSON VS. FARQUAHAR.—This case occupied the court until five o'cloch p. m, yesterday, and was an action in which Wentworth Richardson, of Dummer, sued E. & C. Farquahar, of Toronto, for $149.90, balance claimed as due on cedar delivered at Norwood station. Richardson had entered into writen contracts with Messrs. Farquahar to deliver 400 cords of cedar by 1st April last. Previous to that he found he would not be able to deliver full amount and he claimed that their agent agreed to pay him for what he actually delivered, 180 cords. The defendant denied that plaintiff had delivered that amount and in any event their agent had no authority to vary the contract. They also claim damages for the non-fulfilment of the contract. The jury found in favor of plaintiff on all points and a verdict was entered for plaintiff for $137 and costs. John Burnham for plaintiff and W. Holmes, of Toronto, for defendants.

THE CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

The grand jury brought in true bills against John Greenfield for shooting with intent to kill, and against Thos. Shouldice for larceny and house breaking.

John Greenfield and Thomas Shouldice were then brought in from their prison cells and arraigned before the court. Court Clerk Maloney read the indictment against Greenfield for shooting with intent to kill, and asked him "Are you guilty or not guilty."

"Not guilty" replied Greenfield, who had been looking around the crowd that surrounded the prisoner's pen and did not seem very nervous, although he was very pale.

"Are you ready for your trial?" asked the Judge. Greenfield said he was and the trial was fixed for 10 o'clock this morning.

"Have you any counsel?" enquired the Judge.

"No, I have not. I was prevented from procuring counsel by the Chief of Police, who had my correspondence with a friend in Toronto stopped. This friend was to get me counsel."

JUDGE WELLER then asked Mr. Leonard if he would act as the prisoner's counsel, but that gentleman declined, as he was the partner of the Magistrate. Several other members of the bar were also asked to act, but declined. Mr. W. H. Moore was the last gentleman asked and he accepted the task.

Thos. Shouldice listened to the reading of two indictments against him, one for larceny and one for house-breaking, and pleaded "Not Guilty" to both.

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The court resumed at ten o'clock on Wednesday morning.

The Grand Jury brought in true bills against Alex. Ritchie on three counts, namely, larceny, obtaining goods under false pretences, and fraudulent appropriation.

Appeals were heard in the cases of Bell vs. Carlisle and Bell vs. Nurse. There were appeals from convictions made by Mr. Hull, J. P., of Lakefield, for assault in which fines of $1 each and costs were imposed. A question as to the validity of the bonds of recognizance arising, the judge did not permit the appeal to proceed and reserved the question of costs.—E. B. Edwards for prosecutor; G. M. Roger for appellants, the defendants.

GREENFIELD STANDING TRIAL.

Fred Greenfield was brought into court shortly before eleven o'clock, looking pale but calm.

MR. MOORE, who appeared for the prisoner, objected to the indictment on the ground that it contained four distincts counts while the warrant of extradition contained only one. The four counts were "assault with intent to murder Joseph Stewart," "assault with intent to commit murder," "shooting with intent to murder Jos. Stewart," and "shooting with intent to commit murder."

The JUDGE held that the precise framing of the indictment was immaterial, as the indictments in this case had the same meaning.

MR. MOORE further objected that "malice aforethought" was not charged.

MR. E. E. WOOD, County Attorney, argued that in the case of a charge brought under the statute that was not necessary.

The JUDGE held that the words "intent to kill" were sufficient.

THE EVIDENCE.

JOSEPH STEWART, police constable, was the first witness. He told how, in walking up the lane in rear of Gough Bros' store, he saw the iron shutters open and a box under the window. He got up on it and went in. As he got in he saw a man, who fired at him. He fired back and went forward. The man jumped through the glass in the door, and witness followed him, and chased him. Between there and Fairweather's corner they exchanged four or five shots. Felt the bullets whistle past his head. Lost tract of the man on Simcoe-st. He ran softly, as if he had nothing on his feet. Saw blood on the glass in front of the shop next morning and traced blood marks out to Mr. Cox's. Next saw Greenfield at the police court. Recognized him at once, and had no hesitation in saying he was the man.

To Mr. Moore.—Was somewhat excited that night. Had seen a light in the store from the front. The window curtains were up, but goods were in the window. The curtains were up on the door. Had not seen the box under the window before; it was not there the night before. Shoved the shutter blind back about a foot to look in. The light was less than 30 feet from the rear of the store. When he looked in Greenfield was at the back and jumped out. Within ten feet of him, stared at him and then ran under a table. Never saw him to his knowledge before; he had no whiskers on. Thought the man had on a black or blue shirt and no coat.

Mrs. MCNARN was sworn. Live round Ludgate's hill. Was in town on Aug. 31st. After she got home the prisoner called and asked for water to wash his hands. His hand were cut and his left wrist. He said he had fallen on the railway. He wished he was dead. He had on a flannel shirt, no vest and no boots. Had seen him about three years ago when she lived in the South Ward. Recognized him when she saw him that day and recognized him now as the man who called that day.

THOMAS MCMULLEN was sworn: Greenfield came to his place, near Mrs. McNarn's, on the evening of the day of the burglary. Told him he had been in the cloth store, and Greenfield replied that he couldn't get work, as he had been in the penitentiary, and he had to do something. He went to a buggy left at the road by hunters.

To Mr. Moore—The prisoner did not tell me he had been in Gough's store.

The Court was then adjourned till 2 o'clock.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

OTONABEE ODDFELLOWS

Have a most Successful Anniversary—The Programme.

Much elated must the brethren of Otonabee Lodge, No 13, I. O. O. F. feel over the pronounced success which attended the celebration of the sixth anniversary of the resuscitation of their lodge. The handsome and commodious lodge room was filled to overflowing, a large number of the masculine auditors being compelled to rest themselves standing up during the rendering of the programme. The audience was an appreciative one, and applauded or encored every number on the lengthy programme. The Oddfellows as an organization should feel flattered by the success which attends their efforts, although their is no doubt that the major portion of the credit falls to the committee which had the arrangements for the anniversary in charge. One thing, however, is certain, and that is that the gentlemen of the three links have many warm friends in Peterborough, and the reception and entertainment which they always give these friends upon an occasion such as last evening is ever adding to their popularity. Bro. Early, N. G., presided in the chair and, shortly after eight o'clock he arose and thanked the large audience for their attendance and said the brethren could not help but feel flattered at such a magnificent turnout. He then proceeded to call off the programme, which was an excellent one, every feature being well rendered and received in the same manner. Of course some of the old favorites came in for a little extra applause, but in a programme of such length and excellence it would be invidious to particularize. Sufficient it is to say that the dialogue by Messrs Hendry (Lockie) and Nugent (the Wizard) caught the house in a most decided manner and was applauded to the echo, and that Miss Sanders, and Mr. T. Dunn had to respond to very pronounced encores. The programme as rendered was as follows:—

PART I.

Overture.....Selection "Scotch Airs"
F. B. B. Orchestra.
Reading.....An American Beauty
Dr. Clark.
Song.....Fiddle and I"
Miss S. Cameron.
Dialogue.....Lochiel's Warning"
Messrs. Hendry and Nugent.
Song.....The Bedouin Love Song"
Miss Annie Dunn.
Song.....Anchored"
Mr. A. L. Davis.
Song.....Scots Wha Hae
Mr. Hendry.

ABOUT THE ORDER.

The last feature of the first part was an address by Dr. Bell, D. G. M., on Oddfellowship. The address was a good one, well suited to the occasion, not being too long and yet embracing a good deal of information about the order and its history. The history of the Order is familiar to almost everyone. The doctor took its origin back as far as the Israelites, and dated the foundation of the Order of modern times in England at about the middle of the last century, and its re-organization in 1812. It was first started in America in the city of Baltimore on the 26th August, 1819 with five members, which was the first of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, and they had kept on steadily increasing until now they numbered over half a million, and were initating 500,000 new members every year. He spoke of the aims and object of the Order—to visit the sick, relieve the distressed and bury the dead. He also spoke of the benefits—moral, social and physical—which were offered by the Order and referred to its history in Canada. It was first instituted in the Dominion in Montreal in 1843 and in 1846 the first lodge was formed in Ontario. For ten years, he said, it had a precarious existence, but after that it had steadily moved on until now there were 230 lodges with 16,000 members in the province, paying out over $45,000 in a year. He also spoke of the insurance companies which had the official recognition of the order and through which a remarkably cheap insurance was obtained by members. He concluded by telling who were elligible for membership—any white male person of good, moral character, in good health and who is a believer in a supreme being and God of the universe.

After Dr. Bill's address an intermission took place during which the audience interviewed with most marked results the very elaborate and toothsome refreshments, which were served in the dining room. The edibles were supplied by the brethren themselves. After all had partaken the programme was resumed.

PART II.

Selection.....Gavotte—"Forget Me Not"
F. B. B. Orchestra.
Song.....Good-Bye"
Mrs. Brooligan.
Recitation.....The Captive"
Miss Sanders.
Song.....The Belfry Tower"
Miss Lillie Jackson.
Song.....The Viking"
Mr. T. Dunn.
Solo, Instrumental.....Selected
Prof. A. K. Carter.

MORMONISM.—The following letter from Rev. Arthur E. Whatham, missionary for Cardiff and Monmouth, appeared in the Toronto Mail:—Sir,—Some time since I published in the Toronto and local papers a challenge I had forwarded to the official paper of the recognized Church of the Latter-day Saints, published at Lamoni, Iowa. The nature of the challenge was a debate between myself and that paper on the truth of their theological teaching as compared with the Bible. The merits of the debate to be judged by two professors of divinity belonging to the Church of England and two ditto of the Saints. I was induced to take this step owing to an elder of the Saints coming into this back country to make converts for his Church. I accused this elder of bringing a strange gospel to people quite unable to answer his argument. Whereupon he affirmed he would debate the correctness of his teaching before any audience I chose, either in Toronto or Peterborough. I have just received a reply from the editor of the Saints' Herald, Joseph Smith, son of the supposed prophet and seer who found the "Book Mormon," refusing my challenge. Evidently the son of the "prophet" fears a thorough investigation into the truth of the Saints' teaching by competent divinity scholars. The provost of Trinity College, Toronto, had consented to act as one of the judges. It may be well for your readers to know the Saints' refusal to have their teaching investigated, and also well for the Saints that they have refused.

IN MENORIAM.

Lines written by a loving friend on the death of Annie O. Esson, who died in Otonabee on October 20th, 1888, aged 29 years and two months.

Why is it, Annie darling, that
We must call in vain?
Is there no place, our Annie,
Where we may meet again?

Must we forever mourn you,
Nor ever see your face?
Must we always miss the presence
That brightened every place?

No, no! Our Annie Darling,
Surely this may never be,
The Christ who died to save us
Has prepared a place for thee.

And though in God's great wisdom
We are called upon to part,
There will come a day of meeting
When we'll press you to our heart.

Our Father who is in Heaven
Will teach us how to wait,
Till Annie's hand will beckon
And lead us through the gate.

So desolate the world seems,
Your home so full of gloom,
We seem to hear our Annie's voice
In every silent room.

Never more shall blast of winter
Rudely move your flaxen hair,
Never shall those waxen fingers
Close on aught that is not fair.

Gone where endless summer smileth,
Gone where all the air is love,
Mother, in the Saviour's bosom
Nestles now your own pure dove.

To the ark of peace she fluttered,
From the storm and wind and rain,
Surely for her feet the fowler
Now may spread his nets in vain.

Heaven is nearer than mortals think,
When they look with trembling dread
At the misty future that stretches on
From the silent home of the dead.

Yet oft in the hours of holy thought
To the thirsting soul is given,
That power to pierce through the mist of sense
To the beauteous scenes of Heaven.

Then very near seem its pearly gates,
And sweetly its harpings fall,
Till the soul is restless to soar away
And sings for the Angel's call.

Father, help us, when this life is done,
That we may go to live with Thee,
And wear a crown of glory won—
A crown of immortality.

And in that fair celestial home,
Freed from all earthly stain,
We feel that we shall meet and know
Our own dear Annie again.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

Sir Charles Tupper Not Very Enthusiastic —Colonial Securities as Investments.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—At the Royal Colonial Institute meeting last night, Lord Lorne presiding, Sir Charles Tupper made a pronounced speech on Imperial Federation. He said that while he rejoiced at the progress of the movement in the colonies and Great Britain, he could not, after thirty years' experience of public life, say, with the federationists, that unless the system of the Empire was radically changed the Empire must fall to pieces. It was most desirable in the interests of the colonies and Britain to draw the bonds closer if possible, but knowing what the present system had effected, how could he submit to the statement that we must change all this for something which ingenuity had not yet devised—for some undiscovered panacea. He also repudiated the idea that the term "colonist" was humiliating. He considered it the proudest title in the world.

Subsequent speakers attacked Sir Charles Tupper, but Lord Lorne defended the High Commissioner. He quite agreed that it was ridiculous to suppose that the Empire was in a state of spontaneous combustion and must collapse unless an immediate cut and dried scheme was adopted.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer will receive a deputation, consisting of Sir Charles Tupper and other colonial spokesmen, this week regarding the inclusion of Canadian and other high class colonial securities among the funds for trustees' investments.

The petition to the directors of the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk in favor of a friendly agreement is much canvassed, and is being actively signed among the shareholders, though I cannot learn that the movement has influential support. It appears that the English Association of American Bondholders sent a protest to the Canadian Pacific last month, urging a cessation of hostility. It is stated that a meeting of shareholders will be held in London if the boards do not comply.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold on a guarantee. It cures Consumption! 25c.

IMPORTANT.

We have just been advised, and we are sure the people of Peterborough will be pleased to know, that A. L. Davis & Co. have decided to put the whole of their stock of books stationery and fancy goods on the market at cost price, commencing 1st December, and their stock being in such good condition, the public are sure to get dollar for dollar. This sale is made necessary on account of extensive improvements which are to be made this winter in their store.

THE ETHICS of Civilization

Require that MAN shall be DRESSED—Fashion and a natural desire to appear at his best, require that he be WELL DRESSED, while his pocketbook frequently requires that he be ECONOMICALLY DRESSED.

It is to meet these THREE REQUIREMENTS that our efforts are constantly and successfully directed.

We make Clothing for Men, Boys and Children from honest, serviceable fabrics, CUT in a fashionable and tasteful manner to FIT perfectly, and put together by the best Tailors money can secure and in the HIGHEST STYLE of workmanship.

We sell this Well-Made Clothing at PRICES 25 to 40 per cent. LOWER than the same qualities can be purchased for anywhere else in the world.

Because we steadfastly adhere to the principle of "LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS."

Our goods are always HONEST, RELIABLE and LOWER IN PRICE THAN THOSE of our competitors.

For a Young Couple.

What is needed to insure a larger degree of happiness in this world is moral independence and moral principle. The notion that the end is attained when the altar is reached is almost a criminal mistake. That is not the end; it is only the beginning. As a rough farmer once said, "to marry and love each other for a few months is as easy as rolling off a log; but to love each other right along for forty years, up hill and down, well, it's quite a job."

There is hard work before a young couple. They must get used to each other, make mutual concessions, get their plans, aims, interests to work smoothly in double harness. There is too much kicking in the traces, too strong a desire to have one's own way, too little forbearance, an insistence upon one's rights, but a forgetfulness of one's duties.

Then it is well to remember that at 25 you can't have what you will perhaps be able to buy when you are 50, if you are economical. Young people spend too freely, are unwilling to pinch themselves in order to have a surplus, delight in show, and are apt to live beyond their means.—New York Herald.

REQUISITION

To James Stevenson, Esq., Peterborough:

SIR,—We, the undersigned ratepayers of the town of Peterborough, hereby request that you again become a candidate for the position of Mayor for the town of Peterborough for the year 1889, and sincerely trust that, notwithstanding your expressions of unwillingness, you will once more accept the chief place at the Council Board. The great concern you have always taken in Municipal matters and your large stake in the town make it of primary importance that you should be in the situation you have so excellently filled, for assuring the advancement of the best interests of the town. MR. STEVENSON'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—

Although I had almost definitely declined to retire from active and official participation in municipal matters, yet the desire, as expressed in the foregoing requisition, seems to be of so general and representatives a character, that I feel that I would be doing less than my duty as a citizen if I failed to respond to it, therefore, though I do so with personal reluctance, in compliance with the formal demand for my services, I hereby consent to become a candidate for the mayoralty of Peterborough for the year 1889. In so doing think I have a right to feel that my past services have been employed in the best interests of the town, which could hardly be otherwise, when it is borne in mind that I have no small share of material interests to be effected by the administration of the municipal affairs of the town. It is, therefore, my own interest to use my best efforts to secure economical and prudent management of civic matters, and I think my past course is a sufficient guarantee that the public interest will not meet with neglect at my hands. I might suggest that my efforts in promoting manufacturing industries shows that my interest in labouring men is not of a merely sentimental character. I am a comparatively large employer of labor, and endeavor to put my interest in the laboring classes into practical effect, and shall, if again honored with the confidence of the citizens, use my best efforts to maintain the rights and promote the interests of all classes of the community. I do not seek the office of mayor, but if I am chosen I shall not fail to do my best in the future as I have done in the past, to discharge its duties faithfully. I, therefore, place myself in your hands and allow you to put my name in nomination for the position of mayor, assured that I can count upon your assistance in securing my return.

I have the honor to remain, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JAMES STEVENSON.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

"Well, I think so," answered Mrs. Sampson. "It does get a little slow sometimes, not 'avin' bin cleaned for some time, which my nevy bein' a watchmaker I allays 'ands it over to 'im."

"Of course it was slow on that night," said Gorby, triumphantly. "He must have come in at five minutes past 2—which makes it right."

"Makes what right?" asked the landlady, sharply. "And 'ow do you know my clock was ten minutes wrong?"

"Oh, it was, was it?" asked Gorby, eagerly. "I'm not denyin' that it wasn't," replied Mrs. Sampson; "clocks ain't allays to be relied on more than men an' women; but it won't be anythin' agin 'is insurance, will it, as in general 'e's in afore 12?"

"Oh, all that will be quite safe," answered the detective, delighted at having obtained the required information. "Is this Mr. Fitzgerald's room?"

"Yes, it is," replied the landlady; "but 'e furnished it 'imself, bein' of a luxurus turn of mind, not but what 'is taste is good, tho' far be it from me to deny I helped 'im to select; but 'avin' another room of the same to let, any friends as you might 'ave in search of a 'ome 'ud be well looked arter, my references bein' very 'igh an' my cookin' tasty, an' if"—

Here a ring at the front door bell called Mrs. Sampson away, so with a hurried word to Gorby she crackled down stairs. Left to himself, Mr. Gorby arose and looked around the room. It was excellently furnished, and the pictures on the wall were all in good taste. There was a writing table at one end of the room under the window, which was covered with papers.

"It's no good looking for the papers he took out of Whyte's pocket, I suppose," said the detective to himself, as he turned over some letters, "as I don't know what they are, and couldn't tell them if I saw them; but I'd like to find that missing glove and the bottle that held the chloroform—unless he's done away with them. There doesn't seem any sign of them here, so I'll have a look in his bedroom."

There was no time to lose, as Mrs. Sampson might return at any moment, so Mr. Gorby walked quickly into the bedroom, which opened off the sitting room. The first thing that caught the detective's eye was a large photograph of Madge Frettiby in a plush frame, which stood on the dressing table. It was the same kind he had already seen in Whyte's album, and he took it up with a laugh.

"You're a pretty girl," he said, apostrophizing the picture, "but you give your photograph to two young men, both in love with you, and both hot tempered. The result is that one is dead, and the other won't survive him long. That's what you've done."

He put it down again, and looking round the room, caught sight of a light covert coat hanging behind the door, and also a soft hat.

"Ah," said the detective, going up to the door, "there is the very coat you wore when you killed that poor fellow. I wonder what you have in the pockets," and he plunged his hand into them in turn. There was an old theatre programme and a pair of brown gloves in one, but in the second pocket Mr. Gorby made a discovery—none other than that of the missing glove. There it was—a soiled white glove for the right hand, with black bands down the back; and the detective smiled in a gratified manner as he put it carefully in his pocket.

"My morning has not been wasted," he said to himself. "I've found out that he came in at a time which corresponds to all his movements after 1 o'clock on Thursday night, and this is the missing glove, which clearly belonged to Whyte. If I could only get hold of the chloroform bottle I'd be satisfied."

But the chloroform bottle was not to be found, though he searched most carefully for it. At last, hearing Mrs. Sampson coming up stairs again, he desisted from his search and came back to the sitting room.

"Threw it away, I expect," he said, as he sat down in his old place; "but it doesn't matter. I think I can form a chain of evidence, from what I have discovered, which will be sufficient to convict him. Besides, I expect when he is arrested he will confess everything; he seems to have such a lot of remorse for what he has done."

The door opened and Mrs. Sampson crackled into the room.

"Did I understand you to say, Mrs. Sampson," he went on, "that Mr. Fitzgerald would be at home this afternoon?"

"Oh, yes, sir, 'e will," answered Mrs. Sampson, "a drinkin' tea with his young lady, who is Miss Frettiby, and 'as got no end of money—not but what I mightn't 'ave 'ad the same 'ad I been born in a higher spear."

"You need not tell Mr. Fitzgerald I have been here," said Gorby, closing the gate; "I'll probably call and see him myself this afternoon."

"What a stout person 'e are," said Mrs. Sampson to herself, as the detective walked away, "just like my late father, who was always fleshy, being a great eater and fond of 'is glass, but I took arter my mother's family, they bein' thin like, and proud of keeping 'emselves so, as the vinegar they drank could testify, not that I indulge in it myself."

She shut the door and went up stairs to take away the breakfast things, while Gorby was being driven along at a good pace to the police office, in order to get a warrant for Brian's arrest on a charge of willful murder.

CHAPTER X.

IN THE QUEEN'S NAME.

It was a broiling hot day—one of those cloudless days, with the blazing sun beating down on the arid streets, and casting deep, black shadows. By rights it was a December day, but the clerk of the weather had evidently got a little mixed, and popped it into the middle of August by mistake. The previous week, however, had been a little chilly, and this delightfully hot day had come as a pleasant surprise and a foretast of summer. It was Saturday morning, and of course all fashionable Melbourne was doing the Block. With regard to its "Block," Collins street corresponds to New York's Broadway, London's Regent street and Rotten Row, and to the Boulevards of Paris. It is on the Block that people show off their new dresses, bow to their friends, cut their enemies and chatter small talk.

Carriages were bowling smoothly along, their occupants smiling and bowing as they recognized their friends on the sidewalk; lawyers, their legal quibble finished for the week, were strolling leisurely along, with their black bags in their hands; portly merchants, forgetting Flinders lane and incoming ships, were walking beside their pretty daughters; and the representatives of swelldom were stalking along in their customary apparel of curly hats, high collars, and masher suits. Altogether it was a very pleasant and animated scene, and would have delighted the heart of any one who was not dyspeptic, nor in love—dyspeptic people and lovers (disappointed ones, of course) being accustomed to survey the world in a cynical vein.

Madge Frettiby was engaged in that pleasant occupation so dear to every female heart, of shopping. She was in Moubray, Rowan & Hicks', turning over ribbons and laces, while the faithful Brian waited for her outside, and amused himself by looking at the human stream which flowed along the pavement. Brian disliked shopping quite as much as the rest of his sex, but, being a lover, of course it was his duty to be martyrized, though he could not help thinking of his pleasant club, where he could have been reading and smoking, with something cool in a glass beside him. After Madge had purchased a dozen articles she did not want, and had interviewed her dressmaker on the momentous subject of a new dress, she remembered that Brian was waiting for her, and hurried quickly to the door.

"I haven't been many minutes, have I, dear?" she said, touching him lightly on the arm.

"Oh, dear, no," answered Brian, looking at his watch, "only thirty—a mere nothing, considering a new dress was being discussed."

"I thought I had been longer," said Madge, her brow gathering, "but still I am sure you feel a martyr."

"Not at all," replied Fitzgerald, handing her into the carriage; "I enjoyed myself very much."

"Nonsense," she laughed, opening her sunshade, while Brian took his seat beside her; "that's one of those social stories which every one considers themselves bound to tell from a sense of duty. I'm afraid I did keep you waiting—though, after all," she went on, with a truly feminine idea as to the flight of time, "I was only a few minutes."

"And the rest," said Brian, quizzically looking at her pretty face, so charmingly flushed under her great white hat.

Madge disdained to notice this interruption,

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

TURNBULL'S

Mantles and Mantle Cloths are going rapidly. The prices and styles sell them. In our Children's Mantles, we are sold, out of some sizes which we are sorry for, as we don't like to miss sales, but as we have already sold all we expected to sell in the whole season, we cannot complain. But we have a lot of ends of good CLOTHS, which we will sell at a sacrifice to fill up the gap, and our mantle-cutter will cut and fit these goods free of charge, and explain the best way to make them up. The sizes we have in stock to fit children from 6 to 12 years we will clear out very cheap. MANTLE PLUSHES are now much in vogue in the larger cities, but are not much looked for here yet. We think it cannot be possible the ladies have not heard about them but they cannot know how beautiful they make up or there would be a greater demand. We have the Black and Seal Brown in stock.

Dress Goods. We are showing Dress Goods at 10c. a yard, which would be good value at 20c. The way they are selling fairly astonishes us, which shows that the public appreciate genuine bargains. In Fine Goods everybody says we have the nicest stock in town, and what everybody says must be true. What we are going to tell you now is of great importance, and we want you to remember it. Our Dress Goods Remnants have been accumulating faster than we like them to, and we have made up our minds to clear them all out. We will offer everything in the shape of a Dress Goods remnant, plain and fancy, good and bad together, at 15c. a yard. Most of these Goods ranged from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are all laid out on the counter, so come along; first come, first served. And what can you buy more suitable for a Christmas present for your girls than a new Dress.

Canadian Tweeds. Among a lot of Goods just opened out, we have a line of Canadian Tweeds, bought job. We have marked them 45c. a yard. They are extra heavy weight and made of good wool.

Our Hosiery. Our Hosiery department is filled with the best Goods made in the Province. Many people tell us they find lines with us they cannot get elsewhere. See our heavy make with double knees and heels and another line called "Arctic," it handles as if fulled. There is no need for hand knitting while these goods are to be had.

White Grey Cottons. The rate our White and Grey Cottons, Sheetings, etc., keep coming in and going out must be a sure indication they are extra good value. Those who have not bought some of the Goods should buy a trial parcel. We know we can save our customers money notwithstanding all the loud talk and flaring advertising which somebody has to pay for, and red flag business. Those wanting genuine bargains, will find the real article at

A PETITION FROM THE MONTREAL CIGARMAKERS' UNION.

It is Rumored That Hugh and John Ryan are the Lowest Tenderers for the Sault Ste. Marie Canal Lock Approaches.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—A deputation from the cigarmakers' union, Montreal, waited on the Minister of Finance yesterday and presented a petition asking that the license for cigar manufacturers be reduced from $75 to $6 in order to enable men of small capital to go into the industry.

The work of extending the fourteen tenders for approaches to the lock of the Sault Ste. Marie canal has been completed but no award has yet been made. The talk amongst the contractors is that there is a very wide difference in the tenders for excavation ranging, so one contractor informed your correspondent, from 63 cents to $4.50 per cubic yard, the wide range being caused by the uncertainty as to the proportion of rock excavation which will have to be made. The rumor is that Hugh and John Ryan, contractors for the lock, are lowest for the approaches.

The Department of justice yesterday issued a warrant for the extradition of De-Baun, the New York bank defaulter now held at Montreal.

It is rumored that both Lieutenant Ouimet and Major Dugas of the 65th battalion have tendered their resignations.

In the C. P. R. arbitration yesterday Mr. Brophy, C.E., of Ottawa who was resident engineer on the British Columbia sections during the construction, was examined and testified that when he left the work it was properly constructed. He had not seen it since. After this evidence the arbitration adjourned to Dec. 27. Messrs. Boyd, Blake, Robinson, Osler and Blackstock left for Toronto last night.

A VICTORY FOR ONTARIO.

The Province Wins the St. Catharines Milling Company Case.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—The Attorney-General's shrewd eyes were bright and the rosy flush of triumph mantled his cheeks as he good-naturedly turned from his paper-bestrewn desk to chat a moment with a reporter yesterday afternoon. A cablegram had arrived in the morning that the appeal of the St. Catharines Milling Company against the decision of the Supreme Court to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council had been decided in favor of the Province of Ontario. The cablegram read:

"The judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada is affirmed and the appeal dismissed. Held that the Dominion has no power to legislate itself into a title. The province is to assume the burden of the Indian Treaty. No costs."

The question involved was whether the title to certain lands in that portion of Ontario which used to be known as the "disputed territory" was vested in the Provincial Government, under the boundary award defining the limits of the Province, or whether it was vested in the Dominion Government, under certain treaties made with the Indians, the original owners of the lands. The decision is that the title rests with the province which will have to assume the charge of the Indians.

The Premier said: "I don't know that there is anything I can say about it. The cablegram was short, and merely said that the judgments of our courts had been confirmed and the property held to be the property of the Province, subject to our paying the Indians what they were to get under the treaty." Just then Hon. C. F. Fraser, Hon G. W. Ross and Hon. A. M. Ross, came in to attend a cabinet meeting, and hand-shaking and felicitations between the colleagues and their chief raised a little happy commotion during which the reporter withdrew.

This decision of the Privy Council closes a controversy that has continued from court to court and contention to contention since 1871. The dispute has involved a research of geography, ethnology, history and law. During this last battle of the boundary series the examination has delved down through centuries of treaties, and has brought up the dealings of European nations with aborigenes whom they displaced by their settlements from the earliest colonization times.

The Keely Motor Co.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—About 35 stockholders of the Keeley Motor Company met here yesterday for the annual meeting at which it was expected that seven directors would be elected. Most of the stock was represented by proxy, but there was not enough for a quorum and the meeting adjourned without fixing a date for future meeting.

$50,000 Lost By a Water-pipe Bursting.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 13.—A water-pipe running from the running from the pumping station to Fairmount reservoir burst last night and an immense volume of water poured through Division and Hanover-streets tearing up trees by the roots, cutting deep ravines and undermining buildings. The damage will reach $50,000.

Let Britain Tremble.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Riddleberger (Rep., Va.) gave notice that he would move every morning to take up his resolution for the consideration in open session of the British extradition treaty.

The House has passed the direct tax bill with certain amendments, 178 to 96.

Toledo Switchmen's Strike off.

TOLEDO, Dec. 13.—At 3 o'clock this afternoon the switchmen on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton yards accepted a compromise, the manager offering the same wages as received by the Wabash men, and resumed work.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Census Discloses a Population of 165,000—Broker Baxter in Town.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—The draft of the proclamation for the annexation of Parkdale has been placed in the hands of the City Clerk. The terms on which annexation is to be carried out are briefly stated as follows: Parkdale's general debenture debt to be redeemed by the city; the town to be a city ward; Queen-street subway to be widened and improved; Dufferin-street to be opened to the subway; Parkdale lake front to be made a part of the city's drive scheme; the waterworks of the town to be utilized by the city as far as practicable, and a western branch established for the payment of rates; the local improvement system to be assimilated to that of the city; the town's fire hall to be assumed as part of the city fire system; the town officials to be retained by the city as far as possible; the city police system to include Parkdale; the present police force of the town to be taken over by the city, subject to the approval of the Police Commissioners. These terms do not meet the unqualified approval of the city officials and the Executive Committee will meet to-day to consider them.

A man named George Beggs, aged 23, unmarried and an ex-waterworks employe, was killed yesterday morning at Doncaster by the premature explosion of a blast. Another man working near him escaped miraculously.

There was a genuine surprise party at police headquarters yesterday morning. While the Police Court was in session who should walk in but Mr. Jas. Baxter, the Montreal broker. Stepping up to Detective-Sergeant Reburn, he tapped him lightly on the shoulder. Reburn's astonishment when he looked up and saw Mr. Baxter standing beside him was simply marvellous. They shook hands and the officer introduced Mr. Baxter to the reporters and then took him to the County Crown Attorney, to whom he also presented him. The two B.'s, Baxter and Badgerow, had a brief consultation about the third B—Barnett. Mr. Baxter stated that he came to Toronto, having received a letter from a party here advising him that his testimony would be essential at the case of the creditors of the Central Bank against Archibald Campbell. Spoken to, he said: "I know no more about Barnett than those uniformed policemen standing there. All the talk concerning me was only wind. Now I am in Toronto, and I court the fullest investigation."

An army of 313 men were spread broadcast over the whole city yesterday to ascertain by an accurate census the exact population. Each man was given a district which he could cover with ease in a day. Many of them got through their work by 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and at 10 in the evening but five enumerators had to be heard from. The returns so far as received bring up the figure to 161,000 and with the five books to came in that number will probably be swelled to 165,000. With Parkdale annexed Toronto will start the new year with a population of 170,000.

The famous appeal case of Rev. W. F. Wilson against a conviction by the Police Magistrate for being disorderly was finished yesterday. The jury retired at 5 o'clock. They returned at 9 o'clock and Judge Morgan was told that the jury could not agree and they were discharged. There were 10 for the appeal and two against it.

Dr. Lehmann, medical inspector of the Provincial Board of Health, who returned Tuesday night from a visit to the country south of French River and Lake Nipissing, reports diphtheria prevalent in that vicinity.

The Congregationalists at their session yesterday passed a resolution favoring the establishment in Toronto of a training school for young men looking towards ministerial work.

MORE RETALIATION TALK.

The U. S. Commissioner of Navigation on Reciprocity in Wrecking.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—C. B. Morton, Commissioner of Navigation, in his annual report, says: The wrecking by Canadian tugs in American waters and vice versa gives rise to perplexing questions. Efforts have been made to arrive at some agreement with the Canadian Government in regard to the matter. That Government declares itself as ready to enter into reciprocal arrangements in relation to the coasting trade including wrecking but declines absolutely to make any special arrangement in regard to the latter matter. Regrets are expressed that the questions involved in the fisheries dispute between the United States and Canada have not been settled by negotiation. The commissioner says that it seems that the time has now arrived when retaiation is in order and the Canadians taught that two can play at a game of obstruction to the laws of trade and commerce. It is plain that the Canadians should allow our vessels, permitted under our laws, to visit their ports for commercial purposes, the privileges usually given by foreign governments in such cases or that very decided measures should be taken to lay a burden at least as heavy on Canadian business in the United States.

Committed Forgery for a Girl.

NEWARK, N. J.,—It has been settled beyond a doubt that Edward Fenton Honeywood, who was arrested in this city on Monday night for forgery, is the son of Lady Honeywood of England. He claims to have been sent to New Zealand to reform and that on his return to England he was kept by his brother Sir John until he got his share of the property (£15,000), which he soon squandered and was then induced to come to America. Here he fell in love with Minnie Ayres, the girl for whom he committed forgery.

England's Trade With Canada.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Exports to Canada show a decrease of 16.8 per cent. for November, and 9.5 for the eleven months. Iron shows the largest decline. Imports from Canada increased 1.59 per cent. for the month, and 11,35 for the eleven months. The live stock, fish, metal and lumber imports expanded, while wheat much declined. The total wheat imports this year were £1,000,000 less than last; flour about equal.

Milwaukee P. E. Bishopric.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 13.—A special council of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the diocese of Milwaukee to elect a successor to the late Bishop Wells is now in session here. There promises to be a deadlock between the High and Low Church advocates.

Tin-Cup Trotting Records.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—About twenty men, representing the National Association of trotting horse breeders, assembled in the Fifth-avenue Hotel here yesterday and endeavored to settle the much vexed difference between "tin-cup" records and those made in public contests by trotting horses. After hours of debate the whole matter was referred to the Executive Committee.

A Toronto Student's Pluck.

ITHACA, N.Y., Dec. 13.—Of a party skating on Dwyer's dam in this city last evening four persons broke through the ice and two were drowned, one a student named Nevins and the other Miss Maggie Sullivan, teacher in the Central School here. A young student named Master of Toronto tied a rope about himself and twice dived down to recover the bodies. He was 20 minutes in the cold water. A young man named Patrick Wall broke his arm in an attempt at rescue.

GOSSIP OF OLD LONDON.

LABOUCHERE'S INTERESTING GRIST OF PERSONAL ITEMS.

All About All the Notables—The Recent Doings of Kings and Queens, Lords and Commoners.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Lord Randolph Churchill will probably be absent from England until next May. He contemplates visiting the western coast of South America and returning by the United States.

The Empress Frederick and her daughters are sombre figures at Windsor. The Empress wears a widow's cap with long strings reaching nearly to her feet, and her daughters, in addition to their crape robes, wear what would be termed here widow's caps. The Empress has decided to return to Berlin when she leaves England next month, instead of proceeding to Italy, as was her original intention.

The Empress of Russia has been suffering severely from the nervous shock which she sustained on the occasion of the recent railroad accident, and she is in a state of considerable depression and altogether alarmingly unwell. The court physicians are anxious that the Empress should go to Naples for the winter, as they consider a thorough change of scene and lively surroundings to be indispensable to her, but she positively refuses to leave her husband, who is very anxious for her to go, and who, indeed, has been strongly recommended to accompany her; but political considerations keep him at home. Dr. Charcot, of Paris, who is the great authority on nervous complaints, will be summoned to St. Petersburg shortly to see the Emperor and Empress.

It was announced some weeks ago that Emperor William was suffering from a return of the purulent catarrh of the left ear, to which he was formerly subject. The Emperor, as a matter of fact, has been ailing ever since he returned from Rome. There is no danger, but his malady is exceedingly painful and very troublesome.

The Duchess of Sutherland left a special injunction that she should not be buried in the family vault at Trentham. The Duchess had for some time apprehended that her end was approaching, and the spot in the cemetery at Torquay where she was buried had recently been selected by herself for her grave.

All dispatches and letters passing between the Berlin foreign office and the German embassy at Vienna are now conveyed by special couriers, as there is reason to suspect that during the last few weeks the postal correspondence between the embassies, Prince Reust and Count Herbert Bismarck has regularly been tampered with.

Gladstone will reside at Villa Bella at Piegosilo during his stay at Naples, which will extend over six weeks. This is one of the most beautiful places in the environs of Naples, and the terrace and grounds command charming views of the bay. It is probable that Gladstone's arrival at Naples will excite a great manifestation of popular enthusiasm, as he has been the public idol there ever since his famous letters to Lord Aberdeen on the cruelty inflicted on political prisoners by the infamous King Bomba. HENRY LABOUCHERE.

DE LESSEPS WEEPS.

He Announces that the Canal is Made and Many Tears are Shed.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Another scene of excitement was enacted at the office of the Panama Canal Company yesterday. The crush was even greater than that of Tuesday. At 4 o'clock a hush fell over the throng and M. de Lesseps appeared, Mounting a table he said: "My friends: The subscription is safe. Our adversaries are confounded. We do not need the help of financiers. You have saved yourselves by your own exertions. The canal is made." Here M. de Lesseps was so overcome that he wept. Amid cheering, weeping and mutual congratulations all present shook hands with M. de Lesseps. When the excitement had partially abated the news went round that 410,000 bonds had been subscribed for in Paris and the same number in the provinces. Marseilles alone took 86,000 bonds. An official of the company replaced M. de Lesseps and announced that the subscription lists would be kept open until Saturday noon. It is reported that numbers immediately renewed their subscriptions, the receiving clerks being completely overtaxed.

The Future Viewed with Alarm.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—At the meeting of the Parnell Commission yesterday Attorney-General Webster, for The Times, announced that he would proceed with the examination of a number of landlords from County Wexford to show the condition of that county.

Sir Charles Russell, for the Parnellites, protested. He said the Attorney-General had not included Wexford in his opening address. If the other side were going all over Ireland the area of the enquiry would be increased to an alarming extent.

The Attorney-General responded that he was bound to prove that League terrorism prevailed in almost every county.

Justice Hannen said he could only view the future with alarm. The Court had been engaged for many days but had not yet arrived at the end of any one branch of the inquiry. Only two branches had been entered upon and several branches of equal importance remained untouched. He again made an earnest appeal to counsel to do their utmost to compass the enquiry and to avoid wasting years of the life of those engaged in the inquiry.

A Ridiculous Falsehood.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—An Englishman named Jones recently wrote from America to Edward Heneage, M.P. for Great Grimsby, making inquiries with reference to an affidavit made by a Mr. Benson of Iowa to the effect that his (Benson's) father, a clergyman in Grimsby, had written him a specific account of the taxing of British workmen to supply funds for President Cleveland's campaign. Mr. Heneage replies: "There is no clergyman of the name of Benson in Grimsby. Benson's statement is absolutely baseless. I sympathize with Englishmen in America who are suffering from such a false and ridiculous charge.

Count Bismarck Complains of France.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Count Herbert Bismarck called the attention of the Foreign Committee of the Reichstag yesterday to the fact that France has not shown the same frankness and good will as the other powers appealed to in assisting in the suppression of the slave trade on the east coast of Africa.

The King and His Favorites.

STUTTGART, Dec. 13.—It is expected that a change in the Wurtemburg Ministry will soon take place, and it is reported that after this has been accomplished the American favorites of the King will return to their places in His Majesty's service.

A German Steamer Sunk by Haytians.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The second officer of the steamer Claribel of the Atlas line, which arrived here to-day, reports having heard that the German steamer Clementine had been fired into and sunk by the Haytian man-of-war La Trusse. The Claribel did not stop at Hayti.

Sunk in the Storm.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 13.—The schooner Church, bound from Cape Charles to Norfolk, light, sunk in the storm Monday night. Capt. Frank Enoch, Mate Harris and one of the crew, name unknown, were lost.

THREE BARE-FACED FACTS!

1st., AN $18,000 SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

2nd. A SACRIFICE SALE of the WHOLE STOCK! 3rd. THIRTY DAYS to do it in!

We face you with these three facts. We tell you calmly that there's no blowing or catchpenny wind in the statement. It's the cold-blooded, iron-rock truth. We've got to unload! There's no doubt about that, and, mind you, the essence of our unloading is TIME. What we can get for the goods is a secondary consideration. Do you realize that? If you do, seize your opportunity! If you don't see it, take our word for it.

Our lease of the Sheppard Store expires on January 1st. We've got to dispose of the Stock by that time. The best way to dispose of it is to throw it out at your own price and that is what we are going to do. It's easier to move in segments than by the cart load. Will you help us? It will pay you! We'll make it pay you! We'll compell you to pay yourself! With the alternative of either selling or moving the Stock staring us in the face, we've settled down to the conviction that grit will tell and we're going to whack out the Goods until every mother's son in the County has his arms full of Bargains.

On SATURDAY, December 1st, and for the following days we throw at your doors CLEAN-GRAINED BENEFITS from the

SHEPPARD BANKRUPT STOCK

of $18,000 WORTH OF GOODS, new choice and fresh, and selling at 50c. on the dollar. We leave it to you to name the prices! We go further! We will absolutely give you goods at your own figures. Bearing in mind that 30 days finishes the sale in Sheppard's old premises, we offer

A Sneak Thief.

A gentleman of the South Ward who has been away for some, who returned home late last night, was awakened by a loud crash during the night. Upon investigating he found that a proper had been pulled from the upper sash of the window and it had come down with a crash. Some one, supposing him to be still away, was intending to enter the house, but was luckily scared off.

Kidd foots the Bills.

That is Kidd's privilege and his business. He foots the Jims as well as the Bills. Likewise the Marys and Susans. Kidd's great specialty is footing the feet, in which the feature of low prices stands out prominently. He never denies a No. 7 man a No. 10 boot. Just now he is a sworn enemy of the doctor, for he aims to keep the feet dry and bounce the bills. Give Kidd the shoe man a call. d136

A Cobourg Tribute.

The Cobourg Daily Work of Dec. 5th says:—"Despatches from Rome announce that the Rt. Rev. Jos. Thomas Dowling, Bishop of Peterborough, has been translated to the See of Hamilton to succeed the late Dr. Carberrry, and that the Rev. Richard A. O'Connor, Dean of Barrie, in the Archdiocese of Toronto, has been nominated for the See made vacant by the translation of Mr. Dowling. The news has been received with universal regret by the Catholics in this (Peterborough) diocese, because they are loath to part with a loved prelate like Bishop Dowling. He is a wise-minded, large-hearted man, and during the short term of his administration here, has endeared himself to the people. In Hamilton, Bishop Dowling does not go among strangers by any means. He was ordained in the Ambitious City in 1864 and filled the office of administrator of the diocese in 1883. Hamilton Catholics are delighted at the prospect of getting back as their Bishop one who has endeared himself to them; indeed, that is the case wherever Bishop Dowling goes."

NEW Raisins, New Currants, Fresh Lemon, Citron and Orange Peel, for Christmas at M. R. KIDD'S.

GREENFIELD GUILTY.

SENTENCED TO TEN YEARS IN THE PENITENTIARY.

A Confession Got from Him by a Detective—His Story of the Crime—Intended to Rob a Safe—Tillman Wiles Makes a Good Witness—Other Strong Evidence—The Judge's Charge—The Prisoner Addresses the Judge—Could not Get Work.

At one o'clock yesterday afternoon, the hour for the resuming of Greenfield's trial, the court room was filled with an interested crowd. The evidence was proceeded with.

TOBIAS FITZGERALD having been sworn told of his having gone hunting and leaving his horse outside of the woods near McNarn's house and how it had been stolen and of having found the horse and rig in Cobourg.

Constable ADAMS, sworn, gave his testimony,—He told of the search for the burglar on the morning of the 31st and the finding of a vest and pair of boots and bundles or parcels of goods which had been prepared for carrying away. (The boots and vest were produced in court and identified.) The boots had been tried on the prisoner, but he could not say whether they were a fit or not as Greenfield was in his bare feet.

FREDERICK ROBINSON was the next witness called and sworn,—He was employed by Mr. T. Fitzgerald and had gone to Cobourg after the horse and buggy. The horse did not look, when he found it, as if it had been over driven. He was told it had been found feeding along the road.

Chief ROSEL next stepped into the box and was sworn,—He told of his visit to Buffalo and the extradition of the prisoner. On the occasion of his first visit he had found scars of a cut on the prisoner's left wrist.

Mr. MOORE asked the witness to show the photographs he had received at Buffalo at police headquarters.

To Mr. Moore,—Saw prisoner and asked him to show me his hands and wrists and he did so without hesitation; the boots might fit some person else, the boots were a pretty good fit; you can pretty near tell whether a boot will fit or not without stockings.

CONFESSION TO A DETECTIVE.

TILLMAN WILES was sworn and said,—I live in St. Catharines; his business was an amateur detective; he was in Peterborough in connection with other business and the Chief got him into the gaol to see if he could find out whether the prisoner intended to kill the policeman or not; he went in about ten o'clock on the 14th, but did not say much the first day; I knew most of the cribs and we soon got acquainted; the witness said "in his story he told me of how he had let down the upper sash of the window and went into the store; whilst he was in there doing up the goods in the overalls he heard a noise behind him and saw a man raised in looking in the window and he immediately fired at the man, who threw up his hands and shouted; I said to Greenfield that I thought I could make a better shot than that and he said that he thought he had killed him. He said he took off his boots so that he would not make a noise in the store and also said that when he jumped through he was stunned and rolled out into the road. He said he stole a horse and buggy and drove to Cobourg and then stole a ride to Toronto."

Mr. MOORE—Do you call this an honorable calling?

Witness—I do.

Mr. MOORE—You're about the only man that would do so. Do you not call it mean to betray a man as you did the prisner?

Witness—I did it for the council in this town.

Mr. MOORE—Did it for money, eh?

Witness—No, I didn't or havn't got any pay for it.

Mr. MOORE—Oh, you're a philanthropist, eh? (Laughter.) Don't you think it was a mean, contemptable part you were playing?

Witness—No, but I did—

Mr. MOORE—You have a very fine sense of honor. You went in as a friend and told your story about having just made a haul at Bobcaygeon, didn't you? Your a nice specimen of human being. (Laughter.)

GREENFIELD'S OWN STORY.

So the cross questions and answering went on until finally the witness said "I'll tell you just what I told him. I was put in gaol on the 14th and was there two days and half. I told him I was Mat Carpenter, who is a gopher man, that is a man who breaks safes and who is known as father of a mob of safe breakers, and is one of the best in the country. I told him about the big jobs I had done, and he wanted to be a good fellow, so he told me about some of his work. I didn't ask him to tell me anything. He is a pretty sharp fellow and has more nerve than any man I ever met. He said he did not come here to do this work, but had come down to do a gopher (rob a safe) at the woollen mills. His accomplice and he, however, quarrelled on the way here and the other man had gone back and taken the tools with which they were going to do the safe job. He said that if he had came down to do this work he would have brought bags; but having got here he did not want to go back without something. He didn't say he was in Gough's store, but a store where he shot at a man." The witness then repeated what he had nearly told as the account the prisoner had given of the shooting in the store.

To Mr. Wood—I pretended to him that I had done the jobs; acting as a private detective for thirty years

OTHER CONVICTING EVIDENCE.

GEORGE DORMER being sworn said he lived at Auburn and on the 31st of August he was on the Keene road; it was just about dark when he met the prisoner; he had Mr. Fitzgerald's little chestnut mare; knew the mare as soon as he saw it; he recognized the prisoner as the man.

To Mr. Moore—It was about six o'clock; seen prisoner before; went to school with him in Ashburnham about seven years ago; recognized him as he came past me; the horse was going until he was near me when he trotted; knew him as Ferguson; I was sure that was the man; had seen him about a month before in town here.

Mr. MOORE asked to call as a witness Robert Young, a prisoner who is confined in the gaol for robbing Mr. Chas. Porter's clothes line about three months ago.

ROBERT YOUNG, dressed in his prisoner's garb and having a most folorn look on his pale countenance, stepped into the box and was sworn. He said he was in the same corridor as the prisoner Greenfield. He recollected a man coming in to see him and he described Tillman Wiles to a nicety; the prisoner's opinion was that he was a detective.

CHARGING THE JURY.

Mr. MOORE then arose and addressed the jury on behalf of the prisoner. He dwelt on the short notice he had to prepare his defence, and pointed out the possibility of this being a case of mistaken identity.

Mr. WOOD followed for the Crown, and reviewing the evidence, pointed out the strong points against the prisoner.

HIS HONOR then addressed the jury in a short suming up. He pointed out that although there were four counts in this case slightly different in form, they had substantially to determine only the one, had the prisoner assaulted Constable Joseph Stewart with intent to kill. He explained that the presenting of a weapon was an assault in the eyes of the law. They could not creep into a man's mind and gather from it what his intentions were, but they must gather from what his object was. A man, His Honor said, did not use a weapon which would kill unless he had an intention of killing. They had to determine whether the prisoner was the man who was in Gough's shop on the 31st August. On Stewart's evidence above they might be unable to say that was the man, as the constable, as had been pointed out, would naturally be excited. He referred to the positive and splendid manner in which Stewart gave his evidence and spoke of the constable's bravery in acting as he did on the occasion. They had to consider whether the prisoner was in this neighborhood. His Honor said the prisoner had not attempted to show where he was at this time, although this would not justify them in saying he couldn't do so. He reviewed the many strong points in the evidence for the prosecution as to the identification of the prisoner. He spoke of Tillman Wiles' evidence and said this was a method that had been employed in many other cases, and cited the case of D'Arcy McGee. A confession or admission by a man against his own interest was the very highest form of evidence that could be submitted. He ag[illegible]ed them as to the points [illegible]

The Ju[illegible]d after being absent for[illegible]n a verdict of guilty.

The Judge deferred sentence and Green field was taken back to his cell. He was a little restless while the jury were considering his case and was ashy pale when he left the box.

Alex. Ritchie was brought in and arraigned on the indictment of three counts—larceny, obtaining goods under false pretences and fraudulent appropriation. He was not ready for his trial and his counsel, Mr. Edwards, obtained a postponement.

GREENFIELD ADDRESSES THE JUDGE.

This morning upon the opening of the court, Greenfield was brought into the court-room to receive his sentence from Judge Weller.

"John Greenfield, have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?"

Greenfield was very pale, but has a cool head, as the long and well-arranged statement which he made proved. He looked around the court room and said:

"Yes, I should like to say a few words. In the first place this Mrs. McNarn swears positively she saw me in Peterborough three years ago. She perjures herself in swearing that. You yourself know that three years ago I could not have been here for I was in the penitentiary at that time.

The JUDGE—Yes, I think you are the young man Ferguson who was convicted while I was County Attorney.

Greenfield continued—You know I was arrested for the larceny of a watch, but I was discharged and re-arrested for robbing Mills Bros', store. I got three years for that. That was four years ago, and how could I have been here three years ago? She swears positively she knew me in the south ward three years ago. Then this man Dormer swears he went to school with me in Ashburnham. He didn't. I had a half brother who went to school in Ashburnham. His name was Ferguson, my name is Greenfield. My mother married twice. I never saw the man before till in the witness box yesterday, and I don't think he ever saw me.

JUDGE WELLER—Do you think he saw you in that buggy?

GREENFIELD—"No, he did'nt. He said he saw Ferguson who went to school with him in Ashburnham, and he could not have seen me, because I never went to school there." He then pitched into the Examiner, which he said had been writing on this case ever since he went to Buffalo, and said that it had been printing pieces that prejudiced the minds of the jurymen against him. He said some of the statements the paper had made were untrue, as he had never been sentenced to thirty days for stealing old iron. It had also accused him of having a hand in the priest's robbery, and said that alone would prejudice the jury so that he could not get a fair trial. He had the column of biography with him, and Mr. Moore and the judge both read it, and remarked that they did not see anything in it that would greatly affect his trial. He accused the paper of having published the account three times over.

"As to Tillman Wiles," said Greenfield, "I knew him three years ago, and I wouldn't be likely to confess anything to him. I would be a fit subject for a lunatic asylum if I did. I have been in penitentiary, but after I came out

I TRIED TO LIVE RIGHT.

I went to Hamilton and got work on a gravel train, at $1.25 a day, but the men put up a job on me, and had me discharged. I asked why they discharged me, and the boss said they didn't want any Kingston gool birds working for them. Some time after Detective Doyle saw me on the street and asked me where I was going. I told him I had been working on the gravel train and he told me to never mind any gravel train but to get out of town inside of an hour or he would have me committed for vagrancy. I was therefore barred from earning an honest living there, but I didn't give up. I then went to Toronto where I got a job as orakeman on the O. & G. division of the C. P. R. This was about four years ago. Not long after Detective Reburn saw me on the streets of Toronto, and I was shortly afterwards called in by the managers of the road, who handed me my back time and discharged me. I asked for a letter of character to help me to get work somewhere else, but I was told if I applied to the Kingston Penitentiary likely I could get one there. I was thus barred twice by Toronto detectives from making an honest living. I tried to earn an honest living, and at laborious work, but they would not let me. What was I to do? Furthermore, the Chief of Police here in Peterborough found out to whom I was writing and found I was going to have a Toronto counsel to defend me and stopped my correspondence. I had friends come to Buffalo and tell me they would get counsel for me. Yesterday in your charge to the jury you reminded them that I did not show where I was at the time of the burglary. I could not extradite witnesses from the United States to appear here. That would be impossible."

THE SENTENCE PASSED.

Judge WELLER then addressed the prisoner and told Greenfield he could not expect him to believe that he was in the United States, and went on to point out the edidence to the contrary. He answered all the complaints Greenfield made and told him that the detectives would never have interfered with him if he had not been in the criminal calender and considered by them to be a man who required to be watched. He said he, Greenfield, had received a fair trial, perhaps more than he was entitled to and had had most able counsel. He had no doubt in his mind but that he was the man who robbed the store, as the evidence had been most clear. He told Greenfield that if he (the judge) thought he would leave his life career of crime he would make his sentence light, but he was convinced that he (Greenfield) had determined to lead a live of crime and was therefore a dangerous man to be at large in any community. His honor said that he thought if criminals were sent down for no expressed number of years, but upon a certificate signed of good conduct or a reformation being made by the prison officials the man were released, this would be attended with good results. His honor's concluding words were "You are, I believe, a perfect criminal, and dangerous to be at large, and the sentence of the court upon you, John Greenfield, is that you be imprisoned in the Provincial Penitentiary, at Kingston, for the period of ten years."

Greenfield's face did not change, although that determined expression which is so marked on the man's face seemed to become more revengeful, and and he stood there looking around him, muttering to himself.

THE GRAND JURY'S PRESENTMENT.

During the morning the Grand Jury brought in the following presentment:

To His Honor Judge Weller:

The Grand Jurors of our Sovereign lady the Queen, respectfully present that they have inspected the gaol and find it well kept, clean and comfortable, the drainage apparently in perfect condition. They find fourteen prisoners confined in gaol principally as vagrants. They beg to second your honor's remarks to them respecting the unfortunate insane persons now in gaol and would suggest their early removal to some asylum where proper treatment would be extended to them.

H. S. MACDONALD,
Foreman.

Peterborough, Dec. 12th, 1888.

The JUDGE thanked the jury for the careful, thorough and expeditious way in which they had attended to their duties, which had met with the approval of the court, and discharged them from further attendance."

Success Attended the Ladies.

The apron sale and tea given by the ladies of St. John's Church in aid of its South Ward Sunday School last evening was a most successful affair. It was held in one of the stores of the new Snowden block, and the number who sat down to tea was unusually large for such an occasion and the sale most successful. About $60 was realized and this is very gratifying and elects the ladies, who did all the work themselves, to a great deal of praise. They wish, also, to acknowledge with thanks the generosity of Mr. Matthews, who gave a ham, and Mr. J. E. McIntyre, who presented a fine turkey ready for the table.

ANNUAL DINNER OF LANSDOWNE LODGE S.O.E.

A Large Gathering Around the Festive Board—The Toasts and Speeches—A Long list of Songs—An Evening of Pleasure and Enthusiasm.

Over one hundred Englishmen and their guests filed into the dining-room of the Snowden house and took their places at the festive board last evening to participate in the annual dinner of Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England. The dining-hall had been decorated with flags and bunting by the artistic hands of Mr. J. J. Turner and presented a cheerful appearance, while the tables were most tastefully arranged. Pinned to each napkin were a red and white artificial rose and this queen of flowers to the Englishmen was transported to the buttenholes of the user of each napkin and was an appropriate badge for the assemblage. The menu was elaborate and excellently served, thanks for which is due Bro. Bowman who was caterer. The committee who so successfully managed the annual celebration was composed of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. J. J. Turner, W. Roberts, T. Roadhouse, E. Waram and W Taylor. President Tivey occupied the seat of honor and performed the duties of the evening most acceptably. On his right sat Messrs. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., R. S. Davidson and Mr. Denne, while to his left were Dr. Pigeon, Mayor Stevenson, M.P., and Councillor Moore. After all had consulted the bill of fare to their individual satisfaction the usual toast list was taken up.

THE TOASTS, RESPONDERS AND SONGS.

President Tivey asked the assemblage to fill up their glasses and drink to the "Queen" which was most loyally complied with, and Vice President Mitchell honored the toast in a short, patriotic speech. "The Prince of Wales and Royal Family" was the second toast on the list and was duly honored, followed by "The Dominion of Canada and the Governor-General". Mayor Stevenson, M.P., did justice to this toast in a few brief and appropriate remarks. "The Army and Navy and Volunteers" was proposed and drank, and "The Red, White and Blue" was sung by the gathering led by Mr. E. Clarke. Mr. Clarke was then forced to sing again, and gave "The Flag of Liberty." Mr. Sydney Blade, one of the Canadian voyageurs, and Mr. Geo. Hardy each gave a rattling song and Bro. E. Elcome in a brief speech did honor to the toast.

"The Ontario Legislature" was heartily drank and Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P., was called to his feet. This was his fourth dinner with Lansdowne Lodge and he congratulated it on its prosperity. He thanked them for the reception given the toast, but said he did not think it necessary to detain them by speaking of the Legislature. But as this was an Englishmen's dinner he would make a few remarks on England, and proceeding with his address he sounded Briton's praises and achievements—constitutional, military and commercial. He told them while honoring their or their fathers' country, they must not forget the land that gave them bread and butter.

"The American Grand Lodge of S. O. E." was the next toast drank. It was done heartily, and followed by "For they are Jolly Good Fellows." Bro. T. Gunn responded to the toast, and spoke of the prosperity of the English societies throughout Canada. This was his fifth annual dinner with the Lansdowne Lodge, he said, and proceeded to tell of the origin of the Order, and sat down amid applause.

MAYOR AND COUNCILLORS SPEAK.

"The Town of Peterborough" was drank amid enthusiasm. Mayor Stevenson thanked them for the kind manner in which they had drank the toast. He thought that they could well do so, for the Council had rendered services which merited their appreciation. He would live, he thought, to see Peterborough emerge from a town into a city of 20,000, and he hoped a few years would see Asnburnham and Peterborough combined. He referred to the good standing of the town, which he thought was due to the Councillors largely. He was opposed to bonuses, although he would like to see their manufactories healthy, but he thought they should help themselves up. He referred to a business not one hundred yards from where they were, which employed 110 hands, paid their $1,800 in wages every two weeks, and which always could find a market for their goods. He said this was the kind of manufactories they wanted. He hoped he would never see this country down its colors to the stars and stripes. (Cheers). He always looked on the British flag with pride and knew where he saw it he could have protection. He spoke strongly against annexation, and said their course and duty was to build up their country. He felt confident of the prosperity of the town. Mr. Stevenson resumed his seat amid great applause. Councillor Cahill, who was greeted with applause, said he could endorse all the Mayor had said. He had been for fifteen years connected with the corporation, and he had tried to keep pace with the town's prosperity and it was for them to say how he had succeeded. (Applause). He said he was an Irishman, and went on to speak flatteringly of Englishman, and said the one blackest spot on England's escutcheon was her treatment of Ireland. Councillor Davidson in a short speech thanked them off behalf of the Council and spoke of the town's prosperity. He thought the high financial position which the town occupied was a matter for congraulation, and referred to the recent sale of debentures which had not been equalled by any other town in Ontario. Councillor Moore also sounded Peterborough's praises and spoke hopefully of her future. The town of Peterborough twenty years ago, he said, had not a brick building on George-st. but it had grown until it was known abroad as the "Plate Glass City." He did not favor bonuses, as a manufactory which had to be started with municipal finances was what he called a "mushroon manufactory." Calls of "Denne, Denne," brought Mr. Denne to his feet. He did not know why they had called on him as he was not on the Council Board now although he had been for years. He thanked them for calling upon him and wished them every success. Mr. John McNaughton was also called upon and spoke to the toast. He did not wish to see another lodge of Englishmen started here, for they did not want a dude lodge and a workingman's lodge here. He always enjoyed these gatherings and would come if he had to borrow the dollar for the ticket. "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung for John's benefit.

TOASTS AND SONGS.

Mr. J. J. Turner gave a rattling song and had to respond to an encore when he gave his inimitable "Come Along Joe." Mr. Clarke gave another song, when "Our Sister Societies" was enthusiastically drank and Bro. Rundle, an Oddfellow of Oshawa, did the toast honor in a short, appropriate speech, speaking of the benefit of the societies to their members individually and to the town by their charitable assistance. He had watched Peterborough's progress and now he had come to reside among them and he hoped he would make a good citizen. Mr. J. Fanning on behalf of the Foresters also spoke to the toast. "The Learned Professions" was responded to by Mr. W. A. Stratton, Dr. Pigeon and Mr. Moore, Brother Bowman gave a song in good style and was forced to respond to a hearty encore. Brother Barnes, of Belleville lodge, gave a song and was also encored. "The Press" was toasted and responded to by representatives of the Examiner, Times and REVIEW. Mr. Pearce then gave "There's a lighthouse by the Sea" in his fine voice and was most deservedly encored. "The Ladies" was drank with guest enthusiasm and "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" was heartily sung and Messrs Stevens and Long spoke the praises of the fair sex. "The Host and Hostess" was porposed and enthusiastically drank, Messrs Snowden and Bowman, the caterer, making an appropriate acknowledgement. Mr. Geo. Barlow gave a good song and was followed by another by Mr. Kingscott, which was encored. "God Save the Queen" brought a happy and pleasant evening to a close at about one o'clock a.m.

Mr. Pearce presided at the organ and accompanied all the songs.

MR. STEVENSON'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—

Although I had almost definitely decided to retire from active and official participation in municipal matters, yet the desire, as expressed in the foregoing requisition, seems to be of so general and representatives a character, that I feel that I would be doing less than my duty as a citizen if I failed to respond to it, therefore, though I do so with personal reluctance, in compliance with the formal demand for my services, I hereby consent to become a candidate for the mayoralty of Peterborough for the year 1889. In so doing I think I have a right to feel that my past services have been employed in the best interests of the town, which could hardly be otherwise, when it is borne in mind that I have no small share of material interests to be affected by the administration of the municipal affairs of the town. It is, therefore, my own interest to use my best efforts to secure economical and prudent management of civic matters, and I think my past course is a sufficient guarantee that the public interest will not meet with neglect at my hands. I might suggest that my efforts in promoting manufacturing industries shows that my interest in labouring men is not of a merely sentimental character. I am a comparatively large employer of labor, and endeavor to put my interest in the laboring classes into practical effect, and shall, if again honored with the confidence of the citizens, use my best efforts to maintain the rights and promote the interests of all classes of the community. I do not seek the office of mayor, but if I am chosen I shall not fail to do my best in the future as I have done in the past, to discharge its duties faithfully. I, therefore, place myself in your hands and allow you to put my name in nomination for the position of mayor, assured that I can count upon your assistance in securing my return.

I have the honor to remain, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JAMES STEVENSON.

CANADIANS' LOYALTY.

MR. WIMAN'S ADDRESS AT THE WEST NEW BRIGHTON.

"The Greater Half of the Continent and the Relations Therewith"—The Annexation Agitation.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The address of Erastus Wiman, Tuesday night, at West New Brighton, L. I., on the "Greater Half of the Continent and the Relations therewith," was listened to by a large and deeply interested audience. After describing the areas, climatic influences, and varied resources of his native country, Mr. Wiman referred to the agitation now being promoted to effect its annexation to the United States. He said:

While there is a general concensus of opinion among the American people that the admission of Canada to a political union with the United States would be most desirable and advantageous to both, very little thought has been bestowed upon the real desires and wishes of the Canadian people in this matter, and much less as to the possible influence on the British Government and the British people in regard to a question so pregnant to them. The American people are so immeasurably content in their own marvellous material progress—they have been taught to believe to such an extent in the perfection and attractiveness of their political institutions—that it is incomprehensible why the people of a country like Canada should for a moment hesitate to join the constellation of commonwealths that illuminate this western hemisphere. And looking at it from a material point of view it is incomprehensible, for a spectacle is presented in the attitude of Canada in regard to this question, that in this age of material aggrandizement is simply marvellous.

Here are five millions of people occupying the greater half of a continent of enormous propo rtions and the most abundant resources, whose only hope of successful development and perfect growth lies in a union between themselves and the nation along side of them—the greatest nation that the world has ever seen. Yet so pronounced is the sentiment in Canada against annexation, that to-morrow it would be utterly impossible to elect a constable to office, much less a member of Parliament, who openly advocated the measure. It is a condition almost without parallel that a hundred years have come and gone since the Declaration of Independence, and that these two nations have grown up side by side, and to-day are further apart than ever. The one has achieved a success beyond the wildest estimates, and possesses an attractiveness that has won contributions from all the world beside, including now a people of over sixty millions, and a wealth approaching that of Great Britain itself. The other nation, occupying just as favorable a territory, with established institutions and the patronage and support and capital of the then wealthiest nation in the world, has attained to a population of only five millions, with one quarter of her native born people in the United States, with an enormous internal and public debt, with an imperfect development in vast material resources and without hope of better days. Yet so loyal, so true are this people to the existing conditions of political existance—conditions that have kept their country a laggard in this continental race—that to talk of political change among her people is to talk of treason. Treason to whom? Not treason to themselves or to their children or to their dependents. No; but "treason to the old flag"—"the flag that for a thousand years has braved the battle and the breeze." To talk of annexation with United States and a change of their political allegiance is to talk of treason to a soverign 4000 miles away, whose rule is so slight as scarcely to be felt, whose prerogative is rarely exercised, and who is represented, not by an army of soldiers or even by a horde of officials, but by a single well-bred gentleman in the person of the Governor-General.

It is not singular that long ere this the Canadian people, finding themselves outstripped by the great progress of the United States, and realizing how advantageous would be an alliance in this direction, that they have not knocked at the door and asked for admittance. But there has been no manifestation of a sign of this kind. On the contrary, it may be safely affirmed that there is no people in the world so penetrated and permeated with loyalty to existing conditions as are the Canadian people, and there is no people in the world to whom such a sentiment is so disadvantageous. It may be a foolish loyalty, it may be an expensive luxury in which the Canadians are indulging to thus withstand the material temptations which a political union affords, and sacrifice their present and their future to the recollections of the past; but whether it is wise or unwise, the fact so exists, and should be recognized as an essential factor in all the discussions in relation to this subject. The sentiment of loyalty to existing conditions is one which the American people appreciate and admire. To maintain the integrity of their own nationality they made sacrifices greater than any people had ever been called upon to make. A debt amounting to 3,000 millions of dollars, and a sacrifice to the extent of 500,000 lives speak in trumpet tones as to the loyalty of the American to his his own country and his own political institutions. Give the Canadian the same credit, that as against temptation, as against poverty and loss, he maintains his attachment to British connection, because under that flag he was born, and under that form of government he was brought up. It is easy enough for an American to feel that the ties that bind colonies to Great Britain set lightly. In the great struggle for their own independence they were justified not only by the then existing conditions, but everything that has since transpired, in throwing these ties to the winds. But with Canada the case is entirely different. Nothing can exceed the liberality of treatment which Canada, as a great colony, has received from the government of Great Britain. Had the same treatment been accorded to the North American colonies prior to 1776, the great schism of the Anglo-Saxon race would never have occurred. The wisdom which was wanting in the English Government in those days, had it been displayed as it has since been displayed in the treatment of dependencies, that great land which to-day fills the world with wonder, and is recognized as the United States, might still have been a part and parcel of the British Empire. It is difficult to conceive that ere this an independent nationality would not have been achieved, but it is equally difficult to conceive that without justification, there could have been a rebellion and a separation. So far as Canada is concerned, and her treatment by the British Government, there is no justification whatever for a change in her political condition. Under such circumstances it is difficult just to see the practical shape which the present agitation in the United States toward annexation can take. It is true that Great Britain might feel that she was more or less at a disadvantage by having so large a portion of her empire, in North America, exposed to attack; and it is true that since the Canadian Government have put a high rate of taxation upon English goods, the same as prevails against American goods, no great advantage results to her from a trade point of view consequent upon the colonial connection. But it is equally true that to give up Canada and to permit over its wide expanse, amounting to 40 per cent. of the British Empere, the spread of republican institutions thus suddenly agreed to, might be considered a most serious matter to the existing conditions in Great Britain itself. The change in sentiment toward republicanism in that country since the lowering of the electoral franchise on the one hand, and on the other the success of Republican government on this side, would be greatly encouraged by such a spread of republicanism as the annexation of Canada to the Union would imply. The aristocratic and official class, forming so large a portion of the governing power in England would therefore look with considerable apprehension upon the movement. It is difficult to see what party or what government could be justified in peaceably and promptly acceding to a request from the United States which would practically yield as much in the shape of territory, as radical a change in the form of government, as was achieved by the Declaration of Independence and the war that followed it. It is true that conditions have vastly changed, and that a union of the Anglo-Saxon people, regardless of territory and form of government, is a dream that many indulge in. But to give such a dream a practical form and to unite even the English speaking nations on the continent of North America under one government, it seems impossible for the moment to contemplate with any hope of realization. It is practical politics to strive for the attainable. To hope and dream for that which a lifetime can only accomplish is well enough, but for men like Senator Sherman, who desire to write the word "immortal" after their names, and to achieve it by breaking down the barriers that separate the people on this continent, there is a disappointment in store, if at their time of life they hope to accomplish a purpose so fast before they are called hence.

Mr. Wiman then proceeded to detail his plan for commercial instead of political union, claiming its perfect practicability and ease of accomplishment within five years. He maintained that, so far as trade and commerce were concerned, commercial union would be just as effective as political union; that to the protectionist it at once opened up an enlarged market, and procured a continental extension of the protectionist idea, while to the free trader it was a welcome instalment in that trade would be thus free over a larger space of the earth's surface than elsewhere on the globe. The way to capture Canada was by assimilation by intercourse, and by making a profit out of her trade, and her marvellous resources, rather than by reprisals, retaliation or bluster. Break down the barbed wire fence between the two peoples, and the future would take care of itself; if this produced annexation well and good; if annexation never came, all the advantages which it implied would have been attained, with none of its drawbacks. Trade knew no political barriers, and in this age it was trade that we were all after.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

Mantles and Mantle Cloths are going rapidly. The prices and styles sel them. In our Children's Mantles, we are sold out of some sizes which we are sorry for, as we don't like to miss sales, but as we have already sold all we expected to sell in the whole season, we cannot complain. But we have a lot of ends of good CLOTHS, which we will sell at a sacrifice to fill up the gap, and our mantle cutter will cut and fit these goods free of charge, and explain the best way to make them up. The size s we have in stock to fit children from 6 to 12 years we will clear out very cheap. MANTLE PLUSHES are now much in vogue in the larger cities, but are not much looked for here yet. We think it cannot be possible the ladies have not heard about them but they cannot know how beautiful they make up or there would be a greater demand. We have the Black and Seal Brown in stock.

Dress Goods. We are showing Dress Goods at 10c. a yard, which would be good value at 20c. The way they are selling fairly astonishes us, which shows that the public appreciate genuine bargains. In Fine Goods everybody says we have the nicest stock in town, and what everybody says must be true. What we are going to tell you now is of great importance, and we want you to remember it. Our Dress Goods Remnants have been accumulating faster than we like them to, and we have made up our minds to clear them all out. We will offer everything in the shape of a Dress Goods remnant, plain and fancy, good and bad together, at 15c. a yard. Most of these Goods ranged from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are all laid out on the counter, so come along; first come, first served. And what can you buy more suitable for a Christmas present for your girls than a new Dress.

Canadian Tweeds. Among a lot of Goods just opened out, we have a line of Canadian Tweeds, bought job. We have marked them 45c. a yard. They are extra heavy weight and made of good wool.

Our Hosiery. Our hosiery department is filled with the best Goods made in the Province. Many people tell us they find lines with us they cannot get elsewhere. See our heavy make 8-1b double knees and heels and another line called "Arctic," it handles as if lulled. There is no need for hand knitting while these goods are to be had.

White and Grey Cottons. The rate our White and Grey Cottons, Sheetings, etc., keep coming in and going out must be a sure indication they are extra good value. Those who have not bought some of the Goods should buy a trial parcel. We know we can save our customers money notwithstanding all he loud talk and flaring advertising which somebody has to pay for, and red flag business. Those wanting genuine bargains, will find the real article at

A SOVEREIGN NATION.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN CANADA.

Professor Schurman of Cornell University Talks about the Dominion's Destiny—The Golden Northwest.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Prof. J. G. Schurman of Cornell University, who is a Canadian, spoke here to-night on the political situation in Canada. He held that Canada had been growing into an independent nation since 1840, especially since the Confederation in 1867. Since 1880 Canada's semi-continental interoceanic territory had greatly fostered the sentiment. However, there were influences that might work for annexation. Taxation, general and local was about as high in Canada as in the United States, being in Nova Scotia $9.45 per capita as against $11.25 in Vermont, but the Vermonters' burden would be lessened by $2 before 1900 by the payment of the debt. The population did not respect the 49th parallel. There were nearly one-fourth as many Canadians in the United States as in Canada, and there were too few in the Canadian Northwest. Still it was shown that from 1790 to 1860 the rate of increase of population had been greater in Canada than in the United States, but from 1861 to 1881 the Canadian increase had been only 33 per cent.

However, neither the finances nor the population, nor even the fisheries required such radical treatment as a political union with the States which Canadian sentiment opposed. Both countries would be benefitted by limited trade reciprocity. Canada had only to wait for the return from her golden Northwest when she might become in name what she has almost grown to be in fact—a sovereign nation. In the meantime she would retain her present political status.

THE U. S. CONTRACT LABOR LAW.

Actors Moving to Have Their Foreign Professional Brethren Shut Out.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The American actor, like the artisan, wants protection from foreigners coming here under contract to work at small salaries. To-day Louis Aldrich, Harley Merry and Lewis M. Sanger, a committee representing the Actor's Order of Friendship, appeared before the Ford immigration investigating committee and asked that the contract labor law be so amended as to include professional actors and musicians among the classes prohibited from entering the United States under a labor contract. At present the law specially exempts actors and musicians from its provisions.

THE COMBER ELOPERS.

They Will Probably Remember Their Visit to Norwood.

NORWOOD, Dec. 13.—A man named Wm. Allen last evening came into this place and called upon Mrs. House, a lady from Comber, Ont., who had left her husband and three children a short time ago. He had been with her when she first left home, but delayed following her for a short time to throw off suspicion. They intended going to Hastings last night and hired a horse and rig for that purpose, but when entering the rig were surprised, or rather stunned, by a shower of eggs thrown by a crowd of boys who had collected to give them a farewell send off. The crowd then took them out of the rig and sent it back to the livery. The couple then proceeded to the other hotel and from thence to the C. P. R. station, followed by the crowd. They quietly seated themselves to wait for the midnight express, but were not long allowed to rest in this position. He was taken out and presented with a tie ticket, which he thankfully took. They then escorted the lady down town, after which the gathering broke up. Today Mr. Allen went to Havelock, where he boarded the express going west. Mrs. House took the same train from here.

SMALLPOX AT BUFFALO.

A Serious Outbreak Threatened—Four New Cases Reported.

BUFFALO, Dec. 13.—Still the smallpox continues to menace Buffalo. There were three new cases reported last evening and one new case to-day. The advent of cold weather is quite likely to spread the disease and it threatens an outbreak. Another case was sent from the penitentiary to the quarantine hospital to-day. Since the discovery of the first case here on July 7 there have been 121 cases and the deaths have numbered between 35 and 40.

Mary Was Deceived.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—In 1885 when George Cooper asked Mary A. Cooper to become his wife she asked him if there was negro blood in his veins. He had visited her for a year but she had been beguiled into the belief that his dark appearance was due to Portuguese extraction. He assured her that she was mistaken and they were married. Hearing that he had relatives in Philadelphia she latterly decided on making a quiet visit to her mother-in-law. On inquiring for that individual there she was astounded to find herself in the embrace of a wench who at once acknowledged her daughter-in-law. Mrs. Cooper returned here and began proceedings for annulment of the marriage on the ground of deception, and the referee decided in her favor.

Cobbled by the Northern Pacific.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 13.—A special from Stevens Point says the master car builders of the Wisconsin Central line have received orders to mark all cars repaired and rebuilt "Northern Pacific" instead of "Wisconsin Central." This is taken as a sign that the Northern Pacific Company is to absorb the Wisconsin Central system. Nothing can be learned of the matter here.

TRANSATLANTIC FLASHES.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Sensational Evidence Given Before the Parnell Commission—A Would-be Murderer on the Stand.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—In the House of Commons to-night Sir James Ferguson, Under Foreign Secretary, replying to Lord Randolph Churchill said that the American Minister had presented a notice on the Sackville affair a few days ago, and that it had been referred to Lord Sackville for comment. The correspondence on the subject will not be published until complete.

W. H. Smith was asked whether Sir Charles Warren was to be sent to Suakim. He gave an evasive reply that afforded no information.

A debate followed on a motion by Mr. Whitbread (Lib.) that the House record its approval of the Sheehy Committees' report.

Mr. Balfour opposed the motion which, he said he considered unnecessary. He had given instructions that no member should have a process served on him under any circumstances whatever in the precincts of the House.

Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt made a long speech in support of the motion.

W. H. Smith followed, speaking to the same effect as Mr. Balfour.

After a long discussion the motion was rejected, 182 to 130.

In the debate on the naval estimates Lord Charles Beresford urged the necessity of strengthening the navy and deprecated the notion that in the event of war England could place her commerce under the protection of a neutral flag or could depend upon allies.

Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, in replying admitted the justice of many of the remarks of Lord Charles Beresford, but objected to his comparison of the English with the French navy. France, he said, certainly had plenty of vessels, but she was engaged in building so many at a time that it took years to complete them and when completed they were comparatively obsolete and had to be altered. He contended that the admiralty was doing all that it was possible to do with the resources obtained.

A Would-be-Murderer's Fee.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—At the meeting of the Parnell Commission to-day Constable Feeley testified that he had attended several League meetings. At one of them Mr. Parnell made a speech. One of his remarks was that "These are days for action, not for words."

A man named Buckley, who said he was a laborer, testified that he was sworn in as a member of the Fenian Brotherhood in November, 1880, at Tralee Castleway. In 1882 a man named Roach had been expelled from the League for giving information to the police which led to the arrest of several members of the league. A meeting was held and it was arranged that witness with Fitzgerald and Phoenix should shoot Roach. Revolvers were given them for the purpose. The three men followed Roach from a court-house, where he had been prosecuting a neighbor for trespassing on his land, to his own house, but they found no opportunity to shoot him. A meeting was held shortly afterwards at the house of a man named Casey, and witness was asked whether he would undertake to shoot Roach if the League provided him with funds to escape to America. Witness consented and was given a revolver and 24 cartridges and advised to practice and improve his aim. It was arranged that after he had shot Roach he should take shelter at the house of a man named Dean and witnesses would be forthcoming to swear that he was not in the vicinity at the time of the murder. Witness afterwards met Roach driving cattle and attempted to shoot. He pulled the trigger of his revolver three times, but the weapon missed fire. Roach then bolted. Witness was arrested and charged with attempting the crime, but witnesses swore that he was at Dean's house when the attempt was made and he was released. Witness some time after applied to the League for money to go to America and obtained £2 10s. He expressed dissatisfaction with the amount, but Phoenix told him he could not expect any more in view of his failure to shoot Roach. On cross-examination witness averred that his attempt on Roach's life was a genuine one. Before the occurrence he used to practice firing with his revolver at a stone the size of a man's head. This statement caused a sensation.

Mgr. Persico's Report on Ireland.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Mgr. Persico's report on the Irish question is almost completed. He directs attention to the anomalous fact that all the Government authorities in Ireland from the Lord-Lieutenant downward are Protestants and not well disposed towards Catholics. On the other hand he says the agrarian struggle engenders outrage and a total violation of the moral law. He himself has improved the state of affairs but much remains undone. The Irish people refuse absolutely to admit that the plan of campaign is criminal, they consider it a legitimate retaliation upon the landowners who they say must pay for the misdeeds of this class in the past. The land courts sometimes succeed in quieting the people by obtaining concessions from the landlords, but generally they inspired little confidence. The Pope may still do much provided he can convince the Irish people that he is now acting in accordance with an agreement with the English Government. The people must be made to comprehend the moral importance of their acts; they must be taught to accustom themselves to a separation of political questions from moral questions. They must not serve as the instrument of those who under the pretext of nationality lead them to the commission of acts that are contrary to morality. Mgr. Persico expresses the most absolute disapproval of boycotting. He signifies the opinion that Irish political aspirations must be satisfied before peace can be restored

Rejected Despite M. Goblet's Efforts.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day rejected the proposed commercial treaty between France and Greece despite the energetic support given the measure by M. Goblet, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The Bi-Metallic League.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The Conference of the Bi-metallic League has resolved to endeavor to secure a return to the Bi-metallic system prevailing prior to 1873.

Zola's Books Seized at Dublin.

DUBLIN, Dec. 13.—The authorities have seized thousands of Zola's works which were shipped here from England.

Aerial Supplies for Suakim.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Balloons and parachutes have been sent to Suakim for the use of the troops.

Switzerland's New President.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Mr. Hammond has been elected President of Switzerland and M. Ruchonnet Vice-President.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Dec. 13.—The city was greatly excited a year ago over the actions of an unknown man, who was in the habit of pinching unattended women on the streets at night recently. He has renewed the practice, and has created a reign of terror in the fifth ward. He is described as a wild-looking creature who is undoubtedly insane.

BERTIE SECORD'S STORY.

Two Boys Drowned While Skating—Wentworth General Sessions.

HAMILTON, Dec. 13.—The police are inclined to make light of the story of Miss Bertie Secord, who asserts that an unknown miscreant has pursued her for nearly two months with threatening letters and made a desperate attempt to carry out his threats. One peculiar feature of her story is that she received similar letters three years ago when she lived near Simcoe, and reported them to the crown attorney then. She suspected a certain man, but he subsequently went to Buffalo.

Wednesday afternoon, after school, Jas. Lillycrop, aged 13, and Maurice Bastedo, aged 10, went skating on Lake Medad, a small sheet of water in Nelson Township, about nine miles from Hamilton. The boys ventured out too far, the ice gave way and they were drowned.

In the Police Court to-day Thomas Weldon of Ancaster was fined $20 or two months for a brutal assault on his wife.

At the General Sessions to-day the appeal of Cabman Moses Furlong against a conviction for trespassing on the Grand Trunk's property was quashed on technical grounds. In Omand v. Hamilton Industrial Works, an action for damages under the Factory Act in which it was claimed that the plaintiff lost a hand because of the defendant's negligence in not guarding certain machinery, a consent judgment for $150 was entered. Patrick Hart and Wm. McCullocal were convicted of picking up $17 which one Babcock placed on the bar of Bennet's Hotel in Dundas and returning it minus $4, and were sentenced to three months in the Central Prison.

A farmer named Edward Glover was fined $2 to-day for driving through a funeral procession.

The winner of the yacht Vera is Wm. Patterson, son of ex-Ald. Patterson.

TRANSHIPMENT IN BOND.

No Change in the Government's Attitude—The Halifax Case.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—Minister of Customs Bowell in conversation with your correspondent to-day with reference to the alleged cases of transhipment of fish from American fishing vessels for transportation in bond, said that the statement, attributed to him in yesterday's Ottawa correspondence of The Mail, that "it had sometimes occurred that a vessel which had sustained an injury was allowed either to dispose of its cargo or ship it in bond," was incorrect. He did not say that any permission to ship on board had been given, as none had been. In a few cases where vessels have put in for repairs, as they have a right to under the treaty of 1818, they have been allowed to land their fish on payment of the duty, when it has been apparent that the repairs would take so long that the fish would spoil if not landed. After the duty was paid the fish might be sent anywhere.

The Minister of Customs stated emphatically that no change whatever had been made by the Government in its interpretation of the treaty of 1818, either on the question of transportation in bond or any other point.

Mr. Bowell also said with regard to the two cases specially mentioned in Halifax despatches to American papers, that they had not been reported at all to the department, so the collectors could not have considered there was any violation of the regulations. Telegrams were sent to-day asking particulars about these two cases.

Hon. C. H. Tupper, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, also said that there had been no change whatever on the part of the Government with regard to transhipment in bond.

Attempted Bank Robbery.

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 13.—Two strangers from Arizona entered the San Bernardino National Bank this morning. One of them presented a check and asked that it be cashed. E. H. Morse, the cashier, told him he would have to be identified. Some words followed when the stranger drew a revolver and shot Morse through the body. The latter returned the fire and put two balls into his assailant. Six or seven shots were fired. The two strangers ran but were arrested. It is believed the men entered the bank with the design of robbery.

Cashier Morse died in half an hour after the shooting. The man who did the shooting gives the name of John Oakes but refuses to talk. It is said that a third man who has not yet been arrested was seen trying the side door of the bank while the shooting was going on. Oakes' wounds are not serious.

Died in the Woods.

ARTHURETTE, N.B., Dec 13.—Last evening the dead body of a young man, 18 years old, was found in a camp at Sisson Ridge, and is supposed to have been there about a week. The boy came up to Tobique with Dixon and McCullum, lumbermen, and came from their camp to this place with the portage team. The boy said his name was Bell, and that he belonged to Fredericton. He did not appear to be in sound mind, and possibly cold and hardship was the cause of his death.

To Marry a Socialist Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Lucy A. Parsons, the Anarchist agitator, who arrived a day or two ago on the Cunard steamer Aurania from London, Eng., is shortly to be married to Mr. Bernstein, the editor of The German Social Democrat of Zurich, Switzerland, but which is really published in London, where Mr. Bernstein resides.

Where, Oh Where?

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 14.—Frank Fletcher, who has been conducting a weekly payment store in the Rolling block for Mr. J. E. Avann, of London, is missing. It said that Fletcher has been collecting sundry moneys from weekly payment customers and failed to remit the cash to Mr. Avann. He sold his household effects a few days ago, and is reported to be $120 short. It is said there is a woman in the case.

He Left Seven Widows.

ALLEGHANY CITY, Pa., Dec. 13.—Henry Lanscidel, a steel worker, quarrelled with his wife this morning. He then blew his brains out. He was prominently identified with the Anarchists and had been married seven times, all of his wives being alive.

A Fatal Collision.

WABASHA, Minn., Dec. 13.—In a collision between a passenger and a freight train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway this morning, a brakeman was killed, a conductor fatally injured and an engineer seriously hurt.

Milwaukee's New Bishop.

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 13.—Rev. C. F. Knight, D. D., rector of St. James Episcopal parish, this evening received official announcement of his election as Bishop of Milwaukee diocese to succeed Bishop Wells.

Killed by a Boiler Explosion.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 13.—The boiler of the cotton gin on Turner's place exploded to-day, killing George Turner and two negroes outright and wounding seven others.

Further Passenger Rate Cuts.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—The passenger rate war to Kansas City still continues and further cuts were made to-day.

"Fools Rush In," Etc.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—In the House this afternoon Mr. Butterworth (Rep., O.) presented for reference a joint resolution authorizing the opening of negotiations with Great Britain and Canada for the union of the United States and the several provinces of the Dominion.

ADULTERATED U. S. LARD.

ITS IMPORTATION OPPOSED BY CANADIAN PORK-PACKERS.

New Clothing Being Sent Out for the Letter-Carriers—Rogers & Farrell's $80,000 Lachine Canal Claim.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—The usual six months' supply of clothing is being sent out by the Postoffice Department for letter-carriers throughout the Dominion.

A deputation consisting of F. W. Fearman of Hamilton, C. L. Wilson of Ingersoll, James Park of Toronto, W. E. Mathews of Peterboro and D. Gunn of Toronto, representing the Canadian Pork-packers Association, waited upon the Minister of Customs to-day and urged that measures be adopted to restrict the importation of adulterated American lard, which is largely made from cotton-seed oil, and which can be sold much cheaper than genuine lard. They also wanted the duty on pork made uniform at 2 cents per pound, instead of 1 cent on pork in barrels and 2 cents on shoulders and hams, as at present. The minister promised that the matter should receive consideration.

Act in which it was claimed that the plaintiff lost a hand because of the defendant's negligence in not guarding certain machinery, a consent judgment for $150 was entered. Patrick Hart and Wm. McCullocal were convicted of picking up $17 which one Babcock placed on the bar of Bennet's Hotel in Dundas and returning it minus $4, and were sentenced to three months in the Central Prison.

The investigation into the claim of Rogers & Farrell for $80,000 in connection with the contract for a section of the Lachine Canal was opened before Mr. John Page, Chief Engineer, this morning. Mr. J. J. Curran, M.P., appeared for the claimants. The evidence of Mr. Rogers was taken to-day.

Argument in the Edison electric light case will probably be heard before Deputy-Commissioner of Patents Pope on Dec. 19.

The contract for the approaches to the Sault Ste. Marie Canal has not yet been awarded. H. & J. Ryan are said to be the lowest tenderers for the lower end of the canal, the figures being placed at a little under $300,000, and John Nicholson of Ottawa is said to be the lowest for the Lake Superior end.

The Deputy Minister of Fisheries has returned from the Maritime Provinces. Whilst there he visited Chatham, N. B., and had a conference with the smelt fishermen of the Miramichi regarding their grievances. The fishery inspector of that locality has been reporting that bag nets should be prohibited, stringent restrictions should be enforced and high license should be imposed, which the fishermen claim would amount to a prohibition. Lieut.-Col. Tilton fully enquired into the matter and will shortly present a report to the minister. The restrictions complained of by the fishermen may, it is probable, be modified.

No importance is attached by the Department of Agriculture to the agitation among the English agricultural journals against the admission of Canadian cattle into England, as a counter blast to the American agitation for the admission of United States cattle. All the talk on the subject is attributed to local jealousy. Canada, it is believed here, will enjoy the privilege as long as she shows a clean bill of health.

PROVINCIAL PROPERTY.

THE case of the Province and the St. Catharines Milling Company has been finally decided by the Privy Council and the land belongs to the Province. The land which of course included the administration of the timber and minerals, was in the disputed territory and was before decided to be within the Province of Ontario. The present question was whether the land, which had been occupied by the Indians and obtained from them by treaty by the Dominion, were crown lands belonging to the Province or belonged to the Dominion as having purchased them from the Indian occupants. The decision of the Privy Council differs from those of the Canadian Courts. The courts here held that the ownership was in the Province, although two justices of the Supreme Court took a different view. The Privy Council confirms former judgments to this extent, that the Province owns the property, but it places upon Ontario the burden of carrying out the Indian treaties, and the payment of treaty moneys and other responsibilities will fall upon the province. What this will amount to time will show, and until it is ascertained the extent of the benefit to the Province of this decision will be in doubt.

The contrast between the way this question has been decided and the trouble made regarding the boundary is marked. Mr. Mowat was then urged by the Conservatives to take the matter to the Privy Council, but for years he refused, though finally taking their advice. In this case the question was taken to the highest court and settled without trouble, as could have been done regarding the boundary dispute.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. TORONTO TOPICS.

Baxter on the Witness Stand—Rumored Newspaper Amalgamation.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—Mr. James Baxter of Montreal, whose name for a year has been so intimately associated with reports of Central Bank matters, was on the stand yesterday at Osgoode Hall for seven hours in connection with the case of the liquidators against ex-Liquidator Archibald Campbell. Nothing particularly new or sensational was developed. Mr. Baxter was cool and clear headed and frequently turned the laugh on his questioners. At 6 o'clock an adjournment was had until to-day, and Baxter was ordered to be on hand, although he protested strenuously that he must return to Montreal.

Yesterday at the General Sessions William Kennedy was found guilty of shooting at Constable Welsh on Nov. 8 with intent to do bodily harm.

The second annual banquet of the University of Toronto Medical College was held last evening in the Rossin House. Two hundred guests and students attended, and the occasion was one to be remembered.

The World this morning gives special prominence to the statement that The Globe and The Mail have consolidated into one concern to be known as The Mail-Globe, and under one management. The World says the agreement was actually signed yesterday. Rumors to the effect that a consolidation was contemplated and that negotiations were in progress to that end have been current among well-informed persons and though The World's report may be a trifle premature it is probable that the amalgamation will soon be announced.

At yesterday's meeting of the Mutual Fire Underwriter's Association it was unanimously agreed that there should if possible be established a law to make compulsory the registration of fires, whether insured or not, with value of buildings, amount of insurance, and loss; all registered with the clerk of the municipality, as in the case of births, marriages and deaths, and duly reported to the proper provincial authority.

Subscription lists for a testimonial to Rev. Mr. Jeffery are being industriously circulated.

Andrew and Barbara Shea, 72 Lombard-street, are at Headquarters charged with injuring the skull of Phillip Sullivan, 79 Queen east, with an axe last night. Andrew wielded the edged tool, while Barbara seconded his efforts with a hammer.

At a meeting of the City Council it was decided that the bill to provide for the issue of general consolidated loan 4 per cent. debentures to the amount of $30,000 for the purpose of erecting a dipsomania hospital in the city be submitted to a vote of the duly qualified ratepayers on Monday, Jan. 7.

The census returns as far as completed foot up 166,040. This is 26,588 more than the number reported by the assessors and there will probably be several hundreds to add to these figures.

Astounding Crookedness.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Interstate Commerce Commissioners Cooley and Morrison left for the east last evening. Judge Cooley says the revelations of crookedness were simply astounding, and evidence had come into the possession of the commissioners that would warrant criminal prosecution against several railroad officials. The worst feature was that every official examined admitted the facts, but declared he had to do it because others were doing it. Some of them went so far as to justify their illegal action on the ground that the law was oppressive and unjust. The commission, he said, would act promptly hereafter in every case of violation of the law that came to its notice and the guilty parties would be punished to the full extent of the law.

A Wages' Case.

There was a wages case laid before the magistrate for his consideration yesterday afternoon, Samuel Delong claimed wages from Geo. Deline, under the following circumstances: He had been working for Deline for some time, and said one morning Deline told him to go up and work for a Mr. Rose who had a job for him, without, so Delong claims, ever discharging him or intimating that he was to consider Rose his master. Delong went to work for Rose, as he said, without asking any questions or making any stipulation as to wages, thinking that Deline would pay him. Deline on the other hand said he told Delong that he would not want him any longer and that he had better take Rose's job as it would last the longer. Mr. W. A. Stratton appeared for Mr. Deline. The magistrate enlarged the case until Saturday to allow Rose to be subpœnaed as a witness.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

A Branch Organized for the Town of Peterborough.

A public meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms last evening for the purpose of organizing a branch of the Evangelical Alliance of the Dominion of Canada. The meeting having been called to order, the Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A., was appointed Chairman and the Rev. A. C. Wilson, Secretary. It was then unanimously agreed: 1st. That the name of the branch shall be "The Peterborough Branch of the Evangelical Alliance of the Dominion of Canada." 2nd. That the constitution of this branch shall be the same as Articles 2, 3 and 4 in the Evangelical Alliance of the Dominion of Canada. 3rd. That there shall be a President and Vice Presidents, a Secretary-Treasurer and a General Committee of Management with not less than fifteen nor more than thirty persons, and the quorum shall be seven. 4th. That the regular meeting of the Branch shall be held on the first Monday in each month at 8 o'clock p.m.

The following persons were appointed as a committee to nominate persons as officers of the Branch for the coming year, viz., Messrs. Carnegie, Roger, Yelland, Fletcher, Rowse, Courtice, the Chairman and secretary, to meet in one week. It was also decided to secure if possible the services of Hon. Senator Macdonald, of Toronto, President of the Evangelical Alliance, to address a public meeting in Peterborough at an early date.

The three articles of the constitution of the Dominion Alliance adopted as the constitution of the branch are as follows:—

ARTICLE 2—OBJECTS.

1st. To manifest and strengthen Christian Unity.
2nd. To vindicate Religious Liberty.
3rd. To promote co-operation in Christian work, without interference with the internal affairs of the different denomination.

ARTICLE 3—DOCTRINAL BASIS.

The articles adopted by the Parent Alliance at its organization in London in the year 1846, which are as follows:—

1st. The Divine Inspiration, Authority, and sufficiency of the Holy Scriptures.
2nd. The right and duty of private judgment in the interpretation of the Holy Scriptures.
3rd. The Unity of the Godhead and the Trinity of persons therein.
4th. The utter depravity of human nature in consequence of the Fall.
5th. The Incarnation of the Son of God, His work of Atonement for sinners of mankind, and His Mediatorial intercession and reign.
6th. The Justification of the sinner by faith alone.
7th. The work of the Holy Spirit in the Conversion and Sanctification of the sinner.
8th. The Immortality of the Soul, the Resurrection of the Body, the Judgment of the World by our Lord Jesus Christ, with the eternal blessedness of the righteous, and the eternal punishment of the wicked.
9th. The Divine Institution of the Christian Ministry, and the obligation and perpetuity of the ordinances of Baptism and the Lord's Supper.

It being, however, distinctly declared that this brief summary is not to be regarded in any formal or ecclesiastical sense as a creed or confession; nor the adoption of it as an assumption of the right to define authoritatively the limits of Christian brotherhood, but simply as an indication of the class of persons whom it is desirable to embrace within the Alliance.

ARTICLE 4—MEMBERSHIP.

Any Communicant member of an Evangelical Church may become a member by signing the constitution and paying annually a fee of one dollar. The payment of $10 at one time constitutes a person a life member of the Alliance, provided such members maintain their church relation.

St. Luke's Literary Guild.

A meeting of the society was held last evening in the school room of the church, the Rev. Mr. Warren, President, in the chair. The paper of the evening was by Mr. J. H. Long, M.A., LL.B. The subject of the paper was "Canada," and was dealt with in an able and interesting manner. Mr. Long also gave a couple of short, telling speeches in support of the position he had taken in his paper. The paper was open to discussion, which was joined in by the Rev. Mr. Warren and Messrs. H. C. Rogers, J. Bonsey, E. B. Burt and W. Wallbrook. The Guild thanked Mr. Long for the excellent paper he had read. It was one of the best meetings of the series. The next meeting will probably be held on the 10th of January, 1889, for which a debate of more than ordinary interest is being arranged.

AN OLD MAN CREMATED

A WITNESS IN THE GREENFIELD CASE BURNED TO DEATH.

Thomas McMullen's Shanty Burned—The old man Perishes in the Flames—His Groans Heard but he Could not be Rescued.

Wednesday Thomas McMullen stood in the witness box at the Court House and gave about the most convicting evidence against Greenfield, and to-day all that remains of him are a few charred remains amid the ruins of his little old shanty. The old man was 76 years of age and lived on the side of the 12th Concession road in Otonabee. His home or hut contained only one room, and here the old man for many years. Old age had made its mark upon him, as those who saw his shaking head in the witness box know, but he was able to walk to town and home again.

Yesterday he was in town and got his pay for attending court. With this money in his possession, the old man procured a bottle of whiskey and started for home. He drank freely from the bottle and when at about four o'clock he arrived at Mr. Whatley's house, which stands only about a hundred yards from the cremated man's home, he was almost frozen and very drunk. Mr. Whatley took him in, warmed him and about six o'clock sent his two sons over with old man to build his fire for him. This was done, and shortly afterwards Mr. Whatley went over and sat with the old man for some time and tried to get him to go to bed. The two Whatley boys went up again and remained with him until about twenty minutes past eight and when they left the old man was seated on the old lounge with his vest and coat off, but refused to go to bed. It was nine o'clock when Mr. Whatley came out of his stable intending to go up to the shanty to see how the old man was, and upon looking towards the hut was horror stricken to see smoke issuing from the cracks. He called his wife and boys and ran up. Upon opening the door the fresh air that rushed in caused the whole interior of the room to burst into flames, which were so fierce that an entrance was impossible. He called to the old man, but could and moaning. Other neighbors soon gathered but all that could be done was to stand and watch the house burn with its imprisoned inhabitant. When the back wall fell in the crowd could plainly discern the flames playing around McMullen's body but could not reach it. The old man had a wood cut and piled inside the room to find the rickety old stove and this made a perfect furnace out of the shanty when it began to burn. It was probably from this stove that the fire caught.

The old man had lived there for 37 years and has relatives in Norwood. He has been kept by the municipality for several years past. His wife also met a tragic death, she was poisoned about seven or eight years ago, and it is said the daughter shot herself.

When a REVIEW reporter visited the scene to-day nothing but the white ashes of the aged man's bones was to be seen to mark the spot in the smoking ruins where he had met his horrible death.

Kidd foots the Bills.

That is Kidd's privilege and his business. He foots the Jims as well as the Bills. Likewise the Marys and Susans. Kidd's great specialty is footing the feet, in which the feature of low prices stands out prominently. He never denies a No. 7 man a No. 10 boot. Just now he is a sworn enemy of the doctor, for he aims to keep the feet dry and bounce the bills. Give Kidd the shoe man a call. d136

Married vs. Single.

The Otonabee Canoe Club Debating Society had a good meeting last evening. The subject of debate was Free Trade vs. Protection, and some good points were brought out pro and con. Messrs. A. Clegg and Thos. Barry devoted their rhetorical prowess to the upholding of Free Trade, and Messrs. W. H. Hill and H. Stock was the exponents of Protection. The debate was decided by the chairman to be a draw. The next meeting will be held on Thursday the 27th December, when the subject for debate will be a most interesting one—"Resolved, that married life is preferable to single life." Mr. J. Little will lead the affirmative and Mr. A. E. Dixon the negative. It should be interesting.

The banquet to the Grand Master will be given on Tuesday evening at the close of the lodge. The banquet will be served in the Chapter Room, and a very fine spread is promised. The committee having details in hand are perfecting arrangements for a successful occasion.

RITCHIE SENTENCED.

Two Civil Cases—The Petty Jurors Dismissed—Three non-Attendants Fined.

After the Greenfield sentence had been passed in the County Court yesterday the civil docket was proceeded with. The first case was MONCRIEF VS. MONCRIEF.—This was an action brought to recover the value of certain goods and chattels. The parties all live in Cavan and the defendants are the brother and mother of the plaintiff. The plaintiff had, it seems, some nineteen years ago given his mother a life lease of the farm, the same having been willed to him by his father. The plaintiff had worked on the farm nearly ever since the life lease and claimed to have accumulated some stock when the mother turned him away and claimed the stock as her own. Verdict for plaintiff, $100.—Sawers & Stone for plaintiff, Edmison & Dixon for defendants.

PHELAN VS. RUBIDGE.—This was an action brough by Peter Phelan, of the township of Smith, against Tom S. Rubidge, late Engineer of the Trent Canal. Mr. Phelan had been in the employ of Rubidge for some years past and claimed to have continued in his service till June last. He had been paid his wages to 1st Nov. '87, but nothing since. His duties consisted of looking after Mr. Rubidge's summer residence on shore of Clear Lake, during the absence of Mr. Rubidge. The defendant claimed that when he paid the plaintiff in Nov. '87, he also gave him notice that his services would no longer be required. The jury found that such discharge was in fact given and therefore gave a verdict for the defendant.—John Burnham for plaintiff, W. H. Moore for defendant.

RITCHIE'S TRIAL.

Alex. Ritchie, who has been in gaol since early in October awaiting trial, was next brought in and tried on the first indictment against him, that of the larceny of a horse, buggy and harness the property of Michael Mansfield, of Galway. The evidence of Michael Mansfield and John Macdonald, a hired man of Mansfield's at the time of the larceny, went to show that Ritchie, who had been working for Mansfield but had been discharged, went to Macdonald and told him that Mansfield had told him (Ritchie) that he might have the loan of the horse and buggy to drive to a cousin's farm about two and a half miles distant. Under this pretence Macdonald allowed Ritchie to take the horse and rig, but the old man failed to bring it back, and was afterwards caught in Toronto by Detective McGrath. Hugh Barry and John Christie, two Toronto horse dealers, also gave evidence to the effect that Ritchie traded the horse to Barry, and the latter in turn traded to Christie, in whose possession the animal was found. There was no evidence for the defence and the jury brougat in a verdict of guilty. Judge Weller sentenced the prisoner to twelve months, less one day, imprisonment in the County Gaol. Mr. L. B. Edwards was the prisoner's counsel.

AT THE COURT TO-DAY.

On the opening of the court this morning Ritchie was again brought into court and arraigned on a second indictment charging him with the misappropriation of a horse, buggy and harness. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and Judge Weller said as this was substantially a similar charge to the previous one on which he was arrested and as the two should have been tried at the one time he would make the sentence light. He sentenced him to twelve months less one day in the county gaol, his two terms to run concurrently.

Thos. Shouldice was brought in, but as an important witness for the prosecution could not possibly arrive here in time the trial was laid over until the June sessions.

All the business for jurymen being ended, his honor thanked them for their attendance and discharged them. Three of the jurors failed to answer to their names this morning and the judge fined them each five dollars for their non-attendance, and appointed January 8th as the day he would meet the three missing jurors and hear their excuses.

The Birmingham Tragedy.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 13.—The coroner's jury to-day began investigating the shooting at the county jail Saturday night last. Mayor Thompson was the only witness. He testified that the crowd continued to advance on the jail after repeated warnings given by himself, the sheriff and many others. The crowd made many threats and he believed they were in earnest. He heard considerable talk of using dynamite, could not say whether the first shot was fired by the officers or by the crowd. He had given orders to hold the jail at all hazards. The investigation will be resumed to-morrow. The troops have all left the city and only a small force of deputy sheriffs is now guarding the jail. All is quiet.

MR. STEVENSON'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—

Although I had almost definitely decided to retire from active and official participation in municipal matters, yet the desire, as expressed in the foregoing requisition, seems to be of so general and representatives a character, that I feel that I would be doing less than my duty as a citizen if I failed to respond to it, therefore, though I do so with personal reluctance, in compliance with the formal demand for my services, I hereby consent to become a candidate for the mayoralty of Peterborough for the year 1889. In so doing think I have a right to feel that my past services have been employed in the best interests of the town, which could hardly be otherwise, when it is borne in mind that I have no small share of material interests to be effected by the administration of the municipal affairs of the town, and, therefore, my own interest to use my best efforts to secure economical and prudent management of civic matters, and I think my past course is a sufficient guarantee that the public interest will not meet with neglect at my hands. I might suggest that my efforts in promoting manufacturing industries shows that my interest in labouring men is not of a merely sentimental character. I am a comparatively large employer of labor, and endeavor to put my interest in the laboring classes into practical effect, and shall, if again honored with the confidence of the citizens, use my best efforts to maintain the rights and promote the interests of all classes of the community. I do not seek the office of mayor, but if I am chosen I shall not fail to do my best in the future as I have done in the past, to discharge its duties faithfully. I, therefore, place myself in your hands and allow you to put my name in nomination for the position of mayor, assured that I can count upon your assistance in securing my return.

I have the honor to remain, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JAMES STEVENSON.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

By FERGUS W. HUME.

"James," she cried to the coachman, "drive to the Melbourne club. Papa will be there, you know," she said to Brian, "and we'll take him off to have afternoon tea with us."

"But it's only 1 o'clock," said Brian, as the town hall clock came in sight. "Mrs. Sampson won't be ready."

"Oh, anything will do," replied Madge, "a cup of tea and some thin bread and butter isn't hard to prepare. I don't feel like lunch, and papa eats so little in the middle of the day, and you"—

"Eat a great deal at all times," finished Brian, with a laugh. Madge went on chattering in her usual lively manner, and Brian listened to her with delight. It was very pleasant, he thought, lying back among the soft cushions of the carriage, with a pretty girl talking so gayly. He felt like Saul must have done when he heard the harp of David, and Madge, with her pleasant talk, drove away the evil spirit which had been with him for the last three weeks. Suddenly Madge made an observation as they were passing the Burke and Wills monument, which startled him.

"Im't that the place where Mr. Whyte got into the cab?" she asked, looking at the corner near the Scotch church, where a vagrant of musical tendencies was playing "Just Before the Battle, Mother," on a battered old concertina in a most dismal manner.

"So the papers say," answered Brian, listlessly, without turning his head.

"I wonder what the gentleman in the light coat could have been," said Madge, as she settled herself again.

"No one seems to know," he replied evasively.

"Ah, but they've got a clew," she said. "Do you know, Brian," she went on, "that he was dressed just like you, in a light overcoat and soft hat?"

"How remarkable," said Fitzgerald, speaking in a slightly sarcastic tone, and as calmly as he was able. "He was dressed in the same manner as nine out of every ten young fellows in Melbourne."

Madge looked at him in surprise at the tone in which he spoke, so different from his usual nonchalant way of speaking, and was about to answer, when the carriage stopped at the door of the Melbourne club. Brian, anxious to escape any more remarks about the murder, sprang quickly out, and ran up the steps into the building. He found Mr. Frettiby smoking complacently, and reading The Age. As Fitzgerald entered he looked up, and putting down the paper held out his hand, which the other took.

"Ah! Fitzgerald," he said, "have you left the attractions of Collins street for the still greater ones of clubland?"

"Not I," answered Brian. "I've come to carry you off to afternoon tea with Madge and myself."

"I don't mind," answered M. Frettiby, rising; "but isn't afternoon tea at half-past 1 rather an anomaly?"

"What's in a name?" said Fitzgerald, absently, as they left the room. "What have you been doing all morning?"

"I've been in here for the last half hour reading," answered the other, carelessly.

"Wool market, I suppose?"

"No, the hansom cab murder."

"Oh, d—— that thing!" said Brian, hastily; then, seeing his companion looking at him in surprise, he apologized. "But, indeed," he went on, "I'm nearly worried to death by people asking all about Whyte, as if I knew all about him, whereas I know nothing."

"Just as well you didn't," answered Mr. Frettiby, as they descended the steps together, "he was not a very desirable companion."

Mrs. Sampson was very much astonished at the early arrival of her lodger's guests, and expressed her surprise in shrill tones.

"Don't taken by surprise," she said, with an apologetic crackle, "it ain't to be supposed as miracuis can be performed with regard to cookin' the fire havin' gone out, not bein' kept alight on account of the wast of the day, which was that hot as never was, tho', to be sure, bein' a child in the early days, I remember it were that 'ot as my sister's aunt was in the 'abit of roastin' her jints in the sun."

After telling this last romance, and leaving her visitors in doubt whether the joints referred to belonged to an animal or to her sister's aunt or herself, Mrs. Sampson crackled away down stairs to get things ready.

"What a curious thing that landlady of yours is, Brian," said Madge, from the depths of a huge arm chair. "I believe she's a grasshopper from the Fitzroy gardens."

"Oh, no, she's a woman," said Mr. Frettiby, cynically. "You can tell that by the length of her tongue."

"A popular error, papa," retorted Madge, sharply. "I know plenty of men who talk far more than any woman."

"I hope I'll never meet them, then," said Mr. Frettiby, "for if I did I would be inclined to agree with De Quincy's essay on murder as one of the fine arts."

Brian shivered at this, and looked apprehensively at Madge, and saw with relief that she was not paying attention to her father, but was listening intently.

"There she is," as a faint rustle at the door announced the arrival of Mrs. Sampson and the tea tray. "I wonder, Brian, you don't think the house is on fire with that queer noise always going on—she wants oil"

"Yes, St. Jacob's oil," laughed Brian, as Mrs. Sampson entered, and placed her burden on the table.

"Not 'avin' any cake," said that lady, "shro' not being forewarned as to the time of arrival—tho' it's not oftin I'm taken by surprise—except as to a 'cadache, which, of course, is accidental to every passon—I ain't got nothin' but bread and butter, the baker and the grocer, both bein' all that could be desired except in the way of worryin' for their money, which they think as 'ow I keeps the bank in the 'ouse, like Ali Baba's cave, 'as I've 'eard tell in the 'Arabian Nights,' me 'avin' gained it as a prize for English in my early girl'ood, bein' then considered a scholard an' industrus."

Mrs. Sampson's shrill apologies for the absence of cake having been received, she hopped out of the room, and Madge made the tea. The service was a quaint Chinese one, which Brian had picked up in his wanderings, and used for gatherings like these. As he watched her he could not help thinking how pretty she looked, with her hands moving deftly among the cups and saucers, so bizarre looking with their sprawling dragons of yellow and green. He half smiled to himself as he thought, "If they knew all, I wonder would they sit with me as cool and unconcerned?" Mr. Frettiby, too, as he looked at his daughter, thought of his dead wife, and sighed.

They chatted for a considerable time, till at last Madge arose and said they must go. Brian proposed to dine with them at St. Kilda, and then they would all go to the theatre. Madge consented to this, and she was just pulling on her gloves when suddenly they heard a ring at the front door, and presently heard Mrs. Sampson talking in an excited manner at the pitch of her voice.

"You shan't come in, I tell you," they heard her say, shrilly, "and it's no good trying, which I've allays 'eard as an Englishman's 'ouse is 'is castle, an' your a-breakin' the law, as well as a-spilin' the carpets, which 'as bin newly put down."

Some one made a reply; then the door of Brian's room was thrown open and Gorby walked in, followed by another man. Fitzgerald turned as white as a sheet, for he felt instinctively that they had come for him. However, pulling himself together, he demanded, in a haughty tone, the reason of the intrusion. Mr. Gorby walked straight over to where Brian was standing, and placed his hand on the young man's shoulder.

"Brian Fitzgerald," he said in a clear voice, "I arrest you in the queen's name."

"For what?" asked Brian, steadily.

"The murder of Oliver Whyte."

At this Madge gave a cry.

"It is not true!" she said, wildly. "My God, it's not true."

Brian did not answer, but, ghastly pale, held out his hands. Gorby slipped the handcuffs on to his wrists with a feeling of compunction, in spite of his joy at running his man down. This done, Fitzgerald turned round to where Madge was standing pale and still, as if she had turned into stone.

"Madge," he said, in a clear, low voice, "I am going to prison—perhaps to death; but I swear to you, by all that I hold most sacred, that I am innocent of this murder."

"My darling!" She made a step forward, but her father stepped before her.

"Keep back," he said, in a hard voice; "there is nothing between you and that man now."

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

Are you made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure.

Mantles and Mantle Cloths are going rapidly. The prices and styles sell them. In our Children's Mantles, we are sold out of some sizes which we are sorry for, as we don't like to miss sales, but as we have already sold all we expected to sell in the whole season, we can not complain. But we have a lot of ends of good CLOTHS, which we will sell at a sacrifice to fill up the gap, and our mantle cutter will cut and fit these goods free of charge, and explain the best way to make them up. The sizes we have in stock to fit children from 6 to 12 years we will clear out very cheap. MANTLE PLUSHES are now much in vogue in the larger cities, but are not much looked for here yet. We think it cannot be possible the ladies have not heard about them but they cannot know how beautiful they make up or there would be a greater demand. We have the Black and Seal Brown in stock.

Dress Goods. We are showing Dress Goods at 10c. a yard, which would be good value at 20c. The way they are selling fairly astonishes us, which shows that the public appreciate genuine bargains. In Fine Goods everybody says we have the nicest stock in town, and what everybody says must be true. What we are going to tell you now is of great importance, and we want you to remember it. Our Dress Goods Remnants have been accumulating faster than we like them to, and we have made up our minds to clear them all out. We will offer everything in the shape of a Dress Goods remnant, plain and fancy, good and bad together, at 15c. a yard. Most of these Goods ranged from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are all laid out on the counter, so come along; first come, first served. And what can you buy more suitable for a Christmas present for your girls than a new Dress.

Canadian Tweeds. Among a lot of Goods just opened out, we have a line of Canadian Tweeds, bought job. We have marked them 45c. a yard. They are extra heavy weight and made of good wool.

Our Hosiery. Our Hosiery department is filled with the best Goods made in the Province. Many people tell us they find lines with us they cannot get elsewhere. See our heavy make with double knees and heels and another line called "Arctic," it handles as if fulled. There is no need for hand knitting while these goods are to be had.

White Grey Cottons. The rate our White and Grey Cottons, Sheetings, etc., keep coming in and going out must be a sure indication they are extra good value. THE GREAT TIMBER CASE.

FULL TEXT OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL'S JUDGMENT.

Relative Powers and Interests of Dominion and Province in Lands Reserved for Indians Defined.

Attorney-General Mowat has received the following report by cable of the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the case of the Queen v. the St. Catharines Milling and Lumber Company, involving the right of the Province to the timber and minerals in Northwestern Ontario.

After a preliminary statement of the facts of the case, the judgment of their Lordships proceeded as follows:

Although the present case relates exclusively to the right of the Government of Canada to dispose of the timber in question to the appellants, yet its decision necessarily involves the determination of the larger question between that Government and the Province of Ontario with respect to the legal consequences of the Indian Treaty of 1873. In these circumstances, her Majesty, by the same order which gave the appellants leave to bring the judgment below under the review of this Board, was pleased to direct that the Government of the Dominion of Canada should be at liberty to intervene in this appeal, or to argue the same upon a special case raising the legal question in dispute. The Dominion Government elected to take the first of these courses, and their Lordships have had the advantage of hearing from their counsel an able and exhaustive argument in support of their claim to that part of the ceded territory which lies within the Provincial boundaries of Ontario.

The capture of Quebec in 1759 and the capitulation of Montreal in 1760 were followed in 1763 by the cession to Great Britain of Canada and all its dependencies, with the sovereignty, property and possession and all other rights which had at any previous time been held or acquired by the Crown of France. A royal proclamation was issued on the 7th of October, 1763, shortly after the date of the Treaty of Paris, by which His Majesty King George erected four distinct and separate Governments, styled respectively Quebec, East Florida, West Florida and Grenada (specific boundaries being assigned to each of them). After reciting that it was just and reasonable that the several nations and tribes of Indians who lived under British protection "should not be molested or disturbed in the possession of such parts of our dominions and territories as not having been ceded to or purchased by us, are reserved to them as their hunting grounds," it is declared that no governor or commander-in-chief in any of the new colonies of Quebec, East Florida or West Florida "do presume, on any pretense, to grant warrants of survey or pass any patents for lands beyond the bounds of their respective governments, or until our further pleasure be known upon any lands whatever, which, not having been ceded or purchased as aforesaid, are reserved to the said Indians or any of them."

It was further declared to be "our royal will for the present as aforesaid to reserve under our sovereignty, protection and dominion, for the use of the said Indians, all the land and territories not included within the limits of our said three new Governments, or within the limits of the territory granted to the Hudson Bay Company." The proclamation also enacts that no private person shall make any purchase from the Indians of lands reserved to them within those Colonies where settlement was permitted, and that all purchases must be on behalf of the Crown in a public assembly of the Indian, by the governor or commander-in-chief of the Colony in which the lands lie.

The territory in dispute has been in Indian occupation from the date of the proclamation until 1873. During that interval of time Indian affairs have been administered successively by the Crown, by the Provincial Governments, and since the passing of "the British North America Act, 1867," by the Government of the Dominion. The policy of these administrations has been all along the same in this respect, that the Indian inhabitants have been precluded from entering into any transaction with a subject for the sale or transfer of their interest in the land, and have only been permitted to surrender their rights to the Crown by a formal contract duly ratified in a meeting of their chiefs or head men, convened for the purpose. Whilst there have been changes in the administrative authority, there has been no change since the year 1763 in the character of the interest which its Indian inhabitants had in the lands surrendered by the treaty. Their possession, such as it was, can only be ascribed to the general provisions made by the royal proclamation in favor of all Indian tribes then living under the sovereignty and protection of the British Crown. "It was suggested in the course of the argument for the Dominion that inasmuch as the proclamation recites that the territories thereby reserved for Indians had never been ceded to or purchased by the Crown, the entire property of the land remained with them. That inference is, however at variance with the terms of the instrument, which show that the tenure of the Indians was a personal and usufructuary right, dependent upon the good-will of the sovereign. The lands reserved are expressly stated to be parts of "our dominion and territories, and it is declared to be the will and pleasure of the sovereign that for the present they shall be reserved for the Indians as their hunting grounds under his protection and dominion." There was a great deal of learned discussion at the bar with respect to the precise quality of the Indian right, but their Lordships do not consider it necessary to express any opinion upon the point. It appears to them to be sufficient for the purpose of this case that there has been all along vested in the Crown a substantial and paramount estate, underlying the Indian title, which became a plenum dominium whenever that title was surrendered or otherwise extinguished.

By an Imperial statute passed in the year 1840 (3 and 4 Vic., cap. 35), the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, then known as Upper and Lower Canada, were united under the name of the Province of Canada; and it was inter alia enacted that, in consideration of certain annual payments which her Majesty had agreed to accept by way of civil list, the produce of all the territorial and other revenues at the disposal of the Crown arising in either of the United Provinces should be paid into the consolidated fund of the two Provinces. There was no transfer to the Province of any legal estate in the Crown lands, which continued to be vested in the sovereign; but all moneys raised by sales or in any other manner became the property of the Province. In other words, all beneficial interest in such lands within the Provincial boundaries belonging to the Queen, and either producing or capable of producing revenue, passed to the Province, the title still remaining in the Crown. That continued to be the right of the Province until the passing of the British North America Act, 1867. Had the Indian inhabitants of the area in question released their interest in it to the Crown at any time between 1840 and the date of that Act, it does not seem to admit of doubt, and it was not disputed by the learned counsel for the Dominion, that all revenues derived from its being taken up for settlement, mining, lumbering and other purposes, would have been the property of the Province of Canada.

The case maintained for the appellants is, that the Act of 1867 transferred to the Dominion all interest in Indian lands which had previously belonged to the Province. The Act of 1867, which created the Federal Government, repealed the Act of 1840, and restored Upper and Lower Canadas to the condition of separate Provinces, under the titles of Ontario and Quebec, due provision being made by section 142 for the division between them of the property and assets of the united Province, with the exception of certain items specified in the 4th schedule, which are still to be held by them jointly. The Act also contains careful provisions for the distribution of legislative powers, and of revenues and assets, between the respective Provinces included in the union on the one hand and the Dominion on the other.

The conflicting claims to the ceded territory, maintained by the Dominion and the Province of Ontario, are wholly dependent upon these statutory provisions. In construing these enactments it must always be kept in view that wherever public land, with its incidents, is described as the property of, or as belonging to, the Dominion or a Province, these expressions merely import that the right to its beneficial use or to its proceeds have been appropriated to the Dominion or the Province, as the case may be, and is subject to the control of its Legislature, the land itself being vested in the Crown. Section 108 enacts that the public works and undertakings enumerated in schedule 3 shall be the property of Canada.

As specified in the schedule, these consist of public undertakings which might be fairly considered to exist for the benefit of all the Provinces, federally united; of lands and buildings necessary for carrying on the Customs or postal service of the Dominion, or required for the purpose of national defence, and of lands set apart for general public purposes. It is obvious that the enumeration cannot reasonably be held to include Crown lands which are reserved for Indian use.

The only other clause in the Act by which a share of what previously constituted Provincial revenues and assets is directly assigned to the Dominion is section 102. It enacts that all duties and revenues over which the respective Legislatures of the United Provinces "had and have power of appropriation, except such portion thereof as are by this Act reserved to the respective Legislatures of the Provinces, or are raised by them in accordance with the special powers conferred upon them by this Act, shall form one consolidated fund, to be appropriated for the public service of Canada." The extent to which duties and revenues arising within the limits of Ontario, and over which the Legislature of the old Province of Canada possessed the power of appropriation before the passing of the Act, have been transferred to the Dominion by this clause can only be ascertained by reference to the two exceptions which it makes in favor of the new Provincial Legislatures. The second of these exceptions has really no bearing on the present case, because it comprises nothing beyond the revenues which Provincial Legislatures are empowered to raise by means of direct taxation for Provincial purposes in towns of section 92. (2) The first of them, which appears to comprehend the whole sources of revenue reserved to the Provinces by section 109, is of material consequence. Section 109 provides that "All lands, mines, minerals and royalties belonging to the several Provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick at the union, and all sums then due or payable for such lands, mines, minerals or royalties, shall belong to the several Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, in which the same are situate or arise, subject to any trusts existing in respect thereof, and to any interest other than that of the Province in the same."

In connection with this clause, it may be observed that by section 117 it is declared that the Provinces "shall retain their respective public property not otherwise disposed of in this Act, subject to the right of Canada to assume any lands or public property required for fortifications or for the defense of the country." A different form of expression is used to define the subject matter of the first exception, and the property which is directly appropriated to the Provinces, but it hardly admits of doubt that the interests in lands, mines, minerals and royalties, which by section 109 are declared to belong to the Province, include (if they are not identical with) the duties and revenues first excepted in section 102. The enactments of section 109 are, in the opinion of their lordships, sufficient to give to each Province, subject to the administration and control of its own Legislature, the entire beneficial interest of the Crown in all lands, within its boundaries, which at the time of the union were vested in the Crown, with the exception of such lands as the Dominion acquired right to under section 103, or might assume for the purpose specified in section 117. Its legal effect is, to exclude from the duties and revenues appropriated to the Dominion all the ordinary territorial revenues of the Crown arising within the Provinces. That construction of the statute was accepted by this Board in deciding Attorney-General of Ontario v. Mercer (eight appeal cases, 767), where the controversy related to land granted in fee simple to a subject before 1867, which became escheated to the Crown in the year 1871. The Lord Chancellor, Earl Selborne, in delivering judgment in that case said (8 appeal cases 776):—"It was not disputed in argument for the Dominion at the Bar that all territorial revenues arising within each Province from lands, in which form must be comprehended all estates in land which at the time of the union belonged to the Crown, were reserved to the respective Provinces by section 109; and it was admitted that no distinction could in that respect be made between lands then regranted and lands which had previously reverted to the crown by escheats but it was insisted that a line was drawn at the date of the union, and that the words were not sufficient to reserve any lands afterwards escheated which at the time of the union were in private hands, and did not then belong to the Crown."

Their Lordships indicated an opinion to the effect that the escheat would not in the special circumstances of that case have passed to the Provinces as "lands," but they held that it fell within the class of rights reserved to the Provinces as "royalties," by section 109.

Had its Indian inhabitants been the owners in fee simple of the territory which they surrendered by the Treaty of 1873 the case of the Attorney-General of Ontario v. Mercer might have been an authority for holding that the Province of Ontario could derive no benefit from the cession in respect that the land was not vested in the Crown at the time of the union. But that was not the character of the Indian interest. The Crown has all along had a present proprietary estate in the land, upon which the Indian title was a mere burden. The ceded territory was, at the time of the union, land vested in the Crown, subject to any interest other than that of the Provinces in the same within the meaning of section 109, and must now belong to Ontario in terms of that clause unless its rights have been taken away by some provisions of the Act of 1867, other than those already noticed.

In the course of the argument the claim of the Dominion to the ceded territory was rested upon the provisions of section 91 (24) which, in express terms, confer upon the Parliament of Canada power to make laws for "Indians and land reserved for the Indians." It was argued that the exclusive power of legislation and administration carried with it, by necessary implication, any patrimonial interest which the Crown might have had in the reserved lands.

In reply to that reasoning counsel for Ontario referred us to a series of Provincial statutes, prior in date to the Act of 1867, for the purpose of showing that the expression "Indian reserves" was used in legislative language to designate certain lands in which the Indians had, after the royal proclamation of 1763, acquired a special interest by treaty or otherwise, and did not apply to land occupied by them in virtue of the proclamation. The answer might have deserved consideration if that expression had been adopted by the British Parliament in 1867, but it does not occur in section 91 (24), and the words actually used are, according to their natural meaning, sufficient to include all lands reserved upon any terms or conditions for Indian occupation. It appears to be the plain policy of the Act that, in order to ensure uniformity of administration, all such lands, and Indian affairs generally, shall be under the legislative control of one central authority. Their Lordships are, however, unable to assent to the argument for the Dominion founded on section 92 (24). There can be no a-priori probability that the British Legislature in a branch of the statute which professes to deal only with the distribution of legislative power, intended to deprive the Provinces of rights which are expressly given them in that branch of the Act which relates to the distribution of the revenues and assets. The fact that the power of legislating for Indians, and for lands which are reserved for their use, has been entrusted to the Parliament of the Dominion, is not in the least degree inconsistent with the right of the Provinces to a beneficial interest in these lands, available to them as a source of revenue whenever the state of the Crown is disencumbered of the Indian title.

By the treaty of 1873 the Indian inhabitants ceded and released the territory in dispute (in order that it might be opened up for settlement, immigration and such other purposes as to Her Majesty might seem fit) to the Government of the Dominion of Canada, for the Queen and her successors forever. It was argued that a cession in these terms was in effect a conveyance to the Dominion Government of the whole rights of the Indians, with the consent of the Crown. That is not the natural import of the language of the treaty, which purports to be, from beginning to end, a transaction between the Indians and the Crown, and the surrender is in substance made to the Crown. Even if its language had been more favorable to the argument of the Dominion upon this point, it is abundantly clear that the commissioners who represented Her Majesty, whilst they had full authority to accept a surrender to the Crown, had neither authority nor power to take away from Ontario the interest which had been assigned to that Province by the Imperial Statute of 1867.

These considerations appear to their Lordships to be sufficient for the disposal of this appeal. The treaty leaves the Indians no right whatever to the timber growing upon the lands they gave up, which is now vested in the Crown; all revenues derivable from the sale of such proportions of it as are situate within the boundaries of Ontario being the property of the Province. The fact that it still possesses exclusive power to regulate the Indians' privilege of hunting and fishing cannot confer upon the Dominion power to dispose, by issuing permits or otherwise, of that beneficial interest in the timber which has now passed to Ontario.

Seeing that the benefit of surrender accrues to her, Ontario must of course relieve the Crown and the Dominion of all obligations involving the payment of money which were undertaken by her Majesty, and which are said to have been fulfilled in part by the Dominion Government. There may be other questions behind with respect to the right to determine to what extent and at what periods the disputed territory over which the Indians still exercise their avocation of hunting and fishing is to be taken up for settlement or other purposes. But none of these questions are raised for decision in the present suit.

Their Lordships will, therefore, humbly advise Her Majesty that the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada ought to be affirmed and the appeal dismissed. It appears to them that there ought to be no costs of this appeal.

ELOPED WITH HIS OWN SISTER.

A Strange Story from Ferry Point—Fred Acklin's Unnatural Love.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 15.—A strange story comes from Ferry Point. Fred Acklin, fireman on the ferry steamer Mary Ethel, has eloped with his sister, the mother of six children. She has been living for several years with a man named Davy at Niagara and came home about three months ago on a visit to her brother who is married and has three children. The brother fell passionately in love with his own sister and the neighbors allege their conduct has been unbecoming. They took the Grand Trunk east on Tuesday night. Acklin left his wife and children penniless.

Duncan McIntyre Selected to Adjust the Issues Between the C. P. R. and G. T. R.

MONTREAL, Dec. 15.—The Herald's special from London says: Mr. Duncan McIntyre has been invited by the joint committee of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific shareholders to undertake the settlement of the difficulties between the two companies. He has been promised full powers and will doubtless accept and proceed to Canada at once. The selection of Mr. McIntyre is received with general satisfaction. Mr. McIntyre is probably the only Canadian who is largely interested in both properties and he has the advantage of a thorough knowledge of the situation. He has also the confidence of the Stock Exchange. A favorable result is confidently expected.

Questions on Shakespere's "Tempest."

The following questions were prepared by Mr. B. Earle of the Collegiate Institute:—

1. What evidence do we possess with respect to the date of the composition of this play?
2. Tell what you know of the origin of the plot.
3. In what important respect does this play differ from the others?
4. What are the dramatic unities?
5. Sketch the character of Prospero.
6. Show that the dramatist uses the supernatural elements with great art in the Tempest.
7. Contrast the Tempest and the M.N.D. with regard to the use of the supernatural elements.
8. Describe the characters of Ariel and Caliban.
9. Show that the character of Caliban may have had a special bearing on the time.
10. Describe the character of Miranda.
11. Ariel is promised his freedom after two days. Why two days?
12. "Gervinus has rightly noticed that Shakspere, in several of his dramas, reflects the main plot in a secondary plot, making the latter serve to illustrate the former." Illustrate from the Tempest.
13. "The persons in this play, while remaining real and living, are conceived in a more abstract way, more as types, than those in any other work of Shakspere." Justify this.
14. "Shakspere seems, in this play among other things to have considered the question: What is true freedom?" Explain and illustrate.
15. "In the characters of Ariel, Miranda and Caliban, we have three of the most unique and original conceptions that ever sprang from the mind of man." Discuss.

It will pay you to put in a supply of Note Paper and Envelopes from A. L. Davis & Co.'s cash clearing sale at cost prices.

Handsome New Offices.

Messrs. Stratton & Hall have left their old office over Ormand & Welsh's drug store, and are now in their new suite of offices in the Muckleson Block on Hunter-st. The apartments are among the most handsome in town, and comprise a waiting-room for clients and the use of the clerks, a large, well-lighted, nicely carpeted and finished front office which is the private room of Mr. Stratton, and another large and elegantly furnished apartment in the rear which is Mr. Hall's private office. There are two Goldie & McCullagh vaults in the offices and everything is neat and convenient. There is an entrance to each room from the outside hall.

The Wages Case Settled.

The enlarged wages case of DeLong vs. Deline came up again at the Police Court this morning. Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for DeLong. Rose, the man for whom DeLong worked and did not get his wages from, as it seemed to be understood that he had never been discharged by Deline, and therefore should look to the latter for his wages, said he asked Deline to come up and give him a hand with some work, but instead of coming himself he sent DeLong up, and the young man went to work for Rose without making any agreement. The Magistrate thought that Deline and Rose should have settled the matter between themselves and paid the man. However, he thought that Deline had not discharged him, and he gave judgment for the claimant for $12.83 with costs, to be paid in twenty-one days, or in default distress.

The Visit of the General's Band.

The magnificent musical organization Gen. Booth's Household Band, paid Peterborough a second visit last night. They paraded the streets in the afternoon and before the meeting in the evening and were followed by a large crowd of admirers. At eight o'clock the Army barracks was crowded by an audience the most of whom had heard the band on the occasion of their last visit and embraced the treat a second time. Staff-Bandmaster Applebee had charge of the meeting. The band played several fine selections and a number of the bandsmen gave solos and told their experiences. The Staff-Bandmaster again made an appeal to the people for subscriptions or donations to the "Officers Rest" in Toronto, the home for disabled and worn-out officers of the Army. His appeal was not, however, very largely responded to. It is not at all likely the band will visit here again.

WEATHER NOTES.—Once more chill November's surly blast has made field and forest bare, while nipping frost and failing hail again remind us of coming winter. The first half of the month was mild, although the highest temperature for the time was only 64 degrees at sundown on the evening of the 2nd. The balance of the month was colder and on the 23rd at sunrise the thermometer stood at zero, the first of the year. Rain fell on 11 days to the depth of 4 inches and 40-100 of an inch, being a high rain fall for November. The severest storm was on the 8th, in 23 hours falling 1¾ inches. Snow fell on 6 days to the depth of 2 inches, which is very high for November. The mean temperature of the month was 35 degrees, which is about the average. We had two thunder storms on the 5th and 9th, but no auroral lights, a very uncommon thing. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely:—South-west 6 days; north-west 7 days, west 3 days, east 2 days, north-east 4 days, north 3 days, south 1 day and south-east 1 day.

Kidd foots the Bills.

That is Kidd's privilege and his business. He foots the Jims as well as the Bills. Likewise the Marys and Susans. Kidd's great specialty is footing the feet, in which the feature of low prices stands out prominently. He never denies a No. 7 man a No. 10 boot. Just now he is a sworn enemy of the doctor, for he aims to keep the feet dry and bounce the bills. Give Kidd the shoe man a call. d136

Mesmerist,

Proclamation!

A Word to the Boys.

Boys who are in the habit of hanging around street corners at night, yelling, throwing stones and amusing themselves in other disorderly manners had better give it up in the future or keep a sharp lookout for the police. Four boys, M. Shaw, J. Sawney, Wm. Galley and B. Roberts, were perched on the prisoner's bench at the police court this morning charged with throwing stones and disorderly conduct on the corner of Murray and Aylmer-sts. The magistrate said as this was the first offence he would give them another chance, but if they were complained of again he would most assuredly punish them.

Friday Evening Services.

The Friday evening service at St. John's church has been altered in character, and the first service of this new series was held last night at 7.30, Rev. J. C. Davidson officiating, assisted by Rev. J. C. Cox. After a shortened form of evening prayer, there was a special office of intercessory prayer, in which petitions were offered for church workers and the different organizations of the parish, clergy, choir, Sunday schools, visitors, &c. The attendance at the service was not large, but will probably increase on subsequent Fridays, in proportion as the individual members of St. John's take an increased practical interest in the work of their church.

His Promised Return Visit.

When last in Peterborough Prof. Reynolds, the celebrated Mesmerist, promised to return and give a few nights of his marvellous entertainments. On Monday next he returns and will open on Monday evening, Dec. 17th, in the Opera House. Every one should not fail to see the wonderful feats in this interesting science. Since leaving town Prof. Reynolds has filled engagements at Lindsay, Barrie and Orillia, and is now concluding his series of nights at Ottawa. He proposes to introduce many new incidents and to make the entertainments unusually interesting. Remember the date of opening and attend. 2d139

The Higher Schools.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—My attention has been drawn to a statement made by a Mr. Rose and endorsed by Mr. Henry Denne, at a ratepayers' meeting recently held. Mr. Rose said that I spoke of the pupils of our Common Schools as "dirty little brats," and Mr. Denne said that Mr. Rose's statement was true. Permit me, sir, to say that I never used such an expression. Our public school pupils are from all classes, rich and poor, high and low, without distinction. I have four children now at the public school, could I then consistently speak disparagingly of them? I was speaking of the difficulties of effectively teaching in the Collegiate Institute where in many parts of the day hundreds of little children were playing and shouting on the school grounds during the recess. I also spoke of the repugnance of advanced pupils to attend a school where they were compelled to wade through six hundred public school children, ranging from six years of age upwards—six hundred "yelping youngsters" as I called them. I am too democratic to speak slightingly of any one because of his humble position in society, and I did not do it.

Unlike Mr. Denne, I am willing to be taxed to educate my neighbors' children. He says he is opposed to the High School. I am aware of the fact that Mr. Denne, with many of his ilk, think that those who want a higher education than the public school affords should pay for it themselves—which simply means that positions, honors and offices should be for the upper classes alone, and that the poor, who had not the means to obtain a higher education, should be content to hew wood and draw water. If this sentiment is analyzed I think it will be found that the persons who entertain this view are jealous and unwilling that the common people should be put in a position to elbow the gentry out of what they conceive to be their heritage—namely, the fat things of this world. The policy of our country is to diffuse education—to give every man a chance—and not to build up one class, the smaller one, at the expense of the many.

The rich men can well afford to educate their children; they are not beholden to the poor. But how could the poor get their children educated without the help of the rich? The school system of our country is made in the interest of the poor, and only those who are intensely blind can fail to see it.

If the poor man will prefer to keep himself and his offspring down—will prefer a low condition—and despises the opportunities afforded to his children, he will join Mr. Denne in his outcry against the High School system, and help Mr. Denne and his kind to put the yoke upon his own neck. Our public schools at present are in a bad state. Our population has greatly increased during the last ten years, yet no increased school accommodation has been provided—the consequence is that the rooms are overcrowded. Some teachers have over 95 pupils on their roll and are compelled to adopt the half day system—teaching one half in the morning and the other half in the afternoon. Other teachers have as many as sixty and seventy pupils in constant attendance. No teacher can affectively instruct so many, as they spend much of their time in keeping order and as a consequence the results are unsatisfactory. It is no use blinking the matter. We are wasting our money. There is only one remedy and that is more and better school accommodation. To be economical we must spend more money, and the sooner it is done the better.

Let the citizens, if not satisfied with the school board, send a committee to the ward schools. The crowded rooms, foul air, confusion and helpless efforts of a poor girl struggling to control and teach 60 or 70 children, perhaps in dark, underground cellar, like one room in the Central School, will present this school problem in such a way that there will be a proper realization of the duty of the people to their children.

Municipal Election.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In my opinion the working men have made a great mistake in separating themselves, as they have done, from the rest of their fellow citizens and becoming a distinct party in the management of the affairs of the town. In taking the position which they have done they assume a hostile attitude to every one but themselves and they would deprive, if they could, all others from any participation in our municipal business, and they seem to feel that their interests are alone to be considered. They ought to know that there can be no such thing as setting up a ruling power among us, composed of the working men as distinct from the rest of the people. And they never can succeed in the work which they appear to have undertaken. If they have grievances these grievances are and must be common to all, and the proper way to bring about a remedy is by working in harmony with the rest of the ratepayers for their own common good. That improvements are desirable both in the work of the Town Council and in the School Board no one can reasonably deny. The attention of our citizens has more than ever been called to the necessity of reforms in the management of both corporations, but these changes must be made in moderation, guided by wisdom and experience. It is not easy to perform any work satisfactory to every one. If there is evidence of a desire to work to the best advantages, all reasonable men ought to be satisfied. The working men, or rather those who assume to speak for them, have as much interest in efficiently keeping up good schools as any other class of the people. And it is madness for them to say that they do not want higher education. To say this is to show a willingness to keep themselves ignorant, and a desire to prevent their children from ever rising to positions of profit and honor; in fact it shows a willingness to keep their children "hewers of wood and drawers of water" forever. It aught to encourage the workingmen in the way of progress when they see so many of the sons and daughters of the poor who have won their way in the world, and who have risen to high positions in every department of life. Many of the leading men and women everywhere have risen from positions of poverty and want, and who have done much to benefit the world. But they could not have accomplished these things had they been denied the advantages of a good education, and, at the present time, there is more need of education than ever before. Mankind are in a state of transition which more than ever requires mutual improvement, and he or she who will may gain the higher places and become leaders of a nation's destinies. Of all classes of our people the workingmen are the most benefitted by our schools. Compared to the wealthier classes their taxes for school purposes are small, and very small in proportion to the benefits which they receive, and as long as other children go to school the children of the workingmen must go also, if they do not want to grow up in ignorance and always live in degradation and want. There is no choice left but either to be educated or ignorant. We know what ignorance means. We know that it means drudgery and poverty, and in America education is free to all, and the poor man of to-day may, if he tries, become the rich man of to-morrow. Every position in society and in the state is open to him or her who is fitted to fill it. And the children of the working men can, if they will, become leaders both in the church and in the state. Therefore, by all means, keep the avenues to improvement freely open to the children of the poor as well as to those of the rich, and do not say that "once poor and lowly always poor and lowly." Associations of men, if entered into for good purposes are beneficial and desirable, provided they are governed by just and worthy rules. When reasonable men meet together they exchange ideas and make suggestions which make for their good. Intercommunication and conversation cannot fail to expand the mind and fit it for good and useful purposes. But these associations should not become a power in the hands of a few designing men for their advantage, for this is where the danger lies. The world was created for all men and not for a few. Divisions among people are sure to produce discord and strife and they cause suspicion and jealousy, and prevent unison and harmony and peace. The interests of the workingmen are common to all people alike and any class of citizens who seek exclusive advantages and who blame others for entertaining hostile designs towards them, and who seek to gain power by any such means, is an enemy to the community in which they live, because they cause discord and strife. A country is best served by the union of all and by working together for the one common good. Let union and progress be the watch words now.

BEN. BUTTERWORTH'S FAD

WHAT SIR JOHN SAYS ABOUT THE INSULTING PROPOSAL.

Time Enough to Discuss the Proposition When it Comes Before the Government Officially—Mr. Wiman Interviewed.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—In answer to the question what he thought of the resolution introduced into Congress by Ben Butterworth, Sir John Macdonald said yesterday: "I do not care to express any opinion as to the propriety of the step. There is an implied rule prohibiting the criticism of the proceedings in either branch of our Legislature by a member of the other division, and the same rule ought to hold equally good with respect to the acts of a foreign legislature. The proposition of Mr. Butterworth in its present state, as I understand it, is a purely domestic matter. There will be time enough to discuss the proposition when it comes before us officially."

A Fatal Mistake.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Erastus Wiman in an interview yesterday said: "Mr. Butterworth has made a fatal mistake in introducing his annexation resolution. There are generally two parties to a bargain, and in this particular case three, viz: United States, Canada and England, and if any of these three are unwilling, a bargain is impossible. I have stated before that the sentiment against annexation in Canada was so pronounced that its advocacy by any political party in that country would mean the party's defeat. The effect of this proposal of political union at the present time in Congress will be to make it a very difficult task for the Liberal party in Canada to secure closer commercial relations. Indeed it will be almost a hopeless attempt if Congress should by its passage of these resolutions persist in this effort. I look upon Mr. Butterworth's action as a political move on the part of the Republicans for the purpose of forestalling the Democrats, who I know contemplated just such an action."

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number for the United States 208 and for Canada 35, or a total of 303 as compared with 305 last week and 232 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the failures were 288, 254 being in the United States and 34 in Canada.

Serious Charges Against Two Witnesses.

WHITBY, Dec. 15.—One James and J. W. Bymall of Brantford, two witnesses in the seed wheat case of Wilkes v. Hodson at the County Sessions here growing out of a note procured from the defendant by A. Hope of Brantford, were arrested yesterday, charged respectively with perjury and fraud.

Accident, Murder or Suicide?

WINDSOR, Dec. 15.—Farmer Robert McQuade, his son and the latter's wife lived in the Township of Anderdon, near Amherstburg. The son, whose record is unenviable, was married about two months ago to Miss Beattie, daughter of a neighbor. The union has not been a happy one, the wife complaining of the brutal treatment of her husband. Yesterday morning she went to Amherstburg after having had a scene with McQuade, and he was left alone at the house. Shortly after McQuade's father entered and found the son lying in a pool of blood with one side of his head completely blown off. Close behind him was a double-barrelled gun with one barrel empty. McQuade lies in an unconscious state and there is no hope of his recovery. It is said he had loaded the gun with the object of shooting his father-in-law, but changed his mind and shot himself. His relatives say it was an accident.

Resolution of Quebec's Board of Trade—The Saving of Time.

QUEBEC, Dec. 15.—At a meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade yesterday it was resolved:

"That this Board is impressed with the importance of having a first-class Transatlantic mail service. A liberal subsidy is required from the Government at Ottawa for an essentially Canadian line. That the President do address the Ottawa Government on the matter and press the urgency of the Quebec route."

It was shown in favor of the Quebec route that the time from Toronto to New York is 12 hours, New York to Liverpool 8 days; Toronto to Quebec 17 hours, Quebec to Liverpool 7 days, showing a saving of 19 hours.

MR. STEVENSON'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—

Although I had almost definitely decided to retire from active and official participation in municipal matters, yet the desire, as expressed in the foregoing requisition, seems to be of so general and representatives a character, that I feel that I would be doing less than my duty as a citizen if I failed to respond to it, therefore, though I do so with personal reluctance, in compliance with the formal demand for my services, I hereby consent to become a candidate for the mayoralty of Peterborough for the year 1889. In so doing I think I have a right to feel that my past services have been employed in the best interests of the town, which could hardly be otherwise, when it is borne in mind that I have no small share of material interests to be effected by the administration of the municipal affairs of the town. It is, therefore, my own interest to use my best efforts to secure economical and prudent management of civic matters, and I think my past course is a sufficient guarantee that the public interest will not meet with neglect at my hands. I might suggest that my efforts in promoting manufacturing industries shows that my interest in labouring men is not of a merely sentimental character. I am a comparatively large employer of labor, and endeavor to put my interest in the laboring classes into practical effect, and shall, if again honored with the confidence of the citizens, use my best efforts to maintain the rights and promote the interests of all classes of the community. I do not seek the office of mayor, but if I am chosen I shall not fail to do my best in the future as I have done in the past, to discharge its duties faithfully. I, therefore, place myself in your hands and allow you to put my name in nomination for the position of mayor, assured that I can count upon your assistance in securing my return.

I have the honor to remain, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JAMES STEVENSON.
